Four Shot to Death in North Alberta

POLICE POSSE SEEKS SLAYER IN DENSE BUSH

FIFTH VICTIM DYING.

Details From Smoky Lake Fail to Give Details as to Reason For Outbreak.

EDMONTON, Alta., October 23 (C.P.). — A 12-gauge shotgun in the hands of a murderer dealt death to-day to four persons and critically injured a fifth on a lonely farm near Smoky Lake, in Northern Alberta. A posse of Provincial Police is scouring the surrounding bush country, about 80 miles north-east of Edmonton, for one George Dwernchuk, alleged to be the slayer

The Dead.

John Walanski, father-in-law of Dwernchuk.

Mrs. John Walanski.

Mary Walanski, 16-year-old invalid.

John Darichuk, middle-aged farmer.

All but Darichuk, who farms near the Walanski home, were members of the one family. They were slain in the Walanski farm house, but advices from Smoky Lake give no details as to the reason for the murderous outbreak.

Mrs. Mary Huchaluk, aged mother of Mrs. Walanski, is in hospital at Smoky Lake, in a most critical condition. It is not believed she will live, after suffering grave wounds when she was shot down with the other four persons.

Official details of the wholesale killings were not available here. Over long distance telephone was gathered the following story from persons at Smoky Lake, who had visited the scene of the alleged crimes.

Lad Plays Dead

A 12-year-old son of John Walanski was playing in the yard of his father's farm home, some four miles northeast of Smoky Lake, at about 6.30 p.m. Wednesday. A man walked into the yard with a gun. He shot at

Chief Guest at Carlton Club Affair Loses Dinner by Advice to Baldwin

LONDON, England, October 23 (C. P. Cable). — The powers that be in the Conservative Party have snubbed Lord Brentford, better known as the former Sir William Joynson-Hicks, Secretary for Home Affairs in the late Baldwin Cabinet.

When Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin last week issued his statement accepting the Imperial preference offers, Lord Brentford simultaneously issued a statement urging Mr. Baldwin to "take his courage in both hands and include agriculture in his scheme."

Now an invitation to Lord Brentford to be chief guest at the annual dinner of the famous Carlton Club on November 4 has been cancelled without any specific reason. The original invitation was issued by Sir Stanley Machin on September 26, and was cordially accepted by Lord Brentford.

On Monday, however, Sir Stanley wrote to Lord Brentford that the arrangements had been changed and the gathering would not take place just at present.

Lord Brentford replied with the unabashed remark that "while I should appreciate the honor of being your guest, perhaps I shall still more appreciate the privilege of a quiet evening at home."

QUEEN'S LETTERS UNFOLD AFFAIRS IN ROYAL COURT

German Emperor William's Attitude Strained Family Relations.

WAS VICTORIA'S GRANDSON.

"He Will Ruin the Country if He Can," Her Majesty Said of Gladstone.

(By Thos. T. Champion C. P. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 23.— The volume of letters of Queen Victoria published today by Murray's is a regular treasure trove of additional information of the affairs of the Royal Court between 1886 and 1890.

Queen Victoria was of course not the only person who wondered what "Willy" would do when he became Emperor of Germany. William Hohenzollern was her grandson, son of Victoria's eldest daughter, Victoria Adelaide. England's Royal Lady was soon enlightened however, and the family relations became strained.

High-Hatting the Family

"As regarding the Prince (later Edward VII) not treating his nephew as an Emperor" wrote Queen Victoria, "This is really too vulgar and too absurd as well as untrue to be believed. We have always been very intimate with our grandson and nephew and to pretend he is to be treated in private as well as in public as His Imperial Majesty is perfect madness. If he has any such notions he had better never come here."

William however, was appreciatively jubilant when he was made a British Admiral. "Fancy wearing the same uniform as St. Vincent and Nelson. It makes one feel quite giddy", he exclaimed and, remarkable in the light of later events, he added he felt something like MacBeth must have felt when the witches summoned him.

Once again the letters show how Victoria was disturbed by Gladstone. "He will ruin the country if he can" Her Majesty wrote once of the great Victorian Prime Minister.

France and Australia are to be connected by a beam wireless service.

GOLD DISCOVERY ONE OF RICHEST EVER IN ONTARIO

MINERS ON JOB.

Four Townships in Temagami Reserve Opened For Assessment.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 23 (C.P.) — Indications the recent discovery of gold in the Matachewan area on the boundary of the Townships of Argyle and Bannockburn, may prove one of the richest finds in recent years in Ontario, is seen in a report made by H. Rickaby, geologist for the Department of Mines, who has just returned from a tour of inspection.

Claim staking is going on briskly and though there is snow on the ground, many prospectors are on the ground. Mr. Rickaby brought back a number of samples which are being assayed and he will report the result of these to the department as a matter of record.

Three Townships Rich

The scene of the discovery is at the northern end of the Temagami Forest Reserve and the extensive area of favorable geology surrounding the site of the original discovery, includes most of the townships of Hincks, Bannockburn and Argyle.

The official statement says in part:

"The discovery of gold in the Matchewan area, near the boundary between Bannockburn and Argyle townships, looks good to H. Rickaby, geologist for the Department of Mines, who has just returned from a short visit of inspection.

"A vein of milky quartz, from 18 inches to two feet wide, is exposed in an outcropping of rock in low ground. It has been shown for a length of 65 feet, but from the occurrence on the surface of 'float' showing gold, it has a length of at least 400 feet.

"There is considerable free gold associated with telluride, and samples showing no visible gold are said to have yielded high assays."

Claims May Be Worked

Four townships in the Temagami Forest Reserve. All centering on the village of Temagami, have been thrown open for assessment work on mining claims, it has been announced by N. J. McAulay, local mining director.

As a result of this announcement, mining claims staked as long as 20 years ago, must be worked immediately if the stakeholders are to retain control. The government clamped the lid down on assessment work some years ago in order to preserve the forest and tourist attractions of the district.

TWO TUGS RESCUE FIREMEN ON PIER

Brigade Battle Hours on Philadelphia Wharf Beofre Being Beaten.

35 HAVE CLOSE CALL.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Oct. 23.—(CP)— Thirty-five firemen, trapped on the end of a pier by a wall of flames, which broke through the flooring behind them, were rescued by two tugboats to-day.

Driven back time after time by dense clouds of black smoke, more than a score of the city's fire fighting units battled for hours to gain control of the blaze, threatening destruction to piers 18 and 20, south wharves owned by the Merchants' and Miners' Transportation Company.

A third alarm was sounded when the flames, continuing to gain headway, began creeping along the undersection of the wooden structures. Firemen utilized rowboats to get at the blaze raging under the piers.

Not until after a four hour battle were firemen able to force their way to the river end of the pier. Shortly after they gained this point of vantag, the fire broke through behind them, cutting off escape.

A few minutes after the tugboats rescued them, the flames closed in.

McINTYRE CASE IS BEING HEARD SOUP DANGEROUS

Diluted Nitro Glycerine Closely Watched in Police Court.

FULL KIT OF SAFE BLOWER.

Ivan Moore of Lindsay Defending Man on Attempted Robbery Charge.

A whisky flask containing a yellowish-brown fluid held the interest and apprehensive curiosity of Magistrate Langley, police officials, lawyers, and packed audience of spectators at Police Court this morning.

The bottle and its contents looked innocent enough, but police handled it with extreme care. Precautionary glances were thrown at the flask almost constantly, and the Magistrate instructed Chief Newhall "to be careful and don't take your eyes off that bottle."

Diluted Nitro-Glycerine.

If Chief Newhall's opinion is correct, and it was assumed by everyone present that it was, the flask contains diluted nitro-glycerine in sufficient quantity to blow up the whole City Hall and several neighboring buildings. "Soup" the Chief called the fluid, and he explained that it was used by all high-grade safe blowers in their business of exploding safes and strong boxes.

The flask and its contents formed the chief exhibit in the trial of William R. McIntyre, who is alleged to have been caught red-handed by Constable Leonard Matthews in the early hours of September 29 as he was forcing his way through a window into Brewer's garage.

Other exhibits formed what Chief Newhall termed "the full kit of a first-class safe blower, who meant business." They included several heavy hammers, a jemmy, cold chisel, guncotton, soap chips, fuse, and blasting caps.

But the interest and anxiety was fully centred on exhibit 6 the flask containing the liquid which the Chief maintained to be "soup."

After it was produced and marked as an exhibit, Magistrate Langley asked, "Is there any need to keep that dangerous stuff in here?"

"If it explodes,' commented Crown Attorney McElderry, "the court room will be better ventilated than it is at present."

"Will heat set it off?" asked the Magistrate.

"No," replied the Chief, "it will be all right so long as no one knocks it over." The Chief deposited the flask on the floor to the left of the bench.

"Well, keep your eyes right on it. You are putting it pretty close to me," said the magistrate, with a side look at the flask.

According to Constable Jack Stevenson, the prisoner had told him the flask contained medicine.

It was suggested by Ivan Moore, of Lindsay, McIntyre's counsel that it might not be "soup" and he strongly intimated that before his doubts could be swept away there should be a demonstration to show conclusively that the flask's contents was the high explosive "soup."

The Chief had intimated earlier that he could show conclusively by putting a drop on an axe and hitting it with a hammer that it was "soup." Mr. Moore suggested that the demonstration be staged in the market square, but the Chief evaded the suggestion.

"Its soup all right, I know," he said, relating several instances of his experience with the liquid.

YOUNG FARMER FOUND MURDERED

Fist Fight Last Wister Believed to Have Figured in Man's Death.

BODY BADLY FROZEN.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 23 (C.P.)— Provincial police to-day are attempting to unravel details of a fist fight last winter, in which Peter Demchesion, 23-year-old Fork River farmer, whose frozen body with a bullet-wound above the heart was found late Tuesday, is believed to have figured. Demchesion is believed to have been waylaid and shot to death while returning home from Winnipegosis along a lonely road.

Carefully covered with leaves and stones, over which a fresh mantle of snow had fallen, Demchesion's body was found after a three-day search. Police could provide no theory why the young farmer should be attacked. They directed an investigation into the fight many months ago in which Demchesion is said to have severely beaten several men.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict that he came to his death "from a wound caused by a shot-gun fired by person or persons unknown.

PALESTINE POLICY SCORED BY AMERY

WEIZMANN LAUDED.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 23.— (A.P.)— Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Sir Austen Chamberlain and Colonel L. C. S. Amery in a letter to the London Times to-day, severely criticize the MacDonald Ministry's new policy toward Palestine as advanced in a statement of Lord Passfield, Secretary of State for the Colonies, Monday.

The letter pays high tribute to Dr. Chaim Weizmann, who has resigned his presidency of both the Jewish agency and the Zionist movement in protest at British adoption of a policy which is deemed by his followers to do away with the project of making Palestine a national home for Jews and puts a ban on immigration there.

Relief Programme Receives Sanction Of Acting Premier

Drainage Construction Scheme to Meet the Emergency of Unemployment is Presented to Hon. George S. Henry, Acting Premier ByCity Council.

TOTAL EXPENDITURE EXPECTED TO AMOUNT TO $56,000 HALF OF WHICH BE PAID BY PETERBORO RATEPAYERS

City's Share Must Be Ratified By Vote of the Ratepayers But Council Hopes To Be Able To Start Work Before the Necessary Vote is Taken.

Peterborough's relief program of drainage construction which the Council has planned to meet the emergency of unemployment received the sanction of the Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Highways and acting Prime Minister, after hearing yesterday afternoon the request of the Council's deputation headed by Mayor Denne.

The effect of this agreement will be the expenditure of $56,000 on the city's comprehensive drainage scheme, and half this amount will be paid out of the special fund which the Dominion Government has authorized for unemployment relief in accordance with Premier Bennett's pre-election promise.

The conference with the Ministe lasted only twenty minutes. Peterborough's application was briefly and adequately set forth by Mayor Denne, and a copy of the details of the project was left with Hon. Mr. Henry for the formality of consideration by the Government and their official approval. It is expected that this will be forwarded to the Council in a few days, and it is proposed that everything shall be ready to proceed with the program as soon as possible, probably within a week

Ratepayers Must Approve.

As a requisite to this unemployment relief scheme, involving an expenditure by the city of $28,000, it must be ratified by the ratepayers, and a by-law will be submitted to them at the January elections for the sale of $28,000 ten-year debentures to provide for the city's share of the cost. The Council feels that this by-law will be endorsed by the ratepayers, and in that conviction they have gone ahead with their emergnecy program.

Met In King Edward

To determine that the Council itself was unanimous on this condition, a meeting was held yesterday morning in the King Edward hotel. All the members were present except Aldermen Macdonald, McIntyre and Fitzpatrick. Those who answered the roll call at this Toronto meeting were unanimously in favor of acting upon the plan which had been thoroughly discussed in committee and also at the last regular

REDS MURDER 8,000 CHINESE IN CITY OF KIAN

Communist Hordes Swarm Over Town Killing 2,000 in One Day.

BISHOP BRINGS NEWS.

Was Released After Attempt to Raise $10,000,000 Ransom For Missionaries Failed.

SHANGHAI, China, Oct. 23.— (C. P.)— Eight thousand Chinese men and women have been massacred at Kian, Province of Kiamgsi, by Communists, in an orgy of slaying, looting and burning, said despatches received to-day.

The Reds swarmed into Kian on Oct. 6, ransacked the city and ruthlessly killed 2,000 inhabitants in one day. Thousands of others were slain as depredations continued.

First news of the massacre was brought by Bishop of Migniani of the Italian Lazarist Mission at Kian, who, with a Chinese Lazarist priest, arrived at Kiukiang to-day. He had been released by Reds to attempt to arise $10,000,000 Mexican (about $3,500,000 gold) as ransom for fourteen missionaries held at Kian.

BRITISH IMPORTS TAKE BIG DROP IF CANADA ON FREE TRADE BASIS

Hon. H. H. Stevens Speaks Frankly at Chamber of Commerce Luncheone in London.

Preference Base of Trade.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 23 (By Thos. T. Champion, C. P. Staff Correspondent).—In a frank address before the British Chamber of Commerce at luncheon to-day, Hon. H. H. Stevens, Canadian Minister of Trade and Commerce, gave the answers to some of the questions asked when Empire trade is discussed in Britain. He declared if Canada was on a free trade basis he doubted whether Britain would sell so many goods in the Dominion, unless Britain's manufacturers grasped their opportunities more vigorously than they do now.

Mr. Stevens said he had often been asked why Canada wanted to extend her industries in competition with Great Britain. He would remind the people here that for a century Britain had been sending out skilled workmen to Canada and other places. Would they expect such to remain idle rather than use the skill bequeathed to them in Britain. Moreover, there was a great country to the South, highly developed, which was constantly pressing on Canada.

"I am asked why does not Canada buy more from the Motherland," Mr. Stevens went on. "If Canada were on a free trade basis, I question whether this country would get any trade at all, for the trade so done already is largely based on the preference. I know I am stepping on dangerous ground," added Mr. Stevens amidst laughter, "but it is an historic fact."

17 Liquor Runners Captured in Raid

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., Oct. 23 (C.P.)—Liquor valued at $150,000 was seized and 17 men were arrested early to-day when police frustrated what they described as one of the biggest rum-running operations in the history of prohibition on Massachusetts shore.

Among those arrested was Captain Edward W. Flynn of the Salem Fire Department.

Patrolman George Kelly of the local police department, one of the first to reach the scene, was struck by a tear gas bullet. He was painfully burned about the face and temporarily blinded. He fired four shots at his assailants, who escaped the fusilade.

CONTRACT FOR CONSTRUCTION ON NEW HIGHWAY NOT YET LET

Tenders Have Been Already Received By Minister and Await Opening.

PATROLLING ROAD.

The contract for the construction of the Peterborough-Tweed highway has not yet been let.

Hon. Geo. Henry, Minister of Highways pointed to a package of envelopes on his desk yesterday when the delegation from Peterborough City Council interviewed him.

"There are the tenders, gentlemen" said Mr. Henry, 'and if I can arrange for a meeting we'll open them to-night. We have been extremely busy hearing deputations applying for relief as you are doing, but I'll deal with these tenders just as soon as I can."

T. P. Lancaster, M.P.P., Havelock, in his weekly Standard refers in to-day's issue to the temporary patrolling of the Peterborough section of the road as follows:

After a little unforseen delay, patrol men have at last been appointed and started at work on No. 7 highway from Peterborough to Madoc.

Starting at Peterborough a Mr. Milne is in charge on the Block road as far as Shearer's cheese factory. From that point to the east end of the 2nd concession line in Ashpodel east to the "Old Maid's Corners," William Chamberlain of Norwood is the official. From the east end of Chamberlain's beat to the Preneveau school line, George Hartin of Belmont will preside over the destinies of the highway, and from Preneveau school line, George Hartin of Belmont will preside over the destinies of the highway, and from Preneveau to Marmora. Thos. McQuigge of Marmora governs the route.

Road material will be placed on the highway at once, and the above patrol men will be kept steadily employed in spreading it on their beats and keeping the highway smooth and in first class order at all times."

It is rumored that local disputes about the course of the highway in Hastings county has been hampering the department in the designation of that section of its route.

ROBB CRITICIZES PERTH CANDIDATE

BACKS RICHARDSON.

STRATFORD, Ont., Oct. 23 (C.P.). —The action of the Liberal-Progressive candidate in the South Perth by-election of advertising himself as the anti-Ferguson candidate, was the object of an attack by Hon. J. M. Robb, new Minister of Health, making his maiden speech in Southern Ontario from the platform of the Town Hall here last night.

Apparently the opposition candidate was ashamed to call himself a Liberal, he declared. He also condemned those who dubbed his leader the "Autocrat of Toronto" and the Mussolini of Ontario. If the Liberal Leader would devote less time to making personal attacks on Premier Ferguson and more time to giving some constructive ideas to his party, the Liberals would think a great deal more of his leadership, he declared.

"The Liberal party would be proud to get a man of the calibre of Howard Ferguson for a leader," he asserted.

Last night's meeting, which was in the interest of C. E. Richardson, the Conservative candidate in the South Perth by-election, brought to the riding two of the new Ferguson Ministers, Hon. Mr. Robb and Hon. W. G. Martin, the new Minister of Public Welfare.

Mysterious Murders Alarm Tennessee

2 YOUTHS FOUND DYING OF WOUNDS IN BURNING BRUSH

One Succumbs, Other May Live After Mysterious Attack in Swamp.

DIARY RECOVERED.

Discovery Made on Lonely Tennessee Road By Wood Choppers.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 23 (C.P.)—Two wood choppers in lonely swamp lands by the Mississippi River yesterday found two youths, bruised and beaten, burning alive in a mystery brush heap fire. One of them died later of a crushed skull, and the other, still unconscious, had only a fighting chance to live.

Letters, a diary and an automobile key, served as means of identifying the boy who died as Burton Hensley, 17 years old, and his companion as Woodrow Wilson, both of Bald Creek, N.C.

About a mile from the Arkansas approach to Harahan Bridge, the wood choppers found Hensley with one side enveloped in flames, and Wilson's feet nearly burned away. Had the choppers been a little later, their find would have only been the ashes of a funeral pyre, the siftings from which would not have proven more mysterious than their actual find. Physicians said the boys apparently had been beaten six or eight hours before.

A salt shaker, clotted with blood-stains was found near the fire, but there was nothing else to indicate that they had been camping.

The diary contained entries of an automobile journey, but there was no trace of an automobile.

ACTION IN 1911 BAD FOR CANADA

Dominion Should Have Accepted Reciprocity With U. S. Miss MacPhail Says.

SPEAKS IN WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Oct. 23—Canada was "exceedingly foolish" in 1911, in not accepting reciprocity with the United States, Miss Agnes Macphail told the American Association of Women's Clubs, at a dinner here last night in her honor.

The Fordney-McCumber tariff was not popular in Canada, she said, but it certainly was popular as compared with the recently-enacted Hawley-Smoot law. Recalling 1911, she said Canada should have taken what was then offered and that would be of value now. It was most unfortunate that Canada and the United States could not get Governments of like mind into power at the same time. It was one of the trials of democracy that often Governments did not represent the immediate desire of the people.

Miss Macphail began her address by saying that economic experts as well as "folks" now recognized the world as an economic whole. There was really no national governmental policy because repercussions of individual action were felt among all nations and around the world. She asked what caused the talk of a United States of Europe and found the answer in the desire of 27 nations of that continent for economic rather than national determination.

WRIGHT GRILLED IN SALARY PROBE

M.P.P. Said Statement By Him to Newspaper Not Correct in All Particulars.

MAYOR IMPLICATED.

TORONTO, Ont., October 22 (C.P.). — Sam Wright, member of the Provincial Legislature, to-day again spent a lengthy session giving testimony before Judge Denton when the probe into the circumstances surrounding the increase in salaries of Mayor, Controllers, and Aldermen was resumed.

Peter White, K.C., Crown counsel, secured from Mr. Wright an admission that a statement by him to a local newspaper, alleging that Mayor Wemp was a party to the increase, was not correct in all particulars. He also told Judge Denton that the part of the statement in which he said he had never approached any individual, organization, or newspaper for support in securing appointment to the Toronto Transportation Committee, was not correct.

Crown counsel told Mr. Wright his evidence showed that he was clear on points unfavorable to the Mayor but was not clear on points favorable to him.

LEGION MEMBERS TO BATTLE REDS

Port Arthur Citizens Volunteer as Special Constables in Case of Emergency.

BADGES ISSUED.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Oct. 23 (C.P.)—Decision to organize an auxiliary police force of members of the Canadian Legion, city employees, and citizens to assist city police in case of further Communist outbreaks, was made late yesterday, at a special meeting of the Port Arthur Police Commission. The precautionary measure was taken after a day of quietude, following downtown demonstrations by Communists and unemployed Tuesday, in which the Chief of Police was knocked down and an arrested man released.

Representatives of the Canadian Legion and Provincial Police, as well as prominent citizens, met the Police Commission. Any citizen was made eligible and upon registration was sworn in as a special constable.

The auxiliary force will be commanded by officers to be appointed by the Legion and will be armed as regular constables. Should another demonstration occur, the force will be rallied quickly to assist police.

In announcing the decision of the meeting Chief of Police Taylor stated that it was realized the recently made threats of the unmployed were the result of leadership by agents of a foreign country, sent out to spread Communistic propaganda. These agents, declared the Police Chief, were only using the unemployment situation to cover up their action. The special force will be distinguished by badges, Chief Taylor said.

May Call on Federal Government

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 23 (C.P.) — In a determined effort to stamp out Communist disturbances in Port Arthur, the Provincial Police have been instructed to co-operate with the civic authorities, and if these measures fail, the aid of the Federal Government will be sought, Attorney-General Price stated yesterday after a conference with General Victor Williams, Commissioner of Provincial Police.

"It is to be hoped that there will be occasion to ask Federal assistance," said Col. Price, "but we are determined to maintain law and order, and if it is necessary for us to take such a drastic step we will not hesitate. Everything has been done to ensure a prompt suppression of further trouble. We are taking no chances."

The Attorney-General conferred over long-distance telephone with the Crown Attorney at Port Arthur and advised him to have Provincial officers in readiness for emergencies. Conditions in the Twin City were reported to be improving. Col. Price expressed the opinion that newspaper reports of the clashes between Communists and the police were somewhat exaggerated.

ORILLIA MAYOR WOULD HAVE CITY

SETTLE POWER TROUBLES.

ORILLIA, Oct. 23. (CP)—Mayor J. B. Johnston of Orillia in an interview divulged a suggestion which he will submit to the Township Council as soon as he can assemble all his data on the subject, in the hope of settling the power controversy which is causing dissatisfaction between the town and township.

The idea calls for the extension of the town limits, first, northerly from the present limits at North street out to the 5th and 6th concession line, then from Lake Couchiching to 4th concession, thence southerly. The southerly extension would extend to a point almost opposite the old Thompson mill site and take in the entire Ontario Hospital.

This enlargement of the town's area would bring the population up to 10,000.

Secession from the county would be another feature of the scheme. At present practically 50 percent. of the town's taxes are paid over to the county.

Dupre Making Stand For Provincial Rights

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 23. (CP)—Before the Imperial Conference committee under Lord Sankey, Lord High Chancellor Canada is making a stand for Provincial rights. Hon. Maurice Dupre, Canadian Solicitor-General, supporting the views by Premiers Ferguson and Taschereau of Ontario and Quebec, respectively, holds that the Provinces must first be consulted before any amendments can be made to the British North American Act. The question arose in consideration by the committee of the recommendations of the 1929 conference on operations of Dominion Laws.

In effect the Canadian delegates' stand, pursued to its logical conclusion, would lead to an inter-provincial conference or some other mode of consultation before final action of the report of the 1929 conference.

SCHOOL FRACAS SMOOTHED OUT

Fourteen Pupils in Toronto Class Room Leave When Inspector Visits.

NONE SUSPENDED.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 23.— The Lansdowne continuation school difficulty has been settled. Some fourteen of the 49 pupils who absented themselves on learning that Inspector J. P. Hoag, of Toronto, was to pay them a visit, have returned to class.

There were no suspensions imposed by Inspector Hoag. First newspaper stories from the Lansdowne district alleged that 23 pupils had been kicked out by the Inspector for their actions. A report on the matter was asked for by Attorney-General William H. Price, acting Minister of Education and this was forthcoming yesterday, from George F. Rogers, Director of Education for Ontario. Mr. Rogers' statement follows:

"Mr. J. P. Hoag, Continuation School Inspector, reported to me on Saturday the facts in connection with the Lansdowne incident. He visited the school in the morning of the previous Thursday, and announced that he would give the first and second forms tests in spelling and writing during the afternoon. Presumably as a result of this, about half of each class stayed at home. I think about 14 or 15 pupils altogether. In discussing this with the teacher of the school, he suggested to her that she should exact notes from the parents of all absentees to explain their absence and also stated that if this sort of thing persisted it might not be a bad idea to suspend some of them. Thursday night Mr. Hoag went to Trenton, and thinking that the teacher might misunderstand his last remark, regarding suspension, he wrote to her that night, from Trenton, stating that he did not intend that she should suspend the pupils for their absence on Thursday afternoon.

"The continuation school regulations section 12 (1) state—"Every continuation school inspector, while officially visiting a school, shall have supreme authority in the school, and may direct teachers and pupils in regard to discipline or to any or all of the exercises of the school.

"It is possible that some pupil in the school overheard Mr. Hoag talking to the teacher and went home with the story that the pupils were going to be suspended—hence the newspaper story."

PARLEY OUTCOME MAY BE FAILURE

Hertzog Claims South Africa Will Have No Quarrel With Decisions.

FREE TRADE BATTLE.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 23. — South Africa recognizes that the future economic policy within the British Empire largely depends on the battle between free trade and protectionist forces n Great Britain, and will have no quarrel with the outcome of the present Imperial Conference, even if it proves disappointing to the Dominions, declared Prime Minister J. B. Hertzog of South Africa.

The British Commonwealth, the South African Premier said, exercised no less a far-reaching influence than the League of Nations itself in advancing the peace and prosperity and happiness of the world. "If the present conference is not successful, the reason for the failure must be sought in a particular set of circumstances and not in any inherent weakness in commonwealth co-operation," he pointed out.

While the conference's labor in the field of economic co-operation loomed largest in the public eye, the South African Premier went on, other problems which were of the very greatest importance and significance were also being disposed of. He emphasized the difficulty of solving the question of readjustment of the economic basis of Great Britain's fiscal policy in harmony with the economic needs of the various member States.

DIVORCE SCORED BEFORE BAPTISTS

McMaster Professor Claims New Legislation Tends to Home Wrecking.

ATTACKS LIQUOR LAWS.

HAMILTON, Ont., Oct. 23. (CP)—Criticism of the Ontario Government's liquor control laws and the increased facilities now available for those seeking divorce, marked the address yesterday of Professor A. L. McCrimmon, McMaster University, before delegates attending the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec.

The new legislation in Ontario, he proceeded, which makes divorces easier to obtain was symptomatic of insidious dangers which would wreck the very basic associative unit of the race—the home. It was a matter of the gravest concern to Christianity to see no menace arose which threatened the sacred institution of marriage, the maintenance of family ties, and the preserving inviolate of home life.

Touching on the liquor question Prof. McCrimmon said: "The Province of Ontario is now in the liquor business. The tax-payer who does not drink has his tax lightened, apparently by the profits of the traffic, until he reckons up the expense of intemperance. The most serious result is the effect of such participation by our state on the judgement which the rising generation will pass upon the commerce of intoxicating beverages. Every person who pays taxes and votes has become a partner of whiskey."

FARM COUNTRY FOUND IN NORTH

NEEDS TRANSPORT AIDS.

TORONTO, Ont., October 23 (C.P.). — In Northern Ontario along the Manitoba boundary there is level, open country that might in time make good agricultural land, Duncan R. Derry, of the Ontario Department of Mines, and an official of the Manitoba Department, found when they journeyed to Northern Ontario with a party of the Dominion Topographical Survey under J. W. Pierce. The survey had gone to this out-of-the-way territory to cut out and survey the Inter-Provincial boundary line between Ontario and Manitoba on the twelfth base line and latitude 53 degree 40 feet.

They softened their finding with an "if." "If," they added, "transport facilities ever reach the area." The clay lies between Mile 25 and Mile 70, and extends east and west covering most of the rock with only isolated "islands" of rock projecting. It seems to have been laid down by a lake formed during a pause in the retreat of ice in glacial times.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO, October 23. — Egg prices on the local market yesterday held to previous quotations, with the exception of one price to retailers. The general trend of the market was the same as during the past few days, with receipts light and storage eggs moving in larger quantities from wholesalers to retailers. Brokers were able to get the top price of 43c for fresh extras for the few they had to sell, but in comparison with the storage movement they did not figure very largely. One local retail firm was offering 5c better than the market prices to shippers, for extras and firsts, delivered, cases returned, but did not state that they would take seconds. This firm asked for supplies direct from the farmer, and the prices offered were in accord with the splendid demand on this market. Fresh eggs have been scarce and they are worth a good price.

Egg Prices.

General quotations to the country shippers yesterday were 40c for extras, 36c for firsts, and 25c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned. Retailers found a slight change in wholesale prices, which were 47c for extras in cartons, 45c for extras, loose, 41c, an increase of 1c, for firsts, loose, and 30c to 32c for seconds, loose, an increase of 2c in the spread for this grade. Brokers were asking 42c to 43c for extras, 38c to 39c for firsts, and 27c for seconds, graded, in free cases.

Butter Prices.

The butter market showed the same activity as usual, during the past few weeks, which was very little. Brokers were asking 31c to 31½c for No. 1, but this was only an asking price, the top of the market was probably 31½c for No. 2 butter, the price spread was 30c to 30½c, with reports of some at 29½c to 29¾c, but this, of course, would not score very high. Consumers recently have been offered prints at very low prices in comparison with the market quotation on solids, which leads back to storage supplies.

Cheese.

Cheese was being sold in small lots on the local market at 15½c to 16c for new large, 16c to 16½c for twins, and 16½c to 16¾c for triplets, which is steady with quotations at the first of the week.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Oct. 23.—Egg prices advanced yesterday from 1c to 5c owing to the scarcity of further supplies. Special brands and fresh extras were advanced 5c a dozen; fresh firsts, 4c; fresh seconds, 1c, and storage extras, 2c, while storage extras and firsts were unchanged. This sudden change had been expected, as it was recognized that receipts and further supplies would fall off abruptly. Less than carlot prices for Ontario fresh eggs, available in limited quantities only, were: Extras, 48c to 50c; firsts, 42c to 53c, and seconds, 28c. Dealers reported a daily increasing movement of storage eggs. Receipts were 546 cases. Quotations to retailers were: Special brands, 60c; fresh extras, 55c; fresh firsts, 48c; fresh seconds, 35c; storage extras, 41c; storage firsts, 38c a dozen, and storage seconds, 34c a dozen.

The butter market was firm and quiet, with prices for No. 1 pasteurized creamery butter, in carlots, 29½c to 30c a pound. Solids were 32c to 33c, and prints 33c to 34c to retailers. Receipts were 29 boxes.

Ontario cheese was quoted at 15½c a pound, and Quebec cheese, 14½c to 14¾c on the cheese market today. Receipts were 3,008 boxes.

The potato market was steady. New Brunswick Green Mountains sold at $1 to $1.05, ex track, per 80-pound bags, and for Prince Edward Island Cobblers, per 90-pound bags, $1.15 to $1.20. Carlot prices were 85c bulk and 95c bagged for New Brunswick Green Mountains per 80-pound bags, and 90c, bagged, for Prince Edward Island Cobblers per 90-pound bags.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, October 23. — Overnight export business was small and cables from Liverpool were indifferent, but the Winnipeg wheat market yesterday recorded gains. Reaction from the oversold status of Tuesday's close and strength at Chicago sent values up to their peaks at the close, finishing 1½c to 1¾c better for the day.

Though buying orders were somewhat scattered, the pit was burdened under no weight of sales, and advances were comparatively easy of effect. Cash wheat business was meagre, due to lightness of offerings, though shippers and United States millers were in the market for top grades.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—With buying active and carrying the market briskly upward wheat attained the highest close yesterday in several weeks, simultaneously the wheat market gave notable evidence of a disposition to ignore weakness in stocks, and much of the buying of wheat appeared to be based on recent refusal of grain values to follow downturns in securities. Another strengthening factor as to wheat was the announcement that a Canadian crop authority had almost doubled his estimate of the quantity of wheat unthrashed in Canada and now being subjected to damage.

Closing Prices Are Firm

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 1c to 1⅜c a bushel higher than Tuesday's finish. Corn closed 1⅜c to 2⅜ up; oats, ⅝c to ¾c advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12c.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 23.—Fowl suppers seem to be the rage these days, and we notice that many men are walking about with a satisfied air. ST. ANDREW'S Y.P. TO VISIT WARKWORTH

Will Present Program at That Place Next Monday—Joint Meeting.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 23. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The regular meeting of St. Andrew's Young Peoples' Society was held on Monday evening with a good attendance registered. The president Thomas Campbell was in the chair and W. A. Newcourt acted as pianist for the occasion.

The meeting, which opened with the singing of hymns, scripture reading and prayer by the Rev. W. Gartshore, was followed by the business session. This part of the evening's work revealed the fact that an invitation had been received by the Campbellford society to attend the Warkworth meeting next Monday evening. The request was made that the Campbellford group would provide the program and the hosts the refreshment. This matter was discussed and it was decided to accept the invitation. The date of the rally at Keene was set for November .

Don. Rutherford, convenor of the Devotional committee, took the chair for the latter part of the program.

The topic for the evening was taken by Thomas Campbell and was entitled "Christians and Sunday." This was followed by short discussions by Mr. Newcourt and the Rev W. Gartshore on the theme in question, after which the meeting closed with the singing of a hymn and the Benediction, pronounced by Mr. Gartshore.

THE DUMBELLS.

With the road show practically only a pleasant memory, the announcement that the Dumbells, Canada's troupe of war veteran entertainers, are to visit the Grand Opera House on Friday and Saturday has been received with much satisfaction by Peterborough's play-goers, who in spite of the merit of the talking pictures miss the personal touch of the legitimate attraction.

So far as is known the ex-soldier artists are likely to be the only theatrical organization to "troupe" through Canada this season, a fact that makes this week's visit more notable than usual.

The Dumbells have always been favorites here because of the individual cleverness of the members of the company and the wholesome British atmosphere that has distinguished their programs.

These men of the Maple Leaf never fail to offer a production that is pleasant contrast to some of the imported stuff other forms of entertainment are likely to greet their Canadian patrons with: the Dumbell organization is clever, clean and Canadian, and it is a source of gratification, therefore, to learn that Peterborough is once more to have the opportunity of enjoying a typical Dumbell offering that comes at a time when it was feared that the organization had been permanently abandoned.

PROTECT THE CHILDREN.

A Toronto jury inquiring into the death of a six-year-old girl who was struck by an automobile has returned a verdict in which the driver of the car is blamed because, in the opinion of the jury, he "did not take proper precautions upon passing a public school."

Only good luck has prevented many Peterborough motorists from coming under a similar indictment.

Although school areas in this city are all clearly marked by Ontario Motor League signs and motorists are asked to drive slowly in these sections, not one in a hundred pays the slightest attention to the warning.

If the accuracy of that statement is doubted, a little investigation of traffic movements in the neighborhood of local schools will soon convince any fair-minded observer that few drivers make any pretence at slowing up when approaching a school, and that at the noon hour when the pupils are dispersing to their homes both the city speed limit and the request of the Motor League are almost completely ignored to the obvious endangering of the lives of children.

It is the plain duty of every driver to handle his car with more than usual caution in areas where masses of school children are to be expected, and motorists who do not do so run the risk of finding themselves charged with flagrantly reckless driving, or even with manslaughter.

The fact that a child unexpectedly darts out into the roadway in front of a car is no defence for a driver who puts himself in the wrong by driving too fast in a section where he has been warned that such an emergency is likely to arise.

ALBERTA'S NEW REVENUE.

The fact that such an important event as the transfer from federal control to the provincial administrations of the natural resources of the Prairie Provinces caused but the slightest ripple of interest in Eastern Canada, offers its own evidence of the vast extent of this great Dominion and incidentally of the variety of the problems with which the Ottawa Government is called upon to deal.

In the West, of course, the transfer was seen in its real light, and the significance of what was involved therein is thoroughly appreciated.

As proof of that condition The Examiner begs leave to call attention to a special 48-page edition of the Edmonton Journal in which the handing over to Alberta of her natural resources is effectively dealt in a series of well-written and informative articles, profusely illustrated.

This splendid special number shows conclusively the historic importance of the completion of negotiations between the federal and provincial authorities, and also the extent of the resources handed over, which in Alberta's case include one hundred million acres of land, several million acres of coal leases, three million acres of valuable tar sands, and half a million acres of petroleum rights.

From the viewpoint of revenue, Alberta gains annually $231,000 from coal lands, $885,000 from minerals, and $376,000 from timber and grazing leases—a total revenue of $1,492,000 a year that formerly went to the federal treasury.

A QUESTION OF TITLES.

The honor conferred upon Premier Bennett in company with Premier Forbes of New Zealand and Premier Squires of Newfoundland, all three of whom have been made members of the Imperial Privy Council, does not seem to be very well understood in this country, probably because, as the Border Cities Star points out, there is always more or less misunderstanding over these things.

The confusion arises over the fact that there is a Privy Council in Canada as well as the Imperial Privy Council.

All members of the Dominion Cabinet become members of the Privy Council of Canada and are entitled to be called "Honorable" throughout life, Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., being a local example.

Only a few Canadians, however, in addition to Prime Ministers become members of the Imperial Privy Council, membership in which carries the additional distinction of "Right Honorable," also conferred for life.

Former Prime Ministers, such as Sir Robert Borden, Mr. Meighen and Mr. King, are entitled to be known as "Right Honorable," as are several other citizens of Canada upon whom the honor was conferred for long public service, among them being Sir George Foster, Sir William Mulock, Chief Justice of Ontario, Sir Francis Anglin, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, Rt. Hon. George P. Graham and Sir Thomas White.

It is interesting to note that the title "Honorable" is correctly applied to members of provincial cabinets only during their term of office, and that opposition leaders are not entitled to be so called, a fact that many politicians and some newspapers frequently overlook.

DECLINE OF THE ROAD SHOW.

According to New York theatre managers and producers, the outlook for the road show is not good. A few optimists seem to think there will be a "come back," George Arliss being one of them, the idea being that people will tire of shadowy figures. Contrary opinions, however, seem to carry more weight.

The folks who live among the tall grasses may grow hungry for fresh and blood acting, they may become satiated with million dollar spectacles that make up for the deficiencies of tawdry stories. But even if there were no talkies at all, there are considerations which point to the death of the drama, the comedy, or the musical show outside the metropolitan centres. The situation is governed by the inexorable law of economics.

Figures submitted by a man who has taken companies all over the continent during the last thirty years, show that it is impossible for road companies to pay except where they can stay for a run. Salaries are high, travelling costs away up, theatre rents inflated beyond all reason, and everything else connected with the show absorbs twice as much money as it used to. Even with full houses the receipts scarcely balance expenditure. These things have nothing whatever to do with the movies.

There is small hope that St. Thomas will ever be visited by an honest-to-goodness road show again. It is doubtful if even London will get one, now that its only legitimate theatre is owned by a picture corporation.

Managers say that the only hope of success on the road lies in intensive selling and publicity campaigns in advance. This panned out well in the case of George Arliss a year or so ago when he took "Macbeth" on a long tour. Advance speakers addressed clubs and societies of all kinds on the play and its author, coupled with a ticket bureau, but there are very few types of play with which this could be worked.

The passing of the legitimate play from the hinterlands is regrettable, for there is scarcely a better form of recreation than witnessing a good play created by living people of ability. But the time has changed for the theatre as it has for so many other things, and there seems to be nothing that anybody can do to revive these good old days.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

CANADA BARS SOVIET COAL.

(New York Sun)

Soviet Russia has averted an open rupture with Canada by the simple process of giving way when the pressure upon her became dangerously strained. Two years ago Moscow, looking for new fields on which some portion of her abundant natural resources might be planted, espied Canada and "saw that it was good." At least it appeared good so far as the possession of potential customers for anthracite made it promising. While Canada has vast deposits of lignite and low-grade bituminous coals, she has so little anthracite that last year not a single ton was mined in the Dominion.

Russia possesses rich deposits of anthracite and in 1928 sent to Canada experimental shipments amounting to 6,204 tons valued at about $6 a ton at the port of entry and retailed to Montreal and Toronto householders at about $17.50 in the cellar. Last year the volume of Russian anthracite reaching Montreal rose ot 117,406 tons.

Since then Canada has had a general election and the coal-producing sections of the Maritime Provinces have protested against the entry of this coal, which was admitted into the Dominion free of duty. Mr. Bennett promised to drive Russian coal off the market if it was proved that Canadian industry suffered.

The anthracite used in Canada amounts to something less than 4,000,000 tons, and of this amount about 3,200,000 tons comes from the United States. For the most part the Canadian coal distributors have hard-and-fast contracts with American collieries for the supply of their needs of anthracite, and they voiced their objections, which grew in crescendo tones when there were rumors of ten or a dozen ships loading in Russia for Montreal before navigation closed.

The Canadian Government therefore had to choose from two courses. It could either clap a duty on anthracite which probably would have resulted in raising the price of this product all round, or it could bar the Russian anthracite from entry into Canada and thus leave the field open to a fair fight and no favor between the Welsh and the United States anthracite mines.

Canada has chosen the latter course, and after vessels now on the high seas have discharged their cargoes no more Russian coal will be admitted into the Dominion. Dumping of Russian wheat on the world market has demoralized the grain trade and hurt Canada immensely; the Dominion now replies in words the Soviet Government will understand when it takes action to prevent its coal trade being demoralized. While the quantity of anthracite affected is not large, the precedent may be followed elsewhere and have far-reaching effects.

Canada has told Soviet Russia that drastic action will be taken against a nation that sells its products to establish credits rather than primarily to build up profitable trade.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The real verdict in the Toronto "salary grab" will probably be returned by the ratepayers when they get a chance to express their opinion.

A Conservative candidate in Prince Edward Island has carried a riding that has been Liberal for 50 years. Stranger than that, however the Prince Edward Island Government at this time does not include a lawyer in its membership.

A white pelican has been shot near Georgian Bay. It was the first visit of a bird of that species to Eastern Canada, but so far at least the Toronto Star has not blamed Premier Ferguson for its unexpected appearance.

Advices from the north say the beavers are not yet preparing for winter. That is taken to mean that the freeze-up is not likely for a considerable period. In the meanwhile, however, keep the snow shovel within easy reaching distance.

THE SILVER HAWK

By

WILLIAM BYRON MOWERY

She said quietly: "I'm not afraid of—of wolves, if they please won't be angry with me again."

With a pine bough Dorn swished down the spider webs, and swept the cabin. Carrying the stove outside, he dumped out the rat and sent it scurrying, cleaned the bunks of their old mattresses, made Aurore a fresh bed of billowy spruce twigs in the tiny room, and brought water from the cove.

Toward midmorning he stopped long enough in his work to walk over to the brush lodge and chase away a noisy, inquisitive moose-bird. Aurore was still asleep, her head pillowed on her arm, her jacket loosened at the throat. The morning sunshine had crept down the pine boles and fell in golden pools upon the moss, and one splash of it was creeping along her outstretched arm toward her face. Very silently Dorn adjusted one of the boughs so that it would shade her until noon.

Quite sure she would not awake, he crouched down there and looked long at her. She was sleeping relaxed, a dreamless sleep, her vigorous young body restoring itself and her mind forgetting its worries. That film of desperate anxiety had already vanished, as though here at this lake she felt safe now, in safe haven.

As he crouched there beside Aurore, musing deeply and suspecting she would tell him at least something of her trouble before he left, Dorn was aware of a stirring all around him in the little wildwood: of a courtship, of an intense struggle for mates, of a bustle and a hidden quiver like a great swelling whisper. The warblers and vireos and all the tiny songsters were just back from their winter homes in the southland and were not yet paired. The struggle was everywhere cruel and relentless—no quarter given, none asked—a matter of beak and claw and fighting heart. He watched two flame-coloured orioles—gaudy little fellows of brightest orange and ebony black—fall to the moss in a furious cart wheel and continue their duel on the ground till one of them fluttered aside, bleeding and stricken and blinded.

His glance came back to Aurore, and he repeated, not remembering where he had read the lines:

"And still she slept an azure-lidded sleep . .

Blissfully havened both from joy and pain."

He reflected: "'Havened from pain'—that's my job, to keep her from worry, to see she's safe here till her trouble is smoothed out. It it can be smoothed out. If it isn't that she- she . . ,Good God, I hope it isn't that!"

He watched the gentle rise and fall of her breast, and swept his mind clean of the thought.

There was a touch of the wild young forest thing about Aurore. She had been reared in the open, he knew; and whatever her present trouble was, the background of her life had been sunlit and happy. Her lips exquisitely arched and her mouth firmly tucked in at the corners were made to laugh.

He could feel no resentment toward her because down in his tent at Titan Pass she had weighed him and wondered if he might not "turn wolf." She had foreseen then her dependence upon him, and he had been a stranger and she had no knowledge of him except an old guileless man's praise and her own intuitive estimate. He could not even smile at her suspicion of a few hours ago, for it had been a matter of terrible moment to her. He felt indeed, that Aurore's fear was a natural and a very creditable thing, a nd he thought the more of her for it.

CHAPTER IX

A RELENTLESS HUNT

When he left Aurore, Dorn went to the cabin for a belt-axe and set out in search of dry wood. It was a long hunt—everything on the island was intensely alive—but at the north edge he finally discovered several dead jackpines. To cut one down with that toy axe was a tremendous job, and before he had whacked the tree into stove fuel he vowed to bring a bucksaw the next time he came north. For there would be a next time, and a next time—through the sheer force of circumstances, and Dorn thought of his visits blurring into one, continuous.

At noon, on one of his trips to the cabin with wood, his eyes fell upon eight Dolly Varden trout, fresh-cleaned and swathed in leaves, lying on the block table. In astonishment he hurried out to the brush lodge.

Aurore was gone. The blankets were neatly folded; his jacket hung on a twig; the impress of her body was still plain on the moss. Dorn looked all around, and, not seeing her, whistled; and when she answered, a strong clear whistle from the lower end of the island, he downed the impulse to go seek her out and went on about his work.

On his next trip he suddenly met Aurore coming around the corner of the cabin. She had bathed her face and hands and freshened up her hair. Her colour was heightened. Her eyes laughed at him for sweating under the huge load of wood, and there was a purl of happiness in her voice.

"You ought to have been along with me, I—Jim." She tripped momentarily over his name, but went right on. "I was down at the south edge where it's open and marshy. I found Arctic cranberries and a bed of white strawberries that'll be ripe in ten days, and coming back I saw a fox den and met a porcupine and gathered some—But look here."

Dorn slammed the wood against the cabin wall and looked into the birchrind creel she carried. It was full of mushrooms. He picked one up and examined it critically. It was big as a saucer, white on top, with gills a suspicious wine-pink.

"What are you going to do with those things?" he demanded.

Aurore laughed gaily. "Why, we'll eat them! You needn't be shy. They're pluteus cervinus. Doesn't that reassure you? They taste somewhat like fried chicken, only better. Now if you'll build me a fire in the stove, Jim—I'm desperately hungry and you must be too—we'll have dinner in five minutes!"

As he knelt by the sheet-iron stove and whittled shavings, Dorn swore softly, incoherently, to himself. Heavens above him!—what cloud had Aurore McNain dropped from—a girl like her, in those fashion-plate clothes, with that breath of society all about her and that hunted desperation in her eyes, but now all zest and sparkle, pitching in, helping, cooking dinner, instead of sitting by, looking sweet. He argued, "That girl knows the bush inside out; knows it in Latin, French and Siwash!" He swore, "She's so pretty that she could be helpless and get away with it!"

He glanced up at her as she stood beside the rough table arranging a bouquet of flowers and maidenhairfern to add a touch of beauty to their wilderness board. The proud poise of her head and the willowy grace of her body made Dorn remember Kansas's words, "A brown-eyed queen," and he was angry at himself for repeating them, and he glanced back at the stove so she would not turn and catch him staring at her.

During their meal together, he kept wondering how much Aurore was going to tell him about herself. Surely a hint or two. But she seemed reluctant. Not once in the last half hour had she even alluded to the mysterious something which she had fled out of civilization to escape.

Dorn could understand her reluctance. One reason for it, her trouble was probably the most intimate thing in her life, and she would naturally shrink from laying it bare to a man whom she had known only a few hours, even though those hours, from willy-nilly circumstances, had meant more between them than several weeks of ordinary acquaintanceship. And Dorn was vaguely aware of another reason. Either from Bergelot's ridiculous words about his being a sword or from Aurore's own estimate, she stood very much in awe of him. There was no longer any distrust or suspicion in her attitude; but he caught her studying him surreptitiously and knew that she thought him a stern and severe Spartan.

With plans for her safety and comfort running in his mind, he asked: "How long are you going to live here, Aurore?"

"I don't know; I can't say now. But I expect to have to stay a month at least."

Dorn merely nodded and went on with his planning. Over their coffee, he fished a memo pad and pencil stub from his pocket and handed them across the table to her. "You need an outfit," he explained, as she looked at him in question. "I'll fetch it next trip, if you'll make a list. I have to go in to Edmonton shortly. Can start just as well this afternoon."

"But I won't be a bother—I never intended you to do more than bring me—you've done enough for me now! Getting away from Titan Pass meant everthing to me, Jim."

"Make out your list," he repeated, "You couldn't live here two weeks on what you've got, and you're bush-wise enough to know it."

"But I haven't any money! And I don't dare draw on any of my deposits, or that'd establish a connection between you and me—" Aurore stopped, as though a thought suddenly came to her. "But gracious! I'm not penniless. Why didn't I think?" She reached into her jacket pocket and triumphantly brought out the barrette he had seen in her hair. "There! You can sell that. It ought to bring a thousand; it cost three."

Dorn pocketed the jewel thoughtfully. He meant to buy her an outfit with his own money; he had five hundred on hand, and that amount would set her up comfortably in housekeeping. But she would need money when and if she left this refuge, and the barrette would supply those funds.

"Will it be safe," he asked, "to sell this?"

"Yes, perfectly safe in Edmonton."

While Dorn smoked a cigarette Aurore scribbled and pondered. She needed his help, his protection and knew it, and quietly accepted the situation instead of escaping the burden of gratitude by pretending she did not wish him to help her further.

"I don't like the idea of your being here by yourself,' he remarked, pocketing her list. "Of course, this is a lonesome place; one chance in a thousand of any Indian or meti or bush-sneak white happening along and seeing you: but—"

"I'm used to the bush, Jim. I can take care of myself."

A GREAT CHOIR

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir:

It is to be hoped that all of our citizens who are either actively or passively musical will follow with interest the tour of a Canadian Choir of fifty-nine men and women in the Old Land, and especially at the great Blackpool Musical Festival this coming Saturday.

This choir is from Brantford, Ont., and is led by Frederic Lord who will be remembered as the conductor in Toronto a few years ago on which occasion our local choir competed. Mr. Lord is also a very fine organist and his wife a violinist of note.

ASHBURNHAM ORGANIST.

RADIO INTERFERENCE

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Mr. Editor:

I wonder if any of your readers, who own radios, in the vicinity of Romaine and Westcott streets have had any intereference during the last few weeks?

Several owners have had a noise like someone pouring water on a hot stove and have had to shut the radio off. I believe it is caused through some electrical appliance which is either defective or calls for a muffler.

In any case, if we had an Inspector here it would be located and remedied. It is very annoying and no doubt is stopping the sale of radios.

I would like to hear from some other radio owner in the Westcott street district.

Yours truly,

REASON.

THE QUOTA SUGGESTION.

(By J. H. Burnham)

Sharp difference of opinion has arisen at the London Conference even among the Canadian delegates themselves and their advisors concerning the offer of the 'quota' system by the Macdonald Government as a substitute for Empire 'protection!'

As a quota is simply the apportionment by a British Government board of purchases of wheat from the various wheat exporting countries of the Empire including Britain herself. Considering that a certain portion share, or quota is all Canada could expect under any system it looks as if the quota suggestion is a good one especially as it does away with the offensiveness of protection and preferences not only to Britain but throughout the world.

Canada can have as much protection for herself as she likes, however. But right here is the hole in the cocoanut. Why a British quota if no Canadian quota or preference and how can part of the Empire give each other quota preferences without some business reason or agreement for so doing? Sentiment cannot be commercialized hence agreements must be founded on business preferences only. All the good intentions and kindly feelings towards each other in the Empire are nil if they do not materialise in facts. Bread and butter is the test of life. We can live without love; what is love but repining. But where is the man who can live without dining?

Hence sad as the fact is we must have even quota upon business arrangements. The nearer we approach to these arrangements the more surely will some understanding of a permanent nature preference be necessary. And thus in time a quota would show the same offending features as preferences formed on protection. However it will do no harm to try it.

NEED FOR A SALESMAN

Editor of The Examiner.

Dear sir:

The question of unemployment in our midst, is one of extreme importance, and a matter that should receive the fullest consideration by all, because it affects all, whether they be workers, male and female, merchants, manufacturers or what not.

If orders from travelling salesmen do not come in, then the mill or factory help have to be laid off.

How many concerns in this city are employing some weak kneed order taker at the miserable wage of $25.00 or $30.00 a week?

And what is the result? A few paltry orders come in that do not amount to a row of pins.

If these same concerns got together and appointed a salesman who could go out and sell products made in Peterborough, then it would help Peterborough families, Peterborough merchants, etc.

Why could not several of our local industries make a pool and send a representative to the various large centres to act as a general agent for them all, and let him sell as a community salesman, whether the lines be canoes, clocks, carboard containers, cream separators, carpets, cereals, or woolens, electrical supplies, outboard motors, etc.

If each concern "chipped in" pro rata, the cost would be negligible and then we would see Peterborough products on sale in Montreal, Winnipeg, Halifax, Vancouver, Quebec, and other large centres, and would be the means of keeping our factories humming with industry and our city with contented people.

Order takers just hop from one place to another with a pencil and a note book, salesmen sell goods, and create a market.

To prove that there is still a market to sell, the writer has within the past four months, opened up no less than 108 new dealer accounts for an American house with a line which is highly competitive.

Prosperity it just around the corner, but we must not expect that corner to come to us, it is we that have to go to the corner.

I would appreciate further discussion on the above matter.

Yours very truly,

W. H. HOWARD.

What To-day Means To You.

"LIBRA."

If October 23rd is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m., from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m. and 8 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. The danger periods are from 7 a.m. to 8:15 and 6 p.m. to 7 p.m.

There will be more happiness than prosperity on this date. Toys of amusement will be much in evidence, and you will flit from objective to objective, snatching at the shadow and forgetting the substance. An uncertain evening, which will be full of startling surprises.

Children born on this October 23rd will have rather selfish natures, astrological influences inclining them to be hard and somewhat careless as to the feelings of others. They will be self-reliant, industrious and ingenious. They should have good vitalities, and strong nerves.

An insight to your character may be gleaned through the things you do not do, and the characteristics which you do not possess. You never lose your temper, you never refuse to help a "down and outer," you never refuse to do a good turn, you never go back on a friend, and you never make an enemy. You are not a snob, you are not a bully, you are not a hypocrite and you are not a physical, moral or mental coward. You find that there is more profit in coaxing than in kicking—and more friends to be made through praise and flattery than through criticism or "slams." You halve your treasures, and bear your troubles and losses alone.

You have too strenuous a soul to wish for cheap successes, and you are willing to place corner stones of sacrifice underneath the castles of your dreams. You do not dislike or try to evade the hours of tiresome work before you can receive the adulation of "the captains and the kings." The pronoun "I," however, does not predominate in your mind, nor drip from your tongue. You are interested in other people, in their hopes and ambitions, and in the general welfare of the world. Your city of happiness is found in your state of mind. You love tenderly, sincerely and loyally, and are faithful in your family life.

Try This For Seven Days For Eczema

Thousands of people who suffer from itching skin, Eczema, and unsightly eruptions will be glad to know that Moone's Emerald Oil, the clean, powerful, penetrating, antiseptic oil, will banish their trouble in seven days or less.

For years they have been using ointments and salves and while they helped to relieve the itching, soreness, and pain they often choked the pores and did not allow the poisonous matter to escape.

Moone's Emerald Oil overcomes this objection for the oil penetrates down through the pores and leaves them free to discharge all poisonous secretions. It is highly concentrated and only a few drops are required at an application. You can get it at McDermid Drug Co., Bond's Drug Store, McDermid & Jury, or any progressive druggist's, and if it doesn't end your trouble in seven days money back.

ACTION DISMISSED BY JUDGE HUYCKE

Omemee Garage Owners Sue Halton County Contractor For $566.81.

His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke presiding at a special sitting of the County Court here to-day threw out an action in which the plaintiffs were William J. Irwin and Noble Clemett of Omemee and the defendant Samuel Henson, contractor at the town of Milton in Halton County.

Defendant who was represented by Macdonald and Macintosh of Toronto denied the allegations made in the claim by plaintiffs for $566.81, stating that at the time he was acting as secretary for a company.

After hearing the case from early morning until 2 o'clock His Honor dismissed the action on the grounds that the agreement entered into the two parties was of such a nature that it was not legally binding.

Plaintiffs trading in Omemee under the name of Irwin and Clemett carry on business as owners and managers of an automobile sales and repair service station. Their claim was for $566.81 and interest thereon from June 14th, 1929 until judgement and costs, for goods sold and service rendered.

In the statement of claim a lengthy list of goods including gasoline, oil, shellac, spark plugs and repairs was enumerated.

Alexander Elliott of the firm of Gordon and Elliott acted for the plaintiffs.

Daring Airmen Postpone Return Atlantic Flight

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 23 (C.P.) — Capt. Erroll Boyd and Lieutentant O'Connor have yielded to pressure and will not make their return flight to Canada until Spring. When the airmen eventually make the flight, they will do so as owners of the Columbia, for Sherwin Cottingham, aviation enthusiast, formerly of Montreal, has bought the veteran plane from Charles A. Levine and presented it to Boyd and O'Connor, on condition they do not fly the Atlantic again.

Blind Pig Patron Killed in Brawl

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 23.—(By the Canadian Press.)—A man believed to be J. N. Anderson, age and address unknown, was fatally stabbed early this morning in what police believe to be a blind pig brawl. Anderson died four minutes after being admitted to hospital. Detectives so far have no trace of his assailant, and details of the fight are lacking.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND BRIEFS

A SPECIAL SERVICE TO THE EXAMINER

Some holders of the five per cent. debentures of the British American Oil Company are switching their holdings into the ordinary shares of the company and increasing their income return. The debentures are currently quoted at par, while the shares on which dividends are being paid at the rate of 80 cents annually with the possibility of a bonus payment at the end of the year, are selling in the neighborhood of 14½. The holder of a $1,000 debenture can sell and with the proceeds buy 69 shares of the stock on which will be received dividends annually aggregating $55.20 against a return of $50 annually from the $1,000 debenture. The debenture holder also has the option of converting his holdings into stock on a sliding scale until maturity in 1945, but as present market price of the stock is below the price at which the conversion can be made it is found more attractive to sell debenture and buy the shares in the open market.

Goodyear Meeting.

The annual general meeting of the shareholders of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Canada will be held in this city on November 5 when the financial statement for the fiscal period ending September 30, 1930, will be presented. President C. H. Carlisle has kept stockholders well informed of operations during the period by the sending out of letters each quarter with dividend cheques and has intimated that, while earnings will not be up to those of the record fiscal year ending September 30, 1929, the company earned the dividend on the preferred issue by a substantial margin, leaving a large surplus available for distribution on the common stock. The financial position of the company was also improved with additions to surplus, reserves, etc. The year was rather a difficult one for the rubber industry and the remarks made by the chairmen at this meeting should prove very interesting.

One Year Ago To-day.

It was just a year ago to-day that the opening of the acute phase of the market collapse of last year took place. The list had been slipping prior to that time but it was on this day a year ago that the first violent break occurred, carrying the average down sharply on a total of more than 6,000,000 shares.

A critical period from the viewpoint of some commodity purchases is rapidly being approached according to the latest commodity bulletin of the Brookmire Economic Service Incorporated which calls attention to certain commodities which are selling far out of line with the general price level. "Long time forward buying should be done. Concretely, in certain deflated items were we recommend a policy of consistent accumulation this fall on a sufficient scale to cover requirements a year or more ahead. On any sharp breaks, the program should be speeded up by making heavy commitments. In some items it is advisable to have in the market low orders for large quantities in other concessions should be sought," the bulletin reads. The tone of the market was steadier this morning, though as yet the appearance is far from being robust. Further setbacks yesterday encountered orders previously placed under the market execution of these and a petering out of liquidation left prices on a more even plane. It was another morning of extremely light trading. The general situation affords nothing of an immediately encouraging nature. Another price reduction in copper was forecast by rumors of 9½-cent copper in some quarters while carloading continue on a lower scale and predictions of lower fourth quarter earnings are now adding their weight to the general bearish news. Wheat has taken a turn for the better and cotton and sugar have also been advancing and it may be that these commodities will cause a turn in the securities markets.

WALL STREET LIST ADVANCES

BREAK IN ALLEGHANY.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Oct. 23—(C.P.) Share prices once more took the road to recovery in to-day's stock market, but made irregular progress, as several of the shares found block singles urned against them.

A break of 3 points in Alleghany Corp., and declines of a point or two in Chesapeake Corp. Chesapeake and Ohio, and Nickel Plate were conspicuous in a brief period of unsettlement during the morning. Pere Marquette, a thinly traded issue, dropped 20 points in a few sales. The list soon recovered, however under leadership of the utilities and prominent industrials. Shares selling up 3 to 5 included U.S. Steel, American Can, Westinghouse Electric, International Business Machines, American Telephone, North American, Stone and Webster, Atchison, American Tobacco "B" Air Reduction, and Union Carbide. General Electric, Radio, Dupont, Sears, Woolworth, Loews and Underwood Elliott gained 2 or more. Trading was in light volume.

MINING MARKET SOFT IN SPOTS

Lindsley Issues Remain Firm, Sudbury Basin and Falconbridge Advancing.

TECK HUGHES UP.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 23. (C.P.)—A few soft spots appeared in the minin market to-day. Sherritt Gordon dropped to 86 for a loss of 6. Lindsleys were firm, however, Sudbury Basin and Falconbridge recovering 5 each to 65 and $1.35, respectively.

International Nickel responded to improved tone on larger board with an advance of nearly a half to $17.90. Amulet and Abana were also fimer. Noranda eased a small fraction, and Mining Corp., lost part of yesterday's gain to 90.

Teck Hughes, up 10 to $6. Big Missouri, up a couple to 42, and Kirkland Lake gold, up a point to 41, were the only golds to move, balance of the group, only lightly dealt in, holding steady.

Nordon was somewhat higher at 63 and Acme Gas sold up a cent at 40. Home Oil lost 8 to $2.45, Chemical Research 10 to $3.65 and East Crest a fraction to 76. Other oils were dull.

PRISONER STUMPS POLICE MAGISTRATE

Man Out of Work Appears in Police Court on Vagrancy Charge.

"What can a man do who is unemployed and is looking for work, other than walk about and seek it?' was the question asked Magistrate Langley in Police Court this morning by George Brentnell, who faced a charge of vagrancy.

The Magistrate seemed stumped. He remained silent for a moment, and then replied, "I'm here to try cases, not to answer questions."

Brentnell, dark, short but with powerful looking shoulders, then pleaded guilty. "I have nothing to say beyond the fact that I travelled the country looking for work," he explained.

However, it was suggested by Chief Newhall that all Brentnell's walking tours were not bent on securing work. "A man can't prowl all night down lanes and look for work in the daytime," commented the Chief. "They call him the mystery man. I saw him myself early this morning skulking behind a store."

"I have to come into town for food," explained Brentnell. "I was working yesterday for a few hours on Mr. Armstrong's farm in Smith Township and earned my dinner."

He was remanded until Monday to allow further investigation into his movements.

Charged as a second offender under the L.C.A., Walter Windsor, who had previously pleaded guilty, was fined $50. Windsor's case has been held over since he was a material witness in the case of a local man charged with selling liquor. "That man has skipped and I think Windsor's case should be proceeded with," said J. A. O'Brien, his counsel.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 23. (C.P.)—The Toronto Stock Exchange displayed a firmed tendency this morning. Brazilian was up nearly a point at 25 as was nickel at 18. The oils were firm, Ford of Canada, the Foods, Walker and the Steels were unchanged.

Waterloo came out at a new low selling at $6 against 10½ yesterday. Bell Telephone, C.P.R. and Service Stations displayed an easier tone.

Winnipeg Review

Special Service to The Examiner through the courtesy of E. J. Bawlf Company, Grain and Stock Brokers, of Toronto

Wheat started off rather weak yesterday morning with prices sinking to ⅜ under the close Tuesday night, based largely on the cables. Liverpool fully following our late decline Tuesday and to the fact that little or no export business had been worked overnight. On this dip there was fair buying of December and May that was said to be for foreign account and was sufficient to take the slack out of the market, offerings being very small from then on. Later Chicago wheat and then corn turned strong and while the local crowd mostly feeling friendly to the market for a turn the market started to advance with practically only a local trade passing, with early sellers covering up and probably a little buying here by Chicago on spreads, prices going to more than 1½ cents over the previous close. In the cash market shippers and American Mills were after the top grades except one Northern which is going through the clearing house. Offerings were not pressing but there was no tendency on the part of the buyers to advance their bids. Terminals are after the lower grades but only cars were obtainable and spreads on these were ½ to 1 cent better. The weather in the west is now clear and warmer, and country deliveries are likely to increase. Liverpool closed 708 to 1 3-8 lower and private cables stated that Russia and Argentine were pressing wheat for sale, while the demand was quiet. Chicago reported heavy buying at times by commission houses. Sanford Evans this morning raised his estimate of wheat unthreshed in the Canadian west from 45 to 65 or 70 million bushels. Winnipeg futures closed strong and at the top for the day, showing gains of 1 7-8 to 1 5-8 cents

Coarse Grains.

Oats and rye were stronger, largely influenced by the trend of wheat, but barley was dull and featureless, the May future making a new low early. So far as consumptive business is concerned there is very little doing, the cash markets being extremely quiet, bu oats futures act tight and are easily advanced.

Liverpool cables due 1¾ higher based on Winnipeg.

UNKNOWN DIED OF PNEUMONIA

NOT WILLIAM CONNELL.

TORONTO, Ont., October 23 (C.P.). — Police and morgue officials in endeavoring to establish the identity of a man previously believed to be William Connell, who died here on Sunday, find themselves facing a difficult problem. George Connell on viewing the body stated that it was not his son William. He told police his son slept at home on Tuesday and had left to go south.

The supposed William Connell suffered severe wounds here on Saturday night following a brawl in an apartment house and an autopsy showed, however, that he died from pneumonia, and not from a fractured skull as was at first believed.

Recommends Probe Of Jail Conditions

COBOURG, Ont., Oct. 23. (CP)—Summoned to investigate circumstances surrounding death of Thomas Boyd, young Scottish immigrant who died last night in Cobourg hospital, a coroners' jury to-day found that death was due to pneumonia and peritonitis and recommended daily inspection of the town hall lock-up.

Boyd came into town on a freight early Monday night and shortly afterwards was taken ill in the lock-up. Following his removal Tuesday night to the hospital he died the following day.

RACE TRACK BETTING FALLS OFF IN CANADA

Decrease in Ontario 17 Per Cent.—Quebec Loses 24 Per Cent.

WOODBINE HEAVY LOSER.

OTTAWA, Oct. 23.—Race track betting fell off materially in 1930, the total for 332 days' racing being only $38,007,146 as compared with $45,580,845 wagered during 335 days' racing in 1929.

The figures were given to the Star by the department of agriculture.

The decrease in betting in Ontario was not so marked as in some other parts of Canada. For the whole Dominion it was 17 per cent., and in Quebec, where the falling off was most marked, it was 24 per cent. The eight tracks in Ontario showed a decrease of 15 per cent.

The largest actual decrease was at the Woodbine, Toronto, where betting fell off from $5,007,654 in 1929 to $3,989,267 this year. Other Toronto race tracks did not suffer to nearly the same extent, the report indicates.

The totals for the other Ontario tracks in 1930 were: Thorncliffe $3,385,099, Dufferin $3,260,589, Long Branch $2,802,019, Devonshire Park $2,168,426, Kenilworth Park $2,243,893, Hamilton $2,322,450, and Fort Erie $2,834,117.

Gate receipts at practically all the tracks fell off in almost the same proportion as the betting, the total gate receipts for all meetings being $1,338,408 as against $1,535,467, a decrease of 13 per cent.

The total amount retained by the racing associations from the pari mutuel pools was $2,657,059 while the total amount paid in prize money to winning horses was $1,722,095.

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 23.—(Special to Examiner.)—According to reports heard around town to-day price of copper in London has dropped below 10 cents and word from New York was that some of the customs smelters were offering the red metal at 9.5 cents, half a cent below the so-called official price.

Local mining men were not surprised at the development pointing out light buying volume of the past month or so and manner in which production was keeping ahead of shipments resulting in ever growing stocks of metal above ground. One man in close touch with base metal markets expressed the opinion larger producers were purposely holding up curtailment of production in order that smaller and high cost producers will be driven out, for the time being at least.

"It looks to me as though the big fellows will continue to swamp the world with metal until enforced suspension of operations has reduced production in line with consumption," he remarked. "Then the important companies will be in a position to get together on the question and carry out some constructive measures. At the present time, with the majority of producers still tagging along in spite of depressed prices, any efforts at stabilization of copper market and price would be too likely to end in the little fellow getting most of the cream."

Silver production in July of this year by companies, which in 1929 turned out 87 per cent of the worlds output, was 16,512,000 fine ounces, compared with 21,657,000 ounces in the corresponding month last year, a reduction of nearly 24 per cent. Production is probably less now than it was in July, and will be even smaller if the plan to reduce copper production is carried out. According to some authorities this curtailment suggests to silver producers that the slump in price of the metal is past.

Make no Comment.

Abana shareholders to-day received circulars from a Montreal group requesting proxies for the forthcoming annual meeting. Being stating any discord at this time would be unfortunate in view the situation in which the company finds itself financial officials were lothe to make any comment. They reiterated the statement that many larger shareholders have signified their intention of "burying the hatchet." In favor of harmony and constructive action, and that the present board, possibly with a few changes to include well known mining men will have strong support at the gathering.

Some comment was occasioned in mining circles to-day by the receipt of a reprint of story on Tough Oakes Burnside which recently appeared in a Toronto paper. Recipients report the article was enclosed in plain envelopes and considerable conjecture as to the source is heard.

Diamond drilling has been suspended for the time being on the Anderson Spence claims near Kashabowie, west of Fort William, Ont. The property was under option to Consolidated Smelters and recent drilling was for the purpose of confirming important surface showings of copper, nickel and metals of the platinum group. Future plans are uncertain, but drilling equipment is apparently being removed this week, it is possible the Spence development Co, a local organization, will continue development should the Trail Company fail to exercise its option.

Port Arthur Is Quiet Under Police Guard

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., October 23 (C.P.). — Port Arthur rested easily to-day in the assurance that its new formed police force is equal to any threat from Communist demonstrators. A platoon-system auxiliary force has been organized which will mobilize in a flash. It is believed the force could be placed in readines before any Communist mob could form and walk two blocks.

Psychological effect of the organization of the new volunteer force, police consider, will dissuade the Communists from their threat to parade and hold meetings in defiance of civic by-laws.

GENERAL CHIANG

Communists at first, but later shook them off.

Busy Summer.

All this summer Chiang's administration has been beset by trouble. On one hand he has been fighting a Northern coalition under Yen-Hsi-Shan and Feng, while armies of Chinese Reds have sacked the interior. At present the civil war has let up and Nationalist troops now are moving against the Reds.

An instance is told how Chiang once spared a Christian mission which had done him a favor. This was in 1925 after a dentist at the Yale-in-China Mission at Changsha had extracted a painful wisdom tooth for the young General. He was so grateful that when his Cantonese surged through the country he ordered that the Yale buildings be spared.

President Chiang and his wife arrived here early this morning from Nanking. He went immediately to the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Soong, in the International settlement, and there the simple ceremony was performed in the afternoon by the Rev. Z. T. Kuang, Chinese pastor of the Young Allen Memorial Church.

The Pastor asked the President whether he sincerely desired to become a Christian. Chiang replied that he did, whereupon the Pastor sprinkled water upon the young president and admitted him to the Christian Church.

Only a few intimates of the President attended the ceremony. They included his brothers-in-law, T. W. Soong, Minister of Finance, and T. L. Soong, Chairman of the Whang-Po Conservancy, and the Foreign Minister C. T. Wang, all are Christians.

The Baptism had been kept a profound secret and the accomplished fact has startled all Shanghai and Nanking. Outside the family circle, none had the slightest idea of the President's intention.

The branch of the Christian church into which Chiang Kai-Shek was baptized is Methodist.

the boy. Although not hit, the lad had the presence of mind to drop to the ground and pretend he was dead.

The man then whirled around and shot and killed John Walanski, who had rushed to the door of his home at the sound of the shot. The boy jumped to his feet and ran, getting away without the killer noticing him. The youth went to a neighbor named Graeckel.

Daughter Escapes.

At the same time a 14-year-old daughter of John Walanski managed to escape from the house and run across the fields to the farm of Roshchuk, who drove at once into Smoky Lake with a team to get the police.

Constable McKay, Alberta Provincial Police officer at Smoky Lake, was absent, having taken prisoners to Fort Saskatchewan.

Coroner Dr. C. G. Lawford of Smoky Lake, started for the scene of the slayings at once, accompanied only by Roshchuk.

When they returned to the Walanski farm they found a mob of farmers from the surrounding district had already gathered to hunt down the killer.

McINTYRE CASE

Magistrate Langley inquired what was to be done with the liquid after the case was over. He said that the Crown Attorney was supposed to keep it along with the other exhibits.

"I don't want it," replied Mr. McElderry.

"I'll look after it," said the Chief, "We'll empty the bottle in the river."

Only the prosecution was heard in McIntyre's case this morning; the defence will be presented this afternoon. It is likely that the accused will take the box.

Constable Leonard Matthews described the manner in which he had caught McIntyre just as he was getting through a window at Brewer's Garage, which he had forced up.

LARGE AUDIENCE HEARS CHORISTERS

OMEMEE, Oct. 23 (Examiner Correspondence).—It takes more than inclement weather conditions to keep the music-loving inhabitants of Omemee at home when they know that a musical treat is in store for them, consequently an appreciative audience of fair size greeted the Mark Street Choir, of Peterborough, here on Friday night for their old time concert.

Mrs. W. A. Greenslade, choirleader and organist, is to be congratulated on her choir, which was a joy to hear.

The work of the octette was particularly fine and the character mixed quartette "Basso Profundo" was well rendered and created a ripple of merriment throughout the hall. The solos and duets were well received and many flattering remarks were heard concerning the rendition of the beautiful old time melodies.

Following the entertainment, the visitors were entertained by the choir of Trinity United Church under whose auspices they came to Omemee.

Following the luncheon, the Rev. Mr. Thornley in a humorous address thanked the Omemee choir for their hospitality and extended an invitation to the Rev. J. T. E. Blanchard and his choir to exchange churches some Sunday in the near future.

Rev. Mr. Blanchard replied on behalf of Mrs. C. R. Cornell, leader of the Omemee choir, expressing his appreciation of the evening's entertainment and saying that due consideration would be given the Mark Street invitation.

The evening's festivities came to a close by the singing of "For they are Jolly Good Fellows" by the Mark Street choir.

Young People Meet

The Young People's Union of Trinity United Church was in charge of Dr. W. H. McPhee on Monday evening. Following the opening excercises conducted by the leader assisted in the scripture reading by Arthur Williamson, all business was completed for the district convention to be held on Thursday. A pretty duet, "Whispering Hope," was rendered by Misses Margaret Werry and Mary Faulkner. A recitation by Mrs. McPhee, "Lavinsky at the Wedding," and a recitation by Mr. Blanchard, "Laska," one of Pauline Johnston's famous poems were interesting items on the program. At the close of the meeting, Rev. Faulkner conducted three contests and a pleasant hour followed.

Bean Contest

For several weeks a jar of beans in M. D. Earle's store window has claimed its share of attention, and numerous guesses were recorded on the number of beans contained therein. On Saturday evening the contest closed and Jack Windrim whose estimate was the nearest to the correct total of 9129 was proclaimed the winner of a handsome chair.

SPRINGVILLE UNITED CHURCH ADDS ANOTHER YEAR TO SERVICE

Rev. J. T. E. Blanchard of Omemee Gives Able Address For Occasion.

SPECIAL SOLOISTS.

SPRINGVILLE, Oct. 23 (Examiner Correspondence).—Anniversary services were held in Springville United Church on Sunday with the Rev. J. T. E. Blanchard of Omemee as special speaker for the day. The choir was assisted by Fairmount Choir and Miss Hazel Hall, of George Street, Peterborough, and Miss A: Blanchard, of Trinity Church, Peterborough.

At the morning service Miss Hall sang, "Nearer My God To Thee," while the solo, "Guard While I Sleep," was given by Miss Blanchard at the evening service. Another splendid number was rendered by the quartette, Mrs. Moyer, Miss Southam, and Messrs. Hanbridge and Preston. Anthems were given by the choir at both services also solos by the minister, the Rev. Mr. Blanchard who in the morning sang the beautiful solo, "Morning, Noon and Night" and in the evening, "The Holy City."

Mr. Blanchard's vocal selections formed suitable introduction to his two inspiring sermons. The morning's scriptural lesson was chosen from Romans 12 and the text was found in Ezekiel 1.10 "As for the likeness of their faces they four had the face of a man and the face of a lion on the right side; and they four had the face of an ox on the left side; they four also had the face of an eagle."

This text was developed under the four headings suggested by the vision of Ezekiel—the essentials of the four square Christian—the man with personality and power to think and then choose between right and wrong.

"The man, first mentioned in the vision represents Christian living, the dedication of our personality to God. The lion on the right side of the man stands for fight and conquest of the enemies of humanity, strength to triumph over sin. The ox on the left represents service as one of the essentials of Christian living. The brain and brawn of man are required. We must do all we can to lift our fellowmen to God. The fourth mentioned in the picture, the eagle, suggests the passion for soaring in the realm of the sky—exhaltation.

Fellowship with the most high God is another essential of Christian living. We must take time to soar to the heights where the answer to our desires are found."

In conclusion Mr. Blanchard presented the beautiful and graphic picture of the Four Square Christian—one who has dedicated his personality to Christ is relentless in warfare against sin, who does not shun any known task and has complete fellowship and communion with God.

"Let us be men and women after Thine own heart."

Evening Service

The scriptural lesson for the evening service was found in St. John 12, 20-36; and the text was chosen from Ecclesiastes 11.1 "Cast thy bread upon the waters for thou shalt find it after many days."

The picture suggested by the writer was described as that of a person out in a boat on the waters of the River Nile, casting rice into its depths as is the method of sowing the rice crops. This represents the universal law of sowing and reaping. The world every year has to commit a self-denying faith in order to live. The writer's first principle is sustenance of the soul, while his second, is that the universe will respond to this act of faith. It illustrates Universal Brotherhood. We can only preserve life by risking it."

Four applications of this principle were presented. First, the scientist, who must ever strive to advance in his studies and research. 'He who ceases to learn ceases to know. Second, love, love is kept alive only as we use it. The command, love your enemies, do good to those who persecute you,' must be observed. We must widen our circle of friends until all are reached.

Third: The call to the world, nation's can live only by unselfishness—family spirit. There must be larger international sympathy. Peace can be found only by a generous outlook. Security can be bought in no other way but by faith.

Fourth: The Church—it grows only as the good news is spread. 'Cast thy bread upon the waters for thou shalt find it after many days.'

REV. ALLAN OF THIS CITY GUEST SPEAKER AT ANNUAL SUPPER IN CAMPBELLFORD

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Serve Six Hundred at Function.

DR. D. A. THOMSON IN CHAIR.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 23 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The reputation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Campbellford, for the staging of their annual fowl supper was well preserved Tuesday evening, when the ladies of the congregation, assisted by many of the officers and men of the church spread before a host numbering in the vicinity of six hundred a splendid repast.

Many visitors and friends of the congregation came from outside points to join in the annual function. The table arrangement and service was excellent and showed the organizing ability of the ladies. Staged in the basement of the church, the rooms were gaily decorated with flowers which added a tone of cheerliness to the prevailing spirit of good fellowship.

After the supper a program was presented in the auditorium, with the Rev. Dr. D. A. Thomson acting as chairman.

Guest Speaker

The guest speaker of the evening was the Rev. William Allan of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Peterborough. Mr. Allan spoke in humorous vein, interjecting his remarks with many stories, and scraps from his experience as a traveller in different parts of the world. Jumping from point to point, he drove the thought of his remarks home with remarkable force and power of personality.

Taking for his theme "Reflections of a rolling stone," he pointed out that he agreed with the adage that a rolling stone gathered no moss. Anyone who went into the ministry with the idea of gathering moss, he averred, was getting nowhere. But the speaker also believed that a rolling stone does take a polish, and proceeded to point out that there were many people in a congregation who needed in the worst way some of the polish of a rolling stone.

Mr. Allan continued to give his experiences in Australia, and stated that the most difficult people to handle were those who will not move from their old places, and do not even want to.

"What some churches need to-day, he declared, are a few first class funerals, to get rid of some of those who are always standing in the way." And then he appealed to the young people present, telling them that there was never a day passed that there was a call upon them and their ability. They would go to church he said, if the church had the right message for them, and where the elder folk understood the youth of the congregation, because of the youth in their own hearts. "Let the boy linger with you in your hearts, and keep young," was the speaker's advice to his audience.

Of the church to-day Mr. Allan thought that it was not doing much turning up except within its own doors. One of the things needed was more prayer, and the realisation of the necessity of the prayer services. Jesus could not live without prayer, and more can we. He decided the fact that so many people disregard the church and Christianity to-day and declared "That the man who orders his life on the level of a dog should die and be buried like a dog." There was too much disregard of Christianity among men, until a cold form was laid in the casket, and then the minister was called for," the speaker said.

And Mr. Allan told his hearers never to be afraid of a good laugh, for humor was not out of place. Always the man who laughs was the man who had friends. There were no prophets in the pulpits to-day he said, because the people demanded popular preachers. The prophets have so often to get out.

And in conclusion the speaker congratulated the ladies of St. Andrew's Church on the splendid supper they had prepared and the excellent way in which it had been served.

Brings Greetings

The Rev. D. McKenzie of Burnbrae brought greetings to the congregation of St. Andrew's Church. He spoke of the spirit of friendship that had existed between the two congregations for so many years, a friendship that had its root in the early history of the two churches.

There was no greater work than the work of the church, was the text of the Rev. Mr. Duncan of Warkworth, when called upon by the chairman to speak. He stated that the church stood for something definite and that there was nothing to take its place, and made an appeal to the young people to try and stimulate the work of the church through the spirit of friendliness.

Greetings were brought from St. John's United Church, Campbellford by the Dev. R. C. Tait, who in a very able and friendly way expressed his pleasure at being present and congratulated the congregation on their splendid function.

Other short addresses were given by a former pastor of the church, the Rev. J. C. Grier of Lindsay, Rev. William Gartshore of Vermont, U.S.A. and the Rev. Dr. Lennox of Havelock.

The musical portion of the program consisted of instrumental numbers by the Misses Grace and Leah Blue and William Blue; vocal duet by Mrs. F. DeCarrol and Miss Helen McDonald; contralto solo by Mrs. Milne; violin solo by Kenneth Collison; voical solo by Mrs. Taylor and a tenor solo by William Collison. W. A. Newcourt acted as accompanist at the organ for the evening.

PARLEY LOOMS FOR PROVINCES

All Views Required Before Changing Confederation Agreement.

Confer With Federal Gov't.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 23 (By George Hambleton, C.P. Staff Correspondent).—A conference between the Canadian Federal and Provincial Governments is likely as the means of ironing out the constitutional difficulties over the proposed repeal of the Colonial Laws Validity Act.

Hon. Maurice Dupre, Canadian Solicitor-General, in the Imperial Conference Committee under Lord Sankey is supporting the contention of the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec that the Provinces must be consulted before the repeal is effected as recommended by the 1929 Empire Conference on Dominion laws.

Premier G. Howard Ferguson of Ontario, now in London, favors a Dominion-Provincial conference. "It is the usual course," Premier Ferguson said to-day, "to have a conference of all the provinces that their views may be ascertained. Our position is that we do not want any legislating passed affecting the Confederation agreement between the provinces, without the provinces first being consulted.

"We are willing to consider any suggestions, but we are not willing to permit a change in the status of the provinces without being heard."

Premier Taschereau of Quebec expressed much the same viewpoint in a statement issued in Quebec before the Imperial Conference opened.

Remarkable Ovation For Sir Henry Wood

Last of Series of London Concerts Attracted Record Crowd.

LONDON, Oct. 23 (C.P.).—England is sometimes accused of not being a musical nation. When the last of the Promenade Concerts took place in the Queen's Hall, every seat had been sold weeks earlier. There was not even room for any person to stand in the promenade. Those who fainted, and there were many of them—could not fall, so completely hemmed in were they. Some of the audience had waited outside since midday.

When Sir Henry Wood—fresh and smiling and wearing a gay buttonhole—stepped across the platform, not only the audience, but the orchestra rose and cheered, the demonstration lasting over five minutes. At the end of the programme Sir Henry was presented with a laurel wreath tied with red ribbon. There were more cheers, the audience singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and throwing their programmes and umbrellas—many with hats tied on top—into the air.

At last in order to stop the tumult the lights were lowered, and Sir Henry had to return to the platform nearly 20 times. After a quarter of an hour, he flung his arms wide, gave the signal for his orchestra to leave the platform, and the hall was plunged into darkness.

The season that just closed was the 36th series which had been conducted by Sir Henry Wood.

BIG SHIPBUILDING INDUSTRY CLOSING

Sale of Beardmore Establishment Attributed to Naval Armament Limitation.

GLASGOW, Oct. 23.—By the Canadian Press.—A striking evidence of the decline in shipbuilding owing to the limitation of naval armaments in Great Britain is furnished by the purchase of the naval shipbuilding establishment of William Beardmore & Co., Limited, at Dalmuir, on the Clyde, by National Shipbuilders Security, Limited, the rationalization company formed by British shipbuilders six months ago. The principal object of National Shipbuilders Security, Limited, which has a nominal capital of $15,000,000 subscribed by the shipbuilding companies, but with borrowing powers up to $15,000,000 and has the support of banking authorities, is the purchase of redundant shipyards, the dismantling and disposal of their contents, and the resale of the sites under restrictions against further use for shipbuilding.

This purchase of the shipyard at Dalmuir means the end of shipbuilding there, although work in the other branches of the Beardmore plant at Dalmuir—the marine and general engineering works—will still continue, but no more ships can be laid down on the berths. It is the first move in connection with plans for the closing of two or three big shipbuilding concerns in Great Britain.

In an official statement National Shipbuilders Security, Limited, states that the scrapping of redundant shipyards will not mean less employment, but will increase the chance of the remaining yards securing more contracts in foreign competition and thus provide greater employment, as concentration of production means saving in costs, in administrative expenses and in rates and taxes, a heavy burden at present. The acquiring of Beardmore's is just a beginning in the "collective scheme within the industry itself," according to the statement.

With reference to the decline of warship work the statement is as follows: "The British shipbuilding industry started 1930 with more redundant berths and plant than in previous years, due largely to the serious reduction in British and foreign warship work. Warship work in private yards to-day is one-fifth of what it was at the end of 1928 and little more than one-twentieth of pre-war amount. In addition to the falling off in warship work during 1930, there has been a serious reduction in mercantile orders."

A striking comparison between the naval shipbuilding of the present day and a few years ago is thus set out: "Messrs. Beardmore's record of naval work is eloquent of the falling off which has occurred in naval shipbuilding. During the 14 years from 1906 to 1919, when the last of the wartime work was completed, they launched four battleships, seven cruisers, 21 destroyers, 13 submarines, six hospital ships, and a seaplane-carrier. In the 11 years which have elapsed since 1919 their total of naval construction has comprised one cruiser and two submarines."

Since the war mercantile work has formed the bulk of the Beardmore shipyard's work, some notable vessels having been turned out in recent years.

BAPTIST MINISTER WOULD EVANGELIZE NEW CITIZENS

Baptist Convention Now in Progress at Hamilton.

DISCUSS INDIA.

HAMILTON, Oct. 23.—"The only way we can Canadianize our new citizens is to evangelize them," Rev. S. J. Farmer of Owen Sound declared in moving adoption of the 60th annual report of the home mission board to the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec now in session here.

Stressing the importance of the work in settlements of new Canadians the report detailed the progress made during the past year in the 25 missions maintained by the convention.

The treasurer's statement showed total receipts for the year as $107,925, leaving a deficit of $7,228. The extension fund receipts amounting to $12,488 were practically all expended on this work and the parsonage fund was stated to be in sound condition.

Rev. H. F. Stillwell of the foreign missions board presented the 19th annual report which treated exhaustively every phase of the church's evangelical work abroad.

Commenting on conditions in India, the report stated: "There has been first, the patient, unswerving, courageous effort of the labor government in Britain through India's widely-trusted Christian viceroy and his coadiutors to do what was deemed best in the pursuit of the goal of Dominion status for India in the face of the immense difficulties arising from the civil disobedience campaign of Gandhi and his followers. Secondly, there was the passing of the Sarda marriage act, raising the legal marriage age of girls to fourteen. Thirdly, there has been probably the most fruitful revival movement in many of the schools and the fields of the mission in twenty-five years."

Rev. J. E. Chute and his wife, who recently returned after 37 years' service on the Akidu field in India were introduced to the delegates. Mr. Chute seconded the motion for adoption of the board's report and pleaded for continued co operation of the church members in the foreign mission work.

The financial report of the foreign mission board showed total receipts last year of $253,757, of which $183,112 was spent on the work in India; $28,440 in Bolivia; $7,585, general expenses; $14,863, home administration; $10,095, legacies and annuities; and $9,091, special payments.

Delegates were entertained at McMaster University. Chancellor Whidden gave a brief address.

ZION UNITED CHURCH.

PETHERICKS CORNERS, Oct. 23 (Examiner Correspondence).—The anniversary celebration at Zion United Church has passed for another year and was most successful on Sunday last. The speaker for the occasion was the Rev. Wesley Elliott, of Port Perry, former pastor of St. John's, Campbellford. He delivered two thoughtful and inspiring addresses to crowds which packed the church to the doors at both morning and evening services. Special music was sung by the male quartette from Campbellford, Dr. H. O. Richardson, Messrs. H. M. Donald, Walter Lowe and George Lucy. Mr. E. A. Dolmar was pianist for the day.

The thankoffering reached the $150 mark set by the stewards as being necessary for the work.

Under the auspices of the Sabbath School an entertainment was held in the church on Monday evening when a splendid program was provided. Rev. F. G. McTavish was chairman and addresses were given by the Revs. Joblin, Bunt and Tait, of Rawdon, Springbrook and Campbellford Church es. Violin solos by Arthur Petherick and Evelyn Barnum, accompanied by Mr. A. Hazell, were well received; a selection by the local guitar trio, Misses Gladys Simpson, Freda Petherick, Gladys Petherick, delighted the crowd with two numbers, as well as Cora Petherick with a solo on the same instrument. Mrs. George Ingram was splendid in her dramatic reading and encore. Gladys Petherick also gave a humorous reading which merited an encore. The Misses Mina and Lucille Draycup were exceptionally good in two vocal duets. Their voices blend perfectly and their numbers deserve much praise. Isobel Irwin and Helen Barnum gave a delightful little musical impersonation and a short play by four girls provoked much merriment. Misses Mary Peake, Gladys Simpson, Gladys Petherick and Freda Petherick took part.

A number from this district visited Mt. Pleasant Church of the Rawdon charge on Tuesday evening on the occasion of the first fowl supper in the new community hall and report a most enjoyable time.

Elaine And Her Ideas From Paris

AMERICA IS URGED TO SAVE THE WORLD FROM INSOLVENCY BY CANCELLING OF WAR DEBTS

Samuel Kramer Says Power to Stabilize Conditions Vested in U. S.

WESTERN MONEY LOST.

Germany Must Subsist on Money Borrowed From American Interests.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—"The entire western world is insolvent. Only America can change red to black. The United States must wipe out European war debts."

Samuel Kramer, international lawyer, walked up and down his velvet carpet at 25 Broad street and summed up thus his version of whither mankind, based on four trips this year to Europe.

"It may sound a spectacular exaggeration," he asserted, "to say that the world is insolvent. But that is not my opinion alone. Coming back from Europe in September I discussed conditions on the ship with one of the leading bankers of New York and America. He declared that on a balance book basis civilization was bankrupt.

Huge Property Loss.

"Most economists, I think, would agree in that conclusion. The truth is that since the World War western civilization has been carrying as an asset billions of dollars of property which was destroyed completely from 1914 to 1918, something that is gone forever. No industry could keep solvent on such a basis. Neither can an industrial civilization.

"Saddled with such a burden, western civilization has not been able to create new wealth in sufficient quantity to allow a margin in addition to a bare living. Germany has tried to keep going on borrowed money. England has been meeting her debts by using up accumulated wealth. France and Italy have tried to meet the situation by depressing the value of their money. The United States, creditor to the world, has been trying to sell its factory surplus to people who are already in debt up to their ears.

Straight Economics Urged.

"How can America have an export trade," Kramer asked, "if all the rest of the world owes us money? And how can we keep our factories running without an export trade? I'm not talking politics now, or diplomacy. I'm not discussing the tariff or considering the flag wavers. The time has come to talk straight economics. Unless America is willing to consider the world situation from a purely economic viewpoint, dire things can happen—Bolshevism, war and worse.

"The victory of Hitler and the National Socialists in Germany is a warning. It is a warning that Germany is desperate. If Germany cracks, one of the chief bulwarks against Communism will be lost.

Advocates Debt Cancellation.

"If the United States would cancel the war debts of the allied nations in Europe, they would be forced to pass the cancellation on to Germany. Germany would then have money with which to start a revival, the efforts of which would spread throughout the world. American exports would increase, just as they increased after 1922 when American loans to Germany were large enough to allow her to meet her reparations and still have a margin left for reconstruction.

"Loans helped in the beginning. They are virtually useless now, even dangerous. Let bank loans to Germany and other nations keep piling up, with no hope of repayment, and one day there will be a war for collection purposes.

Reparation Payments Borrowed.

"Everything Germany has paid toward reparations thus far has been paid out of borrowed money. That can't go on indefinitely. We can't keep on lending money so that other nations will have money to pay us what they already owe.

"We've got to wipe off the books what has been lost, the billions of dollars of war destruction, and get the whole world back on a commercial basis. We must do it so that Europe will have money with which to buy our goods and save us from the ordeal of junking hundreds of American factories.

Disrupts Universe.

"The attempt to make Germany pay has disrupted the whole world. What the Versailles treaty amounted to was this: England stuffed her pockets full of German ships and colonies and told the others to take the reparations; then all the victorious nations began a selfish scramble to beat each other at grabbing world markets.

"But the world markets have collapsed. They won't flourish again until the western world realizes it can't afford to have part of the civilization out of running order."

REDS MURDER

Chinese priest, after being severely beaten and paraded through the streets of Kian, left on foot on Oct. 14 to obtain aid for their fellow missionaries. These included four Italian priests, four Italian, one French and five Chinese nuns, held at Communist headquarters.

When they left no mission buildings had been fired, but buckets of gasoline had been placed in church properties for use should the ransom not be forthcoming.

Reporting that deaths at Kian had reached 8,000, Chinese press despatches said that, immediately after capturing the city Communists massacred residents and started disastrous fires, flames and smoke were seen many miles for three days.

"So many persons were murdered," said the despatches, 'that virtually a constant stream of bodies was seen floating in the Kan river toward Nachang. Scenes not describable were enacted."

RACE-TRACK BETTING LESS

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 23 (C.P.)—Betting at race tracks in Canada in 1930 fell far below that of 1929. During 382 days' racing this year the total amount wagered was only $38,007,146, compared with $45,580,845 during 335 days racing in 1929. The decrease was $7,573,699 or 17 per cent.

HOW VIROL BUILDS for LIFE

Marjorie McKenna TO-DAY

SAME GIRL 9 YEARS AGO

Feb. 25, 1918. Age, 7 years 5 months; weight, 25½ lbs.

BEFORE TAKING VIROL

April 21, 1918. Age, 7 years 7 months; weight, 39½ lbs.

AFTER 8 WEEKS ON VIROL

PROOF of the Unique Powers of VIROL

Only nine years ago, Marjorie McKenna was suffering from the most serious form of wasting. Today, thanks to Virol, she is, at the age of sixteen, a healthy, well-grown girl showing no trace of the tremendous strain thrown upon her constitution during her terrible illness.

Read this Remarkable Evidence

At 7 years 5 months (Feb. 25th, 1918), Marjorie McKenna was admitted to Rosevale Hospital, Dumfries, in a state of extreme emaciation and exhaustion (Photo 1). She had no special treatment except Virol, which was given her thrice daily.

(Photo 2.) Virol not only restored her to health then, as the Matron of the Hospital certifies, but to-day her doctor is able to write: "I have examined Marjorie McKenna and find that she is in perfect health."

No other food has the same reconstructive power as Virol.

MOTOR CAR BRINGS REVENUE TO CANADA

Tourist Trade Has Become Great Industry in the Dominion.

TORONTO, Oct. 23 (By The Canadian Press).—"Quite a lot of cars with American licenses goin' through this year," said the Oldest Inhabitant, as he whittled a soft piece of pine in the sunlight of an autumn day. "Seems to me, there are also quite a few with Canadian licenses," he continued. "I remember well, not so many years ago, when a 'furrin' car was quite a curiosity—and now, well, just watch those licenses." He checked the passing cars off, Michigan, New York, Indiana, even an occasional California motor passed. One stopped every few minutes as the tourists shopped. Then away it went again.

And this, according to the very unromantic and prosaic figures compiled by Prof. Kenneth W. Taylor, M.A., economist of McMaster University at Toronto, is the source of one of Canada's greatest industries.

Addressing a group of business men recently, Prof. Taylor outlined the growth and importance of tourist traffic. The traffic had increased enormously in the past 10 years, he said. In 1920, 2,379,000 visitors spent altogether about 7,500,000 days in Canada—and also spent about $84,000,000. In 1925, however, approximately 8,000,000 tourists spent 22,500,000 days and $187,000,000. This figure rose steadily, until in 1929, an army of 16,000,000 tourists invaded the country. They spent 40,000,000 days, and the amazing total of $300,000,000. No other important industry in Canada has shown anything like such rapid and consistent growth, Prof. Taylor said. Substantial annual increases in the number of visitors are almost certain to occur. "We may, I think, look forward to an annual influx of between 20,000,000 and 25,000,000 and possibly 30,000,000 visitors before the close of the next decade," he said.

Now a Leading Industry.

In 1929, in dollar value of business, the tourist trade was exceeded only by field crops, iron and steel, construction, railway and textile industries. It ranked well ahead of mining, dairy products, pulp and paper, lumbering, milling, meat packing, fishing and other staple lines. It was greater than the value of our entire exports of wood, wood products and paper, and was within 10 per cent. of our grain products exports. Last year, the tourist revenue was equal to one-quarter of Canada's export trade.

In that year, tourists consumed over 4,000,000 pounds of butter; 18,000,000 pounds of meat, 4,000,000 dozen eggs, and other commodities in like proportion, Prof. Taylor said.

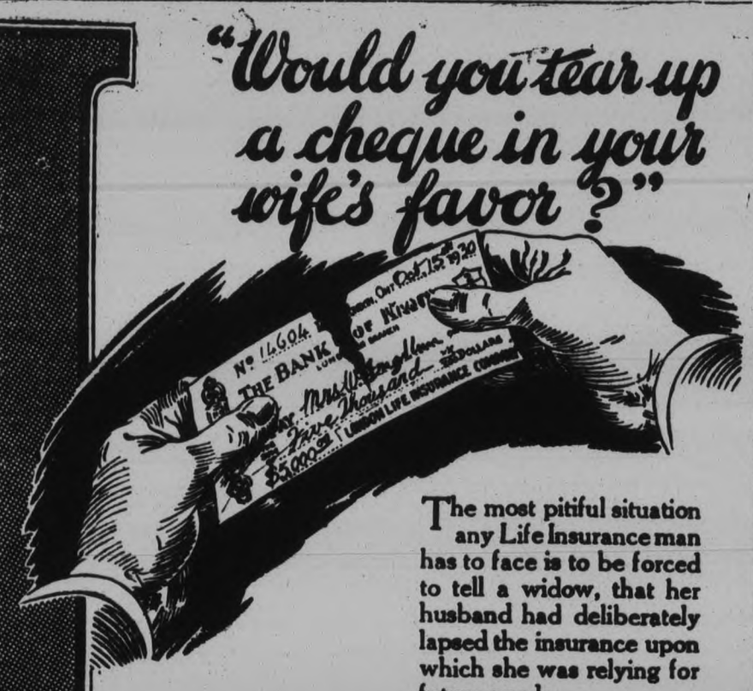
FIGHT CALLED OFF

NEWARK, N.J., Oct. 23 (C.P.)—The scheduled fight between Young Stribling and K. O. Christner at the Newark Armory to-night was called off to-day by Harry Kendel, promoter. An injury to Christner's right knee was given as the reason.

The industries hit hardest by the depression in Peru are cotton, wool, hides and rubber.

Important extensions of British fruit canning is planned.

"Would you tear up a cheque in your wife's favor?"



The most pitiful situation any Life Insurance man has to face is to be forced to tell a widow, that her husband had deliberately lapsed the insurance upon which she was relying for future needs.

What a crushing set-back to one already carrying a burden of grief and responsibility.

If you are ever tempted to drop your life insurance, put yourself in her place. Think twice before you subject her to such an experience.

Any financial difficulty you may have is probably only temporary. Do not lapse Life Insurance in this or any other company.

LORD DERBY, FREE TRADER, SUPPORTS BENNETT

UNCROWNED KING OF LANCASTER AND FORMER CABINET MINISTER MAKES INTERESTING CONFESSION

Lord Derby, Great Free Trader, Still Believes World Free Trade Best.

FAVORS SAFEGUARDING.

Every Country Has Now Armed Itself Against Others, Conservative Says.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 23. (By Thos. T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).—Lord Derby, who is sometimes called the uncrowned king of Lancashire where Conservatism is concerned, and who has twice been a member of Conservative cabinets as secretary for war, made an interesting confession of his revised political faith and proffered some approval of Premier R. B. Bennett's trade propsals in a speech in Cheshire last night.

Still a Free Trader

"I still believe free trade all around the world would be best for all countries, but every country has now armed itself against others and incidentally even more against us", Lord Derby said. "In these circumstances can it be that the rest of the world is wrong and we are right? We have got to arm ourselves in the same way. I declare myself wholly and undeservedly in favor of the general principle of safeguarding.

"Premier Bennett said clearly his proposal was submitted only as a basis for discussion. When a man says a thing to open discussion it stands to reason he is prepared to consider any other policy. Therefore I do not think it was wrong to submit what is called the quota system as a possible alternative for a tax on wheat.

"I know that is a change from our policy, but it is better to do it now because if not we shall be accused at the next election and we might as well be hung for a sheep as for a lamb—if we are hung at all, which I think doubtful."

Lord Derby thought there must be something to the rumors of dissension in the Labor cabinet and that a section to which the prime minister belonged was anxious to close a bargain with the dominions. The Conservatives should let Premier MacDonald know they would support him in giving assurances to the Dominions, he said.

ALSDORD, Germany, Oct. 23.—(A. P.)— The total of bodies recovered from the Anna II mine following the disastrous explosion of Tuesday reached 291 this afternoon. The search for more victims was continued.

LINDSAY GIVEN $23,000 TO AID UNEMPLOYMENT

Work is Expected to Start This Week on Sewage Disposal Plant.

WORK FOR 125 MEN.

Lindsay's is First Application to be Granted in Its Entirety.

LINDSAY, Oct. 23.—When members of Lindsay Town Council went to Toronto Tuesday to ask for $23,000 to relieve unemployment here, they were given a courteous hearing and then their plan was approved in its entirety. The delegation was complimented on having the best formed relief plan of any city that had been heard yet and the Government representative said this was the first municipality to have its entire unemployment relief plan accepted.

Work will start this week on a sewer in the East Ward, the sewage disposal plants and street grading in town. It is expected that the 125 men who applied at Mayor Stewart's unemployment Bureau will be given work. The three projects will cost about $46,000 but the Government will pay half of this.

The delegation going to Toronto was headed by His Worship Mayor W. E. Stewart and consisted of the entire council and Mr. W. W. Staples M.L.A.

In approving of the entire program without amendment, Mr. Ellis, who is handling the relief, stated that he had received over 50 deputations for relief and this was the first application that had been granted in its entirety. He congratulated the town on presenting the best prepared and most sensible application that he had so far received.

Cat's Meow in U. S. Heard by Australia

SCHENECTADY, N.Y., October 23. — A large grey cat, wistful but expecting very little, wandered into the isolated short-wave station of the General Electric Company yesterday morning and so became the first of her kind to speak to Australia.

Engineers 10,000 miles apart were discussing formal electro-dynamic affairs when she appeared. umping quietly on the table, she yawned unhappily, and then gave a depressed "meow."

Far on the other side of the world, at the beginning of spring, one of the officials heard it. He paused uncertainly and then, apparently not to be outdone, very politely replied, 'Mewo.' The cat sneezed slighfly and hopped to the floor.

There was some talk of having her scare a mouse in the Sydney studio, but nothing came of it.

CATHOLIC CLAIMS FOR SCHOOL RIGHTS HEARD AT BELLEVILLE

No Challenging Any Set of Institutions, Says Archbishop O'Brien.

URGES RECOGNITION.

BELLEVILLE, Oct. 23.—Yesterday was a red letter day in the educational history of Belleville, when the new St. Michael's Roman Catholic Academy, which has risen from the former institution, was formally opened and dedicated by leaders of Church and State. His Excellency the Papal delegate, Most Rev. Andrea Cassulo, of Ottawa; his Grace Archbishop Spratt of the Diocese of Kingston, and Hon. Charles McCrea, Minister of Mines, were the chief dignitaries to officiate. The two days' celebration concluded with a dinner last night. More than seven hundred guests attended.

100 Years Old

The history of St. Michael's Parish dates back well over one hundred yeads and the celebration yesterday was the crowning achievement of that era. His Excellency, before three thousand people yesterday afternoon, blessed the institution. Speaking on the Separate School question, Archbishop O'Brien of Kingston said that Catholics are allowed to establish their own schools in England, although these are not subsidized. "England acknowledges and wants denominational teaching." "There is a slogan," continued the Archbishop, "one flag, one school, in Ontario; but why should we not have denominational teaching in this Province? When England has four systems of schools, why seek to have one system in Ontario?

"The Catholic Church is not challenging any set of schools but we are desiring and claiming, the rights children have by nature. The denominational school was guaranteed by the Act of Confederation. There were men who set out in that day to mould the school question of this great Dominion, and they saw the need of denominational teaching and in that group of men were Catholic and non-Catholic.

Urge Recognition

Separate schools were formed which included the minority in any Province of the Dominion and all the Catholic Church asks, that the non-Catholic recognize the covenant made when Canada was formed both in Quebec and Ontario. The separate school is part and parcel of the school system of the Province and we are doing what we ought to do, educate the child in religious teaching, and every school should teach the knowledge of God."

Monsignor Nicholson of St. Michael's Parish was Chairman of the banquet and he was given a rousing reception as successor to the late Father Killeen. Mayor George A. Reid welcomed the papal delegate, while P. Donovan representing the K. of C. extended best wishes from the local Council. Hon. Charles McCrea said that education is based on Christian philosophy, and the pupils of today must become the anchor posts of tomorrow. He expressed the sentiments of Hon. Howard Ferguson in regard to the educational question.

PLOWING MATCH HUGE SUCCESS

MEETS WITH APPROVAL.

BURNBRAE, Oct. 23 (Examiner Correspondence). — Although the list of entries was not as large as expected, the success of the Trent Valley junior farmers ploughing match on Tuesday afternoon was such as to warrant a repetition of the event another year. The match this year was held at the farm of Thomas Watson on the 8th Concession of Seymour, two classes in stubble being ploughed. Due to lack of moisture, the land was not in perfect condition for ploughing, but nevertheless some very good work was done.

In the junior class under 20 years there were five entries, the winner being Don. Watson, who also won the specials for crown and finish in the same class. The standing in this class was as follows: Don. Watson, Stuart Bedford, Clare Ingram, Walter Watson, John Cleugh.

In the senior class under 30 years only three ploughed, the winner being Leo Fry, with Roy Fry and Lindsay Anderson in the other positions. Leo Fry won special for finish in this class and also for the field, while Ray Fry won the crown special but had to bow to the winner of the junior class for the best crown in the field.

The committee in charge are grateful to Mr. and Mrs. Watson for their kindness and hospitality, and also to the gentlemen who, by their contributions, made the prize-list possible. These are: Harold Carr, Will Scott, J. C. Anderson, Percy Morgan, A. J. Meyers, Campbellford bank manager; J. A. Loucks and G. S. Van Volkenburg.

Although the weather was somewhat cold and stormy, a splendid crowd was in attendance, and enjoyed the afternoon's sport. Mr. C. Webster, assistant agricultural representative, was in charge, with Henry Locke, secretary-treasurer of the club, lending a helping hand. The judge was W. G. Rennie of Agincourt, and he gave a great deal of constructive criticism and very helpful advice to the young ploughmen which should help them in future matches.

1,200 ATTEND PLOUGHING MATCH HELD ON FARM OF R. E. THURSTON

J. J. Duffus Intimates That the 1931 Match Will Likely Be Held in Peterborough.

42 TEAMS ENTERED.

LINDSAY, Oct. 23.—With a crowd of 1,200 present at R. E. Thurston's farm near Bobcaygeon, the county ploughing match held Tuesday was most successful. There were forty-two team ploughmen entered and two tractors in the contest. It was a little cold, but the weather was much better than it was for last years' event when it rained nearly all day. The ground was good this year, but the sod was hardly stiff enough for clean-cut furrows.

The judges for the day were Norman McLeod, of Galt, and W. Morgan, of Niagara-on-the-Lake. Mr. McLeod, an experienced plough man, recently ploughed at the international meet in Stratford and took first place in his class. Mr. Morgan, another veteran ploughman, is eighty-four years old, even if he doesn't act like it, and knows everything about all kinds of ploughing. The horses were judged by A. E. Webster, of Oakwood.

After the ploughing had been done all the ploughmen were entertained at the Rockland House, Bobcaygeon, where a sumptuous repast had been provided. During the banquet, J. J. Duffus, of Peterborough, speaking of ploughing matches, etc., intimated that the 1931 international match would be held in the city of Peterborough and invited the Lindsay Association to hold their match in connection with the Peterborough Association and the international match.

WINDSOR, Oct. 23 (C.P.)— Tried for the murder of Clarence Bulman of Windsor, Joseph Martin, aged 26 of Amherstburg, was found guilty of manslaughter by a jury at Sandwich last night. Justice W. E. Raney, who said he was glad the jury had been able to find the accused guilty of the lesser offence, remanded Martin for sentence.

REV. ISAAC SNELL OF FOXBORO GUEST SPEAKER AT HASTINGS

United Church Anniversary Services Attended By Large Congregations.

EDIFICE DECORATED.

HASTINGS, Oct. 23 (Examiner Correspondence)—A former pastor of Hastings, Rev. Isaac Snell, now of Foxboro, was the guest of honor at the anniversary services conducted morning and evening in Trinity United Church, Hastings, on Sunday, October 19th. The afternoon services at Westwood were withdrawn in order to permit the members of that congregation to worship at Hastings. Both services were well attended, the morning congregation being especially large.

The reverend gentleman preached in the morning from the text, "Where two or three are gathere together, there am I in the midst of them." In the development of his theme he pointed out the value of the Christian Church as a lighthouse amid the storms of life, and the sure promise of Christ's presence and help, whenever any of His followers meet in His name. The text for the evening was, "They made light of it," upon which was based an able discourse, showing the danger of delay, with the deadening of character and loss of spiritual values when Christ's invitation is slighted.

Mr. Snell was pleased to renew old acquaintances, and all who listened to his impressive messages felt that the anniversary was a success, both from the viewpoint of visible results, and of spiritual benefit.

SERVICE AT SPRINGVILLE.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 23 (Examiner Corrrespondence)—The Rev. W. R. Archer, B.A., of Havelock was the special speaker for the anniversary services of Wesley United Church, and delivered an excellent sermon taking as his theme, "Upon the tree of sacrifice the golden apples grow."

The choir was assisted by Messrs. Farr and Hodston, of Peterborough and rendered appropriate music adding much to the success of the service.

The church was filled to capacity and was beautifully decorated with fall blooms, plants, vegetables and fruits.

On Tuesday evening an excellent supper under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid was served in the Orange Hall, and a program was given by the Barkwell family of Port Hope assisted by Miss Beatrice Gibbs, of Cambourne, and Messrs. Farr and Hodston, of Peterborough. The Rev. Mr. Wesley, of Lakefield acted as chairman. The proceeds of the tea amounted to $130.

AT FRASERVILLE

FRASERVILLE, Oct. 23 (Examiner Correspondence) — The Rev. S. A. Kemp of Lakefield was the special preacher for the anniversary service of the Fraserville United Church on Sunday morning. He chose for his text, Genesis 32.24 and 29 verses.

The church was very attractive with cut flowers, foliage, plants and fruits. The choir sang "Praise ye the Lord," in the morning, and at the conclusion of the sermon Mrs. Barrie Seabrook sang a solo in a pleasing manner.

At the evening service the Rev. S. A. Kemp read the scripture lesson from a portion of St. Matthew 6. The anthem, "I have set watchmen" was rendered by the choir.

Miss Theresa Siegel gave a very inspiring reading, "The Mansions," and Mrs. Seabrook sang a solo which was in accord with the theme of Miss Siegel's reading.

Mrs. W. A. Kidd presided at the piano during the service.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

ONE GOOD RESULT FROM THE FLU EPIDEMIC.

During the flu epidemic of 1918 I happened to be senior medical officer of a hospital through which passed over 2,000 influenza cases. It is my fervent hope that the world will never see another such epidemic.

Despite the fact that twelve years have passed we cannot definitely state that the exact cause in all cases has been found. The original flu organism is still blamed, but there appear to be other organisms, and other factors, entering into the cause of influenza.

However, like other great catastrophies, lessons are often taught not only regarding the same type of trouble, but of many other troubles also.

As nurses and doctors fought the epidemic it was found that the cases that went on to a broncho-pneumonia, and so involved the lungs, were the ones that were really dangerous, and many died. And they died always because the heart gave out, not because of the broncho-pneumonia that was present.

And so heart stimulants were used more than at any other time in the world's history. Sometimes one drug seemed to help, and at other times it was found necessary to use some other drug. Often also bleeding was resorted to, to take some of the work off the heart. Then the oxygen was tried as a last resort.

Despite anything and everything many of these strong young fellows died.

Now why am I bringing all this up again?

For just one reason: It was generally reported that it was only the big strong young men who died because the flu seemed to attack them more severely. This was not the reason. The reason so many of these strong young men died was because they remained on their feet for one, two, or sometimes three days before they took to bed.

You can readily see what happened. Despite the fact that the flu was working in their system, sending their heart-beats up to 120-120-140 and so on, as the heart did its best to keep going strongly, these men remained on their feet, on duty, thus taxing the heart almost beyond its limit.

By the end of two or three days, tremendous damage had been done, and when they finally reported sick and came to hospital their hearts were beyond help.

And that is the big lesson the flu epidemic taught us not only about flu, but about other illness.

That is, that it is not brave, not even good sense, to remain on your feet when any ailment, however slight, attacks you. By getting off your feet your heart has a chance by using its "reserve" to pull you through.

That was perhaps the only good thing the flu epidemic did for us.

DRAMATIC ALLIANCE INTERESTING LONDON

Gordon Craig, Theatre Specialist, and C. B. Cochrane Will Colloborate in Plays at Phoenix.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—(CP)—London playgoers are especially interested in the alliance recently formed between Edward Gordon Craig and C. B. Cochrane, Mr. Craig is a specialist in wood engraving and the art of the theater and has written a number of books on both subjects. Mr. Cochrane is manager of the Phoenix Theater and also Albert Hall.

Mr. Cochrane has offered Mr. Craig a free hand in the productions at the Phoenix Theatre after the present run of Noel Coward's "Private Lives," but just when the first product of this alliance will appear is at present uncertain. It may succeed Mr. Coward's play at the Phoenix three months hence.

Final choice of the opening production has not yet been made but Mr. Craig has suggested Purcell's "Fairy Queen." When this play is produced it is possible Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" may be drawn upon as material for the "Fairy Queen" instead of the existing libretto being used. Among other plays the production of which is contemplated are "Macbeth" and "Romeo and Juliet."

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

There is a prevalent idea that fruit can be judged by feeling it—but this is ruinous to the fruit dealer. Each time it is pressed it is damaged to a certain degree.

• • • • • • •

In fact so true is this that an expert Italian fruit dealer told me that fruit on display that is felt over by prospective purchasers is often spoiled by night when it was in condition to last several days in its prime.

• • • • • • •

A fruit dealer, therefore, has to calculate so much for legitimate spoilage of his stock plus the damage done by his customers, many of these persons are such good and constant buyers that no comment on the disastrous habit of handling the fruit could be considered.

• • • • • • •

I have noticed, however, that some have resorted to signs, but even signs fail sometimes and no notice is taken of them.

• • • • • • •

The misfortune however of this practice does not fall entirely on the dealer. The purchaser comes in for his share. Since the dealer cannot caution his customers neither can he question their judgment of the fruit. When a customer feels the fruit, and trusts to his own judgment and picks out the fruit desired, it is the dealer's province to put it in containers and sell it.

• • • • • • •

But let us suppose that the pieces of fruit selected by the customer have been felt so many times that they become soft. Ripeness by nature has not taken place but softness by repeated pressure.

• • • • • • •

The fruit is apt to prove disappointing to the purchaser who decided the grade is poor but does not realize it is lack of judgment in selecting the fruit, not only by him but by those before him, that is responsible.

• • • • • • •

Avoid taking out a piece of fruit that is far down in a pile. Each piece is slightly softened that bumps down to fill in the hole made when another is taken away. Those places form bruises and eventually become rotten specks spoiling the fruit for buyers and deteriorating the stock of the dealer.

• • • • • • •

If you must have some fruit that is low in a pile, ask the dealer to take it out for you, he is experienced in handling fruit and will be able to remove the piece without harm.

• • • • • • •

It is wise to judge fruit by weight, color and aroma. Each species of fruit, and each variety of the species has its peculiar color when mature. Unless you know it, you cannot select that fruit expertly, nor satisfactorily to yourself.

• • • • • • •

After buying you are inclined to question the grade of the fruit dealer's stock not your judgment.

Gift To Nottingham Of Bryon Memorial

NOTTINGHAM, Eng., Oct. 23 (C.P.)—The most ancient portions of Newstead Abbey, once the home of Lord Byron, have been given to the City of Nottingham by Sir Julien Cahn, prominent cricketer and philanthropist. Sir Julien arranged some time ago to purchase the abbey, and his offer to the city includes twenty acres of gardens as well as two large lakes. Needless to say the City Council will gladly accept the gift, the general purposes committee of the Council having recommended acceptance.

Captain Charles Ian Fraser, Newstead Abbey, from whom Sir Julien Cahn purchased the property in question, has offered to present to the Nottingham Corporation the furniture and other relics which belonged to Lord Bryon, together with a portrait of the poet by Phillips and a picture of Byron's dog Boatswain. To Boatswain's memory Byron erected a memorial in the grounds of the abbey after his dog had saved his life while he was bathing in the lake.

Newstead Abbey was purchased by Sir Julian Cahn early this year. Sir Julien, who won $310,000 last year as the holder of a half share of one of the winning tickets in the Stock Exchange Derby sweepstake, is a member of the Nottingham Cricket Club. Recently he took a cricket team to Argentina. He gave $50,000 for new stands at Trent Bridge, Nottingham, where the first of the Test matches was played this year.

TEACHING STANDARDS IN CANADA MUCH TOO LOW, SAYS PROFESSOR

ARE NOT SPECIALISTS

(Special to Examiner. Copyright 1930).

TORONTO, Oct. 23—Declaring that the quality of secondary school teachers "has fallen to the level of those who enter the course," Prof. F. P. Macdonald of the department of English, University College, writing in the University of Toronto Monthly for October, urged a better class of high school teachers.

The profession was becoming a minor one, he said. It had lost its good standing in the community and offered a haven for girl graduates to the pass course in arts who taught only until "they earn the amount that will buy a satisfactory trousseau."

Lack of money for paying secondary school teachers was not the reason for the falling off in the number of first-class honor graduates who entered the work, he pointed out, for the salary of junior men at the colleges was lower than the amount received by high school teachers.

In the eyes of the public, the profession of teaching high school as a life work had fallen, although the university depended so much on the products of those teachers.

Lower Than 25 Years Ago.

The figures will show, he continued, that the number of high school teachers of high standing was lower than it was 25 years ago. The department of education figures showed that in 1928 in the secondary high schools and collegiate institutes the specialists were given as 74 per cent. Professor Macdonald pointed out that those figures included specialists in physical culture and art.

"By counting," he writes, "those who are specialists in some academic department such as classics, modern, English and history, mathematics or science, the percentage is reduced to a bare 50 per cent."

Freedom of experiment was lacking under the department of education, he charged. A teacher was too firmly bound in laws and regulations that stifled initiative.

The establishment of extension teachers' courses by the universities was adversely criticized by the writer.

This tended, he pointed out, "to develop a merely professional class: in fact they are professional courses. The students are much more interested in passing their classes and qualifying for their degrees than they are in the subject matter studied. They are in grave danger of becoming nothing else but teachers. In too many schools mere teachers have replaced the men who were teaching there 25 years ago."

Canadians Barred.

The writer charged that the Canadian university graduate has less chance to get a university appointment than have the old country men. "Until recently it was a distinct handicap for a candidate to be born in Canada."

The extra year necessary after obtaining the B.A. degree to become a high school teacher was deplored by the professor of English.

When Queen's had a college of education, he said, he "could teach the students all he knew about the art of teaching English in a quarter of the lecture periods that had somehow to be filled."

The energy and the expense of the whole extra year were not justified by the effect on the teachers in training.

The whole attitude of mind of the public must be changed before there will be a larger number of first-class honor graduates taking up secondary school work as a profession, he concludes.

LETTERS FOUND IN OLD MANOR SHED NEW LIGHTS ON HISTORY

VALUE INCALCULABLE.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—A Devonshire manor house on the fringe of Dartmoor will shortly give to the world a treasure trove that will solve a legion of hitherto clouded historical problems: that will throw still further light on the lives of almost every great figure from the sixteenth to the early nineteenth centuries, and that, in itself, has been classed as the most momentous literary and historical discovery of the century. It is a veritable pageant on paper.

The treasure itself lies in thirty-nine embossed volumes containing 5,000 hitherto unpublished autograph letters, representative of almost every celebrity living not only in Great Britain but on the continent of Europe and in the United States, during four centuries.

They were originally the property of a Mr. John Wild of Clapham Lodge, Surrey, a noted autograph collector who died in 1855. Until last year, when they became the property of his great grandson, Mr. R. N. Carew-Hunt, they had reposed locked and securely guarded in an immense mahogany bureau in this Dartmoor house, untouched and unknown by the world at large.

Are Almost Priceless

Their value has already been assessed as running into "hundreds of thousands of pounds"—and the full collection has not as yet been wholly classified.

Lady Hamilton's last letter to Nelson, an impassioned outburst written on the great Admiral's departure for Trafalgar, and hitherto unknown, is but one of thousands of almost priceless documents.

Every one of them was chosen not as being merely a specimen of some noted figure's correspondence, but as one of the most vitally important letters the individual ever wrote.

The last letter Sir Walter Scott wrote before he left England on the visit to Rome which hastened his death is included in the collection.

Another is from Sir Christopher Wren, complaining bitterly of building worries at Hampton Court palace.

Guy—the founder of Guy's hospital—writes of his dealings in South Sea Bubble shares: Gainsborough voices his remorse for an action which he imagines has affronted Bartolozzi, the great engraver.

Danton and Robespierre are but two of the famous figures of the French revolution whose intimate writings are rediscovered for history's benefit.

Letters by Presidents, Queens.

A feature in the collection is a series of vitally important letters written by all the earlier presidents of the United States.

Undreamed-of letters of English kings and queens lie cheek by jowl in these green embossed volumes. There are six, at least, tragically eloquent epistles of Queen Caroline—George IV's long suffering wife—dealing with the intrigue surrounding her divorce.

Insights into the diplomatic relations between Spain and France, Holland and England, that existed in Queen Elizabeth's days are now bared to view with the signatures of their protagonists.

Samuel Pepys writes: so with an interval of a century does David Carrick, and so in turn does every figure of International importance who lived in the four centuries.

"The collection is, I believe, not only unparalleled but of such importance the words are inadequate to describe it," said an intimate friend of Mr. Carew-Hunt.

"One of its most singular charms is that every letter it contains is intact, unmutilated, and is set up in its particular volume, accompanied by rare prints or etchings of the writer concerned.

"The greatest musicians, poets, soldiers, diplomats, authors, lawyers, doctors or politicians of their day, find space in it, and almost all the letters record not trivial episodes, but the crucial events of the world at that moment."

POLICE SEEKING CHINA SWINDLERS

Racketeers Alleged to Have Mulched Victims of Millions.

Wares Supposedly Antique.

BOSTON, Oct. 23.— The alleged guiding geniuses of an antique "racket" Wilbur J. Cocke and Mrs. E. E. Caroline Saunders, of New York, were the objects of a nation-wide police search to-day. Thirteen secret indictments were returned yesterday against members of the "racket."

Cooke and Mrs. Saunders are said to have escaped Monday from the home in Holyoke of rMs. Clementine Briggs Doran. At the time Mrs. Doran was arrested and charged with having sold china, which she represented to be of antique origin, to a Boston art conoisseur for $51,000. Police charged that the ware was of modern manufacture and had been artificially aged.

With the arrest of Mrs. Doran police disclosed the existence of the ring, through which, they believe, victims have been mulcted out of millions of dollars. Operations have been so clever and on such a large scale that even noted collectors were victimized.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

ASSOCIATION WILL THOROUGHLY DISCUSS SILVER SITUATION

Future Possibilities of Base Metal Industries Will Be Dealt With at Vancouver Meeting.

MORE DEVELOPMENTS.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 23 (Special to Examiner.)—Major attention will be devoted to the many economic problems confronting the mining industry at the joint meeting of B. C. Dvision of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy and of the Mining Association of British Columbia to be held in Vancouver, November 19 to 21. Such questions as stocks and prices of metals, marketing conditions and production in relation to consumption will be discussed.

Consideration in particular will be given to the silver situation which will be introduced in an address by Prof. W. A. Carruthers of the University of British Columbia. There will be special sessions at which future possibilities of the base metal industries both in the province and in the dominion will be dealt with. George C. Bateman, secretary of the Ontario Mining Association, is expected to contribute a paper on the latter subject. The new low for the year established by Anaconda copper in New York yesterday is reported to be coupled with revival of stories that the company may find it necessary to carry out new financing to take care of its bank loan.

Excellent progress is being made with the new fertilizer plant of Consolidated Mining and Smelting, according to a statement by Hon W. M. McKenzie, B.C. Minister of Mines, seven brick and concrete, buildings have already been erected including a large machine shop, a warehouse, research laboratories and office while excavation is proceeding for the numerous other units of this undertaking which, it is estimated will cost $10,000,000 to complete.

Prospectors' Airways Limited, which recently declared a dividend of $35 per unit, is understood to have plans for a change in capitalization. The dividend took the form of Ventures shares, this stock having been received by the company in payment for control of the springer group of claims at Opemiska Lake. From present information another discovery of importance has been made by Prospectors' Airways but location and details are being withheld for the time being. Representatives of the company are reported to have been into the Matachewan district, scene of the new find.

Present interest in the useful properties of alloys of lithium, particularly these with aluminum—have stimulated a corresponding interest in a search for deposits of lithium minerals some success was met with in this direction in the Bird River district of Manitoba, and deposits are reported to have been uncovered in South West Adrica of Marienthal near Windhoek. Location of the later find is in proximity to the larger concession on which smelters has been granted prospecting rights.

NOISELESS AEROPLANE MOTORS SOUGHT BY EXPERT INVENTORS

British Designers Patiently Cut Down Noise of Passenger Aircraft.

SEEKING MORE COMFORT

LONDON, Oct., 22— By the Canadian Press — Noise in aircraft, from the view of the occupant and of the earth-bound person over whom he flies, has occupied years of research and experiment. The problem is a difficult one, involving many aspects of aircraft and aero engine design; the finding of a satisfactory solution is among the most urgent needs of flying to-day.

Patient research by the Aeronautical Research Committee, the measurement with delicate apparatus of sound intensities, a study of the sound-absorbing powers of certain materials suited for use in the walls of aircraft cabins, the testing of various types of airscrew, the search for an efficient engine silencer—these have marched side by side in British laboratories and workshops with certain developments in design. The result is that some new type commercial aircraft built in Great Britain are notably quieter in flight than their predecessors. The passenger in these flying machines no longer finds it necessary to shout in conversation with his neighbor, and the fatigue of long journeys is much reduced. Many points have emerged from the research work. Much of the noise is caused by the engine. A great deal comes from the airscrew. The flapping of the sides in a fabric covered aeroplane may be a serious source of noise and vibration of the entire craft, set up in a variety of ways, adds to the turmoil. Increase of speed introduces fresh difficulties; it has been found that a speed rise of 100 feet per second (about 70 miles an hour) multiplies airscrew noise 10 times.

An airscrew with four blades is quieter than a two-bladed screw; thin blades make less noise than thick ones. Here is an indication of a partial cure for the important airscrew noise. In the design of engines, in spite of the difficulty of producing an efficient exhaust silencer, much can be done by enclosing valve gear and other moving parts. Vibration is lessened in modern British practice by the employment of rubber stock absorbers in the engine bearers.

The British aircraft and engine builder is thus endeavoring to quieten his production in many ingenious ways. In the later big commercial craft—land machines and flying boats—the size of the structure enables the designer to place the power plant at a considerable distance from the passenger quarters. This is noticeable at once in the lay-out of the large four-engined air lines which Imperial Airways are planning to place in commission next year on the European and Imperial routes. The motors are carried in nacelles streamlined into the structure at points distant from the saloons; unlike most three-engined craft, these new flying machines have no central engine in the nose to transmit incessant vibratory shocks through the passenger carrying fuselage.

Recent progress in aerodynamical knowledge, resulting in the building of "cleaner" aeroplanes had markedly reduced noise. The modern air liner is not braced with a multitude of wires which hum and thrum as the craft moves through the air; exterior wire bracing is reduced to a minimum nowadays and there is a considerable gain in quietness from this advance alone.

GOLF NOTES FROM ALL CORNERS OF THE GREEN

By RALPH H. REVILLE

(Special to The Examiner—Copyright 1930)

TORONTO, Oct. 18—The drought which prevailed the past season over a great portion of Ontario took not alone a heavy toll of the agriculture interests but of the golf clubs now numbered by the hundred in the province.

Greenkeepers are only now in a position to check up the damage sustained which will unquestionably run into tens of thousands of dollars. It was possible to save the greens which are now almost universally equipped with water sprinkler systems but the fairways have suffered very seriously indeed and it is going to be a hard matter to bring many of them back to first-class condition and at the cost of much money. As a result of this season's great drought, many of the larger and richer clubs have decided next spring to instal sprinklers throughout the course. In fact one or two have already started on this work. The cost is quite large but there is no question that in the long run dollars galore will be saved in up-keep by the watering of fairways. Roughly speaking an expenditure of $10,000 to $15,000 will be required to water an 18-hole course. Conditions vary but experts figure that to do a good job this amount of money will be necessary. The Merion Cricket club course where the United States Amateur championship was held recently has water laid-on throughout its two 18-hole courses and the fairways were in superb condition for the big championship—perfect ribbons of green. The Merion club it is interesting to note, spent $35,000 on the installation.

Already in Canada, both in the East and West there are several courses which have water piped throughout their fairways. Next year will see a dozen more clubs or so instal complete watering systems. Another drought such as the past season in Ontario, would virtually put every golf course out of commission. It is an expensive problem this watering a six-thousand-odd yard links but it will have to be met sooner or later by every club, desirous of keeping its golfing property up to "concert pitch."

It is not so very long ago that women golfers in Canada were more or less a negligible quantity, and were suffered to play over the courses occasionally by indulgent husbands and fond big brothers. Today this is all changed and the ladies' section of every golf club is now one of great importance. If women golfers continue to increase in the same ratio the next few years as they have in the past decade, there in no question that it will not be very long before women golfers will outnumber the men, just as the British women voters to-day largely exceed the men voters. It's a woman's age all right, if the term age can ever be applied to "the female of the species."

The season now drawing to a close frequently saw Field Days in the Montreal District attracting nearly two hundred women players, and last week in Toronto two invitation tournaments, one at Mississauga and the other at the Royal York had entries respectively of 185 and 245. The quite outstanding figures are never equalled by "mere man." The "ladies" now hold all records when it comes to entries in competitions.

The important announcement has just been made by Prescott S. Bush, secretary of the United States Golf Association, that on October 1st, the moulds and forms for the manufacture of the 1.62 ball in use now for some years in the States as well as in Canada and Great Britain were taken from all the principal golf ball factories and destroyed. The manufacturers in the States have agreed with the U.S.G.A. not to manufacture any more of the 1.62 balls but to make only the new large and lighter ball which has been authorized by the Association.

Canada, of course will not be affected by this momentous change. The Royal and Ancient in Great Britain has decided in 1931 to continue the use of the 1.62 ball and the Royal Canadian Golf Association has gone on record as following the example of the R. and A. In Canada and Great Britain the coming year the old smaller and longer driving ball will still be authorized in all championships. In the States the longer and lighter ball only will be recognized. There is no doubt that there is bound to be much confusion as a result of this radical ruling by the U.S.G.A. Starting January 1st next Canadians and Britishers in all competitions in the States will have to use the U. S. standard ball. In this country and Great Britain however, U. S. players will be able to play their own balls or the 1.62 ball, whichever they prefer. It is a bad mix-up and not at all in the interests of international golf.

In Canada the golf ball manufacturers will use the same 1.62 forms and moulds as they have for some years past. They will manufacture a few balls of the U.S. standard but they do not expect much demand for them. It is most unfortunate that the United States Golf Association has taken the stand it has. Two different and authorized types of ball will unquestionably result in "confusion worse confounded," especially in Canada, where golfing relations with the States are so widespread and interwoven.

Mrs. E. S. Jaques, Whitlock Golf Club, Montreal, won the grandmothers' prize at the Canadian Ladies' Senior golf championship at the Lambton Golf Club, Toronto, the first week of October by several grandchildren. The event was a special one, wherein competitors were handicapped according to the number of grandchilden they had. Mrs. Eustace Smith, Toronto, mother of the famous all-round young golfers and athletes Miss Maud and Miss Cecil Smith had the best net score in the event, but was "outgrandchildrened" by her Montreal opponent. Grandchildren have always been considered great assets in the family circle but this is the first time they have ever decided a golf championship.

The Lesley cup matches which were played last week on the Pine Valley course near Philadelphia, generally conceded to be the finest course in America, was won by the New York team which duplicated its success at Toronto last year. Pennsylvania was in second place, Massachusetts third and the Eastern Canada team headed by the Amateur Champion, Ross Somerville and the Ontario champion, Jack Nash, fourth. Mr. B. L. Anderson, Secretary of the Royal Canadian Golf Association accompanied the Canadian team and writes me enthusiastically about the wonderful reception given the Canadians. Mr. R. W. Lesley, donor of the cup, during his speech at the annual dinner, said "The Canadian team, rounds out the organization making the 'fourth leg of the stool' and after four years participating in these matches I think it would be a great disappointment to the other teams if Eastern Canada were not to participate."

Mr. Anderson considers these Lesley cup matches embody the highest for of Amateur Sport and golf at its best. They were inaugurated 26 years ago but it was only in 1927 that Canada was honored by an invitation to take part in them—and it certainly is an honor.

BROKERS' TRIAL HALTS INQUIRY IN SALARY GRAB

Wright Reveals Powerful Organization Involved in Recent Skirmishes.

SUMMERVILLE GRILLED.

Judge Issues Warning to "Tell All" as Examination Meets Little Success.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 23.—Commencement of the trial of a number of prominent local brokers on conspiracy charges has caused adjournment of the enquiry being conducted by Judge J. H. Denton as to the origin and authorship of the movement instituted last spring by members of the City Council for salary increases. However, while adjournment is for an indefinite period, results of the two sessions held so far are the main topic of conversation locally.

The high spot of the second session's testimony was the revelation by Sam Wright, M.L.A., Toronto-Dovercourt that an organization which is said to have become exceedingly powerful in municipal affairs during the last five years had been involved in the skirmishes preceding the council's action in voting salary increases to its members.

Admits Press Statement

Wright referred to the organization indirectly when replying to a question as to who it was assured him 18 members of the council would support him for commissionership on the Toronto Transportation Commission. The witness admitted his press statement, published during the furore surrounding the "salary-grab" last spring and which set forth that he had been approached by 18 members of the council at different times with reference to a position on the T.T.C., was incorrect. Wright declared he had been assured by a man who belonged to an "organization" that 18 members of council would support him. He then named two persons who had told him such was the case.

Lengthy examination of Controller William A. Summerville concerning the much-talked-of conference in Mayor Bert S. Wemp's office, as to how much authority the civic administration had insofar as salary boosting went, and testimony from Frederick G. McBrien, M.L.A. for Brockton, that, at the request of Wright he had drawn up a salary bill before the conference was held, were other features of the hearing.

Although two hours was spent in examining Controller Summerville in an effort to draw from him a statement regarding the attitude of the Mayor during the conference in the mayoralty office at which the salary-grab was admittedly discussed, little success was met with. Finally Judge Denton abruptly warned him: "You are here to tell all you know. Are you afraid to mention the Mayor's name?"

AIDED BY NORTHCLIFFE HE WENT A LONG WAY

Sir Campbell Stuart Found the Friendship of Fleet Street's Dictator Very Valuable

AMONG Canadians who have left the Dominion during recent years to take up residence in the Old Country one of the most distinguished is Sir Campbell Stuart, K.B.E. A young man—he has still four years to go before reaching the half-century—his great gifts have been sponsored by just that element of luck that enabled him to use them to the greatest advantage.

Sir Campbell Stuart

After raising the Duchess of Connaught's Own Irish Canadian Rangers in his native province of Quebec for service in the war, Campbell Stuart was over in London and, on the recommendation of the Prime Minister of Canada, Sir Robert Borden, he was posted to the British embassy at Washington as assistant military attache to Sir Cecil Spring Rice. Having been rejected for active service on medical grounds, Sir Robert Borden conceived the idea that at Washington Campbell Stuart would be invaluable to the British ambassador as an adviser from the Canadian viewpoint and that he would have opportunities to infuse rather more energy into the pro-British propaganda then being carried on in the United States.

As events turned out it was a great stroke of luck for Campbell Stuart when he was sent to Washington. During his stay in London he had met Lord Northcliffe, and a strong mutual regard had sprung up between them. After being less than a month at his new post Campbell Stuart learned that Lord Northcliffe had arrived in New York as head of the British War Mission to the United States, and he set off at once to renew the recently-formed acquaintance. Lord Northcliffe received him with much effusion and before the two parted a telegram had been dispatched to Lloyd George requesting him to arrange for Campbell Stuart to be transferred from Washington to the staff of the British War Mission in New York. Thus was begun a close personal friendship that was only brought to an end by Lord Northcliffe's death.

In his time Lord Northcliffe had many subordinates. In Fleet St. he had a reputation for picking men up and letting them go without thinking much about it, but with Campbell Stuart his attitude was entirely different. Each held the other in the greatest esteem; each was, in fact, the complement of the other, and Lord Northcliffe came to rely on Campbell Stuart as he had never before relied on anybody. By his tact, self-confidence, resourcefulness and by his assiduous industry and devotion to his chief Campbell Stuart made a friend who put him on the high road to success and saw that he arrived there. In January, 1918, he was made vice-chairman of the British War Mission to the United States, and from May to December of that year he was deputy director of propaganda in enemy countries, Lord Northcliffe being director. In 1918, too, King George showed the country's appreciation of Campbell Stuart's services by conferring on him the honor of knighthood.

After peace was declared Sir Campbell Stuart remained in London and devoted his attention to running the Times, of which newspaper he was managing director from 1919 until 1924.

Lord Northcliffe gave him his chance, but it was brains that enabled him to seize it. Like Premier Bennett, Mackenzie King and E. W. Beatty, this distinguished son of Canada remains a bachelor.

Sir Robert

by "L"

SIR ROBERT FALCONER is over sixty now, but reflects that it does not matter much.

He is extremely well educated, but still does not know why we are here nor where we are going.

He is glad he is well educated because it lets him know how silly everything is and how seriously it must be treated.

One of his unachieved ambitions is to be able to use a typewriter. Another is to be able to eat all the onions he wants.

He spent his boyhood in Trinidad or some such place, but has retained no outward evidence of tropical influence.

He frequently feels surprise about life but never displays it, just as he often becomes very angry but maintains a reputation for unfaltering serenity.

Once when he was quite young he climbed the mountain behind Holyrood Palace at an unseemly hour to try the echoes, but has been more careful about his conduct ever since.

He now has dignity to a degree that is sometimes depressing even to himself.

He is fond of cheese.

He disapproves of transatlantic flights.

He is unaware that there is any drinking in the fraternity houses of the University of Toronto, which is probably a good thing.

He has a vibrant and mellifluous voice, but would willingly trade it for more hair on the top of his head.

He likes the jokes in the back of the Literary Digest and sometimes reads them.

He has a very fine figure and sits upright at his desk to keep it so.

He went once to a motion picture performance and would like to go again sometime.

He rarely has more than one evening a week at home and is fed up with welcoming distinguished visitors. He usually gets back at them by sending them through Hart House with the warden, who is fed up, too.

He tries to make up for his evenings by taking an interval at home in the middle of the day.

He thinks the empire is a good thing.

He reconciles science and religion by keeping them apart.

He is sorry he is obliged to read the newspapers, but keeps a book of clippings.

He thinks that Jane Austen, Charles Dickens and William Thackeray are among the modern novelists and regards H. G. Wells and Bernard Shaw as promising young men.

He intends sometime to mix more with the students.

Since reaching Toronto twenty odd years ago he has been in only two or three controversies, but is less certain now that this is proof of success.

When he comes home at night he always reads for a while before he goes to bed and learns something new nearly every day.

He likes to discuss things intelligently and has become so good at it that he can talk for an hour and tell nothing.

When he was forty he was a professor in a little theological college in the maritimes and still wonders sometimes how he became president of the University of Toronto.

If he had more time he would like to write a book.

Sir Robert Falconer

Carver of Totem Poles Spins His Queer Tales

OYE, the skilful wood-carver of Gitwinksihlk, who could turn a tree-trunk into a fable, tells the story.

There was once, in the valley of the River Naas, in northern British Columbia, an Indian girl whose name was Hrpisunt. She lived many years ago, but in this much was she like the girls of to-day: she was heedless, careless of speech and not inclined to respect her elders and betters. For these faults she was punished, as Oye tells.

Because she dared speak thoughtlessly of the bears (and no doubt because she was beautiful as well, it should be added in all justice) Hrpisunt was carried away by the grizzlies and forced to marry the grizzly chief's nephew.

So Oye tells in the totem pole he carved so skilfully eighty years ago in the village of Gitwinksihlk. To-day the history of Hrpisunt and the grizzlies, writ large so that all who look may read, stands in the Trocadero Museum in Paris. In charge of Paul Coze, a deep student in Indian lore who spent a summer in the Skeena country of northern British Columbia, where the totem poles stand like little forests, it has an honored place in the ethnological section of the hall devoted to the North American Indians. The pole was acquired by Marius Barbeau of the National Museum of Canada for the Canadian National Railways, which presented it to France. It was prepared for shipment by T. B. Campbell, engineer of the railway, who spends his summers at Hazelton, Kitwanga, Prince Rupert and other places along the system, restoring the totems that lie neglected in the Indian villages.

Oye's pole belonged to the family of Chief Kwarshu of the village, now forsaken, of Angyeda, on the Naas. The family of Kwarshu belonged to the Wolf Clan, but the indiscretion of the ancestor Hrpisunt gave a new twist to the family history. The figure at the top of the totem, with the pointed ears and clutching claws of the grizzly, is that of the nephew, the mythical spouse of the hapless Indian girl; in his arms, so to speak, lies, half-human and half-bear, one of the descendants; three figures showing unmistakably human hands, features and legs indicate that the human strain came to dominate.

It was when she was out picking berries, at the source of the Kalem river, near the Naas, that Hrpisunt made her mistake, years and years ago. Two grizzlies in human form accosted her and charged her with what would be called to-day libel. She responded indignantly, but it was no use: the spirits of the wild animals have sharp ears. She was carried off to the grizzly cavern in the mountains. And there the line of Kwarshu.

Wayward as she had been, the girl was not forsaken by her kindred. Years afterwards her brothers, still searching, found her. Up the hill, outlined against the snow—for it was winter—they saw two bears. Hrpisunt recognized her brothers and her heart jumped at the thought of escape. Warily watching her grizzly husband, she moulded a snowball in her hands. She rolled it down the hill. The brothers picked it up, saw the human fingerprints and hastily scrambled up the slope. They killed the bear husband and led Hrpisunt and her half-human children back to the tents of home.

Since then the family professes a great respect for the bears. It would never do to repeat the mistake of the heedless ancestor. Even when they kill a grizzly the hunters of the clan shake their heads with regret, beg his pardon politely and sing propitiatory song.

KING OF DETECTIVES FOUND THE YARD COLD

Head of Famous Burns Agency Got Chilly Treatment When He Called at Scotland Yard

W. J. BURNS, America's greatest detective, admires Scotland Yard immensely. At the same time he thinks that it has features that could be improved upon. He finds the prevailing atmosphere there rather chilly.

W. J. Burns

"If there is any person who should be received without suspicion at Scotland Yard I think I can say without boasting that I am the man," explains Mr. Burns. "It is fairly well known even in England that I am no friend of criminals and that I have put more bad ones behind the bars than any other person in the world. And yet whenever I have had to pay a visit to Scotland Yard I have had to overcome what amounts to a spirit of hostility in the outer office.

"By nature I am a genial sort. I like to smile my way through. I have not had much experience in cooling my heels in outer offices after I have sent in my card to the official I want to see. In Scotland Yard, though, they have never taken any chances."

While on a visit to England some years ago Mr. Burns was requested by the American embassy to investigate the disappearance of a young American. In company with a high diplomat Mr. Burns went to Scotland Yard for assistance. He asked to see Sir Edward Henry, who was then chief commissioner.

Detectives came and went, stared at them hard, but still no invitation came from the commissioner.

Eventually Mr. Burns got up and strode through a door marked "Strictly Private" and thundered at a startled-looking man sitting at a desk:

"Say how much longer are you going to keep the American ambassador waiting to see Sir Edward? He's finding his chair pretty hard sitting out there, and so am I."

The mention of the American ambassador—even though it wasn't really the ambassador, but only his representative—stirred the officials to action. Within three minutes the interview with the chief commissioner was in progress.

Sir Edward himself proved to be most genial. He promised to let Mr. Burns have all the information the Yard could unearth.

"None of it has yet reached me," smiled Mr. Burns, long after. The young man turned up later in another country. He had got into some money trouble and skipped. But if Scotland Yard had happened to get hold of him they wouldn't have given him a colder reception than they gave me."

Speaking of the Volstead Act, which has brought quite a bit of grist to his mill, Mr. Burns had this to say:

"I never had a drink of alcohol in my life until prohibition came in. Then I did like everybody else: I took a little for medicinal purposes."

How Would Grove Do Without Them?

TIME was when that uncompromising idealist and Canadian novelist, Frederick Philip Grove, did not find his relations with publishers as pleasant as they are now. This autumn his eighth book, entitled "The Yoke of Life," was published and its advent was eagerly anticipated in Canadian literary circles. It was certain of a good sale before it was published.

But once it was a different matter. He was a struggling author and an early book had been received with acclaim by the discerning critics, but had made no popular success. Mr. Grove was not feeling very happy over the fact that he had sweated and striven over his book and had reaped the most meagre of rewards.

About that time he attended the Vancouver convention of the Canadian Authors' Association. It soon became no secret that he was not unduly impressed by the proceedings of that body.

One incident was sufficient for that. A certain Toronto publisher had been addressing the members and at the close of his address remarked, "Publishers, like authors, must live." Up rose Grove, red of face, head thrust forward, voice strong and challenging. Quite a dramatic moment. He declared that the remark of the publisher reminded him of the famous story of the poet who demanded a pension from Cardinal Richelieu and added, "Poets must live." The cardinal replied, with a shrug, "I do not see the necessity." As Mr. Grove veritably thundered forth the retort of the cardinal members knew what this Canadian author thought about the tribe of publishers. They had got a glimpse of the power of passionate conviction resident in the man.

SILENCE REQUESTED

TWO young women were having lunch at the same table, and they very obviously didn't know each other. One had just finished her lunch and the other was about to begin. The one who had just finished leaned back and lit a cigarette, much to the other's annoyance.

"I suppose," she said, sweetly, "you don't object to my eating while you're smoking?"

The other looked up brightly and replied, even more sweetly, "Oh no, not so long as I can hear the orchestra."

LAWYER: "Did you see the automobile approaching the railroad track?"

Watchman: "Yes, I said, 'That is a nice car—wasn't it?'"

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jun.

Millionaire Novelist Writes in B.C.'s Woods

AT Sproat Lake, on Vancouver Island, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., has found that it is possible to write his magazine articles and fiction stories while entertaining a large number of guests. His method is simplicity itself.

Vanderbilt works fourteen hours a day, leaving his guests to find their own diversions in fishing and hiking and such artificial diversions as are available on the estate. Practically all who partake of his hospitality are in the rich men's class, and the only time they see the sun rise is when they stay up late enough.

Not so the young millionaire author.

"I get through a lot of work," he explains, "by the simple expedient of getting up in the morning before my guests have gone to bed that night. Say, about 4 a.m. I don't mind and they don't mind. They have the run of the whole estate, with the exception of my study, which is 'verboten' to everybody."

Mr. Vanderbilt wrote a full-length novel during his short stay at Sproat Lake this year. He expects it will be published at the new dollar price, for in his opinion the day of the two-dollar novel is just about over.

Miss Macphail is Lecturing Uncle Sam And Her Frank Opinions Are Going Over

IN times of tariff wars and revolutions and sabre-rattling the world over, the choice of Ottawa's lone memberess of parliament as Canada's latest ambassador of goodwill to the United States is regarded by many as peculiarly opportune, and there is a feeling in the air that Canada cannot fail to benefit in some degree from Miss Macphail's present lecture tour in America under the auspices of the Foreign Policy Association. This lecture tour, which concludes on November 22nd, takes in territory from New York to Chicago and as far south as Kansas City. And the theme of the addresses is "Thinking Internationally" or something analogous—something aimed to soften violent nationalism, to remove causes of friction between the nations and, in fact, to pave the way to world peace.

Miss Agnes Macphail

Not only has Miss Macphail been a consistent worker for world peace throughout her decade of public service in parliament, but she has other unique qualifications as a lecturer in the cause she is so actively espousing. As the sole woman member in the federal House she represents in a sense all the women of Canada—who, on the whole, are known to be against war. Likewise she is free from any hampering entanglements—being supported by no specific interests—and can therefore speak straight from the shoulder. Which she does!

Then, again, her freedom from pose, her habits as a speaker of getting down to brass tacks without frills, compliments or stories rather "takes" with audiences below the line—at least with such audiences as she is addressing in the various institutions that are lined up in the itinerary. For those very qualities—so well attuned to an age of sophistication, an age which is rather fatigued with all forms of make-believe and empty courtesies—are the qualities of sincerity and are recognized as such.

Miss Macphail's qualifications as a lecturer are to a certain extent the result of the Herculean task that has been hers from the time of her first entry into public life—that of holding the fort all alone for the women of Canada in the House of Commons. Whereas the presence of two or three more women at the capital would relieve the pressure by distributing the burden of all the chores placed upon her shoulders by women's organizations and by individual women who are in hard luck and appeal to her "as a woman" to do all sorts of impossible services, such as releasing their sons from the penitentiary and finding them soft jobs.

There is nothing which Miss Macphail would welcome more than to see a few women come along and join her and form a little group in the House—not a "Woman's Party" by any means, but still a little feminine company, as it were. She has often expressed surprise at her continued isolation in view of women's larger participation in public life generally, though she realizes there are parallels in other parts of the world, such as New Zealand, where women have been eligible for membership for the past forty years and yet not one has been elected.

E. A. Weir

He Will Tell Canada Her History by Raido

A COMPREHENSIVE knowledge of Canada and the Canadian people is the valuable background which E. A. Weir, director of the radio department of the Canadian National Railways, brings to his work. He was born on an Ontario farm, taught school for some years, and after graduating from the Ontario Agricultural College entered the field of agricultural journalism. Few men know Canada better. His work has familiarized him with every province in the Dominion, and he can discuss the agrarian movement in Western Canada or the history of the people of Quebec with an authoritativeness born of contact and study.

A recent sojourn of five years in London, England, added to Mr. Weir's broad knowledge of Canada and the Empire. While residing in the Empire capital he travelled extensively through the British Isles and continental Europe in the interests of the Canadian National Railways immigration department, and when he returned to the Dominion it was with a profound appreciation of John Bull's grit and sagacity.

Canadian history has always fascinated Mr Weir and he never loses an opportunity to point out that we have a wonderful fund of lore that should be used to inspire our young people. He has put this belief into concrete form by arranging a series of historical radio plays which will be broadcast by the Canadian National Railways this winter.

Golf and Politics Linked by the "Greens"

WHEN the members of the Toronto bar lay aside their briefs and title abstracts for a day's relaxation at the semi-annual golf tournament one does not expect to hear much of politics. Nor, if the truth must be told, does one expect to see much real golf, in spite of the presence in the assemblage of a former Canadian amateur champion, in the person of "Bill" Thomson. The sad fact must be recorded that the first tee at Royal York, where the recent fall tournament was held, looked, after the pride of Toronto's bar had done their worst, more like the scene of a plowing matching than a golf game.

Among the late starters were two prominent Canadian statesmen—the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen and the Hon. Charles McCrea. What their scores were will not here be revealed. This screed will be concerned only with what they had to say about golf—not with what they did at it—in the dining room after the labors of the day were completed.

Mr. Meighen, although the last in off the course, long after the shades of night had fallen, was the first speaker called upon following the presentation of the trophy by Sir William Mulock. He had a few words to say about politics. They were very neat, instructive, and well received, but are not germane to the matter in hand.

Then he said. "And my friend Mr. McCrea and I, being used to working in the dark, found that we made our best scores after nightfall."

Mr. McCrea had a word, too, to say about golf and politics. He compared them and found many points of similarity.

"We have also," he said, "in political life some fairway; we come across a good many bunkers; we find there are traps; and—."

"All the while you have your eye on the green—the long green," suggested some young legal light, unidentified, and beneath contempt, at the back of the hall."

BEEZNESS'

ABE faced his prospective father-in-law boldly and asked for Rosie's hand.

"Young man," demanded the father, "tell me the truth: why do you want to marry my daughter? Is it for her own sake or to pay off your debts?"

"Well," replied Abe, "suppose you pay off my debts first, and then wait and see."

"HOW did you find your wife when you got home last night?"

It Must Be Admitted—

THAT age is not altogether a matter of years. Take Premier Bennett as an illustration of the fact. He is in his sixty-first year. In another nine years he will have reached the allotted span. And look at the man! His tariff walls may totter in the English climate, but "R. B." certainly isn't tottering himself. He's the most debonair figure at the Imperial Conference. He simply radiates vitality and "joie de vivre," or words to that effect. He is the glass of fashion and the mould of form. This country is full of men of forty who couldn't keep up to him for one day.

It may be that Premier Bennett could have used his energies to better purposes during the first session of parliament he dominated, but he certainly showed the country how to work hard and fast. The way he absorbed work, right on the heels of an electoral campaign that would have put the average young "go-getter" in hospital, justified his election. It showed us what a young fellow of sixty-one is capable of doing when he's in a hurry to catch a boat.

The premier is a first-class advertisement for Canada in Great Britain—if he does not stay there long enough to get into arguments about free trade and Canada's national policy. Catching glimpses of him as he steams through London's streets or in the pages of the illustrated journals, Englishmen will think of Canada as a robust country whose statesmen know how to dress their imposing figures.

"R. B." would never look at a poor worm like me, but I get a great kick out of looking at him. He makes me feel young. He also makes me feel indolent.—P. H. D.

Stirling Hockey Club Reorganized At Annual Meeting

Last Year's Regulars On Team

NEW PLAYER CANDIDATES.

Harry and Fred Ingram, With Ken Davis, Missing From Line-up.

STIRLING, Oct. 23.—The Stirling Hockey Club at its annual meeting last night surveyed the prospects for the coming season, elected officers, and concluded that, in spite of several serious losses from last year's runners-up against Campbellford, the local team would probably be as strong as ever.

Three of last year's regulars will again be wearing Stirling colors in the Trent Valley League, but there are three gaps in the line that have been giving Manager Bill Whitty and his associates considerable worry. The missing trio will be Harry and Fred Ingram and Ken Davis, the nucleus for the 1930-31 sextette includes Don Morton, the clever young net guardian, Earl Wallace who will be back at right wing again, and Jack Ackers who ought to have another good season. The new team will be built up around these three, but the Ingram brothers and Davis will be hard to replace.

Problem for the Club.

Harry Ingram is going to Point Anne with Davis, and Fred Ingram is a candidate for Boston. Last winter the breaks went against the local club in its cup hunt, and the future right now presents a real problem for the new officers.

Plenty of enthusiasm was manifested by the members of the Club last night, and they elected an enthusiastic slate of officers as follows:

President—R. W. Meiklejohn.
1st Vice-Pres.—H. Morton.
2nd Vice-Pres.—J. E. Lagrow.
3rd Vice-Pres.—H. Tulloch.
4th Vice-Pres.—M. Fitzgerald.
Treasurer—T. Solmes.
Secretary—P. C. McGuire.
Management Committee—W. J. Whitty, H. Ackers, J. Lagrow, C. Beacock.

League Meets in November.

The annual meeting of the Trent Valley League will be held in Stirling late in November with every indication that the league will be as fast and well-balanced as last winter, which was one of the most successful in the history of the Trent Valley.

There have been some reports that Norwood and Lakefield may come in this season, but nothing definite has yet been heard from that quarter yet. It is hoped that Stirling will again be a strong contender.

CONSTABLES ARRESTED

COCHRANE, Ont., Oct. 22 (C.P.)—Assault charges were sustained against two of three Provincial Police constables when they appeared before Magistrate E. R. Tucker. Civil actions against these men are pending as a result of an episode in which a taxi driver alleges he was attacked by the constables without cause and had his collar bone broken and received a number of bruises. It is said the taxi-driver was mistaken for another man, who earlier in the evening had an altercation with a police constable.

BIG LEAGUE PLAYERS DO NOT GET ENOUGH EXERCISE, SAYS WAITE HOYT OF THE YANKEES

Big Leaguer Complains When the Late Miller Huggins Refuses to Let Him Play Golf in Morning, Nevertheless New York Sports Scribe Fails to See Pitcher Burning Up With Enegy.

BALL-PLAYING IS QUEER LIFE, ALWAYS WORK WHILE OTHER PEOPLE ENJOYING THEMSELVES

Taking time out from football—Waite Hoyt once said that the trouble with life in the big leagues was that a fellow didn't get enough exercise. That seemed a strange remark. It might be mentioned that Waite wanted to play a little golf in the mornings, and the late Miller Huggins put up the bars against it. So Waite may have been arguing for the freedom of the links when he was talking about the lack of sufficient exercise for ball players.

"Take an outfielder," said Hoyt. "What does he do for a day's work? He is lucky if he gets three turns at the plate in batting practice. Then he shags flies for about ten minutes in fielding practice. He may catch five or six flies in the game and go to bat three or four times. What's that for a big, husky, young fellow who is supposed to be an athlete? He works about three hours a day and most of that time he's either standing still or sitting down."

It was urged that pitchers had an even easier time than that.

"Sure they have," agreed Hoyt. "A regular works once in four days, more or less. In between he wouldn't average a half-hour of exercise a day. He'll shag a few flies or maybe go ten minutes in batting practice. And when he does work, he works only two hours. Think of the laborers who get six, eight, or ten hours of hard muscle work every day. That's what I call exercise."

Rest for the Weary.

It was never noticed that Waite took to smashing baggage or spelling the firemen on railroad locomotives during road trips to get the needed exercise of which his baseball career deprived him. In fact, it often required some trifling managerial hint to get Waite off the bench and out on the field to take the little bit of exercise that a big league pitcher is allowed.

The truth is that any ball player can get all the exercise his frame can stand if he puts himself out to look for it. Arthur Fletcher can take a fungo stick and run Waite Hoyt or any other husky and healthy athlete into the ground in twenty minutes of fast outfield work. But Waite was in a melancholy mood and stuck to his guns on the subject of the lack of exercise for ball players. He added another thought.

"It's a queer life, ball-playing," said the rising young undertaker. "You can't have fun like other people. You're always working at your trade when other people are having days off or enjoying vacations. We play Sundays and holidays. We play all through the nice part of the year. We're turned loose when everybody else is going back to work and winter is coming on. The average person gets his sports in the summer time, camping, canoeing, swimming, touring, week-end trips, and all that. We're barred. We're tied up from late February to early October. Funny, isn't it?"

Practically Ridiculous.

It was more than funny. It was practically ridiculous. A good major league player is sitting on top of the world for the time being. He plays the game he likes for a good salary. He rides on limited trains and stops at the best hotels in the land. He has a vacation of at least four months. Pity the poor ball player!

The woods are full of them, especially at this time of the year. It must be a hard life. Look for the down-trodden players at this season and you will have to trek to Maine, to Canada, or the Wisconsin wilds to find them. They are on the trail of the deer, the moose or the wild turkey. They are crouching in duck blinds, scanning the horizon at dawn as the mallards and canvasbacks come in. Some of them were so worn out by the summer baseball campaign that they went to Cuba—to play more baseball.

Burleigh Grimes is probably somewhere in the Michigan woods with Fred Lindstrom, Travis Jackson, or some other baseball cronies. Eddie Collins, Mickey Cochrane, and Cy Perkins are packing up for their moose hunt in the New Brunswick territory. Bill Dickey, Bob Shawkey, and Benny Bengough will follow them in. There will be duck shooting on the Chesapeake later and quail shooting in Maryland and Georgia. Handkerchiefs should be passed around so that every lucky man in the mills or the mines could burst out crying over the hard life of the down-trodden ball player.—New York Times.

Hart in No Hurry To Put Team on Ice

MONTREAL, Oct. 23. — New strategy on the part of Cecil Hart, manager of the Canadian Hockey Club, was disclosed yesterday when it was announced that the Canucks will not take to skates for at least a week after ice is available here. It is expected that there will be a sheet in the Forum by Monday next, but Canadiens will not practice on it for at least another week. Manager Hart stated that he considered, the hockey season long enough without added skating to tire the players.

The Flying Frenchmen will meet Providence of the Canadian American Hockey League in two exhibition games before the regular National Hockey League season opens, according to present plans. The dates have not been set, but it is expected that they will take place during the week of Nov. 10. All the Canucks were in good shape at yesterday's workout, with the exception of Pete Lepine, who was suffering from a heavy cold.

NIGHBOR MAY BE SUSPENDED

Toronto Leafs Management Finding Satisfying Veteran Player is Difficult Task.

CONCERNING OLYMPICS.

PARRY SOUND, Oct. 23.— Word has reached here from Detroit this morning that Frank Nighbor has failed to come to terms with Jack Adams concerning the management of the Olympic Club.

Adams wired Managing Director Smythe here to the effect that Nighbor could not make up his mind, and that the Detroit club was forced to seek another man. Adams is willing to take Burr Williams's contract from the Leafs on a loan agreement for the coming season.

Manager Smythe stated this morning that he is about through trying to satisfy Nighbor. The Pembroke Peach was ordered to report here as as player after failing to accept the coaching position, and now he has turned down the chance to handle the Detroit Olympics which the Toronto leader has arranged in part for him.

It is expected that the Toronto Maple Leaf Hockey Club will place Nighbor on the suspended list.

GEAR ELFORD ABSENTEE ON BENGAL SQUAD

Winged Wheelers Depending on Wally Whitty and Huck Welch to Cop Victory.

NEED STRONG DEFENSE.

Western Mustangs Expected to Subdue McGill in Forest City.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 23.—(CP)—Alibis for defeats in next Saturday's Eastern Canada major league football games through star players having injuries will not, apparently, hold good in the majority of cases. A check today reveals Montreal Amateur Athletic Association and Argos of the Big Four will be at full strength for their struggles with Hamilton Tigers and Ottawa Senators, respectively. The Bengals may be minus the services of Gear Elford, husky lineman, but otherwise will field their strongest line-up to avoid a repetition of last year's ignominous defeat at the hands of the Montrealers.

In the Intercollegiate union all four teams are expected to have every player in uniform. University of Toronto who clash with Queen's at Kingston have been fortunate to date in not suffering any serious handicap through injuries and after a week's hard practice are confident of smashing the Tricolor's domination in the college race.

Ian Gourlay, captain and clever outside wing, will line-up against Varsity, having fully recovered from the blow on the head sustained in the game against London two weeks ago. Coach Harry Batstone has been driving his players hard, seeking to inject some scoring punch in the Tri-Color line, which like some of the other college lines has showed great weakness, on the offensive.

Movies of Play.

The Toronto collegians following a strenuous drill last night, viewed a motion picture showing them in action against Western University at the local Stadium last Saturday. The movie showed the Varsity and Western line plays quite clearly, and enabled Coach Les Blackwell to point out to his charges some of their shortcomings on extension runs and smacks at the middle.

Coach Mike Rodden is drilling his yellow and black clad squad unusualy hard this week, suggesting Canada's greatest football mentor is not taking victory for granted against the Winged Wheelers. He specialized last night on plays for breaking up kick formations, apparently figuring "Huck" Welsh, ace punter for the Montrealers, will prove a thorn in the Tiger side unless some effectiveness is taken from his kicking by hurrying him.

The Winger Wheelers are in great condition and will have an edge on the backfield where Wally Whitty will assist Welch. But whether the wing line defence of the Montrealers can halt the Tiger plungers, is something else again and will undoubtedly decide the victor.

Coach Joe Breen of the London Mustangs is trying out a series of new plays to be used in the game against McGill University at the Forest City. If the astute Breen has discovered some method whereby his squad can continue for a longer period the brick burst of yard gaining ability they have shown against Varsity and Queen's, the Mustangs should register their first victory in the Inter-Collegiate by a decisive margin.

ST. MICHAEL'S BEAT PICKERING COLLEGE

Pile Up Sixteen Points in Last Quarter to Win By 26-1.

TORONTO, Oct. 23.—St. Michael's College furnished a surprise when they trounced Pickering College by 26 to 1 in an O.R.F.U. junior Interscholastic game at U. of T. Stadium yesterday afternoon.

Pickering held the smart Irish team to a 2-to-0 score in the last game played between these two teams and were confident of victory in yesterday's game, but St. Michael's piled up 16 points in the last quarter, although fairly close play prevailed previous to this.

In the opening session the Irish were able to score only two points on kicks to the dead line. Play was very close and neither team could make much ground on line plunges. Whenever a good scoring position presented itself the opposing booter would drive the ball up the field and relieve the pressure.

St. Mike's added three more points to their total in the second period, but lost a good chance for a major score when Griffith bucked the ball across the line, but fumbled and dropped it before he was even tackled. A single point resulted from this.

UNIVERSAL PICTURES

Including The First Dramatization of Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue"

FINAL GAME ON HOME GROUNDS WILL BE PLAYED ON SATURDAY WHEN GARNETS MEET C. C. I.

Both Teams Tied For First Place With Three Wins and One Defeat.

Locals Must Win Saturday.

Even Break For Cobourg Will Result in Three-cornered Tie For Honors.

Fresh from their victory in Lindsay, Saturday, the P.C.I. seniors indulged in scrimmage practices again yesterday afternoon in preparation for their all important clash with Cobourg here Saturday.

With a strong wind blowing chilling blasts across the field, the Garnet and Grey team made a very impressive showing on the Lindsay grid-iron last week.

Lindsay was in possession of the ball for such a short time during the sixty minutes that the "Petes" had little, if any chance to display their defensive wares to the home team, but when the Scugogville gridders were eandevoring to advance the pigskin, they found the going rather heavy against the strong P.C.I. line.

However, the offensive ability of the "Petes" was given a rare going over and practically all their plays, timed with clock-like precision, were consistent ground gainers.

The Cobourg Tilt.

Saturday, being the final home game of the schedule before the play-offs commence, should bring a record crowd to the park.

For the past two years the P.C.I. team has won the Group Championship and seem in a fine position to repeat, with only the Cobourg entry barring the way.

The locals have dropped only one game out of four and have been victorious in their last three starts.

On the other hand, Cobourg won their first three starts and invaded Oshawa Saturday in an all important struggle to come out on the short end of a 12-5 count.

Must Win on Saturday.

Thus P.C.I. and Cobourg are now tied for first place with three wins and one loss and to make sure of the title the LEGON led clan must defeat Cobourg Saturday and again the next week in the Lakeshore town.

If Cobourg gains an even break in the two games, a three cornered tie will undoubtedly result, as Oshawa has two easy games with Lindsay, thus necessitating a lengthy play-off series.

Much Stronger.

According to statistics, which always prove interesting, although often misleading, the 1930 edition of the local Collegiate squad is much stronger on the defensive than last year's championship aggregation.

In the first four games last year, the locals gained 85 points and had 27 scored against them, Lindsay being the only outfit to run a score into double figures against them during the regular schedule season.

In the four games to date, P.C.I. have scored 84 points, one less than last year, and have had only 14 scored against them, or an average of 3½ points against them per game.

Coach Legon has his team in tip-top shape and is ironing out any wrinkles in the plays that the boys may go in full speed against the much touted team from Lakefront.

Scrimmage practice will be the order for to-day with a light signal drill tomorrow to wind up the week's training.

Regular Line-up.

Practically the same team will take the field Saturday, that has started the past games.

In Wagar and Ward the team has two outsides who are deadly tackles, while Ab. Lord and Vern Armstrong are veterans at the middle wing positions and heavy line plungers. Waddell and Clayton will most likely be the choice for the insidde assignments.

Howie Macdonald, tall centre man, will look after the snapping for the crew with Wilf. Preston, rangy quarter calling the plays.

Joe Dunkerley and Don Mackey are scheduled for flying wing duty and the half line work will be well handled by Gordie Young and Jack Richardson.

Pete Gordon, Berckenridge and Sloane, will alternate at inside and middle and Fraser and Dinneson at flying wing.

Armstrong, captain and star line plunger of the outfit will likely get the call for the kicking as his work in past struggles has been of a high order.

In all, this year's team cleverly coached by Ernie Legon, looks like an outfit to go considerable distance in the fight for football honors.

At the Theatres

AT THE GRAND

THE DUMBELLS

Those of us who had about given up hope of seeing another road show without including the price of a railroad ticket in our estimates are delighted that The Dumbells are on the road again playing their twelfth annual revue and hitting on all twelve.

"Happy Days" is the appropriate title of the new show, and it is due to play the Grand theatre on Friday and Saturday of this week.

Advance reports would seem to indicate that Canada's foremost group of entertainers have taken on a new lease of life this season and have surpassed all previous efforts with the present vehicle.

The company which Captain Plunkett has assembled provides a rich and delightful blend of the old and the new. Among the well-known names of fond memories are Al. Plunkett, "Red" Nedman, Fred Emney, Pat. Raffetry, Harry Binns, Charlie Jeeves and others who have been with the show in more recent years, while the crop of newcomers is most promising, and several stars of tomorrow will be found among the youngsters that have been discovered and are being given their first real chance. These, together with The Dumbellettes and a splendid orchestra will round out the very excellent entertainment.

That The Dumbells have survived for twelve seasons and have now been given a route that will carry them across the continent playing in every important city between Halifax and Victoria, speaks well for their reputation as well as guaranteeing the exceptional quality of their present show, "Happy Days."

YEAR'S WORK IS OUTLINED

ANNUAL MEETING.

At the recent annual meeting of shareholders of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club, Limited, held at the club-house on Monaghan Road and McDonnel Street, President Mark Bredin presided, and gave a short address in which he outlined the work that had been accomplished during the past year, and the fine results which had made the greens and courts of the club compare second to none in the Province.

He thought that each succeeding year would undoubtedly produce more and more perfect greens and tennis courts. No expense or effort was spared, he stated, in trying to get together the very finest type of playing grounds possible.

The financial statement presented by J. T. Braund, treasurer, was read by the club's accountant, D. J. Lawtie, who had audited the club's accounts. He explained that the statement showed a subscribed capital approximating $12,600 and a mortgage of $2,700, with club-house, bowling greens and tennis courts expenditures of approximately $15,000. The statement covered operations from March 31st to September 30, and upon the motion of A. Brown, seconded by W. J. Oke, the statement was accepted.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, E. R. Disney, and were accepted.

For the election of new directors the following scrutineers were appointed: W. R. Fox and C. J. Seymour. There were represented at the meeting and by proxy close to 500 shareholders. The nominees were: J. D. Fitzpatrick, J. T. Braund, V. S. Foster, B. Chesler, M. Bredin, H. B. Cowan, A. Brown, J. W. Mayneord, W. J. Oke, H. Sedgewick and G. Gimblett.

The results of the votes announced by the scrutineers showed the following directors elected: J. T. Braund, B. Chesler, A. Brown, M. Bredin, J. D. Fitzpatrick, G. Gimblett and W. J. Oke.

ALL STARS WINNERS IN SCHOOL LEAGUE

St. Peter's School Softball Loop Brought to Successful Close.

St. Peter's School Softball League play-offs ended last evening, when Frank Marrocco's All-Stars defeated Gerald Young's Tigers decisively to the tune of 18 runs to 4. After six games of some of the fastest ball ever seen in a school league, the All Stars came through with the winning game to cinch the play-offs. Dr. Masterson pitched great ball and his teammates gave him airtight support. The losing pitcher, Gerald Young, although he pitched a good brand of ball, was not given the necessary support. However, the All Stars did not by any means lack a hitting punch. They went out fright from the first and bunched their hits a tthe right time, to pile up the great total of 18 runs. Line-ups:—

All Stars.—C. Galvin, c; Dr. Masterson, p; F. Morrocco, 1b; C. Sullivan, ss; J. Sweetman, 3b; P. Ayette, 2b; C. Carroll, lf; W. Galvin, rf; F. O'Connor, cf.

YACHT AUTHORITIES AGREE ON NEW RULE

Council Votes to Adopt N. Y. Club's Rule With Modifications.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 23 (A.P.) — British and United States yacht racing authorities have agreed to do away with the "mechanical" yacht, which came into fame in the recent races for the America's Cup, in future international contests.

After a series of conferences in which Norman Clark Neill and B. Heckstall-Smith, British representatives, met first with New York Yacht Club representatives, then with the Council of the British Yacht Racing Association, the council yesterday voted to adopt with modifications the New York Yacht Club's rule rating racing yachts of above 14½ meters in length.

The modification provides that Class "J" yachts, which includes all America's cup contenders, must carry a mast weighing at least 5,500 pounds bare; that standing rigging shall not be set up nor worked below the upper deck, and that the yachts shall be fitted with "reasonable" living accommodations.

GOLFERS TO HIT LONG TRAIL FOR $1000,000 IN PRIZES

ONE $25,000 SET.

By LESTER RICE

Competitive golf in the North has crept into the camphor. But all is not quiet on the western front. As early as this week desultory shooting in the Salt Lake region will begin to bestir the golfers of the Pacific slope.

Golf has become a perpetual pinwheel. It has gone in for one-night stands. There used to be a stoppage between October and January but the season now stops and starts again in October.

The first of the winter jack pots will be opened prematurely Friday at the Salt Lake Country Club with a $4,000 purse luring the more ambitious of the professional gold hunters. George Von Elm the native tiger of Utah, is to make his bow before the home folk as America's first business man golfer.

George's salaam before the Almighty Dollar will be scrutinized minutely no doubt by some of our barnstorming amateurs. Should George make a success of the golfing end of his business this winter others of a certainty will form a troop under his banner. The next amateur championship possibly will be more exclusive than it was this year. It may be by invitation only.

Following the Salt Lake open there will be a two-day stand at Spokane, Washington, the first and second of November. Others will follow if Bob Harlow can convince the various chambers of commerce that a ten per cent cut for the Tournament Bureau of the Professional Golfers' Association of America is not excessive or extortionate. The sponsors of the Long Beach $3,500 tournament thought it was and quickly cancelled their event.

Harlow is now in the Pacific Northwest playing the part of advance man for the golfing troubadours. He is trying to persuade Tacoma, Seattle and Portland to boost themselves by underwriting open tournaments.

$25,000 Open Tourney

The Winter circuit has grown bigger and better since last year. The trail will lead from Salt Lake City through the Northwest and down the California Coast to Agua Caliente where the $25,000 open will have its locale among the cacti the second week in January. Then the golfing showmen will move on to Texas for the Texas open and lesser events at San Antonio, Harlinger, Galveston and Houston.

New Orleans next, and then the trek along both Florida coasts with stops at Jacksonville, Miami Beach, St. Peterburg, Belleair. On the way north for the "new" season the Savannah and Augusta opens will be renewed in March.

Altogether there is $100,000 waiting to be distributed among the professionals and America's first business man golfer.

'TEEN AGE CHAMPION

Phil Farley, 'teen aged Cedar Brook, Ont., golfer, who has made a remarkable record this season, winning the Ontario junior title, several club events, and leading the field at Brantford recently in the Ontario Golf Association's fall tournament. In the Royal York tourney the youngster tied with Joe Thompson and W. J. Thompson for low gross but lost out in the play-off. He also played brilliantly at Scarboro earlier in the season in the Ontario amateur. Farley has a bright future in the "royal and ancient."

Chief Justice Grants Bail To Two Brokers

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 23.—(C.P.)—Pending determination of their appeal filed yesterday at Osgoode Hall, Maurice Young and William J. Smart were admitted to bail of $40,000 each by an order of Chief Justice Sir William Mulock. Both men were found guilty on two of three charges Tuesday in connection with their brokerage transactions.

"I granted bail in a very similar case to this The Home Bank case," said Chief Justice Mulock. "Unless there is some apprehension that these men will not return to stand new trial or receive sentence, bail should be granted."

COACH ART DUNCAN

Very little doubt remains in the mind of Mr. Hockey Fan who follows the movements of Manager Connie Smythe as to who is the brain behind the leaflette camp, with the recent appointment of Art Duncan as coach of the team for the coming N.H.L. season. Art has proven that he is one of the most popular players that Toronto has had in many a day. Duncan is a product of the town of Sault Ste. Marie where he learned the first inside tricks of the game with the collegiate teams. The first time, on record, that he jumped into the money class of the game was with the Vancouver team in the Pacific Coast League when the firm of Patrick and Patrick pretty well ran the game of pro-hockey. The following year, 1916, he played for the 228th battalion when they became the terror of the eastern hockey clubs. This success didn't last long for the battalion moved overseas and Art began chasing Hun aeroplanes around cloud banks. It wasn't long before Art took to this new sport and the first thing we know they are handing him a lot of decorated silver to wear on his coat. As soon as they called off the big row, Art retraced his steps back to Vancouver and from there he was sold with the entire team to the Chi-Hawks. This move proved only a short one. Later we find him as playing-manager of the Detroit Cougars but Art apparently found the going with this crowd hard and at the end of the season he had his resignation made out. The two following years he got a real slant on the game from the players' bench as sickness prevented him from getting into the game in a big way. Therefore, at the age of 37 Art has seen a good bit of the hockey world and will no doubt prove a real asset to the club.

Maxie Rosenbloom Is Victor In Uneven Battle Over Abie Bain In The Garden

NEW YORK, N.Y., Oct. 23. (CP)—The first experiment with championship fights at popular prices in Madison Square Garden has shown that the innovation is far from popular unless the contenders can show more than Abie Bain.

Bain, a Newark, N.J., youngster who has had little experience in the light heavyweights, proved only a chopping block for Maxie Rosenbloom, the light heavyweight champion, last night and Maxie "defended" his title by scoring a technical knockout in the eleventh round of a dull match.

Even with the prices scaled down to where the best seats cost less than six dollars, only 4,400 of the eight faithful turned out and contributed some $12,000 to the gate. And many of them left the arena before the bout wound to its certain finish.

Rosenbloom outclassed the Newark youngster completely from the first round, but it was not until a minute and 47 seconds of the eleventh weary round had passed that a cut over Bain's left eye, opened in the third frame, grew serious enough to cause Referee Lou Magnolia to halt the unequal contest.

BROTHERS BUY RANGER PLAYER

IS VETERAN HOCKEYIST.

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 23.—Leo Reise defense player of the New York Rangers, has been purchased outright by Manager Roy Brothers of the London International professional hockey team, and he will report here to-day. Reise, who played with the New York Americans, was bought by Lester Patrick two years ago. With Reise added to the line-up, Brothers's defense worries have ceased, as he also has Clem Loughlin and "Toots" Holway.

Reise has already signed a London contract. It was reported that Reise would retire from the game and act as a referee. However, the London manager visited Hamilton, where he held a conference with the player, and returned with his name on the dotted line.

Serious training will not commence until next Monday, but the players will skate daily at the Arena. Practically all the players will be here to-day with the exception of Clem Loughlin, who was delayed in the West by the threshers. Loughlin, who owns a large farm, wanted to see his wheat safely stored away before coming east for the hockey season.

Harold Hicks, defense played for the Detroit Falcons, is not worrying about the immigration laws. He is in fine condition, and skated at the London Arena to-day. He will remain here until he receives word from Manager Jack Adams that the immigration authorities are ready to consider his case as an "artist."

The purchase of Reise is the fourth deal completed by Brothers this season, as he already purchased Queeneville, Reinikka and Quesnel.

Smythe is Hopeful Of Getting Williams

Player Drafted From Tulsa is Said to be Free Agent.

PARRY SOUND, Oct. 23.—Hockey wars mean little to Connie Smythe, genial leader of the Toronto Maple Leaf Hockey Club in training here this week.

Last spring at the wind-up meeting of the National Hockey League, Mr. Smythe drafted Burr Williams from the Tusa Club of the American Association, but that western organization had their own ideas on the draft question and Williams never did come to the Leafs. That is, until the player himself, wired the Toronto director that he was a free agent, due to the lack of salary in full for last winter, and also hinted that he would consider a Toronto contract. Mr. Smythe lost little time offering Williams a contract, and time only will tell whether he accepts or not.

LONDON AWAITING GREAT EXHIBITION

Gorgeous Art of East Will Transpose Burlington House Into Fairyland.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—(By the Canadian Press)—The announcement that four aeroplanes, carrying 25 cases of priceless works of Persian art, started from Teheran to meet a British ship which is to bring these treasures to London has sent a ripple of anticipation and curiosity through the English public, says Lawrence Binyon in the Observer. It is quite in the vein of the Arabian Nights, only that winged machines have taken the place of the legendary Roc. But the Persian art? What is it like? What are the treasures that are going to fill the galleries at Burlington House next January, in succession to the Italian masterpieces? They will not be pictures only, but will cover the whole range of Persian art and craft from the earliest times.

It is not only from Persia, but from all over the world that ships will be sailing and cases carried to be unpacked in London. The Egyptian Government is lending treasures also: and collections, both public and private, in most of the countries of Europe, and in America, are sending choice specimens to the exhibition. Not least will be the contribution of collectors in this country. Except for the magnificent selection of Japanese works of art lent by Japan to the exhibition at Shepherd's Bush in 1910, no such chance of making acquaintance with master-pieces of Oriental art has been vouchsafed England.

The geographical position of Persia was propitious to her art. With China on the East, Greece on the West, and India on the South for neighbours, she was in close touch with great creative traditions, without falling into subservience to any. Her art profited by the stimulus from without, and the influence was sometimes reciprocal. After the Arab conquest Persia becomes the chief creative centre in Islam. "The gorgeous East" has become a proverb—Wordsworth's phrase crystalises traditional associations. Persian art is above all things distinguished for a supreme sense of decoration, a supreme gift for color.

Hitherto the most familiar form of Persian art has been the carpet. There will be a superb array of finest carpets in the exhibition, and the finest Persian carpets are miracles of complex color-design, an interweaving of many motives combined as in a masterly piece of music. Persian pottery is less known to the public, but ranks very high among the ceramic arts of the world. And the Persians were great masters of brush-drawing on pottery from an early time.

And what of Persian painting? This is still less known. In fact, it is only in quite recent years that the subject has even begun to be explored, and there is still any amount of exploration to be done. Persian paintings are little known because they are mostly illustrations to manuscripts and hidden in libraries. Some hundreds will be shown in the exhibition. The magnificent series generously loaned by Chester Beatty from his unrivalled collection would of itself be a revelation. For Persian painting, though usually on a small scale, has great qualities. The fourteenth, fifteenth and sixteenth centuries are the period of its glory. While Chinese and Japanese art delight in low-toned harmonies of color and have a special preference for ink-painting, Persian painting intoxicates with color that is truly gorgeous yet is harmonized by a fastidious taste and choiceness. The uncolored drawings are of a marvellous sensitiveness and delicacy, as is the handwriting; and famous scribes are more honored in Persia than the most famous painters. They also will be represented.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGLY'S CANDY BASKET.

"Here is the money for the candy," said Mrs. Longears as she saw her rabbit husband getting ready to hop out of the bungalow one morning. "Get as much as you can."

"Money for candy!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily in surprise. "What candy, my dear?"

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Nurse Jane Fuzzy Longears. "I suppose it does look strange," she went on, "for me to give Wiggy money for candy."

He gave the bag to Uncle Wiggily.

"It looks strange to me," said Mr. Longears, twinkling his pink nose sort of upside down.

"It makes me laugh. Ha! Ha! Ha!" chuckled Nurse Jane.

"But the candy I want Wiggy to bring," said Mrs. Longears, "is for a little party I am going to have for Jingle and Jangle this afternoon. It's their birthday."

"Oh, joy! How nice—that's different!" cried Uncle Wiggily dancing around on his hind legs. "If it's candy for the birthday party of Jingle and Jangle I'll get a jolly fine lot of sweets. Say no more! I'm on my way!" and off he hopped.

"I hope he doesn't lose the money," squeaked Nurse Jane.

"I hope he doesn't lose the candy," said Mrs. Longears.

Uncle Wiggily was so delightful at the thought of helping with the birthday party of his little rabbit girls that he hopped and skipped twice as fast and soon he was at the candy store.

"I want a big bag full of all kinds of candy!" said Uncle Wiggily as he hopped into the shop which was kept by a jolly Monkey Doodle gentleman.

"Right you are!" chattered the Monkey Doodle gentleman as he began opening boxes and filling the bag. "But aren't you afraid you will make yourself ill, Uncle Wiggily, if you eat all this at once?"

"Oh, I'm not going to eat it!" chuckled the rabbit. "This candy is for the birthday party of two of my twins, Jingle and Jangle. We are going to surprise them."

"Then it's all right," said the Monkey Doodle and he gave the bag of candy to Uncle Wiggily. It was quite a large bag and well filled with lollypops, gumdrops, chocolate drops, jelly beans, caramels, marshmallows, coconut pancakes and many other sweets. Uncle Wiggily was hopping through the woods, with the bag of candy over his shoulder, thinking how jolly the party would be when, all of a sudden, something very sad happened.

Whether it was that the lollypop sticks poked holes in the paper candy bag, or because there were so many chocolate drops I cannot tell you, but, all at once, the bag burst open and all the lovely candy was spilled out on the ground.

"Oh, dear!" cried Uncle Wiggily when he saw this. "Oh, dear!"

Luckily the ground in this part of the woods was covered with clean green moss, so the spilled candy did not get dirty. Uncle Wiggily at once began to pick up the lollypops, the jelly beans, marshmallows and other pieces. But when he tried to put them back in the bag the paper only tore more and into larger holes.

"That bag is no good! But how am I ever going to carry all this candy without a bag or something?" thought the rabbit. Then he thought he had better fill all his pockets, which he did, but still there was a lot of candy on the ground. Then Uncle Wiggily filled his tall, silk hat with the scattered sweets, but still there were many on the ground. He did not know what to do.

"If I take home what is in my pockets and my hat some one may come and eat the birthday candy I leave here," said Uncle Wiggily. "Oh, if I only had a basket!"

"Here is a basket for you!" suddenly called a voice in a tree over the rabbit's head. "You may use my old nest for a basket!" A red robin bird fluttered in the tree and soon down came tumbling a nest shaped like a round basket. "Put a handle of honeysuckle vine on the nest and it will be a fine candy basket!" chirped the robin.

"But don't you need your nest?" asked the rabbit.

"Oh, no," answered the robin. "My wife and I have hatched out our little birds and we are now going South for the winter. So take the old nest to carry home the rest of the birthday sweets."

Uncle Wiggily did this. The robin nest made a fine candy basket and when the bunny reached his bungalow everything was ready for the party of Jingle and Jangle. How surprised they were! And how jolly!

"Young" Stribling Will Test Out New Knockout Punch Again To-Night

NEWARK, N.J., Oct. 23. (CP) William L. (Young) Stribling, the Macon, Ga., battler who is considered by many boxing experts as the leading United States contender for the heavyweight title, starts another campaign directed towards a title bout when he tests his newly-discovered knockout punch on the durable chin of Meyzr "K.O." Christner of Akron, O. It is Stribling's first bout since his return from England, where he scored a sensational knockout victory over Phil Scott.

Stribling, long known as a boxer without a punch, has displayed a real wallop in his recent battles, knocking out Otto Von Porat in Chicago and then Scott. Although Christner has slipped back somewhat since he leaped into the limelight a few years ago he still has considerable ability to take punishment and a dangerous right hand wallop in the bargain.

RELIEF PROGRAM RECEIVES SANCTION OF ACTING PREMIER

meeting of the council. It was also believed that the three absent members were heartily in accord of the relief project, and the Council met the Hon. Mr. Henry with every phase of the agreement fully anticipated.

Should the ratepayers defeat the bylaw, the program will be abandoned at whatever stage it has reached by that time, and the city's share of the cost of the work done up to that time will likely be paid for out of next year's taxes. In the meantime, however, the Council is proceeding on the assumption that the ratepayers will approve of this action, and a meeting will be called in a few days at which City Engineer Parsons, Street Commissioner Harry Evans and John Thirnbeck, foreman, will be called in to decide upon the construction and relief arrangements.

Work Eight-hour Day

This work will be on an eight-hour basis, and is understood that the rate of pay will be 40c an hour. Men who are accustomed to this work as laborers in the city's employ will be divided, probably into three groups, in each of which they will form a nucleus for new men who will be doing this kind of work for the first time. These and other details will be fully considered at the special meeting.

Mayor Denne told The Examiner this morning that Peterborough's deputation was cordially received by the Hon. Mr. Henry. Other deputations were waiting for a hearing, and the Minister has been held in his office until late every night dealing with the applications for relief which have been presented by most of the municipalities of the province. It was pointed out to the Minister that the city wished to begin the local work as soon as possible before the severe weather set in. It will be continued as long as the conditions permit and will be resumed early in the spring during that trying period between seasons when men are usually waiting for the new building year to get under way.

Mr. Henry complimented the Council on their foresight in laying out a relief program that provided such a high percentage of manual work.

The details of Peterborough's surface drainage construction program is as follows:—

Toronto's Military History Is Recalled

TORONTO, Oct. 23 (By The Canadian Press).—A valuable collection of sketches, including one of the Old Fort at Toronto in 1804 (it was destroyed by United States soldiers in 1813), has been secured for the Dominion Archives at Ottawa by Dr. A. G. Doughty, deputy minister of archives, according to an Ottawa despatch in The Mail and Empire. The sketches were made by a British infantry officer, Col. (then Lieutenant) Sempronies W. L. Stretton, who was in Canada with the 40th and 64th Regiments from some before 1803 until after 1820, according to the dates on some of the sketches.

Dr. Doughty found out about the sketches through seeing one of Quebec which appeared in a British magazine, it showing Quebec early in the 19th century, and through a London dealer he procured the collection at an expenditure of $1,000. Lieut. Stretton was stationed at Toronto (then called York) and at Quebec, so the sketches seem to indicate, but at Quebec the greater part of his time in Canada. Photography had not yet been discovered and it was part of a British officer's training to be able to sketch accurately.

The sketch of the fort at York is regarded as very valuable from the archivist's point of view and the Quebec sketches have a special historical interest. The picture of the Old Fort presents a full perspective of the fortification as it appeared in 1804. Not only because of this but because there is little material available of early Toronto for the archivist is this sketch regarded as a treasure. Quebec is comparatively rich in material of historic interest, it being the centre of life and culture in the early days when Toronto was a mere outpost of civilization.

"Besides the sketch of the Old Fort and another of Quebec," says The Mail and Empire Ottawa Correspondent, "Dr. Doughty acquired in the collection two of Stretton's sketch books which contain a number of smaller but equally interesting sketches. One of these is a view of Quebec from the St. Lawrence, tallying with the old wooden model of Quebec now in the archives here. Others show the Montmorency and the Chaudiere Falls, while there are a couple of sketches of Niagara Falls. There are also views around Quebec, such as the St. Louis gate and other points of interest. In all these Stretton shows a most commendable gift for perspective."

TENDERS FOR TRACK TIES.

Sealed Tenders, addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tenders for Track Ties," will be received at the Office of General Tie and Timber Agent, Canadian National Express Building, Montreal, until Twelve o'clock Noon, October 31st, 1930, for Railway Ties to be manufactured from Hardwood and Softwood timber, cut between September 1st, 1930, and May 1st, 1931, and delivered between January 1st, 1931, and September 1st, 1931, F.O.B. cars, Canadian National Railways, in accordance with specification 83W-1-2, revised July 15th, 1926. Tender forms may be obtained at the Offices of the Tie Agents at Moncton, Toronto, and Winnipeg, Office of the Purchasing Agent, at Vancouver, and from the General Tie and Timber Agent, Montreal. Tenders will not be considered unless made out on forms supplied by the Railway Company.

As our necessary reserve of Ties has been built up, and as a very substantial surplus is, therefore, on hand, the number of ties to be purchased will be very much less than during the past year.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

THE RETURN OF TARZAN No. 34 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

As Tarzan entered the temple, he was distinctly aware of many eyes upon him. He heard a rustling in the shadows. One room had seven pillars and many carved decorations in solid gold. The floor of another was of the precious metal. His warriors huddled together, begging to be taken back to the sunlight, and fearful of dead spirits in this haunted place.

Tarzan laughed, bidding them run back into the fresh air. Some of the warriors obeyed with speed. But Busuli and others hesitated, torn between loyalty for their king and superstitious fear of the unknown. Then, quite unexpectedly, occurred that which decided them. Out of the silence, close by, rang the same hideous shriek they had heard the previous night.

As one man the warriors turned and fled through the empty halls. Tarzan-of-the-Apes stood alone, a grim smile upon his lips, waiting for the unseen enemy to pounce upon him. But again silence reigned. Then he wheeled and passed on into the very depths of the temple, coming to a rude barred door. Again the shriek of warning rang out almost beside him.

Perhaps beyond lay the secret of the treasure stores! As he placed his shoulder to the door the shrieking was repeated continuously. Before his giant strength, creaking, it swung slowly open. Tarzan feeling before him with his spear entered the stygian gloom. Suddenly the door closed behind him, and at the same time hands clutched him from every direction out of the darkness.

IN MEMORIAM

BROWN—In loving memory of Wilfred Brown who died, October 23, 1922.

Today we are thinking of someone,
Who was gentle and kind and true,
Whose smile was as bright as the sunshine.
That somebody dear Wilfred is you.

October will always bring memories,
Of a loved one laid to rest,
He will always be remembered,
By those who loved him best.

Just when his hopes were brightest
Just when his life was best.
God called him from amongst us,
Because He knew it best.

He has taken his last journey
In God's beautiful ship called "rest"
Away from this world of sorrow,
To a home of eternal rest.
—The Brown Family.

IN MEMORIAM

YORK—In fond and loving memory of my dear husband, Pte. H. York, who entered into rest October 23rd 1918.

Twelve years ago to-day,
Since my sorrow fell;
But in my heart I mourn the loss
Of him I loved so well.
The world may change from year to year,
My friends from day to day;
But never shall the one I love
From memory fade away.
—Sadly missed by loving wife.

Brazilian Government Surrenders

PALACE GIVES UP AFTER 15 MINUTE REBEL GUN FIRE

Sao Paulo Crowds Scatter, All Business Houses Close at First Shots.

REVOLUTION A SUCCESS.

Proclamation Calls on All, Whether Federal or Rebel Supporters, to Back Peace Move.

SAO PAULO, Brazil, October 24 (Copyright by Associated Press). — A white flag was run up on the Government building shortly before three o'clock this afternoon, indicating that the revolutionary measurement had been successful. At 2.40 p.m. firing against the Government Palace began, and fifteen minutes later the white flag was up.

A proclamation called upon all Brazilians, whether in favor of the Government or the Revolutionaries, to support the peace movement. It called upon Revolutionists to suspend the offensive and the Federal troops to do likewise. Plenipotentiaries were asked to confer with the Provincial Government to bring about pacification of the country.

As soon as the first shots were fired against the Government Palace, the crowds scattered and took refuge anywhere that seemed to offer shelter. All business houses put up iron shelter while the street cars were withdrawn from service.

The firing was in the centre of the city, but it was believed to be more in the nature of a demonstration than a real attack which might result in bloodshed.

OFFICER'S WIFE HELD FOR TRIAL

Mrs. Elizabeth Lloyd Charged With Attempted Murder of Her Husband.

IN TORONTO COURT.

TORONTO, Ont., October 24 (C.P.). — Mrs. Elizabeth Lloyd, charged with attempted murder of her husband, Constable Harold Lloyd, appearing before Magistrate Patterson in Women's Police Court to-day was committed for trial and bail was refused. Mrs. Lloyd was very ill, and was unable to stand while the charge was read against her, and had to be assisted by a matron.

The first witness called was Dr. D. W. Pratt, surgeon at the hospital where Harold Lloyd was confined, who told of removing the bullet from Lloyd's jawbone. During his testimony Mrs. Lloyd and her husband were not permitted in the court room.

Lloyd entered the courtroom with a very deep dent on his right cheek and a crisscross incision on the left side of the neck below the jawbone, where the bullet was extracted. Lloyd entered the witness box and spoke with great difficulty, being handicapped by fractured jaw. He told of how on the night of September 16 he had visited his wife's apartment and found her sick, and that he had gone to purchase some liquor. When he returned he gave her some liquor as well as her parents who were visitors at the house.

Lloyd related how he had sat down and was about to take a drink when he was shot in the cheek. Turning to the door he saw his wife standing in the doorway with a gun in her hand.

Regular Meeting St. Andrew's W.M.S.

The W.M.S. of the St. Andrew's United Church held their October meeting this week, with a good attendance. Miss F. Dixon, president, opened the meeting and transacted the business, after which Miss M. Craw's group took charge. The scripture reading was given by Miss Craw, followed by a session of prayer by Mesdames A. Porteous, R. Harstone, F. Dearborn and T. Evans.

The speaker of the afternoon was the Rev. D. Wren of Trinity Church, who gave his impressions which he received at the General Council held in London, Ontario, recently.

Mrs. L. M. Brooks sang, "I Think When I Hear the Sweet Story of Old." The meeting closed with prayer by the leader of the group.

QUOTA SYSTEM LIKELY SOLUTION FOR TRADE PACTS

Canadian Delegates at Conference Divided in Opinion as to Scheme's Practicability.

SPLENDID COOPERATION.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 24 (By George Hambleton, C.P. Staff Correspondent) —The quota system of preferential bulk purchasing is still under analysis in the various committees and subcommittees of the Imperial Conference, and as the conference reaches the end of its third week the belief among the various delegations seems to be growing that it is in the quota or some similar system that agreements to stimulate Empire trade will most likely be found, so far as the present conference is concerned.

Canadian Opinion Divided.

Among Canadian wheat men here opinion as to the practicability of the quota system seems to be divided. Some consider the quota system would be difficult in administration and enforcement, especially when it is not backed by a tariff system such as obtains in Germany and France. Others, regarding the problem of administration as less serious, do not see why there should be any difficulty in requiring British millers to conform to the plan if it is adopted. They further see in the quota the advantage of a more assured British market for Canadian wheat than exists at present, even if the world price is to prevail.

But although opinion of the quota plan as it is tentatively submitted to the conference is somewhat divided there is every desire to co-operate in working out a system of Empire preferential purchasing which will be both practical and mutually advantageous. The discussions, it is understood, have been confined so far

It was impossible to save the fliers. It is presumed they were killed instantly.

OFFICER SCORED BY JUDGE HUYCKE FOR FIRING SHOT

His Honor Dismisses Appeal Brought Against Ira Peters, Galway Township.

SHOOTING NOT NECESSARY

Peters Had Been Charged With Operating a Still in Northern Township.

A deep scar on his neck left by a bullet fired by Provincial Constable Wm. V. Chisholm and the unforgettable memory of stumbling, wounded and bleeding, through the bush of Galway Township in the semi-darkness of early morning is all that remains to remind Ira Peters that he was shot last November when waylaid by police officers.

The case surrounding the shooting only now has been disposed of by the courts. Peters finds himself acquitted of the charge of operating a still by the decision of His Honor Judge Huycke returned this week. The appeal entered by the prosecution against the decision of Police Magistrate O. A. Langley, who found Peters not guilty, was dismissed.

Censure Is Passed.

Sever censure of Constable Chisholm is expressed by Judge Huycke in commenting on the shooting. "This shooting was reckless, unwise and unnecessary, and most reprehensible. Peters had a very narrow escape from death as a result," he states.

The full decision is as follows:

"This is an appeal from a decision of Mr. O. A. Langley, Police Magistrate, at Peterborough. In his judgment the learned Police Magistrate dismissed the charge laid under the Excise Act against Ira Peters. An appeal from this decision has been taken and brought before me for hearing. This matter, though nominally an appeal, is really a hearing de novo, and I am not at all advised or concerned as to what evidence was given before the Magistrate.

"On evidence adduced before me there is a suspicion of guilt, and a very grave suspicion, but considering and re-considering the evidence I fail to find that it is more than a suspicion. Wholly apart from the evidence for the defence, much of that given on behalf of the prosecution was indefinite and inconclusive, and in the case of at least one witness too vindictive to be convincing.

"Without further going into particulars the appeal is dismissed. I desire to add that it was shown the defendant respondent, Ira Peters, was shot by a police officer. This shooting was reckless, unwise and unnecessary, and most reprehensible. Peters had a very narrow escape from death as a result. Appeal dismissed."

J. A. O'Brien conducted the defence and Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., the prosecution for the Excise Revenue Department. The case was featured throughout by much crossfire between the two lawyers.

U. S. TEXT BOOK BRINGS PROTEST

Australians Claim it is Insulting to Her Own and British Troops.

STATEMENTS BIASED.

MELBOURNE, Australia, October 24 (C.P.). — A United States textbook, Hayes & Moon's Modern History, adopted as a standard schoolbook in the State of Victoria, has become the centre of a controversy. The Australian Natives' Association, a national organization of Australian-born citizens, has protested against the book, describing it as biased, untrue, and insulting. State Minister of Education Lemmon is threatened with opposition at the next elections if he does not withdraw the book. In particular, the Australian Natives' Association say the following two statements are a falsification of the truth and an insult to British and Australian troops. "The British collected a motley army, composed chiefly of Colonial troops, and landed it on the tip of Gallipoli Peninsula, close to the Dardanelles." "The United States was the only great Power that fought in the war without demanding or even desiring territorial gains for herself. She should be credited with a loftiness of purpose and unselfishness that could hardly be matched in all history.

CAPONE'S RIVAL GOES TO DEATH IN HAIL OF LEAD

Chicago Gangland Guns Silent For Some Time Remove Joe Aiello.

LISTED PUBLIC ENEMY.

CHICAGO, Ill., October 24 (C.P.). —Gangster guns, silent in Chicago for some time, opened up again last night and removed Joe Aiello, one of the few remaining rivals of Alfonse Capone from the picture of Chicago's crime.

Aiello, reputed alcohol king, partner of George (Bugs) Moran and with Moran listed by the Chicago Crime Commission as a "public enemy," was shot and killed by a gang of men, number unknown, as he left the apartment of Patsy Presto, an importer, in North Kolmar Avenue.

Carefully Laid Plot.

Seventeen or more bullets were fired into the gang leader from a machine and other guns secreted in three different positions, as Aiello walked into what the police said was one of the most elaborate assassination plots in gangland history.

As he stepped out of the Presto apartment, presumably to enter a cab that was waiting to take him and Presto to his home, machine gun fire opened from a third floor window of an apartment across the street. Aiello turned and fled back into the vestibule, and attempted to arouse someone in the apartment. Finding his way blocked by locked doors, he fled into the apartment court yard, only to meet the fire of Machine guns coming from a window of a building to the north. Fleeing to the rear of the court in an attempt to escape over a back fence, he ran into a fusillade of shots coming from the basement of the building housing the Presto apartment.

A police sergeant and James Duane, a cab driver, who had responded to a previous call from Mrs. Presto for a cab to take Aiello and her husband to Aiello's home, took the wounded man to a hospital, but he died before his arrival.

Assassins Flee in Cars.

Shortly after the slaying two men were reported seen running from the front of the west end building, one of them carrying a machine gun. They fled in a sedan. A few seconds later another machine, bearing two men, was reported to have followed the sedan. Later an automobile, with its license plates removed and its engine numbers obliterated, was found burning in another section of the city.

The police said they learned that the apartment from which the firing first began was rented by a young man ten days go, indicating that Aiello's death had been plotted long in advance of last night's shooting.

Aiello was 39 years of age, which is considered old for a man engaged in gangland activities. He was the second of the "public enemies" to meet death since the Crime Commission issued its list of undesirables last April. The other was Jack Zuta who was slain last August in a resort in Wisconsin.

WM. R. McINTYRE GIVEN TWO YEARS IN PENITENTIARY

Convicted of Burglary by Night by Magistrate O. A. Langley.

DOPE IS BLAMED

McIntyre Spent Part of His Boyhood Days in City of Peterborough.

Convicted of burglary by night, William R. McIntyre, 30, was sentenced yesterday by Magistrate Langley to two years in Portsmouth Penitentiary. In the early hours of September 29, McIntyre was apprehended by Constable Leonard Matthews as he was swinging himself through a window at Brewer's garage. McIntyre carried a heavy kit of burglar's tools which included explosives.

Dope was said to have caused McIntyre's downfall. A hypodermic needle and several grains of heroin were found on McIntyre when arrested, which was taken as proof that the man was a dope fiend.

Boyhood Days in Peterborough.

Part of McIntyre's boyhood was passed in Peterborough. G. N. Graham, of the Empress Hotel, said that he had known him as a boy. His father, Hector McIntyre, was the proprietor of the Oriental Hotel previous to the time that Mr. Graham purchased that hotel. "He came of good parents and had every opportunity to live a clean wholesome life. He was a good boy and I can not understand what has caused him to do this thing," said Mr. Graham.

Mrs. Annie McIntyre, mother of the prisoner, said that he was her only support. She had not seen much of him in recent years as he had been in Toronto and other cities.

Defence counsel, Ivan Moore, of Lindsay, suggested that dope had broken down the man's moral fabric and the magistrate concurred in that opinion.

The only other conviction found against McIntyre was a two-year jail term given him in Seattle, Washington, in 1926.

TWO WOMEN DIE AS AUTO CRASHES AT SMITHS FALLS

Ottawa Car Leaves Highway at Curve, Smashing Into Pole.

WOMAN AND SON INJURED.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Oct. 24. — When car in which they were travelling to Kingston for the purpose of visiting a patient in the hospital there, left the road and crashed into a pole on the outskirts of Smith's Falls at 10 o'clock this morning, Mrs. P. Peak of Ottawa was instantly killed and Mrs. W. Calderhead, also of Ottawa received fatal injuries. Mrs. R. G. Richardson and her son Maynard were badly hurt and are being treated at the hospital. Mrs. Richardson was driving. The accident occured at a sharp curve.

Crashed Into Pole

Highway construction men working in the vicinity reported that when the car, a sedan model passed them it was travelling at a moderate rate of speed but after it had gone about 200 or 300 yards, it left the road, crashed into a telephone pole, which was broken, and all four occupants were thrown out. It is thought possible that a blowout caused the accident. Mrs. Peak lived for only a few minutes after the accident, dying on the roadside, while Mrs. Calderhead passed away not long after being admitted to the hospital. Mrs. Richardson and her son were moved to the hospital, seriously injured.

Dr. C. L. B. Stammers, Coronor, Smith's Falls, has ordered an inquest to be opened.

ESCAPED PRIEST IN KIAN LOOTING TELLS OF SCENES

KILLED 1,000 IN 10 DAYS.

Horders of Communists Overran City, Taking Complete Control—Priests Beaten.

SHANGHAI, China, Oct. 24.—(AP) —A first hand account of the massacre of Kian and the kidnapping and tortue of Catholic missionaries there was related here today by the Rev. Father de Jenis, French priest, who estimated the number slain at 2,000.

The Rev. Father de Jenlis and the Italian Bishop Magnani of the Lazarist mission at Kian, were among the sixteen missionaries kidnapped when Communists overran the central Kiangsi Province city October 5. The bishop and the French priest were released and sent to Kaukiang to carry the demand of the Reds for ransom money amounting to $10,000,000 Mexican ($3,500,000) Canadian money.

Slaughter Exaggerated

Father de Jenlis said Chinese reports that 8,000 persons had been slaughtered were 'gross exaggerations' and that any account of still greater numbers having been slain were "base lies and imaginary".

As the result of beatings at the hands of Reds who used strips of iron to inflict torture, Bishop Magnani was unable to relate his experiences. Father de Jenlis, a middle-aged man in perfect health, easily withstood the experience, however, and related how the Reds overran the city.

Communists numbering 20,000 entered Kian the morning of October 5, Father De Jenlis said, capturing the city and taking control of everything.

During the ensuing ten days, the priests asserted, the Communists killed about 1,000 persons. He be-

$175,000,000 Spent Since Inauguration Of Control System

Drop of Five and One-half Per Cent. Over Previous Year's Sales Will Be Found in Annual Report of the Ontario Government Control Board.

520,000 PERMITS BRINGING IN A REVENUE OF OVER $1,000,000 AMONGST RECEIPTS

About One-quarter of the Permits Issued During the Past Year Went to Tourists or Non-residents—Year's Profits Estimated at $30,000,000.

(Special to The Examiner)

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 24.—By the end of this month which finishes the fiscal year, Ontario and her guests will have spent about $175,000,000 for liquor since the inauguration of Premier G. H. Ferguson's government sale system.

For the fiscal year which ends October 31, it is estimated that the total receipts from the sale of beer, wine and spirits, plus license fees and permits, will total at least $54,000,000. An interim report put out some time ago by Attorney General W. H. Price revealed a drop in Control Board receipts as compared to the previous year but the drop was only about 5½ per cent.

But that drop is small compared to some others that have marked the recent period of financial stress and depression. So the liquor business has held up fairly well for the past year. The permits are said to be higher in total than ever before—probably about 520,000 the figures have not been issued yet. That means more than $1,000,000 right there for the government. This item is not included in the official statements of Liquor Control Board revenues It goes into the books of the provincial treasurer.

$50 Per Capita

The $175,000,000 total means that this province has spent more than $50. per capital on liquor since the control system came in. Now the $175,000,000 total is arrived at may be seen from these figures which do not include permit fees.

1927-28	48,000,501
1928-29	55,000,000
1929-30	54,000,000
Total	$175,000,819

$30,000,000 in Profits

In that period of time Ontario has reaped profits of almost $30,000,000 out of its handing of alcoholic beverages. Leaving the permit fees out of the calculation the profits have been as follows:

1927 (5 months)	$2,532,595
1927-28	7,828,088
1928-29	9,661,448
1929-30	9,000,000
Total	$29,022,131

With the permit fees included the profits would be well over $30,000,000 the growth in the number of permits issued is a fairly close indication of the increasing number of drinkers in Ontario. Here are the figures:

1927	$274,236
1927-28	464,974
1928-29	533,175
1929-30	526,000

About one fourth of the permits are tourist or non resident ones. That means that about one person in every seven among Ontario residents is a permit holder.

There are now 122 stores under control of the board in Ontario, 102 warehouses, 52 wineries, and the staff of employees is considerably over 1,200.

QUEEN'S HONORS PRINCIPAL-ELECT DR. WILLIAM FYFE

New Principal is Given Degree and Installed in Office.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY

Archbishop O'Brien Receives Honorary Degree of Doctor of Laws.

(Special to The Examiner)

KINGSTON, Oct. 24.—Chancellor James A. Richardson, LL.D., of Winnipeg, headed a brilliant procession that marched into Queen's University this afternoon, at 2.15 o'clock. In line were the chief officers of the University, ministers of state, trustees and other officials of the University, and a long line of University men, gathered together to honor the new Principal, who is to be installed into his high office.

As the academic procession moved to the platform the audience stood and remained standing until after the singing of the hymn "O God Our Help In Ages Past", Rev. Leslie E. Pigeon, D.D., Montreal, Chaplain of the day, read a passage of Scripture and offered Prayer. Immediately the conferring of the Degree of Doctor of Laws upon the Principal elect, Dr. William Hamilton Fyfe, took place Dr. J. C. Connell making the presentation to the Chancellor. Then came the installation of Dr. Fyfe as Principal and Vice Chancellor. J. M. MacDonnell, M.A., Toronto, presented the Principal elect to the Chancellor for installation. Dr. W. E. MacNeill, registrar, read a sheaf of congratulations to the University and its new Principal and this was followed by the inaugural address of the Principal.

He said, "The function of a University is a function of human life—it is to aid human beings in the growth of character, in the healthy development of all their faculties, physical, mental, moral, aesthetic and spiritual or, since it is only in logic and not in life that these faculties are separate, we may say that

220 Per Cent. Increase Seen In Liquor Cases

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 24.—(C.P.)— So-called "good liquor" killed nearly three times as many people in Canada during 1928 as were killed by alcoholism in 1921 when "moonshine" was the vogue, declared Rev. R. A. Whattam, of Toronto, addressing a rally of temperance workers here last night. He said that of the total number of people who died in 1921, approximately 12 per cent. succumbed to alcoholism. In 1928 the proportion had increased to .32 per cent., he stated.

Arguing against a contention that removal of the old Ontario Temperance Act had increased respect for law and order, Rev. Whattam declared that in recent years there had been an increase of 220 per cent. in the number of convictions for violation of the Liquor Control Act now in force.

IMMIGRANT BOY SAFE IN HASTINGS

WORKING FOR HIS BOARD.

Fears for the safety of Edward Kettleborough, 17-year-old British immigrant, who disappeared from John Clydsdale's farm in Dummer Township on October 14, were removed late yesterday when information reached Provincial Sergeant Harry Thompson that the boy was in the care of Samuel Watson, Cordova Road, Hastings County.

The boy left Clyadale's farm under mysterious circumstances, and it was feared that harm might have befallen him. He left without taking his good clothes or collecting $20 in back wages.

Giving the reason for his sudden departure from Dummer, he said that he was being mistreated and could not stand it any longer. He hiked all the way to Cordova in search of another place, he said, being helped along by chance lifts.

Mr. Watson, with whom the boy took shelter, said that he was working on the farm for his keep, while in the hope of securing a better position.

MEDD RETAINS SILVER TROPHY AT BIG MATCH

Annual Plowing Tournament of Peterborough County is Big Success.

QUINN BEATS MORRISON.

Harold Collins, Otonabee, is Proclaimed Best Plowman in the County.

On the broad acres of Roger Maloney's farm in Douro township, two miles east of Nassau, thirty-four plowmen contested yesterday for the honors and prizes of the Peterborough County Plowmen's Association.

Every phase of this seventeenth annual plowing match was highly satisfactory. In the number of contestants, the interest of a large crowd of spectators and in the agreeable weather throughout the day, it was one of the most successful competitions in the association's history. And the general excellency of the work was especially commended by the judge, W. J. Rennie of Agincourt, who turned in his last decisions in the deep twilight past 5.30 o'clock.

The best plowmen in the county, according to the results in class 3 in sod, which was restricted to Petereborough men, is Harold Collins of Otonabee, whose team was also singled out as the best in the match. Among the younger men, designated as boys under 21, Olan Leahy of Douro won first prize in sod and with it the silver trophy given by the Peterborough branch of the Royal Bank.

Apparently the youngest boy in the match was Jim Joe Crough of Ennismore, a lad of eleven years, and son of James Crough, who was placed second in Class 1 in sod with high cut plows. The boy caught the attention of most of the spectators who strolled over to the far side of the south field.

Retains Silver Cup.

John Medd of Port Perry won the Bank of Commerce trophy for the second time by taking first place in Class four with jointer plows in sod. His work was exceptionally even and well turned up, his rows were straight and fine and his finish

Projects Submitted By 50 Municipalities Await Ottawa's Final Sanction.

$1,000,000 To North Ontario.

Schemes Using at Least 60 Per Cent Labor Are Being Favored.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 24. (CP)—Following a meeting of Cabinet Council Hon. George S. Henry, Acting Prime Minister of Ontario, announced projects for unemployment relief from 50 municipalities, involving estimated expenditure of $7,500,000 were being submitted to the Dominion Government for final approval.

Mr. Henry intimated he expected the authorities at Ottawa would deal with the projects in the immediate future and that the municipalities and the remaining half shared equally by the Dominion and Provincial Governments.

"It has been the endeavor of the Government" stated Mr. Henry, "to single out projects that would use at least 60 percent. of labor in preference to projects where a large amount of material would be used.

$1,000,000 Spent in North

"Out of the portion of money allocated to Ontario from the total funds available at Ottawa, the sum of $1,000,000 has been allowed to Northern Ontario. This will be augmented by a similar amount from the Provincial Treasury, making a total of $2,000,000 to be spent in the north for various projects the Government hasu nder way."

Ontario cities under the distribution have been allotted the following amounts: Toronto, about $2,000,000; Hamilton, $1,900,000; Ottawa, $400,000; London, $470,000; Kingston, $96,000; Oshawa, $219,000; Fort William, $170,000; Sarnia, $100,000; Stratford, $82,000.

May Ban Wreaths For Unknown Dead

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 24. (CP) The British Foreign Office, wishing to discourage the perpetuation of memories of wartime antagonisms, has proposed to all European Governments that henceforth memorial wreaths should not be laid on cenotaphs or tombs of unknown soldiers during official visits.

The Labor Government has issued no formal announcement of the step, but it is confiremed by the department officials. The government feels that in normal international intercourse the less emphasis on war the better.

URGE REVISION OF COASTAL LAW

Opening of Welland Ship Canal and Preston Elevators Changes Situation.

COMBAT U. E. EVASION.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 24. — The changed conditions along the Great Lakes route as a result of the opening of the Welland ship canal and the elevators at Prescott and Kingston will doubtless cause the Government to consider a review of the coastal laws this winter, it is believed here. The point raised by T. R. Enderby in Windsor, Ont., that United States ships were able to evade the Canadian coastal laws by loading grain at Port Arthur, unloading at Buffalo, loading again and proceeding to Montreal, is one which no doubt would be considered.

A prominent departmental official, who has given the question a great deal of study was an evasion While he agreed it would be difficult to frame a law that would stop it, because grain passing through the elevators at Buffalo rather loses its identity and United States boats could not be prevented from carrying United States grain from Buffalo to Montreal. Still he thought it would be possible to word a clause in the act to meet the situation.

RED INDUSTRIAL FIVE YEAR PLAN PROVING SUCCESS

Gov't Pleased Despite Second Year Closing 5 Per Cent Under Schedule.

LIGHT INDUSTRIES DOWN.

Lack of Raw Materials Blamed For Drop—Cotton, Sugar Beet Crops High.

MOSCOW, Russia, Oct. 24 (A.P.)—Izvestia, organ of the Central Executive Committee of the Communist Party, admitted yesterday that the Soviet five year industrial plan finished its second year October 1 five per cent. increase in industries to an editorial the paper claims a great victory all along the line for Communist Government.

The biggest deficiency was shown in the light industries which showed only an eleven per cent increase against the 23 per cent planned. The newspaper calls attention to a 38.1 per cent increase in inudstries to which the government devoted greatest attention this being only 2.6 per cent under the increase expected.

Collective Farming Success

The paper is jubilant especially at what it terms the great success of collective farming, and it claims during the year a total of 128,700,000 hectares were cultivated, of which 38,000,000 were cultivated in collectivist fashion. The figures were claimed to exceed the five year plan by 23,000,000 hectares.

Izvestia also calls attention to 12,000 tractors and 40,000,000 roubles (about $240,000,000) worth of machinery distributed during the year. Failure of the light industries to achieve the schedule figures is laid to lack of raw materials, a lack which it is expected to overcome during the third year of the plan.

Attention is called to an increase of 60 per cent in the 1930 cotton crop and of 150 per cent in the sugar beet crop.

"The national income for 1930 is 33,000,000,000 roubles," (about $19,800,000,000) the paper said, "of which two thirds are in the hands of socialized sectors. Conditions necessary for a wide Socialistic advance on all fronts are fully ripe. The Bolshevik five year plan is achieving great victories. It could and must be carried out in four years."

REV. LONEY HEADS BAPTIST UNION

Election of Hamilton Pastor Unanimous After Three Others Withdraw.

DR. SHIELDS EXPLAINS.

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 24. (CP)—Rev. Clifford J. Loney, pastor of Stanley Avenue Church, Hamilton, was unanimously chosen President of the Union of Regular Baptist churches on Ontario and Quebec at the afternoon session of the third annual convention yesterday. Two vice-presidents named were W. C. Boadway, of Toronto, and Rev. T. L. Mitchell, pastor of Wortley Road Church, London.

The election of Mr. Loney was made unanimous after three others put forward, including Rev. T. T. Shields, D.D., Pastor of Jarvis Street Church, Toronto, had withdrawn. In asking that his name be wiped off the slate, Dr. Shields referred to charges that he said had been made in regard to his connection with the regular Baptist Church.

"There have been charges of popery" Dr. Shields declared adding that he wanted the whole world to know that there was a "whole forest of trees from which presidential timber could be cut." He wanted it made clear that the union could and had been run without him.

Dr. Shields had been President of the Union for three successive years, while his successor, Mr. Loney, was one of last year's vice presidents.

LAKEHEAD TOWN READY FOR REDS

Port Arthur Citizens Hold Drill in Armory Preparing For Worst.

WILL USE SIREN.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Oct. 24. — The auxiliary police force recruited for the purpose of combating threats which have been made lately from Communist sources that stores would be looted unless several drastic demands were granted by the city council began training at the armory last night.

The organization is being arranged in the form of small platoons so chosen that persons residing or working in any particular district may assemble quickly. The fire siren, usually employed to warn citizens when the fire equipment is out on the streets, will be used as a riot call.

The auxiliary police force is to be augmented by an intelligence department, which is expected to keep headquarters so well informed of any plans the Communists may have that it will be impossible for any material group to assemble before the auxiliary police are out in full force.

DOORS BATTERED WINDOWS BROKEN WHEN UNIVERSITY STUDENTS CLASH

Victoria College Men and S. P. S. Students Clash in Toronto.

SERENADE CO-EDS.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 24 (C.P.).—Seeking revenge for an unceremonious shower bath administered them by students of Burwash Hall, residence of Victoria College undergraduates, when they were caught in the act of serenading co-eds at the women's residence, students of the School of Practical Science organized a midnight raid on Burwash Hall last night that resulted in a free-for-all battle and heavy casualties before the arrival of police reserves halted the fun.

University of Toronto grounds this morning presented the appearance of the "morning after" an important college football game. Corridors and rooms of south house residence were still damp from the streams of water which flowed through them. Broken glass littered the ground outside, while the grass was dyed with red paint and bloodstains.

The clash was not altogether unexpected, as the feud between the two sets of students has been smouldering threateningly ever since the shower bath episode. As a result, the Victoria College students were more or less prepared for the attack by more than 200 S.P.S. men. The latter directed their efforts toward the south and middle houses. Using a large limb of a tree, they battered in the door of the middle house, but met a warm reception. Coal scuttles full of water and fire extinguishers were used to repel the advance of the S.P.S., but many of the latter got inside and closed with their adversaries.

Others of the invading party met with a similar reception at Middle House, and the battle waged excit-

Some White Star potatoes grown near Warsaw are eight inches long and some weigh two pounds each. Four different kinds of potatoes were grown in this patch and the White Stars proved the best. Some years ago Golden Seals were grown on the same plot, many of them weighing over two pounds each, but there were not as many in the hill.

SOCIAL AND DRAMATIC SOCIETY HOLDS ANNUAL SMOKER IN DELORO

Exhibition Boxing and Fine Program Given Before and After Business Session.

VERY SUCCESSFUL YEAR.

MARMORA, Oct. 24. (Examiner Correspondence). — Deloro's oldest organization, the Social and Dramatic Society held its annual meeting on Thursday evening and as in former years, the event took the form of a smoker with an excellent program preceding and succeeding the business part of the meeting.

Exhibition Boxing

C. H. Buskard, retiring president, took the chair, the attendance being slightly over the hundred mark. Two reels of comedy having been shown some exhibition bouts of boxing were staged. First came two 2 minute rounds between Simen Smith and John O'Neill in the 147 pound class. Then followed three 2 minute rounds between Percy Gray and Ray Loveless in the 100 pound class. These boys who have been trained by Jules Ethier and W. Kerr, Junior showed up well and received much applause from the audience.

F. Leal was referee and R. A. Elliott acted as timekeeper.

The business of the evening next received attention. C. H. Buskard dealt briefly with the three principal activities of th year, the library pictures and dancing. These he said had been well patronized. He thanked the executive for their good support of all the Society's ventures.

Balance of $132.30

J. H. English, secretary treasurer presented the financial statement which showed a balance of $132.30. He also gave a comphehensive statement of the various expenditures and mentioned that 48 pictures had been shown in the hall during the past year.

S. B. Wright, manager of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company and a past president of the Society in moving the adoption of the report also moved a vote of thanks to the officers. He also commended those who had been carrying out the boxing practices among the boys and said there was every reason to believe that the Society would still continue to function for the welfare of the community as in the past. Incidentally Mr. Wright is the member of longest standing and as at all times, his words were deeply appreciated by those present.

W. R. Reynolds, librarian, in giving his report, made the following references: "Two lots of books were added since the last annual meeting—one lot bought by a grant from the Society last November and another from funds raised by a drawing in August. Sixty three books in all were added. There are now 101 on the list of borrowers. The total number of books on the shelves and in circulation is 796. Ten worn out books were destroyed; 1519 books were taken out during the year. The patronoge the library is receiving is encouraging.

F. Leal who was master of ceremonies for the past year, also gave a happy though brief speech.

F. Paquet President

Election of officers came next. Following custom, F. Paquet, vice president for the year expired, was elected president and took the chair for the remainder of the evening.

Officers for 1930-1931, are as follows:—

President—F. Paquet.
Vice President—W. R. Reynolds.
Secretary Treasurer—J. H. English.
Auditor—S. R. Quinn.
M. C.—W. Kerr, Jr.
Librarian—W. R. Reynolds,
Committee—Messrs S. B. Wright; F. A. Bapty, R. A. Elliott, A. V. Yates, H. A. McNally, S. B. Cheeseman, C. H. Buskard (past presidents) J. Ethier, W. Mumby H. O. Loveless, C. T. Nicholson, H. R. Haacke, W. L. Rigg, S. J. Sanderson, W. Simmons, H. Boudreau, L. K. Crawford, R. D. Murray and F. Leal.

F. A. Bapty, secretary treasurer of the Company, was then called upon to say a few words. He congratulated all who had anything to do with the success of the Society's enterperises. He referred to the good type of pictures now being shown at Deloro. He also paid fitting tribute to the services of the Library. "The library was never in better condition" he remarked. Much of the success of the library was due to Mr. Reynold's enthusiasm. Good reading, as all know, was one of the best things any community could have. He believed that the new officers would carry on as those had in the past. A motion that a $25 grant be given the Library was then carried.

Two more reels of film, depicting scenes in the Rockies and British Columbia aroused the interest of the gathering for the next twenty minutes after which Harold Auger of Marmora was announced to furnish a novelty feature. With mouth organ and guitar he delighted the audience, choosing popular airs. He also sang for his last number, "When It's Springtime in the Rockies."

With A. N. Yates at the piano a trio composed of T. B. Cheeseman, C. T. Nicholson and T. Leal, led the boys in the singing of popular songs. Two more reels loaned by the Department of the Interior were followed with interest after which the meeting broke up with the singing of the national anthem.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Man., October 24 (C.P.). — Losses of nearly two cents were recorded by the wheat market in mid-session yesterday, but rallying power recovered lost ground almost entirely and brought the close to within ⅝c to ¾c of Wednesday's finish. Trade volume was just moderate and local operations comprised the greater part of the business.

October wheat lost ⅝c and November ¾c, both closing at 73⅞. December and May were down ¾c, finishing respectively at 74¾ to ⅞ cents and 80¾ cents. Firmness on the stock markets and strength at Chicago were rallying factors after early discouragement at reports of little export business.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, October 24. — Receipts at the Union Stock Yards yesterday were: 81 cattle, 12 calves, 21 hogs, 264 sheep and lambs.

Medium to good quality steers, the fresh supply, sold only at steady prices ranging from 6½ to 7c a pound, but there was very little movement of common killers, with a holdover of some 400 head from Wednesday. A few calves offered yesterday sold at the week's advance of 50c a cwt. on good veal with tops moving at 12c a pound.

Lambs are selling mostly on a basis of 8¼c a pound for good ewes and wethers with a few at 8.35c a pound, or 15c lower than Wednesday's top. Sheep are firm at 4 to 5 cents a pound for good butcher ewes, culls downuward to 2 cents a pound. Hog prices are steady at the week's advance of 25c cwt. Bacon is selling at 10¼c f.o.b. and 11¼ to 11½c a pound w.o.c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Sudden upturns in all grain prices late yesterday, reaching a maximum of 2¼c a bushel from the day's bottom level, aroused much interest among traders. The advance was largely ascribed to reports current that changes in prospect would permit manufacture of 4½ per cent. beer, and would afford an additional outlet for millions of bushels of grain. No satisfactory confirmation of the reports was obtainable, however, and the upturns in grain quotations mostly failed to hold.

Corn and Oats Decline

Wheat closed irregular, at ¼c net decline to ½c advance; corn closed ⅝c to ¾c off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 15c.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Oct. 24.—Egg prices went up yesterday to much higher levels, and butter prices went down to a new low on the local market. Dealers found a ready sale for new laid eggs, while the market for butter was very draggy, with only small sales being made.

County shippers benefited from these new prices, which were 2c to 3c higher than the day before for ungraded eggs, delivered, cases returned. Though on Wednesday one retailer was offering 5c better for extras and firsts, the increase was not general. Yesterday most of the larger buyers were quoting higher prices, but not as high as the retailer's offer. Country shippers were offered 42c to 43c for extras, 27c to 38c for firsts, and 25c for seconds. Brokers were receiving 45c for extras, 40c for firsts, and 27c to 28c for seconds graded, in free cases. Prices to retailers were not increased, but will probably be 2c higher at the first of the week.

Storage Eggs

There was a good retail demand for storage eggs, which was taken care of by wholesalers at prices ranging from 37c to 38c for extras, and 35c to 36c for firsts. But storage egg trade was slow with brokers, who were offering supplies at 35c to 36c for extras, and 33c to 34c for firsts. Wholesalers have been taking a few at these latter prices, but will not become interested to any great extent until they have disposed of most of their own large holdings.

Butter

There was a little better demand for butter yesterday, but this was probably due to the lower prices asked by brokers. Buyers evidently decided that they could afford to add to their holdings at the new price scale, which was 30c to 31c for No. 1, and 29c to 29½c for No. 2, with most of the business being done at 30c to 30½c for No. 1, and 29c to 29½c for No. 2.

Prices to retailers also dropped slightly at 33½c to 34c for No. 1 prints, and 32½c to 33c for No. 2. This was the first drop in prices to retailers in a few weeks.

Cheese

The cheese market was stronger, with local dealers asking 16c to 16¼c for new large, 16¼c to 16½c for twins, and 16½c to 16¾c for triplets. Quotations to retailers were unchanged at 17c for new large.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, October 24. — Prices were steady on the dairy and produce markets here yesterday. Egg prices were unchanged, with fresh supplies scarce, it being impossible to get as much as a carlot, while sales to retailers showed an increasing percentage of storage eggs. Less than carlot prices for fresh extras were 48c to 50c; fresh firsts, 42c to 42c; and fresh seconds, 28c a dozen. Receipts were 1,832 cases.

The butter market was steady with carlot prices for Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery butter quoted at 29¾c to 30c a pound. To retailers solids were 32c to 33c, and prints 33c to 34c. Receipts were 840 boxes.

On the cheese market Ontario cheese was quoted at 15¼c to 15¼c a pound, and Quebec cheese at 14¼c to 14½c, with receipts totalling 2,906 boxes.

The potato market was unchanged.

MEDICAL TREATMENT BRINGS NO RELIEF

"My daughter's face and neck were covered with a mass of sores, which our doctor diagnosed as eczema. He prescribed treatment which we tried for two months without relief. The poor child's face had to be swathed in bandages and she was confined to the house. I was about to call in a skin specialist, when I heard how Zam-Buk had healed many sufferers from this dread disease, so I purchased a box of ointment and tablet of soap. After a few days treatment there was a great improvement; day by day the sores disappeared and within a month my daughter's face was entirely cleared of any sign of the terrible disease, without a single scar. I can't say too much of the wonderful healing power of Zam-Buk."—Mrs. H. A., Toronto, Ont.

OBITUARY

EDWARD JAMES TANNER.

MADOC, October 24 (Examiner Correspondence). — The death of Edward James Tanner occurred in the Belleville General Hospital on Thursday, October 2, removing one of the outstanding citizens of Hastings County.

The late Mr. Tanner, who was the youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Tanner, pioneers of Rawdon Township, was born 67 years ago. With his brother Samuel, and sister Jane, who predeceased him four years ago, he conducted a successful hostelry at Ivanhoe for the past 20 years, during which time they carried on a livery business in Madoc, also a stage between Madoc and Belleville. Owing to ill-health he spent several winters at Hot Springs, Arkansas, and was arranging his transportation for a trip abroad when he was stricken in Belleville.

His genial smile and Irish wit aplenty held him close to the hearts of the travelling public, who mourn the loss of a true and accommodating friend.

The funeral services, conducted by Rev. N. R. Stout, of Bancroft, were held in St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Rawdon, of which the deceased was a member. The remains were laid in the adjoining cemetery.

China has more than doubled her purchases of flue-cured American tobacco this year in comparison with 1929, but at lowered prices.

THOSE DANGEROUS REDS.

The situation in Port Arthur where Communistic agitators have been active in the past few days is serious enough to give the authorities of that city grave concern.

When a combination of irresponsible Reds and an unusual unemployment problem crops up there are all the elements for a dangerous explosion, and Attorney-General Price is justified in keeping in close touch with the situation and in assisting the municipal authorities in every way possible.

The Port Arthur difficulty shows the necessity of a strong stand at all times against the Communistic element that has drifted into Canada in recent years.

Those Reds are not parlor Socialists, but dangerous, reckless men who by every means in their power seek to overthrow established institutions and make all the mischief they can.

Toronto's official attitude toward Communists has been criticized, but it is dangerous to give such gentry a foothold, and the immunity of the Queen City from Red troubles at this particular time may be accounted for by the uncompromising stand taken by General Draper earlier in the year.

A HUNTING CREED.

With the hunting season close at hand, the "creed" for hunters just issued by the Game Commissioner of Alberta is of considerable interest.

His advice is not all new by any means but it is all good, and The Examiner is glad to pass his suggestions on to local hunters, knowing that they will apply with equal force in this Province.

After reminding hunters of their obligations toward the property of farmers and settlers and giving the usual warning about camp-fires, the Alberta Commissioner continues with the following commandments: :

Never in sport endanger human life.
Never kill wantonly, needlessly or brutally.
Obey the laws, work for better laws and uphold the law-enforcing authorities.
Never be a game hog.
Discourage in every way the taking of game for commercial purposes.
Study and record the natural history of wild life in the interests of science.
Love nature and its denizens.
Be a gentleman.

There is a code that every hunting party should paste in a prominent place in its shooting lodge.

"MOST REPREHENSIBLE."

In referring in the course of a judgment delivered by him the other day to the shooting by a provincial constable of a Galway Township man suspected of being implicated in the operation of a still, His Honor Judge Huycke did not mince his words.

"This shooting was reckless, unwise, unnecessary and most reprehensible," declared Judge Huycke, adding that the victim had a very narrow escape from death as a result.

It is to be hoped that His Honor's words will not go unmarked and unnoticed by police officers throughout the Province, for his condemnation of this hasty action of a provincial constable should go far to offset the idea that is apparently gaining ground that an officer is justified in using firearms, even in cases where the man shot at is merely a suspect attempting to escape.

There are times when it is essential that an officer should shoot and shoot to kill, but surely by no stretch of the imagination can it be thought that representatives of the law have the right to chance killing a man who may be completely innocent of any crime and guilty of nothing except of running away.

There have been several cases in recent years when public opinion has condemned hasty and unwise shooting of this kind, and it is well that Judge Huycke has seen fit to express judicial disapproval in this particular instance.

PETERBOROUGH'S RELIEF POLICY.

Peterborough's relief work program, involving the construction of $56,000 worth of storm drains, has been approved by the Ontario Government, and it is hoped that actual work will begin next week.

One-half of the expenditure involved will be paid by the Dominion and Provincial Governments; the remaining $28,000 will have to be paid by the city, and in that connection the endorsation of the ratepayers will have to be obtained.

The City Council has taken the wise course in view of the unemployment situation of beginning its construction work as soon as possible, feeling confident that when the question of issuing the necessary debentures to finance the municipality's end of the work comes before the taxpayers on New Year's Day the Council's policy will be approved.

If, however, the verdict of the people is unfavorable the work will be suspended, and the expenditure encurred up to that time will have to be met out of next year's appropriations.

The Examiner, however, is sure that the ratepayers will unhesitatingly approve the relief program.

In the first place, with hundreds of men out of work, assistance will have to be provided by the City Council either in the form of charity or in the nature of employment.

Most people will agree that the second plan is the most satisfactory for all concerned—it is infinitely better to give workless men jobs than to give them alms.

The storm drains planned are necessary; they would all have to be constructed sooner or later in any case, and they will be a decided improvement to conditions in various sections of the city.

By building them now the burden of half the cost is assumed by the Federal and Provincial Governments, and therefore a much needed municipal improvement that will provide a great deal of work for the unemployment will be completed on a much cheaper basis than would otherwise be possible.

Under all these circumstances it would be a decidedly short-sighted action on the part of the ratepayers to turn down a proposition so manifestly advantageous.

LOOKING AFTER THE FAMILY.

When a man is sent to jail for a breach of the Liquor Control Act, who should look after his family? That question has been raised by the Town Council of Carleton Place, and the intention is to send letters to other municipalities seeking to raise a united protest against the burden of supporting the families in such cases becoming a bill for the municipalities to pay.

It is claimed that the Province gets the fines imposed for breaches of this act, while the municipalities have to pay money incurred in keeping dependents while the head of the house goes to serve his time.

There is not much chance of a change by the Government. Much the same condition has applied for a long time. When a man goes to serve time, most of the suffering comes on his family, and chances are the municipality is called on to help in only some of the more extreme cases. There are plenty of families where the hardship is endured in silence.

"There are cases where a man's family is the only anchor he has. The fear that his family might suffer want and hardship in the event he got into trouble and was locked up, has kept many a man straight, who otherwise might have fallen foul of the law. Should word go out that the Government proposed to support dependents of those placed in confinement for infractions of the Liquor Control Act, it would encourage infringements of the law. Men, knowing their families would be looked after while they were in jail, would be more liable to offend than were the circumstances otherwise."

Looking after families after a man has fallen into trouble is a desirable piece of work, but it is not a corrective force. It all points to the need for more effort to show men, young and old, the folly of lawlessness, and also the extreme wisdom of curtailing their desire for strong drink. Consistent and persistent work done in this way is liable to produce better results than trying to change conditions of dealing with the situation faced after the man has made his blunder.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

GERMAN FASCISM.

One thing at least must be said about Herr Adolf Hitler and his followers—they leave no doubt as to exactly where they stand. It is better, perhaps, to have these frank avowals, dramatic as they are, than an underhand, sinister propaganda, working in secret for subversive ends. The "blood and iron" policies of the Hitlerites make strange reading, after the appalling lessons of the Great War. The "mailed fist" which gave the knockout blow to German militarism can surely not be regarded as a reliable instrument for its resuscitation. So fantastic does the program appear that European commentators are looking abroad for an explanation. The most improbable story of all is that which tells of an understanding between the Russian Bolshevists and the German Fascists for the crushing of France and the domination of Europe. Adversity makes strange bed-fellows, but that these two diametrically opposed elements should make common cause, even for so great a prize, seems quite incredible. There is nothing hazy about the ambitions of the Fascists, however, and they would doubtless go to extreme lengths to accomplish them. In the meantime, it is satisfactory to find that the German Government, in the face of its aggressive political enemies, is apparently more than holding its own.

It is interesting to study the history of the "Nazis," as Hitler's National Socialist German Workers' party was called. The movement started in 1919, when a "German Workers' party" was founded in Munich, consisting of a "group of six people, with no fixed aims, no program, only the desire somehow to struggle out of the muddle of those days." Those six people have now, according to the London Times, become six and a half million. The year after the party was formed, it numbered about 2,000 and in the following year, 1921, well over five thousand. In 1923 an alliance was formed with General Ludendorff's party and the march on Berlin followed, which ended so disastrously soon after it started, with the wounding of Ludendorff and the imprisonment of Herr Hitler. Incongruous as the alliance between these two factions was, in many respects, the membership grew at a rapid pace, and in 1924 the "National Socialist Freedom party," as it was called, polled nearly 2,000,000 votes at the elections, securing 32 seats. However, at the end of the same year there was a serious decline both in membership and seats to less than half their former number in each case. In May, 1928, the position of the faction was at a still lower ebb, with a poll of 800,000 and twelve seats.

The Nazis' slogan is: "Germany, awake!" and there are encouraging signs that it is at least awakening to the possibilities for mischief which this truculent organization threatens. Among its "claims" are that the peace treaties should be canceled; that colonies should be restored; that "only compatriots can be citizens," and that "no Jew can be a compatriot;" unearned income in Germany must be abolished, trusts nationalized, war profits completely repaid, big undertakings share their profits with the workers and all big stores be communalized and leased at low rates to small traders; land is to be sequestrated without compensation for public purposes, the latter proposal, it being explained, being aimed especially at Jewish companies speculating in land.—Hamilton Spectator.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The worst of it is that when these provincial by-elections are over it will be time to begin thinking about the municipal contests.

Fortunately, the Port Arthur beavers who are not working are not causing so much trouble about it as are the Port Arthur Reds.

After all it does not matter so much who started the movement for bigger salaries for members of the Toronto Council. Most of them were quite willing to take advantage of the campaign.

The progress that is taking place in professional hockey is indicated by the fact that 49 players for the New York Americans and New Haven Eagles will train at Galt. Amateur leagues are being drained by the inroads of the professional organizations.

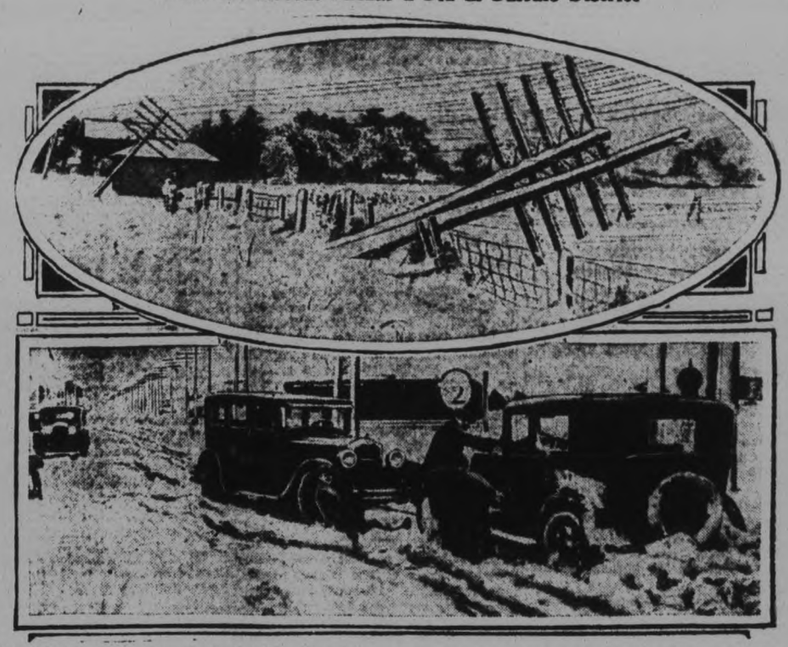
What the Recent Blizzard Did in Buffalo District



King Winter made a forced march last week-end and caught his unwary subjects napping. In a snow storm that swept parts of the country, including Ontario and New York state, the latter part of last week, telegraph lines went down and highway traffic piled up and motor cars abandoned before the onslaught of a couple of feet of snow. THE SILVER HAWK

By WILLIAM BYRON MOWERY

"I believe you can, at that! I'll leave my rifle with you, and we'll fix up some rattle-bang contraption on the door for nights."

"You're awfully kind. Then besides, I know something still better."

"What's that?"

"I can draw a magic ring around this cabin that no Indian or meti would ever, ever step across. Can you?"

"A magic ring?" Dorn saw she was challenging him to guess her riddle, and he thought hard a few moments; and finally the same idea came to him. He had guarded his trapping shack that way one winter when a band of nomad Smokies were loping the bush around him in the Firepans. "Yes, I can. La mort rouge. It's splendid. We'll do that, Aurore."

Together they put up four red rags on the four sides of the cabin, and Dorn no longer worried about Auror'es safety. That sign was a symbol of the red death which made clean sweep of Indian camps and metis settlements in the North. Always put up in a conspicuous place, the sign was a warning for the traveller not to approach. Any person of depraved intentions, who happened to glimpse Aurore, would scout the island out carefully to make sure no man was there; and would see the grim warning, and that would be all he would wait to see.

Shortly afterward Dorn decided to leave. He knew now that he would be welcome to stay a while longer—until evening if he wished; but he had done all to make Aurore comfortable, and had no excuse for staying the afternoon except to be with her. Though that was reason enough for him, it might cause her uneasiness. Thinking only in terms of her happiness, he had at last erased himself from the equation.

When he spoke of going, Aurore took him down to the island edge where a mossy boulder jutted out into the lake, and they sat down there to talk. Dorn held the painter of his canoe. In the cove at his left his plane lay waiting for him. With its two pontoons it looked like a silvery eagle rising from the water with a fish in either claw.

For several minutes Aurore gazed out across the water to the towering south-eastern range. Her chin was cupped in one hand; she sat very still and pensive. Dorn noted the languid droop of her dreamy eyelashes, as though she were looking back across the years of her life.

His gaze followed hers to the mountainside opposite. A torrent stair-stepped down the steep slope from the fiery-coloured mesa three hundred feet above her lake, and its overfalls were misty ribbons swaying from side to side in the fitful breezes. On the high meadow a band of goats were pasturing; purest white, they looked like lingering patches of last winter's snow.

"You lived here before," he spoke up, wanting to draw Aurore out of the past that was closed for him to the present moment that he shared. "But why did you so specially want to come back here?"

She was toying abstractedly with the laces of her small boots. "I wanted to be alone, Jim. I've got much to think about and get straight. And I was a girl here. In a way this is home to me."

"You went Outside to a different kind of life?" he asked, thinking of her rich clothes and the odour of society which she swept into his tent with her. "You had money; you must have had lots of friends and attention. But you didn't find happiness. And when you were in trouble you came home again. A person always turns home then. Did you live just here?"

"It's funny—I roamed the same territory. I went Outside, too, and here we are, both back. Our trails must have crossed in the old days. Where all did you go? Were you ever at White Horse, Glenora, Cassiar Bar——?"

"You bet I was!" It was the tomboy speaking. "I cut my hair off at Cassiar Bar and dressed up like a boy, and that's when I got a spanking. Do you remember Factor Fuzzy-Foot——"

"I gave him a wonderful thrashing once for cheating me on a tuck of furs."

For half an hour they sat talking of places and of people they knew in common, and recounting those queer stories and incredible anecdotes which had gathered like barnacles on this mining camp or that fur post.

From hints that Aurore dropped, Dorn understood that her father had been an engineer or field scientist, or engaged in some profession which would take him to various places throughout the Northwest. Aurore had been her father's tomboy, and loped the bush with him, to Chilcotin, Dawson, Telegraph Creek and Cassiar Bar, where she had got "a spanking" for cutting her hair off. In that incident Dorn could see that her father had been something of a Victorian, a little stern with his girl, but loving her so much that he took her with him everywhere and personally gave her an education, such as no other girl of Dorn's acquaintance possessed.

Then Aurore had gone Outside, probably for a formal schooling, and there this trouble had come upon her. It was all the more unfathomable—this trouble—considering what a wholesome and sensibly guided girlhood hers must have been, and what a comradely, sweet girl Aurore was now.

When Dorn rose and gave her his hand to rise, he asked, "Isn't there anything, besides bringing your outfit, I can do?"

Aurore said thoughtfully: "Jim, I will ask a couple more favours of you. Won't you bring me several newspapers, please? To-day's, to-morrow's, the next day's."

Nodding, he thought, "She's expecting her trouble to be in the papers!" He asked, "What's the other thing I can do?"

"You'll send a telegram for me in Edmonton?"

"Yes, certainly." He gave her pencil and note pad again; and when she had written, he put the message into his pocket.

"I think you'd better 'phone it from some station and have it sent collect, Jim, to avoid going in person to a telegraph office."

"What? Do you mean there's danger, even in Edmonton? That far away?"

"My telegram will be traced back. They must never establish any connection between you and me. With your help I've dropped out of sight. I'm being hunted; but here—here they'll never find me!"

"They?" Dorn echoed, and he was gladdened to hear that her trouble was not with one particular person. He had thought all along that she had come upon some private tragedy, but "they" sounded as though she were involved in something bigger. Her next words left no doubt of that.

"You're my only link with the Outside Jim, and you'll walk carefully, I know. But I want to make you understand—back of this hunt there's money and power and a relentless purpose—more than you dream about. There'll be spies flung out, watching along the Canadian National, from Hazelton clear to Medicine Lodge. You'll be careful, Jim, very careful. One unguarded word, one misstep . . ."

For a moment that desperate fear was in Aurore's eyes again. "Money, power, relentless purpose"—the words reechoed in Dorn's brain. Groping for some light upon her trouble, he asked her a question which sounded innocent and proper but which she could not answer without giving him some clue.

"Can's you tell me whom or what to be on my guard against?"

Aurore thought a moment, then looked up at him frankly.

"It wouldn't help you any to know. And if I told you, it would mean telling everything. If you insist—and you've earned the right to—I will. But you wouldn't understand. One person never can fully understand another. Our ordinary, daily acts—yes; they're on the surface, they're easy to see. But the deeper things, the impulses and emotions that go clear down to the bottom of our lives . . . Isn't there anything in your life that you can't possibly justify to others? Something that seems utterly unimaginable to any other person but you?"

Dorn was thinking of the many lectures Kansas had given him about his melancholy outlook. Introspective he knew the reason of it himself. The first twenty years of his existence—those formative and plastic years—had been bleak and pain-shot. His background, his sum of life experience, that slow and unwieldy growth which psychologists call one's "appreceptive mass" and which colours all a man's thoughts and moods and his outlook, had been composed of experiences raw and savage enough to break a grown man. A score of times he had tried to explain this to Kansas, his best friend on earth, but had failed miserably. So in a general way he could understand what Aurore meant; and he nodded.

She added: "I suppose that after my thrusting myself upon you as I did, as I was forced to, you feel responsibility. You shouldn't, but you do. And you'll—you'll come back here. When you know me better, when I know more about you—this is my promise, Jim—I'll tell you what I did and what I fled from. But now I've told you as much as I dare."

"As you dare?" You told Bergelot. Am I an ogre compared to him?"

Her answer came in a torrent, like a flood-gate loosening: "He's all compassion, all gentleness. But you—I know what you'd say and feel and think if you knew. I'm a coward. I don't want to face your opinion. It would cut—cut like a sword. You'd see only the bald facts and they'd make me look guilty. Will you take my promise, or do you want to know?"

Her offer was straightforward; once again she was prepared to tell him. But Dorn felt her offer as a challenge and knew she was fighting desperately against telling him; and he could not force himself to say, "I want to know."

He said: "I'll take your promise. If you care to tell me when I bring your outfit, all right. I'm not a bank demanding to know where you stand but a—a——"

Aurore supplied the word that he hesitated to use. "A friend. Willing to give trust."

They shook hands—upon the word "friend" it seemed; and Dorn said good-bye.

Paddling out to the Silver Hawk, he stowed the canoe in the fulseage and took off. Circling over the island while he climbed for altitude, he looked down at the jutting boulder. Aurore was still standing there. As he lined away south he looked back, and caught the tiny flutter of a kerchief. It would be four or five days, he thought, before he saw her again. She was a brave little self-efficient soul—true enough—but he hated to leave her to this immense mountain solitude.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

What To-day Means To You

"SCORPIO."

If October 24th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. and 10 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. The danger periods are from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. and 11 p.m. to midnight.

Astrological influences on this date favor an active life, particularly physical exertions. Events will show that only the best horses are handicapped. A journey and small change are shown. Do not entrust important matters to others—"If you would have your business done, go; if not, send."

The child born on this October 24th will have an active, restless spirit, but a frank, honest, sincere, loyal and liberty-loving nature. It will be drawn towards science, philosophy and religion. It will possess warm affections and sympathy, and will never be able to accumulate material possessions.

Being born under the sign of Scorpio, you should have a very determined, reserved, tenacious and secretive nature. You have unmistakable traits of character that cause you to be either very much liked or very much disliked. Your somewhat suspicious nature causes you to be distrustful, and your vindictiveness and fault-finding tendencies may be carried to an abnormal degree. Amidst your traits, you have that grit and backbone which enables you to achieve higher attainments than most of those born in other signs. If the desire is awakened, you will be able to completely overcome your most odious faults, or to so harness them that they will work for your good. Your passional, animal instincts are very strong, but when they have been conquered and temperance learned, you will be able to rise to great spiritual heights. It has been said "the greater the animal the greater the man."

You are endowed with an "eagle eye," and an insatiable thirst for finding out the true nature of things. Many occult researchers, chemists, inductive philosophers and detectives owe their faculties to this sign. You can criticise perfectly and impartially, and you are able to give your judgment in a decisive and clear manner.

A series of difficulties in the early part of your life will eventually lead on to honours and success. You will not find your true mate early in life, and it is probable that you will marry more than once.

POPULAR CANADIAN SHIP ENDS SERVICE

Empress of Scotland Terminates Transatlantic Existence After 25 Years.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 24. — Twenty-five years of service on the North Atlantic were terminated recently with the arrival at Southampton of the liner Empress of Scotland from Quebec. She made her first voyage to the St. Lawrence in 1922, though she had long been a popular ship under the name of Kaiserin Auguste Victoria on the Hamburg New York route.

Built by the Vulcan Company of Stettin in 1905, she was to have borne the name of Europe, but this was changed when the German Empress consented to christen her. Her original gross tonnage was 24,581 but this was later increased to 25,037 by additions deemed necessary for the Canadian trade. The Kaiserin Auguste Victoria was in Hamburg when the Great War broke out and the German authorities had hoped to be able to use her as a transport if an opportunity to invade Britain arose. With other merchant ships she was surrendered to the Allies in 1919, and carried many United States troops from Brest to New York. Transferred to the British in 1919, the ship was operated by the Cunard Line for some time and then passed into the hands of the Canadian Steamships Company, who reconditioned her. It was the success of this vessel when chartered to an American tourist agency which turned the attention of the Canadian Pacific to this class of business.

The vessel has been offered for sale and will probably pass from the seas to the shipbreakers. In her day the Empress of Scotland was considered one of the most luxurious ships afloat and she was very popular during the nine years that she sailed out of Quebec.

Voice of the People

THE SALVATION ARMY

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir:

The recent declaration of the Salvation Army in favor of "The Prohibition of Intoxicants" involves not only whiskey but all drugs now used when severe operations are to be performed or in cases of great pain. Could anything be allier? Is there a Salvation soldier in the world who would not cry out in such a case for the very intoxicants he now professes to condemn? But here is a test for the good faith of the Army in this particular. Would the Army dare to cry out in prayer to God that He should prohibit any form of the evil which afflicts the world. Would it dare to suggest to the Most High that He could make a wonderful world out of this one if He would only do as the Army is trying to do and prohibit intoxicants?

FINANCIAL NEWS AND BRIEFS

A SPECIAL SERVICE TO THE EXAMINER

New York opinions this morning note a change in sentiment toward the market with one broker expressing the opinion that the bear market is about 90 per cent over a large statistical organization recommending a long list of securities they believe attractive at present levels. A reduction in brokers loans to the lowest since November 1926 and the strength displayed by numerous industrials in the face of extreme weakness in a number of the rails Thursday are two good signs that are not to be overlooked. In preceding sessions a sharp reaction in any one particular group sent the entire list down and the stand made by the industrials in yesterday's session is all the more encouraging. Generally speaking the opinions received to-day are not holding out hope of an immediate change in the trend, but looking for further decline and expect this will take place more in individual securities than in the list as a whole.

Again it is being understood the resumption of the bull market may not occur for six months, a year or even two years and clients are told there need be no rush to take on committments other than securities for investment and purchased with the idea of holding indefinitely for income return. The market will have to develope new leaders to lead the lists out of the rut and considerable guessing is taking place as to what securities will provide leadership. Trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange has quieted down considerably in recent sessions and selling of securities either voluntary or forced has dwindled to the point where it is no more than normal. The unfortunate part is that the buying demand has also dwindled and holders of certain securities are finding it rather difficult to sell without price concessions.

The speculative public has lost all enthusiasm and will not participate in a market well deflated of the excesses created by the bull campaign of past years.

Stocks in demand a year or so ago at prices two and three times greater than current levels are not wanted by the throng who were willing to take on committments at any price before the break in the autumn of 1929.

Buying is coming for investors but this is hardly sufficient to meet the supply thrown on the exchange at times by tired speculators. If one could analyze this buying however, there would be some interesting revelations. It will be recalled that numerous executives of Canadian corporations over a year ago were outspoken in their opinion that the market was given to understand they considered the current market level of the shares of their companies no more represented the actual value than it did when the shares were selling at the peak. In fact the question was answered by a display of brokers contracts for the purchase of securities of the concerns they are directing and some of these purchases were made at levels above to-day's market.

Affects Stocks.

Over throw of the Brazilian government and the resignation of President Washington Luis had its reflection on the Toronto Stock Exchange early to-day when the shares of the Brazilian Traction Light and Power Co., Canadian controlled firmed a point or more. The overthrow of the government is expected to result in a cessation of hostility, and thus relieve the anxiety of possible property damage to the company's properties. So far the heavy fighting has taken place in districts other than those in which the larger plants of the Brazilian Traction Co., are located. It is taken for granted that the overthrow of the government will bring to an end the revolution and this is the best news the shareholders of the company have had since the insurrection started about three weeks ago.

Shareholders Meet.

The notice calling a special meeting of common shareholders of King Edward Hotel Co., Ltd., Monday, October 27, sent out at the dictation of United Hotels officials is regarded as a high handed action and one to put it mildly discourteous to the Toronto directors of King Edward. Local directors received their first intimation of the meeting with the receipt of the notice and now they are endeavoring to secure information of the proposed readjustment of the financial structure. It is stated a meeting of the board will be held Monday morning prior to the special meeting but this will scarcely give directors an opportunity to weigh the matter. The special meeting had been called for noon of that day and promises to bring forth some lively discussion. Debenture holders will be strongly represented and it is said will voice strenuous objection should a reduction in interest be suggested. The interest on the "A" debentures principal outstanding to the amount of $2,469,200 is guaranteed unconditionally by the United Hotels Company of America and it is the contention of a large body of debenture holders that United Hotels maintined the common dividend for an unwarranted length of time, payment on the common having last been made, October 1, 1929. According to interests close to King Edward, the United Hotels can muster to its support about seventy five per cent of votes of the common stock. In the meantime, local directors are being harrassed by telephone calls from debenture and common stockholders alike, yet are not in a position to throw any light on the subject of meeting.

Staff Corresponent) —A special Imperial Conference subcommittee has been appointed to report on bulk purchase, import board, and quota for British purchases of canned fruit, canned fish, butter, cheese, eggs, bacon, poultry and fresh fruit. It was learned to-day, Canada will be represented on the subcommittee.

BRIGHT PROSPECTS INDICATED FOR NEW ONTARIO GOLD FIELD

Provincial Geologist Believes New Vein Will Be Rich Strike.

MAY BE 400 FT. LONG.

TORONTO, Oct. 24.—What may prove to be one of the richest gold fields ever unearthed in the province is indicated in the report of H. C. Rickaby, Government geologist, who has returned to Toronto after inspecting the scene of the latest gold rush near the boundary between Bannockburn and Argyle Townships in the Matachewan area.

While the report made by Mr. Rickaby to the Department of Mines if necessarily conservative in view of the fact that he has not yet made assays of samples taken from the quartz, it states that indications point to a rich strike.

The eyes of the mining world have turned to Matachewan and the Government geologist found many prospectors on the ground and claim staking going on freely.

Length of 400 Feet

The report is as follows:

"A vein of milky quartz from 15 inches to two feet wide, is exposed in an outcropping of rock in low ground. It has been shown for a length of 65 feet, but from the occurrence on the surface of float showing gold, it has a length of at least 400 feet. There is considerable free gold associated with telluride, and samples showing no visible gold are said to have yielded high assays. The wall rock adjoining the vein is well mineralized with pyrite and carbonates and there are indications of a roughly parallel vein of a system of veins to the north. The country rock is chiefly andesite and basalt, cut b, small granite dukes, presumably of Algoman age, of which the porphyritic granite on the claim is an example. This dyke is approximately 40 feet wide and strikes roughly east and west.

"From the extensive area of favorable geology surrounding the discover, it is not unreasonable to expect that extensions of this vein system, or other veins, may be found. Most of the townships of Hincks, Bannockburn and Argyle show this favorable geology. Though some snow has fallen there are many prospectors on the ground and claim staking is proceeding rapidly."

More Details Later.

A more detailed report will be presented to the Department of Mines as soon as Mr. Rickaby completes his assay of the samples. That the prospectors in Matachewan are on a "good thing" is generally conceded, but further investigations will have to be made before the extent and quality of the deposits are known.

"The surface indications are what prospectors often dream of but rarely find," said a mines department official. "There is every possibility of a rich strike by the look of things. Evidently the mining companies think so, for nearly all of them have representatives on the scene in addition to the many lone prospectors who are looking out for themselves.

Winnipeg Review

The wheat market continued nervou and erratic and largely affected by out side news. The market was weak during the first part of the day when prices sank to 1½ to 1¾ under the close Wednesday night, all of which was recovered later. Export sales overnight were very small about 100,000 bushels being all that could be confirmed. Liverpool was much weaker than due closing unchanged to ¼ lower, when due 1¾ was much softer than expected. These bearish features were added to by the news that Black Sea shipments of wheat this week totalled 6,144,000 bushels of which Russia shipped 5,808,000 bushels. Later in the day Chairman Legge, of the United States Farm Board issued a statement that Russia had raised the price of wheat from 4 to 6 cents per bushels all over Europe, while there was also a report that President Hoover will either advocate the modification or the repeal of the Volstead Act, and that Dr. Hoover in his message to Congress will sponser the recommendation of the Wickersham committee. The trade, it was said, look upon it as a political movement of a constructive character that will result in a material increase in the use of grains as well as affording employment for many people. The upturn here was altogether in sympathy with the strength in Chicago, and local shorts were forced to cover. There was a fair demand for cash wheat although buyers were not aggressive, and spreads on the active grades were about unchanged with no pressure from holders. There was no change in the flour situation. Prices eased off somewhat at the close, Winnipeg futures closing 5-8 to ¾ lower.

Coarse Gains

There was some business worked in sample barley yesterday afternoon but aside from this the coarse grains were very quiet although there is some enquiry for deferred shipment of barley and oats. Black Sea shipments of barley this week were 5,923,000 bushels.

CANADA LEADS THE WORLD IN BUYING OF RADIO SETS

Spends More Money Per Capita Than Even the United States.

NO DEPRESSION FELT.

(Special to Examiner Correspondence, Copyright, 1930.

TORONTO, Oct. 24.—More money is spent in Canada on radio receiving sets than in any other country in the world—including the United States, Alex. McKenzie, president of the Radio Manufacturers' Association informed the members ot the banquet of the association at Toronto.

"Even those of us who are in daily contact with the radio industry are not aware of the magnitude that our industry has attained in Canada. Thirty million sets were manufactured and sold in Canada in 1928. The next year saw fifty million sales and this year bids fair to exceed that figure. Those sets, were produced by 18 points, the four makers of radio tubes, it is estimated, will sell 5,000,000 tubes in 1930."

Mr. McKenzie made the foregoing statement as pure news to the assembled manufacturers at the fifth annual Canadian Radio Exhibition now in progress.

"We are members of the fastest-growing industry of our time," he continued, "Everyone of us knows that we in Canada are passing through the same financial distress as the rest of theworld. That depression is not felt in the radio industry. I predict an even greater future and more prosperous one for the industry in which we are engaged."

SLAYER'S TOLL RAISED TO FIVE

Aged Smoky Lake Woman Succumbs to Wounds Inflicted By Madman.

ARMED POSSE OUT.

EDMONTON, Alta., Oct. 24.—Five lives to-day stood as the toll a murderer took as he spread tragedy with shotgun through the isolated Smoky Lake settlement of Northeast Alberta.

Seventy-year-old Mrs. Helen Huchaluk succumbed this morning to wounds inflicted by a madman who Wednesday killed her daughter, her grand-daughter, her son, and neighboring farmer.

Farm house doors are locked as an armed posse ranges throughought the woods on the trail of the murderer. The remainder of the Walanski family, who were partly destroyed, are hiding here in fear that the murderer will wipe out the Walanskis.

APPEAL IS MADE TO DISMISS CASE

$10,000 IS CLAIMED.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 24 (C.P.).—The finances of an extensive liquor distributing and exporting business conducted on the farm of Sol Siegel, Smith Township, Peterboro County, were aired at Osgoode Hall this afternoon, when Chief Justice Rose heard a motion on behalf of Joseph A. O'Brien, solicitor, to dismiss as frivolous and vexatious an action brought against him by Siegel.

Siegel's action was based on interest allegedly charged by O'Brien on $40,000 left to the plaintiff as capital for his business. Alleging that he had been victimized because he was illiterate and that O'Brien's interest charges had been "harsh and unconscionable," Siegel claims $10,000 damage, an accounting, and the return of all monies paid to his financial backer.

In the motion for dismissal O'Brien claimed that the suit was based on illegal consideration and that the plaintiff's aim had been the accomplishment of an illegal purpose.

Dr. Weizmann was until he resigned a few days ago, President of World Zionist organisation. He quit his post as a protest against the statement of British policy in Palestine.

WALL STREET SHARE PRICES BOUND UPWARD

IN LIGHT TRADING.

Conclusion of Brazil Revolution Bolsters Speculative Confidence in Brazilian Issues.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Oct. 24 (C.P.)—Share prices bounded upward in to-day's stock market with the familiar resilience that appears when the weight of liquidation is completely lifted. Even the rails, a contrary group yesterday, joined the recovery, as it carried into its second. The market appeared to be governer primarily by technical conditions and trading was light.

In the rails, recovery of the Van Sweringen issues was conspicuous, Missouri Pacific, Erie and Chesapeake and Ohio gained 3 points or more. Other shares making similar gains included U. S. Steel, National Biscuit, Westinghouse, Goodyear and Macy, while such shares as American Can, Byers and Eastman rose to 5, and Allied Chemical, more than 7. Montgomery Ward sagged moderately.

News from Brazil, indicating that the revolution had been concluded with little bloodshed or property damage caused a fresh decline in coffee, as a reaction from the upturn which had been based on expectations of delayed shipments. But Brazilian securities rallied sharply, tending further to bolster speculative confidence.

McGILL WINS TRACK HONORS

TOTAL OF 65 POINTS.

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 24 (C.P.)—McGill athletes walked off with the annual intercollegiate track meet at the Richardson Stadium this morning when, with only one event outstanding, they scored a total of 65 points to 46 by Varsity and 15 by Queen's. The one mile relay race will be staged at half time tomorrow, but can have no effect on the standing.

No records were made to-day and none broken, but excellent time was made considering the bad condition of the field and the track due to rain during the night and morning.

Graham and Adams of Varsity were the outstanding runners, the former finishing first in the mile and three mile, while Adams was the leader in the 100 yard and 220 yard springs. Drew of McGill, looked upon as the star of the meet, was good in the sprints but failed to show his usual form in the jump.

Queen's made a better showing in winning both the shot puts and the pole vault and scored seven points more than they did last year.

TELLURIDE GOLD PROPERTY DEVELOPMENT NEARLY ENDED

Expected to Produce Within Near Future—Results at White Lake.

MINING NEWS.

TORONTO, Oct. 24. (Special to Examiner.)—Mill at Telluride property in Skead township Larder Lake mining division, is expected to come into production during the next day or so, adding another producer to help out the new record in gold production indicated for the province this year. Power transmission line is reported to have been completed this year. Power transmission line is reported to have been completed a short time ago with power now available for the 50 ton combined flotation and amalgamation milling.

According to recent word the property work at the 150 level is proving extension of the orebody to the east. Former development carried the drift at this level in a northeast direction and passed out of ore. It was thought at that time the ore shoot was short and work was therefore discontinued at that point.

The ore had been picked up on the 250 level, opened up for about 125 feet and is still in the face. The present mine manager expressed belief the ore would be found to continue on the 150 level if drifting to the southeast was done and resumption of work on that level during the past week or so has proven this to be the case. The 300 level is ready for work and opening up of the orebody on that horizon will be proceeded with at once. This will give at least three faces from which good ore for the mill may be drawn.

Results secured on the property of White Lake in the Mississauga forest reserve have helped in attracting attention of other property holders in the district. Among those mentioned for early drilling and development is Onea copper syndicate which has a prospect which gave good indications in early work. A drilling program was recommended for this group by R. M. Treloar, engineer and reports in th district indicating this recommendation will be implemented a an early date. Mining Prospects, another company with holdings in the section is understood to be considering further development.

Thursday's price cut in copper to 9.5 cents a pound is understood to have been confined to one or two vustoms smelters who are in the position of being forced to liquidate their stocks of metal regardless of price. Official quotation remains at 10 cents domestic and 10,3 cents export though major part of buying is likely to be carried out at the first mentioned price.

According to rumor operations at Lake Fortune property adjacent to Rouyn in Boischatel township will be resumed as soon as conditions warrant. Considerable work has already been carried out a mill of 50 tons capacity having been erected. Drilling was done to 500 feet in depth and a shaft put down to 135 fee.t The company is understood to be largely under the stock control of a A. McKay and W. P. Alderson well known engineers.

Margaret Mackenzie, aged three, of Ashgrove, Scotland, fell backward into a pot of boiling water and was scalded to death.

Problem Of Natives In Town Difficult

Too Many Natives in South African Towns—Move to Attract to Country.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Oct. 24. —(By the Canadian Press)—One disquieting feature of the general problem of the African natives is the problem of the natives in the towns and cities. This is especially the case with regard to Cape Town, where few natives were to be seen 30 years ago but which at the present time has a large number of native workers and is giving the Europeans here considerable concern. Originally the native was a fighter and hunter and did not believe in work. He left the work to the women. He was encouraged to come to town and try his hand at working and the result is that now there are too many natives working, particularly in Cape Town, according to European opinion. The outlook and social system of the natives have been changed and they prefer urban life to rural.

A round table conference to hear the views of both Europeans and natives is suggested as likely to lead to a solution of the problem of the natives in the towns and cities, and it has been urged that the native village of Langa, near Cape Town, might be made one of the show places of the Peninsula and attract the natives to live there. The Government has given Langa as a free site on which the natives may build their homes, and in this area the Cape Town City Council has built accommodation for natives. The trouble is natives do not want to go there. It is deemed necessary to make the conditions at Langa such that the natives can be happier there than they are in Cape Town, though many of them were born in this city.

The native is a sociable person, and it is thought that if he can find the right society at Langa he will be content to stay there. It is suggested that if Langa were made an ideal native village, a village that visitors from overseas would go and see while staying at Cape Town, the natives would welcome the change of environment and be content.

A committee of the Cape Town Rotary Club is looking into the matter of native welfare and it is possible something may be done shortly to relieve the present situation of too many natives in this city.

ENJOYABLE PROGRAM AT Y.P.S. MEETING

Mrs. Percy McGuire Has Charge of Events at Stirling Gathering.

STIRLING, Oct. 24. (Examiner Correspondence.)— St. Paul's Y.P.S. held their weekly meeting Monday evening with the president in charge during the devotional and song period. Miss Jean Munroe read the scripture lesson and Mr. Walter Lindenfield led in prayer. Mrs. Percy McGuire took charge of the program. Miss Laurine Scott delighted the audience with a piano solo.

The numbers had another special treat given them by Mr. Donald Graeville who will soon be leaving for his home. The subject chosen was his native home and country, the Island of Summatra. He first dealt with the geography of the country showing the physical divisions of the island. Although the equator runs through the centre of this Island it is possible through its mountains to have any degree of temperature you wish. He also told of the natives, their habits and customs. The chief industry is the growing of rubber trees and very minutely described the process of obtaining rubber. The charm of the East is due largely to its wonderful floral growth. He closed his interesting address by asking the audience to visit the island and see the many things he had not time to mention. Mrs. F. Jeffrey sang a pleasing solo, and Miss M. Richardson put on a civic contest. The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

Combined Meeting.

A combined meeting of St. Andrews Presbyterian Church Guild and the Thankoffering meeting of the W.M.S. was held in the S.S. rooms on Monday evening with Mrs. Geo. Reid of Belleville, president of the Kingston Presbyterial as speaker.

After singing the opening hymn the scripture lesson taken from 2nd Cor. 19 chapter, was read by Mrs. James Montgomery, followed by prayer by Mrs. Harper Rollins. During the discussion which arose from the reading of the minutes it was decided to postpone the entertaining of the High School staff and students. The resignation as 2nd vice president, Miss Gena Spry, was accepted and Mrs. W. Rollins was chosen to fill the vacancy. Mrs. A. S. Murdoff sang very acceptably, "Was that Somebody You" and Mr. Nathan gave a reading, Mrs. A. B. Fargey, president of the W.M.S., then called on Mrs. Reid to give her talk. A report of a Board meeting held in Toronto, early in October, gave much food for thought. So far this year the W.M.S. finances are ahead of 1929 and all were asked to concentrate for the balance of the year that the funds may not fall down. The missionary monthly "The Glad Tidings" is taken by 17000 women and in the Home Helpers Department enough money is contributed to keep the whole missionary work going for 19 days. Descriptions of the three summer camps for young people and the work done was interesting. The Helen McDonald school which started with eight pupils now has an attendance of over 90.

It was suggested that the women teach the men how much the budget means. The speaker then gave many reasons for thankfulness, our country our church and our homes, being particularly mentioned. A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Reid for her excellent address and the meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. W. L. Anderson. Lunch was served and a short time spent in social intercourse.

Mesdames Moore, Diamond and Fleming of Belleville, accompanied Mrs. Reid

An auction sale of the household effects and two houses belonging to the late James Spry estate was held Saturday. A large crowd attended but poor prices were received for the furniture. The houses were not sold, the offers not coming up to the reserve bids.

Mr. Thos. Wootten and Miss Wootten of Wellmans Corners have rented the home of Mr. John Moore for the winter months. Mr. and Mrs. Moore are going to Toronto until spring.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM JACKSON

WARSAW, Oct. 24. (Examiner Correspondence.)—The death of William Jackson took place at his home on Monday evening about eleven o'clock.

He was eighty years of age and was born on a farm near Omemee, in Emily. After his marriage to Emma Baker of Peterborough, he moved to Peterborough and about thirty years ago he, with his family, moved to Warsaw, where he set up a harness-makers shop, which work he has carried on ever since. To the couple were born, five daughters, one died in infancy, one early in life, and one, Mrs. MacDonald, a few years after her marriage. She left an infant daughter, Mae, whom Mr. and Mrs. Jackson brought up, she is now Mrs. Eplett, living in Toronto. He leaves to mourn the loss of a loving father and devoted husband, his wife, and two daughters, Mrs. Robert Tighe and Mrs. Christopher. There is a brother in Vancouver.

Mr. Jackson was a sincere Christian, a member and faithful attendant of the Methodist and later the United Church.

He was a member of the Orange Lodge.

The funeral of the late Mr. Jackson took place on Wednesday afternoon. The service was at the church which he loved. Rev. J. W. Wilkinson conducted the services at the church and at Warsaw cemetery, where interment took place. The Orange Order took charge of the funeral.

OFFICER SCORED

Failed To Appear Three Times

The hearing of the appeal, which has been hanging fire almost a year, was delayed by the non-appearance of Peters on at least three occasions. The appeal was finally heard at Lakefield on October 4 and decision was withheld until Monday.

Peters was shot in the neck by Constable Chisholm in the early morning of November 14, last year. Peters was suspected of operating a still, which the officers had found. Chisholm concealed himself near the home of Peters' father, awaiting the man's approach. It had been raining but toward morning the moon broke through the clouds, and the officer saw a man walking toward the house. It was Peters.

As the man Peters got over a wire fence, Chisholm shouted, "halt." Peters turned to run away. The officer fired seven shots. One struck Peters in the neck, causing him to stumble. He continued running and eluded the officer, who was reinforced by Excise Officer W. H. Buller, who had previously been in the house.

Two days later Peters, who had made his way to Kinmount and obtained medical attention to his wound, was found in hospital at Lindsay. He was arrested and brought to Peterborough where he stood trial on a charge of operating a still.

No direct evidence connecting Peters with the still was submitted beyond a note found at the still. The paper was said to be an order for supplies for the still and a handwriting expert identified it as Peters' handwriting. It was alleged, but not proven, that Peters was coming from the still when shot.

ingly for some time. The science men, it is said, tossed a couple of stench bombs into the house, but the odor was not sufficient to stop the battlers.

While considerable property damage was done by the wielders of fire axes, who are said to have hammered at anything and everything within their reach, and by the fire hose which were also used by the students with little discretion, physical damage was believed slight.

One student was said to be recovering to-day from a severe beating, while several others were still missing. The latter is explained by the fact that each side captured several prisoners, who will likely gain their freedom later.

The Victoria College students captured by the science men were immediately treated to a coat of blacking. It is believed the red paint was used on the science men captured by the Victoria students.

BOULIANE GUILTY OF THEFT

MONTREAL, Oct. 24 (C.P.)—Maurice J. Bouliane, former head of the brokerage firm bearing his name, with branches in Quebec and Ontario, was found guilty of theft of approximately $250,000 moneys entrusted to him by clients. It was intimated by counsel for the defense that the verdict would be appealed.

Bouliane lives in Quebec, but the head office of his firm was in Montreal, and the case was tried here in Court of King's Bench, with Justice Charles Wilson presiding. Sentence will be passed Monday.

MEDD RETAINS SILVER TROPHY

good. Chas. McLean of Woodville and Thomas McCamus of Cavan were not far behind him in the general quality of the fields they completed.

Reviewing the match, Mr. Rennie told The Examiner that there was not a poor piece of plowing in the whole competition. He stated that the plowmen of this district had every reason to pride themselves on their ability.

J. J. Duffus, president of the Peterborough county association, himself an expert plowman, declared that the match would compare well with the regional matches through the country, and some of the fields would rate high against provincial competition. Mr. Duffus spent the day on the farm, and expressed the opinion that Peterborough plowmen were maintaining the interest and skill that has been characteristic of the best farmers of this and adjoining counties.

Another Otonabee farmer of other days who spent the afternoon on the sidelines was G. A. Gillespie who waited until the judge had completed his decision. Mr. Gillespie evidently wished to check up his own opinions with the official awards.

The Tractor Class.

The phrase "cultivating in accordance with the rules of good husbandry" is of ancient origin, but its import is just as applicable as ever to successful farming. And as the machine is speeding up all branches of industry so the tractor has established its place among plowmen, especially the younger men of the farms. Good husbandry has adapted the gasoline motor even to the plow, and the four machines operating yesterday left four first rate fields behind them at the close of the day.

In the open class, Howard Quinn of Douro, a member of the township council, was pitted against "Mac" Morrison of Woodville, who recently won fourth place against forty-two competitors in the stubble class at the provincial match at Stratford. This was Mr. Morrison's first visit to Peterborough, and while he proved himself a high class mechanic and operator of a two-furrow plow, he had to yield first place to Howard Quinn.

Garnett Burns and Frank Graystock both of Otonabee also did good work with their tractors, and this branch of the match indicated that the young man and his machine are a permanent and efficient factor in present day farming.

Roland Dickson of Otonabee was acting secretary of the match representing J. B. Nelson who was unavoidably absent at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

CAMPAIGN FIGHTS

ward them the Minister directed his remarks.

Finlayson in Lanark.

"The party system is strongly developed in Canada," proceeded Mr. Finlayson, "and legislation can only be secured through the party. Assuming that by some fluke an Independent should be elected in this riding he would sit in the back benches and wonder what was going on, and what everything was about. He would not be in attendance at the caucus of either great party and would be of very little use to his constituency."

The colonization method of the present provincial government was criticized by speakers supporting the candidature of J. Harry Marceau, Liberal in the riding of Nipissing at a mass meeting held in North Bay.

K. A. Christie, president of the Toronto Liberal Club, who was the principal speaker, declared both parties should join forces and get politics out of public projects, to free them from intimidation and partisanship. He described the $10,000,000 Northern Ontario development grant by the Ontario Government as "one of the greatest forces in provincial business for corruption, graft and intimidation."

Members of Premier G. H. Ferguson's Cabinet have featured the by-election campaign by the centering of their efforts in Western Ontario. Last night at Hespeler, Hon. J. M. Robb, recently appointed Minister of Health, succeeding Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, spoke in the interests of the Conservative standard-bearer, M. M. Donald, in the riding of Waterloo South.

Ferguson Chief Issue.

The speaker said Premier Ferguson seemed the chief issue in the campaign. He believed the Premier was wearing out his life endeavoring to carry out schemes in the interests of the people of the Province. Referring to criticism aimed to Mr. Ferguson, the speaker said he thought the Ontario Liberal Party would give anything if they could find a man of the calibre of the Premier to lead their party at the Liberal Convention to be held in Toronto on December 16 and 17.

Referring to the suggestion made by W. E. N. Sinclair, K.C., Ontario Liberal Leader, during a recent speech that a relief session of the Provincial House should be held to aid unemployment, Dr. Robb said he considered this a tribute to the Government of Premier R. B. Bennett, which had already held one.

F. G. Sanderson, M.P. for Perth South, and Ontario Liberal Whip, was the chief speaker at a meeting held in Staffs to support George Keith, Liberal-Progressive nominee in the Perth South constituency.

GRITTY MARINER

veered while towing a barge of 3,500 tons dead weight. Pearson suffered a badly fractured right leg, while McIvan escaped with severe lacerations. All three were taken to St. Michael's Hospital, when Robertson's condition is reported critical.

Tug Swung Off Course

According to members of the crew the accident occurred when the tug, travelling about eight knots, suddenly swung off her course. Bruce Bowden, first mate, had been steering and he ordered Robertson to awaken Captain J. J. Mailhot and to proceed with Pearson and McIvan to the tow post with axes.

Bursting from his cabin, shoeless and in his underwear, Captain Mailhot took the wheel and Bowden, a rugged mariner of 40 years' experience on the Great Lakes, went aft to superintend the cutting of the tow rope.

Describing the experience, Bowden said: "That cable was on the men so quickly they did not have time to jump over it and get out of the way. I yelled at them, but it was too late. Once you get off course on a job like that, you're whipped around behind before you know it. They hadn't a second to spare to cut the tow-rope and if they hadn't got it out when they did, the cable would have turned this tug over as quick as wink."

A few minutes after the accident Bowden and the Chief Engineer, Henry Fraser, improvised a tourniquet for Robertson's leg and succeeded in stopping the flow of blood. The injured man was only taken on yesterday as the tug was leaving Port Weller.

Crookston Anniversary Is Largely Attended

CROOKSTON, Oct. 24.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The anniversary services in connection with Bethesda United church, which were held on October 19, proved very successful. Both morning and evening services were very well attended. The speaker of the day was a former pastor, Rev. W. D. Harrison of Deseronto and before commencing his address he spoke briefly of some of his recollections of his early connection with this church and community and at the close of the service had a pleasant time with old friends of the church

The altar was decorated with flowers; the choir rendered suitable music. In the morning besides the anthem there was a solo by Miss Ethel Frame, "Teach Me to Pray," which was given very effectively.

The music for the evening consisted of three numbers, a quartette, "Nailed to the Cross", sung by Miss Margaret McCauley, Mrs. Reg. Haggerty and Messrs. Albert McMillan and Reg. Haggerty; a duet, by Mrs. Haggerty and Miss M. McCauley entitled, "If He's There" and a solo by Clayton Tummon, "Abide With Us."

On Tuesday evening the ladies of the church served a fowl supper to a splendid gathering of friends and this was followed by a good program of music and addresses. The program consisted of vocal numbers from Mr. John F. Baker of Bonarlaw; guitar and banjo selections from the Misses Ludbrook of Madoc and an address by the Rev. G. W. Rivers, also of Madoc.

Good Program At Springville Supper

SPRINGVILLE, Oct. 24 (Examiner Correspondence) — More than four hundred persons including many from Peterborough and the surrounding district attended Springville fowl supper on Tuesday evening, and judging from the faces which have become familiar through re-appearance each year the Tuesday evening supper measured up to the splendid reputation of its predecessors.

The supper was bounteous. The helpings of goose were generous and hot potatoes and gravy could be had in unlimited quantities. Pumpkin pies ranked high in appreciation while a goodly number of other varieties were to be found on the tables. The salads and jellies were pretty as well as appetizing. Cake, bread and butter, biscuits and tea completed the sumptuous meal.

The program following the supper was contributed by H. McCannon with his orchestra, The Peterborough Cheerio Entertainers, Victor Coleman, of Peterborough, Misses Helen Staples and Hazel Hall and Bruce Herron, of Springville; also the Springville - Fairmount quartette, Mrs. Moyer, Miss M. Southam, and Messrs. Preston and Hanbridge.

The Rev. Mr. Moyer, pastor of the church acted as chairman while Mrs. A. McBain, of Fairmount and Mrs. Moyer, of Springville, accompanied the vocal numbers.

McGhee, became the bride of Mr. Edward Albert Johnston, of Parry Sound. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. W. Rivers, B.A., B.D., while Miss L. M. Ramsay played the wedding music. The church was prettily decorated with flowering plants and ferns.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin fashioned on princess lines, with veil in cap effect She carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses and lily of the valley.

The groom was attended by Mr. Charles E. Phillips fo Madoc. Mr. Alfred Barton, also of Madoc, acted as usher.

A buffet luncheon was served by the bride's youngest sister, Miss Eva, and Miss Sadie Smith. Pink and white were the predominating colors of the dining-room. A toast to the bride was proposed by Rev. G. W. Rivers, which was responded to by the groom.

The guests, who were immediate relatives and friends of the bride and groom, were from Parry Sound, Toronto, and Madoc.

LONDON GIRL'S DEPORTATION BEING FOUGHT

Parents Claim Move Being Made After Daughter Lived Here 18 Years.

WILLING TO KEEP HER.

Has No Relatives in England—Mother Shocked at Action Seriously Ill.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 24 (C.P.)—Efforts to prevent the deportation of Ellen Naylor, daughter of a London, Ont., family which came to Canada from England 18 years ago, were started in the Superior Court here. Habeas corpus proceedings were served on E. C. Moquin, Dominion Immigration Agent here, and the Department will be called upon to show cause why the deportation should be carried out. The writ is returnable October 28.

Came Here 18 Years Ago

According to the fact laid before Mr. Justice Coderre by the attorney for the girl, Ellen Naylor came to Canada from England 18 years ago and settled with her parents at London, Ont. The parents still reside there. About a year ago Ellen suffered an epileptic stroke and was given treatment for a time, at her home. The London municipal authorities interested themselves in the case and the girl was sent to a hospital in Woodstock, Ont.

While Miss Naylor was in the Woodstock Hospital, according to the record furnished the Court, the Ontario Government became interested in the case, and finally the Dominion Immigration Department issued a deportation order on account of the girl's disability. The patient was brought to Montreal, where she was to be placed aboard a steamer sailing for England.

No Relatives in England

The court was told that Miss Naylor had no relatives in England and that her people in London, Ont., were prepared to take care of her. It was also stated that Miss Naylor's mother, shocked at the prospect of her daughter's deportation, was seriously ill at her home and likely to have her condition greatly aggravated if the order was carried out.

the function of a University is to assist that process of soul-making which is the object of all human life. Men come to a University uncertain of their aims and their abilities, blind as yet to much of the beauty and interest of life and imperfect in the art of self control. They should leave it "good men." And a good man is not necessarily a "good business man." It is rather one who has learnt to face his instincts squarely and to find for each of them an effective outlet in the direction of some ideal purpose which dominates his interest and action.

"If, then, the chief product of a University is "Souls" in this wide sense of the word, the means of production are various and complex. There is the intimate contact of mind and character, the polish and elasticity which come from meeting many kinds of people different in outlook and background; there is the gradual mastery of self-discipline which comes and can only come from increased responsibility; there is the sense of obligation involved in membership of a great community and within that corporate sense there develops also the self-respect which inspires all chivalrous and unselfish conduct—the sense that meaness and weakness are evil because, whether detected by others or not, they damage and corrode one's self; the sense that it profits a man nothing to gain the whole world of money or distinction at the cost of losing his own self. Of course it is not only at a University that such a moral lesson can be learned. Every man in every sphere of life has got to learn it or to acquiesce in failure. But the lesson is, I believe, much easier for the student who has leisure to observe and meditate and reason that it is for the boy or girl plunged at seventeen or earlier into the embarrassing business of making a living. If that is true, it throws upon all members of a University a serious responsibility. To whom great opportunities are given of them shall much be required."

Cultivate Sense of Truth

"And the same great end is served both by the athletic interests which to a casual onlooker seem to fill the University horizon and also by the activity of courses and classes which an acute observer can detect in the background. I should like to leave the former theme to the journalists who understand it better than I do and to say a few words about the latter. In all the work that is done by students and by their teachers in every Faculty of the University the ultimate object is the cultivation of the sense of truth. Of all our means of soul-production that is the most potent. It is easiest to see this in the study of Natural Science. Consider how a scientist works. He patiently collects all the facts that are in any way relevant to his subject; he observes them minutely; he varies them by experiment and gradually forms a theory which seems to explain them all. He returns once more to test his theory by further observation and experiment. And perhaps he finds one obstinate little fact which will not fit in. So he has to begin all over again and build up a new hypothesis and to test this again by experiment and observation. He may have to frame a hundred theories before he can feel that he has found the truth and even then he knows that before long some new fact may be discovered which will demolish his theory. And if that happens, he doesn't try to hush up the discovery or to burn the discoverer at the stake. His aim is proof not propaganda so he patiently renews the task of framing a theory to fit all the facts. That is the method of all genuine enquiry. It requires patience, enthusiasm and faith—faith in the truth as something that transcends all human theory. There is no chicanery in science— for if there is, it ceases to be science.

"My predecessor in his last report to the Trustees of the University said that "The Faculty of Arts will always remain the pre-eminent thing in the life of this University." Some of you may not agree. But of this I am sure that it should be and it shall be the function of Queen's to provide for Canada not only the Scientists who will develop the unreckoned riches of mineral and water wealth; not only the Doctors who will care for and improve the national health and the Economists who will perfect the creaking machinery of industry and commerce—not only these, but also to produce, as it has done in the past, the school-teachers, professors and ministers of religion—I group those together because churches, schools and universities are essentially and closely interdependent—besides all these we must produce in greater numbers than before, the statesmen, poets, artists and writers of the future. we must find the man power and the woman power for the era of Canadian art, philosophy, literature and music which is just dawning—or, if it isn't, then Queen's must up and make it dawn.

A University is a power house no less important to the life of the nation than those great power houses on the river falls which are doing so much for the industrial life of Canada. A University is a power house of ideas and ideals and it feeds, if it is functioning properly, the spiritual life of the nation. The teaching staff may provide the raw material of these ideas but it is through the students that they must be transmuted and transmitted. It is by them that Queen's will be judged. Its future lies in their hands. And to their young enthusiasm I do not think it is difficult to appeal by the record and achievement of this University, by the devotion it has won from its alumni and the manifold gifts it offers to all who have the energy to take them—and to widen also and deepen that appeal by the summons to serve God and King in a manner not altogether unworthy of Canada's triumphant achievement and illimitable opportunity.

Receive Honorary Degree

Principal Fyfe presented the following to receive the Honorary Degree of Doctor of Laws: Honorable G. Howard Ferguson, Prime Minister of Ontario (in absentia); Lieut. Col. R. W. Leonard, philanthropist and mine owner, of St. Catherines, Ont. (in absentia); His Grace Archbishop O'Brien, of Kingston; Louis Stephen St. Laurent, Quebec, President of the Canadian Bar Association; Dr. R. C. Wallace, President of the University of Alberta; and General Sir Arthur Currie, Principal of McGill University, Montreal, and also Rt. Rev. Edmund Henry Oliver, Saskatoon moderator of the General Council of the United Church of Canada, for the Honorary Degree of Doctor of Divinity.

Archbishop O'Brien expressed his appreciation for the favor conferred upon him. He valued the Degree highly, but, more than that, the kind cordial spirit that prompted the gift. His Grace stated that while in London, during the summer, he heard the highest tributes paid to Dr. Fyfe, the new principal, as a profound scholar, a cultured gentleman and a sympathetic educationalist. He wished Dr. Fyfe the highest success in his new responsibility. His Grace touched upon the purposes of education classifying them: (1) To impart information; (2) To develop the best powers and the soul and (3) To inspire students with the very highest ideals.

General Sir Arthur William Currie, President of the McGill University, Montreal and Rt. Rev. Dr. Oliver, also spoke briefly and gracefully in acknowledgement of the honor conferred.

The presentation was made by Dr. Edward Ryan and Principal Fyfe accepted the portrait on behalf of the University. "God Save the King", was heartily rendered and the Benediction followed by the Chaplain of the day.

In the evening at 6:30 p.m., a dinner was to be tendered to the visitors, official guests, trustees, council, and staff. About two hundred were expected in attendance. Chancellor Richardson presided and during the evening, Mayor Craig, Kingston, Hon. William Finlayson, Toronto, and President Robert Charles Wallace of the University of Alberta, Edmonton, and Principal Fyfe were to make addresses.

ST. JOHN'S W. A. HAS SUCCESSFUL AUTUMN FAIR IN THE PARISH HALL

Funds Go to the Parish Work Instead of to Missionary Coffers.

WORK ATTRACTIVE.

The members of the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Church held a very successful Autumn Fair yesterday afternoon and evening in the Parish Hall. This event represented a departure in Auxiliary procedure, as the funds went to parish work, instead of the missionary coffers to which the Auxiliary usually devotes itself. This was made possible by a change in ruling, last year, when the auxiliaries of the Dominion were informed that they might work for their own parishes as well as for foreign missions. The work displayed yesterday was the product of long, careful hours of endeavor during the summer months, by the members, and was expectionally attractive, the exhibit of sewing being especially good.

The ladies also served afternoon tea and a cafeteria supper from six to eight o'clock, the lower parlors being utilized for the purpose, while the stage, with lowered curtains, was converted into an effective small bazaar for the sale of work. The signs used for the sale were an interesting item. A "Vanity Fayre" sign, with an old-time nosegay attached, pointed the way to the sale, where the different sections had placards: "For the Very Young," "See Our Kerchiefs," "Delicatessen" and "Mystery Parcels." Yellow and white crepe paper was utilized for decoration in the bazaar, and the supper room and tea room were very attractive with their Hallowe'en trimmings. For the supper, each lady in charge arranged her own table and the general effect was unique and interesting, while the members of the Women's Friendly Bible Class did some splendid work in the general decorative scheme of the different rooms. The tables showed diversified centrepieces, with the orange and black note predominating. Apples and oranges, black satin and brass bowls and candlesticks of orange glass, a bowl of the pretty "spectacle plant," and another filled with the Chinese lantern plants, were some of the items in a lovely decorative scheme.

During the supper hours, an orthophonic loaned by E. V. Warne supplied much appreciated music.

The tea room, where decorations were also done in the Hallowe'en manner, was in charge of Mrs. H. A. Morrow, and Mrs. R. Denne, with Mrs. F. M. DelaFosse pouring, assisted by Mrs. J. Lundy, Mrs. A. Pink and Mrs. G. Melton.

The president of the Women's Auxiliary, Mrs. A. W. Turner, acted as general convenor, in charge of arrangements, and of the supper room.

In the bazaar, the sale of children's things was in charge of Mrs. R. Ross and Mrs. W. F. McWilliams; Mrs. J. Rigden and Mrs. T. McBrien had the sale of fancy work, and Mrs. S. Bridge was in charge of the sale of lingerie and of a very pretty quilt, made by Mrs. Frank Williams, with a "log cabin" design in pink and green fuji silk.

A very dainty sale of handkerchiefs, displayed attractively on a yellow background, was in charge of Mrs. G. S. Cameron, while the "Delicatessen" sale of home-made cooking and preserves was supervised by Mrs. W. T. Holloway, Mrs. G. Melton and Mrs. W. J. Preston. The "Mystery" sale at the little booth surmounted by a jaunty "White Elephant" was looked after by Mrs. Knight and Mrs. F. G. Mann.

In the supper room, the different tables were in charge of the following ladies: Mrs. R. C. Blagrave, Mrs. E. Sorby, Mrs. W. G. Howden, Mrs. W. Rogers, Mrs. A. L. Stedham, Mrs R. M. Hood, Mrs. W. Denston, Mrs. E. R. James, Mrs. H. C Sootheran, Mrs T. Groombridge, Mrs. Nicholls, Mrs. E. Hosking, Mrs. D. J. Eldred, Mrs. W. Whitnell, Mrs. W. Davis and Miss Wyatt.

ARGENTINE AGENT PRESENTS CLAIMS

Urges Canadian Industrialists to Cultivate Trade of Latin Republic.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 24.—Canadains complain too much according to Louis J. Skinitzero, official trade delegate in Canada for the Argentine Chamber of Commerce, who has just completed his first official trip across Canada. In an interview at his offices he explained that Canada with her energetic people and her vast undeveloped resources, her freedom from the diplomatic entanglements, that harass some countries is in a position to be envied by the world. If at the moment she experiences a business depression, what of it? She shares it with the rest of the world and will be one of the first to get over it.

At Victoria he met four trade delegates from the Argentine who had come up from the United States to make the return trip with him. He explained that the delegation that had been travelling in the United States had included 19 Argentinians, but only four had come to Canada because the rest of them had been persuaded to stay in the south by representatives of American railroads who warned them against the rigors of the Canadian climate and spoke of ice and snow which would make the country uninhabitable at this season of the year (the middle of September).

Mr. Skinitzero called attention to the incident, charging that Canadians did not make sufficient effort to break down opinions like these. The representatives of American railways, he said, greeted the members of the delegation in Spanish, and told them what was meant to keep them in the United States in their own language, while the Canadian representative, if any, stood by without knowing what was going on because he was unable to speak the language.

Presbyterianism Flourished in Seymour For 90 Years

Scotch Families Formed Nucleus Of First Church

St. Andrew's Church, Seymour Township, Will on Sunday Celebrate the Ninetieth Anniversary — First Service Held in Store With Packing Box for a Pulpit.

FOR 45 YEARS REV. DR. ROBERT NEILL, THE FIRST MINISTER, MINISTERED TO THE CONGREGATION

During the Early Days Rev. Dr. Neill Carried on the Work of Several Ministers, Conducting Services in Campbellford, Warkworth and Stirling and Other Points.

BURNBRAE, Oct. 24.—(Examiner Correspondence).—It is a far cry from the forest bound East Seymour of ninety years ago to the modern up-to-date farming community of today, but the religion of Christ still exerts the same force as it did in the days of yore and on Sunday, October 26, 1930, the Presbyterians of St. Andrew's Church, Seymour, will join with the members of every denomination and communion in commemorating the opening of the first house of public worship in East Seymour.

During the years just previous to 1840, the district lying to the east of the now famous Trent Waterway, was settled by families of education and refinement, many of them retired army and navy notables and the family tree of many a family in East Seymour is headed by a "captain." Mostly of Scottish birth, these people were intensely religious and were loyal to the great Church of Scotland, so it was not surprising that when a call went forth, for one to minister to the spiritual needs of the young community, the plea was directed to the kindly officer of the Presbyterian church. One Rev. Robert Neill, was acting as assistant pastor of St. Andrew's church Kingston, at the time, having been only a short time in this country from his native Clyde. He heard the cry of a flock of souls thirsty for the wine of the word of God and signified his willingness to accept the call.

Was First Minister.

On January 29, 1840, the Rev. Robert Neill, afterward Dr. Neill, was formally ordained and inducted into the pastorate of Seymour, the ceremony taking place in a little log house on the farm of Mr. Allan on the English Line. This farm is now occupied by Mr. Edward Rannie. The following Sunday the new minister delivered his introductory sermon in the store on the same farm using a packing box for a pulpit, but his address lacked nothing of the zeal which always distinguished his pulpit work because of the meagre accommodations. During the same year Dr. Neill began preaching in West Seymour at the home of the late Walter Govan.

Meanwhile work was progressing on proper church accommodations. Thomas Kerr-Dear, owner of Lot 22 Concession 5, of the Township of Seymour, donated two acres of land for the church and cemetery. His grandson and granddaughter, Robert and Mary, still keep the farm in the time-honored family name. Additional land was afterwards purchased from the same gentleman to provide the spacious church grounds now in use. Building was carried on apace and on November 15, 1840, the first Presbyterian church in Seymour, a commodious frame building, was opened for worship. Here, for many years, Dr. Neill carried on the business of proclaiming the Grace of God to the Christian settlers who braved every sort of hardship to come to the hour of worship every Sabbath Day. Then the roads were merely blazed trails through the forest, with many streams to ford and the wayfarer at night often heard the mournful howl of the wolf as he passed along.

These hardships of the trail did not deter Dr. Neill in his great work and he courageously carried on the work of several ministers until churches were eventually established at Campbellford, Warkworth and Stirling which gave him more time to devote to his flock at Burnbrae or Seymour as the congregation is technically designated.

In 1851 Dr. Neill married the daughter of the Rev. Dr. Urquhart, of Cornwall and a family of ten children blessed the union. During the early years of his ministry, his home was burned and a substantial stone manse was erected which served admirably for this purpose until about ten years ago.

Church Replaced.

In 1866 the original church was replaced with a larger stone structure which had a seating capacity of more than four hundred people. The first anniversary celebration of which there is any record was that held on January 29, 1880, being the fortieth anniversary of the ordination of Dr. Neill into the charge of Seymour. During the course of his remarks on that occasion, Dr. Neill stated that only two members of the congregation who signed his call were alive and still connected with the church. A poem composed by Miss Machar, of Kingston, which was read at this celebration, is worthy of notice

Forty years of loving pastoral labor,
Mid the summer's heat and winter's snow
'Tis not often in this life uncertain,
Flow like these so pure and hallowed grow

Forty years of preaching to the living,
Winning them to seek the narrow way,
Ministering gently to the dying,
Pointing onward to the endless day.

Placing softly on the baby foreheads,
Christ's own tender purifying sign,
Showing forth his tender love for sinners,
In the sacramental bread and wine.

Forty years of caring for the children
Leading lambs into the Master's fold
Guiding wayward hearts to life eternal,
Through the wisdom that can ne'er grow old.

Making light to shine in shady places,
Healing wounded hearts with Heaven's own balm,
Teaching how when troubles' tempest rages
Christ can bid the tossing waves go calm.

Forty years of mingled joy and sorrow
(For what son the father chastens not!)
Wave the chain that binds the flock and pastor,
With a thousand precious links inwrought.

Forty years' may He who led His people
Through the desert to the Promised Land,
Guide the pastor and his flock together,
With the leading of His gentle hand.

And when life's pilgrimage is over,
All his loved sheep may the shepherd see,
In the City where no temple standeth,
And the Lord, Himself, its light shall be.

Not for five more years did the Rev. Dr. Neill feel forced to relinquish his loved labor, although he was assisted at times by the Rev. Mr. McLeod and Rev. Mr. Mills. When the strain of age finally forced him to hand over his flock to other care, he had the joy of seeing his son-in-law, Rev. Jacob Steele, installed as pastor of the congregation.

In January, 1890, just fifty years from the date of his ordination, the Rev. Dr. Neill, at the age of eighty-seven years, was laid to rest beneath the site of the first pulpit. As expressed so beautifully in an obituary notice of the Canada Presbyterian, "His mortal remains were interred on the site of his first pulpit to await that resurrection to which he had so often directed the hearts of his people."

Two Churches Linked.

The Rev. Mr. Steele carried on the good work for several years and was eventually succeeded by the Rev. John Moore, who for more than thirteen years faithfully preached the Divine Message to an ever-increasing congregation. Prior to Rev. Mr. Moore's term of office, the Seymour charge was linked with the newly-founded congregation at Rylstone and these two churches were served by the same pastors until five years ago.

This meant a great amount of travel to cover the work of the two congregations, but Rev. Mr. Moore endeared himself to the members of both charges by his zeal and kindly interest. Shortly after Rev. Mr. Moore began to serve at Burnbrae, the church was remodelled and an up-to-date basement put under the main auditorium.

Struck by Lightning.

Misfortune, however, dogged the footsteps of the congregation for in the morning hours of April 19, 1896, a bolt of lightning started fire in the church steeple. Volunteers heroically tried to cut down the burning pillar and so save the church, but just as success seemed within their grasp, a gust of wind hurled the loosened steeple upon the church roof and the whole building was soon in flames. By dint of hard labor practically all of the church furniture was saved and many of the furnishings of the present church are those which survived the fire.

In the fall of 1896, the present church building was opened and it is indeed a credit to the congregation and community. It is of brick construction with metal roof and the architectural design is very pleasing to the eye. The bell is one of the finest in the land and its exquisite tones are a part of the service rather than a call to worship.

Following Rev. Mr. Moore, the congregation was ministered to by the Rev. J. E. Smith for a period of seven years and then just before the war period the Rev. C. C. Salisbury took charge. It was during his ministry that the seventy-fifth anniversary was most fittingly celebrated, the Sunday services being taken by the Rev. John Moore, then situated at Springbank, while on the following evening large crowds braved the snow-bound roads to enjoy a most magnificent fowl supper and entertainment when the history of the congregation was sketched by the Rev. Mr. Salisbury.

In 1918 a call was extended to the Rev J. J. Black, a student from Queen's and a real Old Country Scotchman by birth, but with a true Canadian perspective. Under his able management the congregation prospered through the trying after-the-war days and when he left to take up work in Orillia, the Rev. Donald A. McKenzie, the present pastor, was called.

Present Pastor Inducted.

On October 12, 1924, the Rev. Donald A. McKenzie was inducted to this honored position and continues to guide the destinies of the congregation.

Thus, of the ministers who have served the Seymour group so well and faithfully, four have gone to their reward, Rev. Dr. Neill, Rev. Mr. Steele, Rev. J. McLeod, who was tragically killed while helping to erect his church at Vankleek Hill, and the Rev. J. E. Smith who passed away recently, while on organization work in the Western Provinces. The memory of these dear, departed leaders will always be near during the days of the Nineteenth Anniversary proceedings and the glorious history which they handed down is indelibly printed on the pages of time.

The Rev. John Moore is now retired and living in Strathroy, Ont., and frequently visits his old-time friends here, retaining much of his former vigor. Rev. Mr. Mills is in the West, while Rev. C. C. Salisbury is a resident of Quebec Province. Rev. J. J. Black is now pastor of Collier Street United Church, Barrie, and Rev. Robert Fry, who supplied for six months during Rev. Mr. Black's post-graduate course in Chicago, is situated at Amherst Island.

Finest in Rural Ontario.

It is generally believed that the church property pertaining to St. Andrew's Church, Seymour East, is about the finest in rural Ontario. Wide awake and energetic managing boards, given assistance by a wise and equally energetic Ladies' Aid, have from time to time made improvements in the grounds and sheds, built new fences, and on two occasions have completely redecorated the auditorium of the church. Two commodious sheds are available, one completely enclosed for winter use. The old picket fences have been completely replaced by iron and wire.

The cemetery, in charge of a special committee, and under the capable management of George Craighead, caretaker for the congregation, is one of the beauty-spots of Central Ontario, as well as being a spot of hallowed memory. The names upon the handsome and costly tombstones conjure up visions of men, mighty in every walk of life, many of whom helped to hew a peaceful and prosperous community out of a dense wilderness, and in so doing never forgot the Creator of mankind who was their strength and mainstay in trying days.

Latest Achievement.

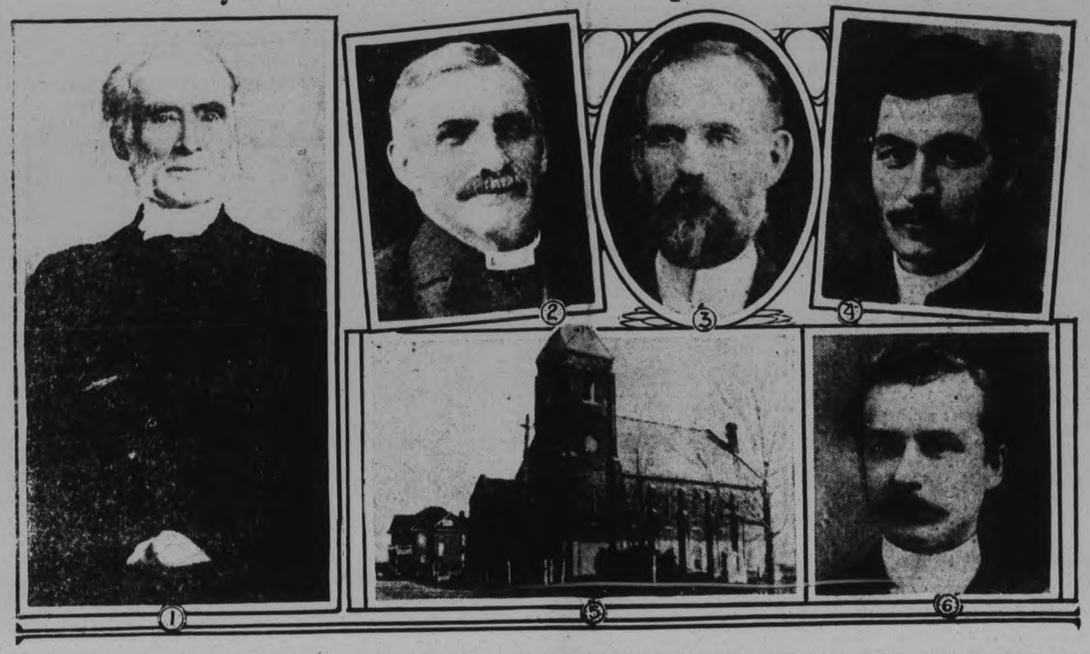
The latest and most notable achievement of the congregation in regard to property is seen in the handsome new manse which stands just east of the church and almost in its shadow. It was erected about ten years ago at considerable expense, but by careful planning that debt has been long wiped off the books. The new manse is modern in every respect and is electrically equipped throughout, as are all the buildings, including the church.

Nineteenth Anniversary.

It is confidently expected that record crowds will attend the anniversary services on Sunday, Oct. 26, when Rev. Dr. Seymour, of Belleville, will deliver the addresses of commemoration.

On the Tuesday evening following a feast will be held. Burnbrae has long been renowned for fowl suppers, but all will be surpassed in celebrating the ninetieth anniversary of the beginning of public worship in Seymour.

Presbyterian Ministers Who Have Occupied Burnbrae Pulpit



On Sunday next, October 26, the Presbyterian congregation at Burnbrae, or East Seymour, will celebrate its ninetieth anniversary. The congregation was established in 1840 by Scotch immigrants, many of whom were retired army officers. The above layout shows: (1) Rev. Dr. Neill, the first minister of the congregation and who ministered to its spiritual needs for 45 years; (2) Rev. J. E. Smith, a former minister; (3) Rev. John Moore, another former minister; (4) Rev. Jacob Steele, son-in-law of Rev. Dr. Neill, and the immediate successor of his father-in-law; (5) the present church building with the manse in the background, and (6) Rev. D. A. McKenzie, B.A., the present minister, who was inducted on October 12, 1924. Two other ministers, Rev. C. C. Salisbury and Rev. J. J. Black, who it was unable to show above, are included amongst the seven ministers who have ministered to the congregation since the church was formed.

To Speak on Peace

Brig.-General Frank Crozier, who has fought for England on every front imaginable and has more citations that he can count, has arrived on these shores to lecture throughout the continent on the subject of "Peace."

HE CAME HOME TO DIE, BUT DIDN'T

His uncle, a physician, prescribed Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

"I didn't 'go west' in France, but came home to Canada carrying my death-warrant, the doctor declared. I weighed exactly 170 pounds—not much for a six-footer. Look at me now! 185, and as hard as nails!"

The speaker (name if requested) was a young Canadian who served overseas with the Royal Flying Corps, and returned in 1918 a mere shadow of a man. His uncle, a prominent doctor, suggested Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. After one month's trial, he felt better. He persevered, and in three months was back at his position, healthy and happy.

The best part of the story is: his health has lasted as only health gained in a natural manner can last. He is still holding his strenuous position as editor of a successful publication.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will relieve constipation and the chain of ills that arise from it, permanently and naturally, if eaten regularly. Eat at least two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases at every meal. ALL-BRAN can conquer constipation.

Made in London, Canada. For sale at all dealers.

C.P.R. OFFICIALS PROMISE CHANGE IN TRAIN SERVICE

Local Leaving Here at 7.35 May Leave Earlier and Be Speeded Up.

THE OTTAWA SLEEPER.

Officials Are Very Sympathetic to Chamber of Commerce Proposals.

Following a conference yesterday afternoon with representatives of the executive of the Chamber of Commerce and the Manufacturers' Association, W. Fulton, Assistant Passenger Agent, and H. C. Grout, General Superintendent of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, promised certain changes in the passenger train schedule to offset recent changes made which were not considered advantageous to this city.

The suggested changes provide that the local leaving here at 7.35 a.m. for Toronto, may leave at 7.15 a.m. and be speeded up so as to arrive in Toronto at 9.45 as compared with the present time of arrival which is 10.25, thus permitting of better business and shopping hours in Toronto.

To accommodate week-end visitors to this city, the Sunday afternoon local may be changed so as to leave Peterborough at 5.40 p.m., arriving at Toronto on a speeded schedule. At present this train leaves at 3.20 p.m.

The Ottawa "sleeper" which has recently been taken off the 11.32 p.m. train, may be resumed, but put on a train arriving from Toronto here at 12.05 midnight. At present, under the schedule which has recently gone into operation, passengers desirous of taking a sleeper to Ottawa are obliged to wait until the 1.50 train.

The C.P.R. officials were very sympathetic with the committee's proposals and stated that they had often disagreed with changes made by the operations department, which they felt would not suit Peterborough.

The committee also took up with the company's officials the question of the two early morning trains from Montreal and Ottawa, passing through here at 4.35 and 4.55 a.m. respectively. It was pointed out that these trains were of little benefit to Peterborough travelling public. The company's representatives said that owing to congested conditions at Toronto Union station they could not promise any changes in this connection.

COMPANY MANAGER APPRECIATED ACTION OF THE LOCAL CHAMBER

Letter of Thanks From J. H. Vernor Read at Wednesday Meeting.

WHITBY SIGN REMOVED

A letter of appreciation from J. H. Vernor, manager of the Western Clock Company, was read at Wednesday night's meeting of the executive council of the Chamber of Commerce, in connection with the Chamber's recent correspondence with Premier R. B. Bennett and the Department of Trade and Commerce relative to the need of increased protection on clocks. Mr. Vernor stated in his communication, that as a result of the Chambers activity in the matter he had received from the Minister of National Revenue a promise that immediate action would be taken.

The Chamber has made similar representations to the Government on behalf of the Canada Crayon Company, although the outcome of these recommendations is still in doubt.

It will be recalled that in connection with the Western Clock Company's complaints against the tariff rates, the Chamber of Commerce fully supported the representations made to the Government by the City Council and E. A. Peck, M.P.

Sign Removed

It was reported at the meeting that the sign at Whitby which directed Peterborough traffic via Lindsay, instead of by the more direct route over highway 2 had been removed.

Correspondence was also read from the traffic manager of the Canadian National Railway Company, in which he stated that it was found impossible for the company at this time, to make a reduction of 50 cents per ton on coal freight rates. The matter was referred to the transportation committee for further action.

A letter was read from the Chamber of Commerce at Brockville and Belleville and Gananoque Tourist Bureau, respecting the proposed traffic bridge over the St. Lawrence, east of Kingston. The executive was in favor of the proposal and resolutions are to be sent to the Federal Government on the subject.

J. R. Marshall presented the report of the Public Affairs Committee meeting held on October 3rd.

Extend Boundaries

The desirability of extending Peterborough's boundaries so as to include a number of suburbs was discussed by the committee. It was decided that the executive council be asked to give consideration to this matter with a view to preparing a definite proposal for submission to the City Council.

The question of an increased duty on peas was discussed at some length. It was pointed out that imports of peas and canned peas were extensive and that the duty on exports from Canada to the United States had been raised since 1922 to $1.05 per bushel, whereas the import duty remained at 15 cents per bushel. It was decided that Mr. Matthews, Mr. Dewart and the secretary prepare a resolution to be forwarded to the Minister of National Revenue, pressing for adequate import duty in order to retain the Canadian market at a fair price for the Canadian consumer.

Our Mail

Conducted by ANNE WILCOX

Dear Anne:

I was glad to see three letters in Our Mail this evening and particularly glad to see one from Ad Nauseam but so sorry to hear she had been so sick and that she had written her letter in great weakness, and as I am one who she so kindly mentions as having written words which helped her, I am hastening to her side once more and though she may not actually see me standing or sitting at her bedside I am really there in spirit and the sympathy I feel for her is not mine (for in my flesh dwells no good thing) bu that which comes from the heart of the Saviour who is Love itself.

Yes, dear Ad Nauseam, I would even break through the non de plume and come and see you but then you might be very disappointed in me if you actually saw me, as I am over middle age and it is not so easy for me to talk as to write unless I feel I have a person's confidence and good will; also I belong to the ordinary walks of life and a person would have to look beyond what I may not have as far as wealth is concerned to what I aspire to be and to do.

I am sorry dear friends that you have looked for letters which have not appeared with the exception of Quid Est this made me look back in my diary to see when I last wrote to Anne. I found it was on September 5 and that it appeared in the paper on Sept. 16 but no doubt you were in the hospital then and too ill to read.

Just as I was drawing through my mind what to give you from the precious Word, these lines flowed into my mind, comforting words, uttered by the Lord Hinself, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled neither let it be afraid," John 14:27. What rest is in those Divine words, knowing who spoke them and His words as He truly said—they are spirit and they are life.

I leave these words with you dear suffering friends and if they fall into good ground, prepared as I believe it has been they will bring forth fruit to the glory of His Name and to Him be the praise as He is the Sower.

Hoping you will soon be stronger, hoping to see other letters also which will both cheer you and Anne also, who against hope has believed in hope and I trust will get her reward for faithfulness.

Yours very truly,
WATER-LILY.

That was splendid of you Water-Lily to respond to Ad Nauseam's request so quickly. We all hope she will be soon strong again and able to enjoy our page.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

Homing Hearts.

How well to go a-wandering
When Earth is all aglow with Spring;
When bluebird, robin, linnet, jay,
Keep up a ceaseless roundelay,
And every budding blossom brings
Fresh hints of life's deep-flowing springs!

But after Summer's beauty wanes
And snow lies over fields and lanes,
When every song-bird seeks the sun
And every rose's day is done,
Then gladly homing hearts return
To where the hearth-fires brightly burn.

Gone, gone are Springtime's witching lures,
But still the hearth-fire's charm endures,
And as the north-wind sweeps the Earth
Then homing hearts taste joy and mirth,
For after other wiles are spent
Most truly then they know content.

CHRIST CHURCH Y.P. STAGE MOCK TRIAL

Weekly Meeting of Campbellford Society Proves Full of Fun.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 24 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—Fun and merriment were rife on Wednesday evening in the Parish Hall when Miss Bessie Baker was brought up for trial at the Christ Church Young People's Club's weekly meeting, for theft of a horse.

The mock trial was carried on in regular order with judge, jury and lawyers, and a bountiful supply of witnesses. Even though some of the evidence submitted was contradictory, it was very evident that the horse Jess, the property of a Campbellford resident, was stolen; but the charges of cruelty and reckless driving were hard to prove. Nor was it certain whether a cart was attached to the horse or not. However, the prisoner was found not guilty, the foreman of the jury basing his decision on the fact that one of the jurymen had fallen in love with the prisoner and the others were in sympathy with their colleague.

The meeting next Wednesday will take the form of the annual Hallowe'en masquerade dance. A good time is expected, as this function has always proved very successful. The Excelsior orchestra from Hastings will supply the music and a cafeteria lunch will be served.

Firemen Get Burns At Blaze In Bakery

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 24 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—While helding to extinguish a fire that broke out in Stover's bakery, Campbellford, early Thursday morning, the assistant fire chief, C. B. Williams, was severely scalded with burning fat.

The call was received at six a.m., and in response the Campbellford fire company rushed to the bakery to find that fat that was to be used for the making of doughnuts had caught fire, and while helping to extinguish the blaze, Williams received burns on one leg and foot and on the back of the neck.

DOGS ATTACK SHEEP FLOCKS

Two Roseneath District Farmers Have Eleven Slain By Killers.

MANY OTHERS WORRIED.

ROSENEATH, Oct. 24.—(Examiner Correspondence.)— Sheep killing dogs are playing havor in the township. Two dogs were seen in the flock belonging to Frank Dowler, but got away before any one could catch them, after worrying seven sheep. Four of these had to be killed as they were badly torn; three others of his flock may live. Cephas Linton had his flock attacked and it was necessary to destroy seven of his best sheep and three were worried but may live. This means a great loss to farmers at this time of year, and it is hoped the owners of the dogs will consider what harm and mischief can be done by such animals.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

FRESH AIR IS LIFE ITSELF.

As most of us have to live indoors a good part of the year I often wonder as a people we do not give more thought to our indoor life. We think about our food and see that the air in home, office, or factory is kept warm, but that is about as far as we go.

And yet it is the air we are breathing indoors that practically governs our whole life—physically, mentally and even morally.

The bright sunlight is kept out by curtains, blinds, or shutters as wall paper and carpets would otherwise soon begin to fade.

Windows are not opened very much during cool weather because it does seem foolish to be heating the outdoor air.

What happens?

The air outdoors has the benefit of the sun's rays upon it, and some of this outdoor air should be coming in all the time.

Further, the outdoor air has more moisture in it than the indoor air, and this moist air is needed for the comfort of the skin, nose, and throat. The air in cool weather has naturally less moisture in it than during the warm weather, and the heat of the home soon dries out the moisture from the air in the room. You can thus see the sense of moistening the air of the home during the cool weather, by pans of water or by the use of the special receptacles that hang behind the radiators.

And the other point is that the air should be kept moving, should not be allowed to stagnate.

We rather smile at the old-fashioned method of heating by grates or open fireplaces. They are certainly an expensive way of heating, but they do one big thing for the health in that drawing the air toward them and up the chimney they keep it moving; no chance to stagnate.

If the outside air can get into the home, office, or factory, can be heated gradually, and then leave slowly and gradually by windows or even open fireplaces, a greater measure of health will be enjoyed.

Of course, where large crowds congregate the air becomes not only too hot, but too moist, and this affects health adversely.

Bad air, or stale air reduces your desire for mental or physical work.

The big thing then for health is 'moving' air, which not only brings fresh pure air, but breaks up the envelope of bad air that surrounds your body when the air is still.

A charming little tea-room in the Ladies' Parlor of the Parish House of St. John's, was a feature of the Autumn Fair held there yesterday under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary of the church. Decorations, which were in the very capable hands of the Women's Friendly Bible Class, were in the Hallowe'en manner. Orange and black were the keynotes. Bright orange shades with dangling black cats were over the electroliers and a fringe of smiling black pussies decorated the wall. A big orange moon smiled over the mantelpiece and there were pumpkins and autumn leaves and foliage in the windows. Tea was poured by Mrs. F. M. Dela Fosse, assisted by Mrs. Jamese Lundy, Mrs. A. Pink and Mrs. G. Melton. The tea room was in charge of Mrs H. A. Morrow and Mrs R. Denne.

Mr. Robert H. Henderson, formerly of the Fred A. Clarke Fur Store, of this city, was in Peterborough yesterday, renewing old acquaintances. This is Mr. Henderson's first visit to the city in twenty-five years and he was much impressed with the changes for the better that he observed here. He will be remembered as an old member of the Echo Camp, a very lively organization of a quarter of a century ago. Mr. Henderson, who was overseas, is now living in Toronto.

Mrs. B. L. Barns lent her charming home on Gilmour Street for a tea held there on Thursday afternoon under the auspices of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's church. Mrs. Barns was assisted in receiving the ladies by Mrs. C. V. McLean. The ladies were ushered into the tea-room by Mrs. B. Stacey, where the table was very attractively arranged with orange candles in silver holders, and a large centre of calendulas contrasted delightfully with the green cover. Tea was poured by Miss F. Dixon and Miss A. Lancaster assisted by the Misses Isobel Weddell, Margaret Allison, Jean McKone. Mrs. R. E. Wemp and Mrs. Nelson had charge of the home-made cooking and other assistants were Mesdames F. Saltman and E. Humpage, Mrs. P. Allison acted as treasurer.

The opening of "Walkerfield House" on the Port Hope Highway, at the end of the newly-constructed pavement from Gilmour street, was an interesting event of Wednesday afternoon, when a large number of ladies came in during the tea hour. The large, handsome rooms were arranged in a color scheme of blue and gold, with yellow marigolds in low blue bowls and yellow candles in blue candlesticks. Lighted floor lamps and lighted grate fires added their note of cosiness to the interior. Tea was served at little individual tables, many of which had been reserved, placed in the entrance hall and the large drawing-room, which have been converted into a lounge, the back drawing-room and the dining-room. The big house is thrown open to the public for the purpose of holding teas, bridges, luncheons, dinners and suppers. Tables may be reserved at any time for teas, small or large, bridges and other social functions. The handsome rooms afford an ideal setting for the purpose, with their dignified furnishings, the gay chintzes in the big entrance hall, the interesting pictures and the cosy warmth of lighted grates in every room. The cuisine is splendid, in charge of Mrs. Florence Roy, well known by members of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club. The daintiest of meals and catering may be depended upon, under her supervision. The venture is one that is welcomed among a large number. Owing to a late installation of the telephone, the number is not included in the latest issue of the 'phone directory. It is 127.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Many young couples are now returning from their honeymoons and are about to settle down.

• • • • • • •

And this period of adjustment to one another's habits and methods of living are of vital importance. The honeymoon atmosphere prevails during the early period.

• • • • • • •

This is when the young bride exerts herself to do what her husband likes. She wears the frock he likes best and listens attentively to whatever he says and he in turn revels in the delights of a new home and does his part to entertain his bride.

• • • • • • •

And during this time there seems to be no effort to hold one another's interest. Each has his or her thoughts regarding the charms and ability of the other and this attitude is reflected in looks and words.

• • • • • • •

Then later on opinions begin to differ a little, but there is nothing wrong with this because neither should agree entirely with the other.

• • • • • • •

It is much better when each has ideas of his own, because conversation then becomes much more interesting.

• • • • • • •

If each would only keep an open mind and be willing to see the other's point of view, even though not agreeing unless truly convinced, much unhappiness would be averted.

• • • • • • •

Don't be afraid to give your opinions and your point of view. It is your privilege, so why not exercise it? Then if you are fully convinced, you can change your mind and agree.

• • • • • • •

Very very often both husband and wife are stubborn, as it were, and will not lay to see the other's point of view. Each strives to force the agreement, maintaining he or she is correct.

• • • • • • •

Then instead of dropping the subject when there is a deadlock of opinions, they argue and argue. And a troubled expression continued after an argument proves irritating, indeed, doesn't it?

• • • • • • •

Oftentimes there are clashes of will and disquieting moments when the other appears to lack the perfection with which he or she was viewed by the other.

• • • • • • •

At first these trivial matters will not alter the deep current of love, but they will change it, if permitted to do so. The friction of rubbing up against the other's ideas is beneficial to a certain degree.

• • • • • • •

It smooths out the ill-humor in one's mind and enlarges the mental vision, if not permitted to go too far!

• • • • • • •

Those who are married and have taken life right, with all its seriousness and humor, have done much and a great many of them have lovely characters.

• • • • • • •

Perfection may continue, but oftentimes it doesn't, but we must not expect too much. Everyone has his or her faults—none of us are perfect—but we can overlook each other's faults, and be agreeable.

"The Little Helpers" Hold Annual Party

Jolly Social Event Held in Basement of St. George's Anglican Church.

The Little Helpers of the Font Roll of St. George's Church, with their mothers, were entertained for their annual party yesterday afternoon in the church basement. There was a good attendance of "babies" ranging in age from four months to six years, and besides the mothers there were also four grandmothers present.

A hymn and short form of service was used as an opening, this being taken by Rev. J. L. Hughes, rector. The children brought in their mite-boxes, containing their annual contribution, these realizing a very satisfactory amount. An enjoyable time was spent in friendly intercourse, many of the Little Helpers amusing themselves playing with toys.

Dainty refreshments were served by a committee of ladies of the Senior Branch of the W. A., composed of Mrs. E. Tucker, president; Mrs. F. Dorrell, secretary for Little Helpers; Mrs. H. Wood, and Mrs. Hughes.

PATRIARCH, 73, BRINGS WIFE AND 9 CHILDREN TO THE U.S.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—"Ich bin ihren vater."

Jakob Neufeld, patriarch of the Angel Island immigrant colony, proudly indicated his nine "kinder" and exclaimed:

"I am their father."

And the 73-year-old Russian-German is soon to become a father for the fourteenth time. He has four older children by a previous marriage.

With Mrs. Helena Neufeld, mother-er of the brood of nine, he arrived Friday on the NYK liner Asama Maru from Harbin. For a year and a half the family has waited at Harbin to come to this country.

Their home was in Berdiansk, Russia. Descendent of German forefathers, Neufeld and his children still speak the language of their ancestors.

New they have arrived in the new land, only to face the law's delay, in the matter of medical certificates which must be carefully examined. The hearing was under way yesterday, under the direction of Immigration Commissioner John D. Nagle and Assistant Commissioner Edward L. Haff.

The Neufeld family is en route to Reedley, where they plan to join the Mennonite colony. An older son of the patriarch Jakob awaits them there.

The younger nine range in age from 3 to 20. They are Jakob, 20; Johann, 17; Heinrich, 15; Helena, 14; Franz, 11;. Wilhelm, 9;. David,. 7; Abram, 4; Herman, 3. All are attractive children, bright and alert.

Helena, the only girl is pretty, and confessed she is anxious to exchange the shapeless blue frock and cotton hose she wears for American styles, and silk stockings.

MILLBROOK CHURCH ASSOCIATION ANNUAL SUPPER IS HUGE SUCCESS

Six Hundred People Sit Down at Sumptuous Banquet Table.

GOOD PROGRAM.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 24. (Examiner Correspondence.)—The annual fowl supper, under the auspices of the Ladies' Association of Saint Andrew's United Church, held on Tuesday, October 21, beginning at 5 p.m., was attended by approximately six hundred people, with total receipts reaching a sum but little below four hundred dollars.

In spite of weather that was not any two promising carloads of people, coming from Oshawa, Bowmanville, Peterborough, Cobourg, Port Hope and many intervening points, arrived at the church in increasing numbers from the opening hour when the dinner began to be served, until the hands of the clock were moving toward nine, it appeared the appetites of all comers had been fully satisfied.

The basement of the church was very attractive with orange and black, reminiscent of the approaching Hallowe'en season, emphasized in the color scheme. Streamers of orange and black, with green vine intertwined, were draped between the pillars; shades for the lights were in the same colors, as were also the runners centreing the three long tables. Hallowed-out pumpkins, filled with bright-hued foliage, dark-centred daisies, and marigolds, alternating with lighted candles in silver or brass holders, were used as decorations for the supper tables, that fairly groaned beneath the load of toothsome viands with which they were laden.

Mrs. C. C. Garside, president of the Ladies' Association, had a general and capable oversight of the entire proceedings, and was ably assisted by the small army of helpers required for so large an undertaking, several of the men of the church, as well as the women, serving in various capacities in order that every 'post of duty', kitchen, pantry, section specially devoted to the carving of the big baskets of fowl, and attendance at the tables might be fully supplied.

Good Program.

The program which followed the supper was provided by the choir of Trinity United Church, Peterborough, under the leadership of Miss Mabel Clarry, and was of such excellence it is doubtful if the entertainment in connection with any previous fowl supper has been more attractively presented, or more generally approved.

The pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, B.A., B.D., acted as chairman and his usually happy manner extended greetings and welcome to the visiting singers and others assisting them, together with their organist and leader who is a former Millbrook girl, as well as to the large audience making up the gathering which is an annual feature in connection with the church's anniversary occasion.

Variety and interest featured the program throughout, the full choir of forty voices winning popular approval with its selections: "Soldiers of Christ Arise" (Arwater), the opening number: "Fear Ye Not O Israel" (Spicker), midway in the evening, and "Goin' Home" (Dvorak), most appropriately preceding the singing of the National Anthem, and dismissal by the pastor.

Solos by Miss Isabel Black, "The Same Old, Dear Old Place", and by Miss Blanche Clegg, "To You", brought forth an insistent demand for an encore in each case, the former giving "The Little Pink Rose in My Garden", as her recall number, and the latter, "In the Garden of Your Heart."

Violin solos by Stanley Northrop, A.T.C.M., with Mrs. Nichols accompanying, evidently made a strong appeal to the listeners, and recalls were demanded each time this gifted performer on what the chairman characterized as 'the king of instruments', appeared upon the platform.

As a variation in the musical selections, and cleverly holding the attention of ther listeners, Miss Gwen Parnell, received warm applause for her readings, "Friday afternoon in a Primary School" with "A Piece of Cloth", as encore; and "Lavinsky at the Wedding", the recall this time being, "Grandfather's Love."

Master Orville Wainman, silver medalist at the C.N.E. musical competition this year, and also at the recent Kiwanis Festival in Peterborough, won all hearts with his clear sweet voice as he sang, "Come Down to Kew", and in response to the insistent applause, "The Big Brown Bear".

The duet, "In the Starlight", by Mrs. Richmond and Miss M. Wolstenholme, was one of the outstanding numbers on a most enjoyable program, the encore selection being, "Night of Stars and Night of Love". The same comment is true of the local duet from "Il Trovatore" (Verdi), by Miss Blanchard and Mr. Park, the only disappointment of the evening being found in the fact that these artists were not prepared to give a second selection the prolonged applause denoting the desire of the audience in this particular.

As a special favor, and in response to the request of the chairman who was but speaking for many others in the gathering, the choir sang "The Little Brown Church in the Wildwood", to the great delight of the listeners.

Voicing the appreciation of everyone present for the enjoyable program which had been provided, Mr. Jones asked for an expression 'from the floor of the house', and a prolonged outburst of applause testified to popular approval. Mr. R. F. Downey replied briefly on behalf of the choir, and Miss Clarry, promising a future visit 'when the invitation is extended and particularly if you promise us dinner'.

A sale of fowl, and baking, in the basement brought many ready purchasers, and practically everything was disposed of in the way of eatables before another year's activities so far as the fowl supper was concerned were brought to a successful close.

GET DRAMA AND STYLES AT NEW LONDON SHOWS

"Follow a Star" Sponsors Tight Bodice, Tucks and Muff.

PERIOD FROCKS STAY.

Model Dating Back to Jane Austen Features Taffeta Flounces and Bustle.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—The salon is not the only place to learn the latest modes; the stage is almost equally effective. Some of the new revues are as good as a fashion parade, and women theatre-goers have longer time to examine the details of costume.

In "Follow a Star" there is a charming gown of powder blue velvet ribbon over net. The tight bodice and hip yokes are composed of a series of horizontal tucks from which falls a full gathered skirt. It has the fashionable jewelled shoulder straps, and the design is repeated in a jewelled ornament on the bodice. The same actress, who is tall and slender, and can therefore carry the tucked mode, also weats a finely tucked afternoon gown of chiffon and lace, but in this the full skirt begins just above the knee. Her only ornament is a triple necklace of pearls, with a pearl clasp in the waist belt, and there is a muff to match gathered down the centre and at the sides.

The matron, too, will find here points to copy. Black and white, besides being more frequently seen than any other combination of colors, is very becoming to the not-so-young. This is the color scheme followed in Miss Sophie Tucker's white georgette frock with a wide black border and deep cuffs of black. The inevitable three-quarters coat in black georgette is moulded to the figure, drooping slightly at the back. White fox fur is used for collar, and cuffs and border. A touch of white on the black velvet hat completes the scheme.

Period Gowns Still Popular.

The craze for period frocks is not forgotten. It is prepresented in a floral chiffon dress, shading from sweet pea pink. A Victorian fichu is caught at the bodice with a posy of pink flowers, and the skirt billows in a fluff of tiny frills. Those who are planning a period gown for evening wear this winter are seeking inspiration from the historical plays which are running at several of the London theatres, Miss Gwen Frangcon-Davies wears two adaptable early Victorian dresses. One is apricot muslin with a wide sash, and the other is a magenta-purple taffeta, ornamented with a scroll design on skirt and bodice of narrow velvet bands in the same color.

Many of the dress designers now showing their creations in London, must have gone back to the old costume books for their new models. The prize of one show was a Jane Austen frock in cyclamen pink taffeta. The bodice, which was demurely draped across the front and the hips were quite close fitting. Below the hips came three taffeta flounces arranged apron-wise and forming a bustle at the back.

Frock Recalls 1850's.

Another prim little model with a high-pointed bodice in black taffeta had a circular yoke of ecru lace threaded through with narrow velvet ribbon. A modern touch, which somehow intensified the old-picture effect of the frock, were the separate sleeves of the frock, in lace fitting round the elbow in a close ruche and opening upwards like a water-lily cup.

A frock recalling the 1830's achieved a polonaise effect by stiffened spring-green taffeta over an underslip of white organdie. A similar period revival is black corded silk which gives the impression of rich dignity our great-grandmothers cultivated and which is made up into the wide balloon skirts worn in those years.

One fashions house is naming its models after the characters they represent, "Queen Anne" was an entirely unadorned gown in black velvet, trailing on the ground, perfect in its simplicity. A skirt of elegant brocade with a deep gray velvet coat-bodice carried the title "Catherine Parr", and "Henrietta" described a somewhat similar model with billowing skirt of rose and silver brocade, and the coat-bodice, clipped to the waist, of cyclamen velvet, carrying a high Medici collar of wired lace. A very high waist and Medici collar characterized the "Josephine" gown in brocade striped with gold and pink and green.

The popularity of period frocks directs the selection of winter fabrics now showing in the stores. Taffeta, velvet, brocade and various kinds of corded materials are well to the fore. And buttons in every shape and color are appearing on the season's frocks.

Coach Hughes May Bench Welch For Bengal Game

MOVE MAY BE RUSE TO FOOL BENGAL COACH

Strategy to Lead Rodden Away From His Plans of Having Tigers Crush Wheeler Formation.

VICTORY FOR ARGOS.

Interesting Battles Expected When All Four Intercollegiate Teams Tangle Over Week-end.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 24.—(CP)—Decision of Coach Bill Hughes to bench Hawley "Huck" Welch during Saturday's all-important tussle with Hamilton Tigers in Montreal is the main topic of conversation among Interprovincial union fais to-day. Of course Hughes' announcement may be mere strategy to lead Coach Mike Rodden away from his plans of having the Tiger tanks crush the Winged Wheelers kicking formation, or perhaps the Montrealers do not expect to be able to provide the protection Welch requires. The former Hamiltonian can boot the ball probably farther than any other half-back in the union, but owing to a trick knee requires a stout defense. He is also one of the fastest runners in football.

Both Tigers and the Winged Wheelers have concluded their week's strenuous training for the "Big Four" feature and indications point to a rousing battle.

The Montrealers, with the prestige of being the only team to beat the Bengals last year, will likely play inspired football, something they will need to do to down the best drilled team in Canadian football. Last year they had the fiery "Red" Moore on the half-line with Wally Whitty and Perry. His absence may make a difference in Saturday's tussle for otherwise the Winged Wheelers appear every bit as strong and a victory for them would stir up more interest in the Tiger dominated race.

Toronto Argos appear destined to score their second victory of the season when they entertain Ottawa Senators at Varsity stadium. The capital squad will be comprised for the most part of ambitious youngsters who however, hardly appear of sufficient class to trounce the Scullers, who have one victory to their credit over Montreal.

All four inter-collegiate teams concluded their training yesterday for Saturday's engagements which find University of Toronto facing the champions Queen's University, at Kingston, and McGill University and Western battling for their first win at London.

The Varsity-Queen's game in regarded more or less in the light of the season's blue ribbon event in intercollegiate circles. Both have emerged victorious in the two games played and as neither is particularly strong on the line an aerial duel is anticipated.

Varsity entrained today for Belleville where they will spend to-night in seclusion. It is expected a record crowd of more than 11,500 fans will watch the struggle.

Coaches Batstone of Queen's and Blackwell of Varsity, state their charges are in the best possible condition and though neither would predict victory, each expected his team to play the best game they have shown this season.

King Tut K. O.'s Townsend In Sixth Round

TOWNSEND FAILS TO GO DISTANCE

King Tut Stops Vancouver Boxer in the Sixth Round at Detroit.

PUTS UP GAME FIGHT.

DETROIT, Oct. 24. — King Tut, hard-hitting welterweight from Milwaukee, won on a technical knockout from Billy Townsend, Vancouver, in the sixth of a scheduled ten-round bout here last night. Tut weighed 142½. Townsend 141½.

Townsend put up a game bout but was on the losing end throughout the six rounds. His gameness is attested to by the fact that he was on the canvas in every round excepting the fourth, which he won by virtue of a brisk rally which had the curly-haired fighter in a bad way.

Although Tut was the master all the way he was by no means in a safe position for Townsend's occasional rallies consisted of stinging lefts and rights to the head, which repeatedly shook him up and forced him to back away.

Tut started out with a bang, sending a left to Billy's head 10 seconds after the bell opened the first round, and Townsend went down flat on his back and took an eight count.

Tut lost no time in following up his advantage and soon had Billy with his back to the ropes, but the latter survived this attack. Just before the bell, Tut shook Townsend with another of his hard lefts to the jaw.

In the second Townsend took a six count as a result of a right punch on the chin. He rallied slightly, however, and just before the bell he staggered Tut with a left and right.

After taking a nine count in the third, Townsend started a rally with a stinging right to Tut's head in the latter's corner. He followed up with lefts and rights in a desperate attempt to recover lost points.

The fourth was Townsend's best round. In this stanza he continued his rally and won the round with a barrage of lefts and rights which had Tut groggy several times.

Billy took another nine count on one knee in the fifth and was down twice more in the sixth before Tut's highly effective left caught him on the jaw again. It was this blow that ended the bout, for, after taking a count of seven, Townsend's seconds tossed in the towel.

LEAGUE LEADERS BATTLE SATURDAY

Stronger English and Scottish Soccer Teams Will Settle Differences Over Week-end.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 24.—(C.P.)—The first clash of teams who have set the early pace in English and Scottish soccer will come on Saturday. Most of the clubs in the various divisions who have shown strength to date are drawn against one another. In the English first division while Arsenal, the league leaders, are drawn at home against their fellow townsmen, West Ham United, Aston Villa runnersup, must play Leicester City on the latter's own grounds. Leicester City are fifth in thes tanding. The draw also brings together Derby County, the third club, and Sheffield Wednesday, in fourth position.

In the second division Preston North End, pace setters go to Bury and a tough struggle will result. Everton, who made a great showing until last Saturday, when they had to relinquish first position to Preston, are drawn against Tottenham Hotspurs. Both clubs are working hard to get back to the first division.

Lincoln City, leading the Northern section of the third division meet the runners-up, Chesterfield. Notts County, leaders of the Southern section, have an easier task in Gillingham.

In the Scottish first division Motherwell, unbeaten so far, stack up at home against Celtic and it will be the feature match of the fixtures north of the Tweed.

U. OF T. SCHOOLS CAPTURE TITLE

Defeat St. Michael's For Third Straight Time Decisively.

FINAL COUNT 25 TO 0.

TORONTO, Oct. 24.—The University of Toronto clinched the Intercollegiate junior title of the Western group by whipping St. Michael's College 25 to 0 in the third game of the four-game series on the back campus of the University yesterday afternoon. The Blue and White twelve completely outclassed the Saints in all three fixtures, winning by overwhelming scores to earn the right to play the winners of the Eastern group for the Eastern Canada junior championship. The Blues have piled up a total of 82 points against a single Irish counter.

From the start it was apparent that Coach Harry Bales's squad would win handily. The big freshmen team ripped through the St. Mike's line and within a minute of play Arnup was in a position to boot the first point. McNulty being given no chance to run the ball out. St. Michael's on the other hand were unable to cope with the terrific lineplunging of the oppositon or hold the clever Blue running halves, Leachman and Arnup. The latter was prominent for the winning team aggressively. He turned in some beautiful runs and kicked for four single points. Leachamn also occupied the spotlight with his open field running. He made a pretty field goal from a difficult angle and contributed two converts. Patterson and Watson were the chief Blue and White ground gainers through the line while Mustard's tackling was keen.

BOSTON, October 24 (C.P.).—A new young heavyweight from out of the West hurdled that dangerous stumbling block of all fighters' ambitions to reach the inner circle of championship contenders, by defeating Johnny Risko of Cleveland.

Dick Daniels of Minneapolis knocked the Cleveland baker down for the count of nine in the second round of a 10-round match here last night, then withstood Johnny's terrific comeback, and finally won on a foul in the seventh.

The Minneapolis boy, who was outweighed almost 13 pounds as he entered the ring at 185½, first surprised the crowd and the bounding Risko about equally by scoring a brief knockdown in the first round. Risko seemed dazed as he started the second round, and took a terrific right hook to the head. The referee reached nine in his count before Risko was on his feet again.

At the start of the third, however, Johnny gave Daniels a heavy beating with blows to the body and kept the barrage up until the end of the contest, although Daniels rallied to win the fifth round and was exchanging punches on even terms when Risko landed a clear low blow after having previously been warned.

CALDER CALLS N.H.L. MEETING

OVER WEEK-END.

MONTREAL, Oct. 24.—A meeting of managers, coaches, referees and other officials connected with the National Hockey League will be held here this week-end to discuss and reach an understanding on the N.H.L. rules, it was announced by President Frank Calder here last night. Arguments over the rules, and especially their interpretation, will be almost nullified, according to Mr. Calder, if the plan is successfully carried out. The conference is not to change any of the rules, it was pointed out, as the body which will meet has no power to do this, but to make clear to all concerned the meaning of the old rules and explain the changes made at last week's meeting of the governors in Toronto.

All the referees, as far as is known, and the mentors of the clubs, with the exception of Bill Tobin of the Black Hawks, will be present for the proposed meeting. Tobin is in Tower, Minn., with his squad, and his attendance would entail too long a journey and seriously inconvenience the team by the long break in the training period.

Youths Replace Vets On Senators' Line-up

OTTAWA, Oct. 24.—When the Senators line up against Argonauts at Toronto on Saturday, it will be a team composed largely of young players. Coach Andy Davis is determined to give every assistance to the inexperienced men on his squad and thus develop future Senators to take the place of the men who put Ottawa on the football map a few years ago. Eddie Emerson, the dean of Canadian football, who has played for Ottawa teams for an untold number of years, is out of the game for this season. Charlie Lynch is another who probably has laid aside his harness for this year, his ankles having gone bad on him again.

It is not expected Dave Harding will be able to take his place on the Ottawa backfield on Saturday. He still shows the effects of his recent car accident.

Rescuers Communicate With Trapped Trainmen

STEBENVILLE, Ohio, Oct. 23. — (C.P.).—Rescuers attempting to remove three trainmen trapped in a caboose by the cave-in of a tunnel at Adena, on the Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad, have established communication with Al Romando, one of the three, who told them he was held fast by a large boulder, but did not know if either of his companions was alive.

Rescuers said efforts to get a response from Jerry L. Sells and E. E. Duga, the other two victims, were unsuccessful, and it was believed both were dead.

Morenz Signs Contract For Two More Seasons

MONTREAL, Oct. 24.— Howie Morenz, cyclonic centre-ice player of Montreal Canadiens, Stanley Cup holders of the National Hockey League, yesterday signed a two-year contract with the club. The amount involved was not announced but both the player and Leo Dandurand, Secretary-Treasurer, said the terms were satisfactory.

Morenz entered professional hockey with Canadiens in 1923, and has ever since been one of the most dazzling stars in the game's firmament.

EX-LEADER TO REMAIN UNDER NEW MANAGER

New York American Owner to Keep Star Defense Man in the Club.

NEWCOMERS ON TEAM.

Crossett, a Defense Player From Port Hope, Trying Out With Spangled Regulars.

NEW YORK, Oct 24.—There is no disposition on the part of either Bill Dwyer, owner of the New York Americans hockey team, or Eddie Gerard, new manager of the star-spangled team, to get rid of Lionel Conacher. The big defense man, who has ranked for several years as one of the stars of the ice game, will be sent elsewhere only on his own insistence, or through his failure to play up to previous standards.

Such was the announcement made yesterday by Owner Dwyer as his players settle Down to preliminary training at Galt, Ont. It has been generally supposed, since the signing of Gerard to replace Conacher as manager, that the latter was on the trading block. It is the custom in hockey, as in other professional sports, to dispose of the former leader when another is signed.

Dwyer did not know yesterday whether Conacher had reported to Manager Gerard for practice. He has left it to the new manager to talk terms with Conacher, and any decision reached by the new leader of the star-spangled forces will be upheld by the owner of the club. Dwyer expressed the belief yesterday that Conacher would reach an agreement with Gerard and remain as one of the Americans.

Four Newcomers to Stay

Four newcomers who are sure to be retained are Red Dutton, veteran right defense of the Montreal Marcons, and the trio purchased from the Windsor Club of the International League. This group consists of Mike Neville at center, and Frank Carson and Happy Emms on the wings. These three add a lot of weight and power to the front line, where the Americans have been handicap for years by light players. Some hockey followers believe that this trio will make up the regular front line of the Americans.

Besides the seventeen players named above Manager Gerard will look over a few youngsters who are just turning pro. Now and then one of these amateurs comes along so fast after entering the pro ranks that some recognized veteran standby must give way.

Charley Conacher, of the Toronto Leafs, was able to step into the pro ranks and shine from the start. Eddie Convey who is getting his first professional tryout this week from the Americans, was a team-mate of the younger Conacher in the amateur ranks in Toronto. Other prominent amateurs who are to try for places with the Americans are Radley, a wingman from Ottawa; Crossett, a defense players from Port Hope, Ont., and Jack Murray, a goalie, from Brockville, Ont.

The Rangers also were scheluled to begin practice yesterday at Toronto. Manager Patrick will again rely on the Cook brothers and Frank Boucher for his front line with Ching Johnson and Bourgault heading the defense and John Ross Roach at goal. Thompson, Murdock, Quenneville, Vail and Taylor are back again and Patrick has two highly promising youngsters in Gordon Pettinger, a wingman from the Pacific Coast League, and Eddie Rodden, a wingman from London, Ont., who once was with the Chicago Blackhawks.

ROCKNE AND WARNER SYSTEMS OF FOOTBALL DOMINATE GAME

DOMINATE EVERY OFFENSE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—The genius of two men—Knute Rockne, of Notre Dame, and Glenn Warner, of Stanford—has converted the great pastime of football into two types of play, two systems of strategy, and these methods absolutely dominate the game today. This is the opinion of John F. "Chick" Meehan, New York University coach, a man who stands up with the leaders for originality, ability and the talent to inspire his teams.

"Football," says Meehan, "has come down to the Notre Dame system on the one side—the balanced line, shifting backs, and the Warner system on the other—unbalanced line, wing backs. With but three exceptions every offence in the country is based on one of these two plans."

He Ought To Know.

Meehan affirms it and Meehan ought to know. Short in stature, long in determination, quick in conception, Meehan has graduated from a famous Syracuse University quarterback to a gridiron instructor whose successes with New York University have established him on the national intercollegiate pigskin firmament. He arrived in New York in 1925 when the Violets were flowers who blushed with touchdowns unseen, but since that time his elevens have won thirty-nine contests, lost nine and tied three.

"Rockne has put deception, lateral passes, thrusts, speed into his attack," adds Meehan. "Warner into the unbalanced line has moulded power, fakes, guile, double and triple passes. Now show me any system and I'll prove it was derived from one or the other."

Somebody mentioned Yale.

"Yale is Warner," responded Chick, his sturdy figure alive with energy. "Unbalanced line, haven't they? Backs in 'Z' formation. Nothing to it."

Rockne Wants Acrobats.

"The Rockne system," Meehan went on, "requires acrobats for players. They must be clever, have poise. Warner builds on power and drive. Those are the fundamentals of the two systems. For myself I'm following Warner. Army is doing it this season. Last year it was Rockne."

"Strangely enough," the little giant of N.Y.U. proceeded, "the West Coast as a whole runs to the Notre Dame system, the East Coast goes for Warner, the South to Rockne. The Midwest, jealous of Knute, probably won't copy Rockne, so they follow Warner. However, Wisconsin, North-Western, and Purdue in the Big Ten are playing Rockne football."

Fielding Yost, of Michigan, Bob Zuppke, of Illinois, and Amos Alonzo Stagg, the eternal teacher of Chicago, are the three exceptions to the Warner-Rockne classification, according to Meehan.

"Zuppke uses all styles and says he starts where the others leave off. Stagg is beginning to talk about 'flank movements' and is losing plenty of games. Yost goes back to the kick formation, old as football itself."

Mel. Starr is Star

Donough's maple bouncers grabed six points from the hard working Condon crew in the Wednesday night league this week at the K. of C. alleys, the former having a noticeable edge on the losers during most of the fracas. Mel Starr was the outstanding performer, securing high single, 273.

Art Primeau and his team smothered Shaughnessy's outfit under an avalanche of pins to take eight points, which places them in second place in the standing there being three teams tied for the leadership. Primeau with a single of 270 was high.

The heavy hitting quintette captained by Kelbrick staged a merry battle with Kylie's aggregation taking six out of the eight points. Charlie McCoy and Leo Martyn toppled the pins for singles of 266 and 294 respectively. Art Malane with a single of 282 was the heaviest hitter on Hickey's team which lost six points to Pepe, due in a way to the fact that a dummy was scored. Tommy Cupoli knocked over 249 and 215 for the winners.

To date the writer has been unable to locate any one who is able to give a positive statement with regard to the exact score which is a record for team pinnage in the city, and any person who has any comments to make should address them to Pin Boy, care of this paper.

It is understood that the Western Clock Co. proposes to enter a team in the City League. There is no doubt but that this team would go a long way up the ladder if arrangements could be made to have "Spider" Martin on the sidelines at each game.

Sets New High Single

Ann Simpson set up a new high single record for this season in ladies' bowling at the Duffus Alleys this week by securing 281 in a league game against the Winding Dept. in the C.G.E. Shop League. Eva Hughes bowling on the same team piled up 230 in one game being second highest. Other outstanding scores made this week in the same league are as follows: M. Creighton, 193-202; G. Langton, 199 and 196; M Todd, 208.

P.C.I. PRIMED FOR THE FRAY

Garnet and Grey Gridders All Set For Saturday's Battle With Cobourg.

AT STEVENSON PARK.

Their heavy training for the week over, the P.C.I. Senior gridders are reported as fit and eager for to-morrow's clash with Cobourg. The team came through their heavy scrimmages this week without a casualty and with the exception of Breckenright who is nursing a sprained wrist, the entire squad is primed for the fray.

Coach Legon is quite optimistic concerning the outcome of to-morrow's game, having every confidence in the team that has held the Dr. Neal Trophy for the past two years, and fully expects his entry to be on top when the final whistle sounds.

A light signal practice is called for this afternoon, when the boys will get their final instructions and the starting line-up announced.

To-morrow's battle is most important, for the Garnet and Grey team, inasmuch as a loss would seriously cramp their chances of winning the group without a playoff, while it would put Cobourg in the driver's seat, one game up on the Petes, with the return game the next week on their own lot.

The Lakeshore entry is reported as being a fast and shifty crew, with plenty of weight along the wing line, but the local squad has high hopes of defeating them and gaining a strangle-hold on first place.

Probable Line-up

The probable starting line-up, with the players' numbers, is as follows:—
Outside—Wagar, 11; Ward, 16.
Middle—Armstrong, 1; Lord, 15.
Inside—Clayton, 10; Waddell, 7.
Snap—Macdonald, 2.
Quarter—Preston, 12.
Flying wing—Dunkerley, 3; Mackey, 5.
Halves—Young, 14; Richardson, 9.
Alternates—Gordon, 6; Fraser, 4; Sloane, 8; Breckenridge, 13, Dinneson.

The game is called for 2.30 p.m. at James Stevenson Park, and will be handled by Laurie Wallace, Toronto.

CLOSED SEASON STILL EXISTS.

TORONTO, Ont., October 24 (C. P.). — Despite considerable agitation from Northern Ontario sportsmen for an open season for partridge closed seasons for both partridge and quail have been announced by Hon Charles McCrea, Ontario Minister of Mines and Fisheries. There is a possibility the request may be allowed in 1931.

INITIAL PRACTICE MALE VOICE CHOIR

Second Practice of Winter Season Will Be Held Next Wednesday in Paragon Hall.

The initial practice of Peterborough Male Voice Choir, of which W. F. Skitch is this year the president, was held in the Paragon Hall on Tuesday evening, with about forty members present, old and new. A short business session was held, followed by a rehearsal, which was enjoyed, and set the 1930-1931 season off to a good start.

Next week's practice will be held on Wednesday, in the same hall, and it is hoped the attendance will be increased considerably, so that the new music, which promises to be of a high standard, will be rehearsed with all sections well represented. Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., is again the choir conductor.

Hotels, gambling casinos, public baths and other buildings to be erected at the new health resort at Loutraki, Greece, will cost $2,000,000.

AT THE GRAND

THE DUMBELLS

Captain Plunkett has secured many of the "old guard" to mingle with his new stars in the latest Dumbells' revue, "Happy Days", which comes to the Grand theatre tonight and twice tomorrow.

In addition to himself and his brother Al., there are "Red" Newman, Pat. Rafferty, Fred Emney, Harry Binns, Charlie Jeeves and several others who have been identified with the company for many years, some of them since the first performance in France over fourteen years ago.

Realizing the necessity of keeping pace with the younger generation, the captain has found and developed a group of youngsters, many of whom were in rompers fourteen years ago, to carry on the traditions and to maintain the success of the old soldier show.

The Dumbells are a Canadian institution, our only representative National Theatre. They should continue on to the delight of our children's children in years to come. At least, one thing is sure, they will somehow contrive to travel about over Canada and provide us with their delightful entertainments as long as there are those among us who remember them "over there."

SOCCER GAME ON SATURDAY

The local soccer bill for to-morrow is the challenge game between the Peterborough select and George Blower's team, to be played on King Edward Park at three o'clock.

Referee, Jack Hodson.

It is stated on good authority that the same players that took part in the game last Saturday will turn out as chosen. In the other camp they are confident of success, which the fans will appreciate. Only one change in the new team has taken place. Jack Chambers has intimated that he will not play, and another man has been secured.

QUOTA SYSTEM

to British purchases from the rest of the Empire. Reciprocal purchases from the Mother country by the Dominion, however, necessarily arise. In this connection the possibility of large purchases of Welsh anthracite by Canada are suggested.

Canadian Preferences Pointed Out.

The tariff preferences which Canada grants to the British exporter are also pointed out. These are valued by Canadian experts at $13,000,000 a year over the general Canadian tariff and $16,000,000 over the intermediate tariff.

It is not expected the British Labor Government will agree to return tariff preferences by way of putting taxes on foreign foods entering Britain. In view of the position one course is suggested which is understood to find favor among the Australians. This is that the Dominions delegates, while co-operating in every way to make the quota or any other scheme workable, should before adjournment reassert their belief in preferential tariffs as the ultimate solution.

ESCAPED PRIEST

lieved the number slain after his departure, October 15, would make an additional 1,000, bringing the total killings to 2,000.

Father De Jenlis said theReds did not seem particularly blood-thirsty except when resisted. He stated the normal population of Kian was about 60,000, but that the number had been swelled recently to 100,000 by the influx of persons in the surrounding area who had fled from various scenes of disorder.

Toll Held Down.

The French priest asserted the number of killings had been held to a relatively low figure because the populace had professed to accept Communist tenets, knowing that by doing this they would save their lives.

The fourteen captured missionaries, he said, were being well treated when he and Bishop Magnani left, with the exception of one Chinese priest who was killed "because he was a Christian."

Another priest was taken into the country. Magnani and another French priest now held at Kian were bound and beaten, said Father De Jenlin, "because they were Imperialists."

Father De Jenlis said the principal interest of the Reds was looting the city, which they did with great thoroughness.

SASKATCHEWAN SUFFERS HEAVILY AS GRAIN REMAINS SNOW-COVERED

Some Oats May Be Dried and Used For Feed—Relief is Needed.

ALBERTA FARES BETTER.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 24 (C.P.)—Alberta has fared better than Saskatchewan under the burden of early snows on unthreshed grain land. According to George H. Williams, President of Saskatchewan sections, United Farmers of Canada, the snowed-in grain in Saskatchewan will not be threshed until spring. But members of the Alberta Government deny that grain in the western province has suffered irreparable damage.

In all probability, Saskatchewan's wheat will be in the fields until spring, according to Mr. Williams, though some of the snow covered oats may dry out sufficiently to be used for feed. If the wheat were threshed, he mentioned, it would be necessary to put it through a drying process which would not pay.

Great activity in harvesting and marketing is apparent in Alberta, according to Cabinet members. They deny that grain has sprouted badly or been injured beyond repair, and point out that harvesting has resumed under a warm sun. High grades of wheat, appearing before the recent blizzard, are said to be showing again in the new threshing.

Saskatchewan's situation is characterized as 'more serious than most people realize," by Mrs. Pearl Johnson, President of the Women's section of the Provincial farm body. The Saskatchewan sections, United Farmers of Canada, seek to organize a province-wide relief scheme for the farmers. Aid of the Red Cross, the Wheat Pool, and possibly the Department of Agriculture is being sought.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S HONEY TREE.

Uncle Wiggily stood on the path that led from his hollow stump bungalow off towards the woods. The rabbit gentleman twinkled his pink nose and looked at his forty-sixteen little bunny boys and girls who were playing about

I think if I hop off now none of them will see me and want to come," said Uncle Wiggily to himself. "They are all busy playing and they will not see me. Off I go!"

So Uncle Wiggily started to hop away. He was going to look for something in the woods and he also hoped to have an adventure. At most times Mr. Longears would have been glad to take all his little bunnies adventuring with him. But to-day he wanted to be alone.

"For I must be very quiet when I get to the woods," whispered Mr. Longears as he hopped along. "And if I had a lot of little rabbits with me they would make a noise." Uncle Wiggily did not say what it was he hoped to find, nor did he whisper why he must be quiet in the woods. But we shall soon hear about that.

All of a sudden, as he was hopping along the path over the fields, and was almost at the woods, Uncle Wiggily heard a noise behind him and, turning quickly, lest perhaps, it might be the Bob Cat, Mr. Longears saw Baby Bunty coming along after him.

"Ho! Ho! Unkie Wig" chuckled the little orphan rabbit. "You tried to run away from us; didn't you? But I saw you and here I am! Ho! Ho!"

"There goes one bee home!"

"Yes, here you are, surely enough, Baby Bunty," said Mr. Longears, scratching his pink twinkling nose with the tip of his long left ear. "Are there any more with you?"

"No, I'm all alone," said Bunty. "May I come with you?"

"Since you are all alone, you may come," said Uncle Wiggily. "Not that I wouldn't like to have all my bunnies come along, but you see I must be very quiet in the woods, Bunty."

"What for?" asked the little orphan rabbit.

"I am going to look for a honey tree!" whispered Uncle Wiggily, making sure no one heard him. "And when you look for a honey tree you must be very quiet."

"Oh, now I know you're teasing me!" laughed Bunty. "Honey doesn't grow on trees, Unkie Wig. It comes out of a bee's house."

"That is very true," said Uncle Wiggily. "But sometimes bees build their hive, or house, in a hollow tree and fill it with honey. It is this kind of a tree I am going to look for in the woods. And if I find one, and the bees have more honey than they need they may give me some to take home so Nurse Jane can spread it on our pancakes when the cold winter mornings come."

"Oh, let me help you look for a honey tree!" begged Bunty. "I'll be very good and I won't bother the bees or anything."

"We may be very lucky if the bees don't bother us and try to sting us," said the rabbit gentleman. "But come along. And if you see any bees buzzing around some late flowers watch them and see which way they fly. For if they fly toward their honey tree hive we can follow them and so find the sweet stuff."

"Oh, what fun this is!" cried Bunty, jumping up and down for joy. Then she and Uncle Wiggily went into the woods where some late, wild flowers were still in blossom, they looked at many of the blossoms and at last saw bees buzzing around some purple posies.

"Here are the honey makers!" whispered Bunty. Very quietly she and Uncle Wiggily watched the yellow and black trees climbing over the petals of the flowers, dipping their tongues down into the centers to suck up the sweet juice which is made into honey, and stored in tiny wax cups in the hive, or hollow tree.

"There goes one bee home!" whispered Baby Bunty.

"Watch which way he goes!" whispered Uncle Wiggily.

With their bright eyes, the old gentleman rabbit and the little orphan bunny watched the bee zooming through the air. He did not fly very high, so they could follow him by hopping along the ground and over bushes. At last the bee flew inside a big, hollow tree. And as Baby Bunty and Uncle Wiggily watched, they saw many more bees flying inside the strange hive.

"Is this the honey tree?" asked Baby Bunty.

"Yes," said Mr. Longears, scratching his right ear in a puzzled way. "This is the honey tree all right, but it is so high I don't see how I can ever get any of the sweet stuff, Bunty. It's just too bad!"

"Oh, I know what to do!" suddenly cried Bunty. "Let's sit here and wait for something to happen. Maybe we can get some honey after all."

So she and Mr. Longears sat near the bees' honey tree, waiting.

PADDINGTON GOES TO POLLS OCT. 30

Beaverbrook-Rothermere Candidate Advocates Empire Development.

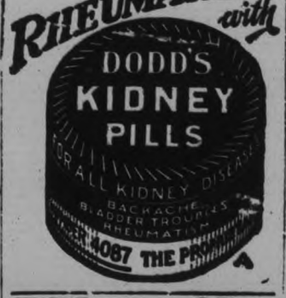
ON FREE TRADE PLATFORM.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 24 (C.P.)—A week from yesterday, while the Imperial Conference is still in session, overseas Prime Ministers will have a first-hand opportunity of witnessing a British constituency voting on the issue of Empire Free Trade and on the Conservative party platform. South Paddington electors go to the polls Oct. 30th to elect a successor to the late Commodore H. D. King, Conservative who was returned by acclamation in 1924 and 1929.

Backs Empire Free Trade

In an electoral manifesto yesterday Vice-Admiral E. A. Taylor, supported by Lord Beaverbrook and Lord Rothermere, expressed a firm belief in Empire free trade, which he defines as a policy of Imperial tariff preference.

"The Dominions are again extending to us the hand of friendship and a real solution of four difficulties by offering us assured markets for a far greater volume of our goods, and in return ask that we take a greater volume of their produce in preference to that of the foreigner. For the last time this offer is open to us. Are we going to turn it down or accept it with open arms in the spirit in which it is made for the mutual benefit of every individual unit of the Empire?"



Novel Travelling Display Arouses Interest At Fairs

Model Preston Steel Truss Barn Exhibited by Eastern Steel Products.

Particular interest among farmers has been aroused at recent Fall Fairs by the novel travelling display of Eastern Steel Products, Limited, of Preston, Ontario.

Makers of products not easily displayed in practical use, this firm has built a model Preston Steel Truss Barn, covered it with their new Colored "Rib Roll" Roofing and siding, and mounted the entire unit on a truck chassis. In this novel manner they have found a means of exhibiting their products with remarkable facility.

Far from being a "Tom Thumb" model, the Preston Steel Truss display barn is 7 feet wide, 15 feet long equipped with eavetrough conductor pipe and one end of the barn is easily removable to permit interior inspection.

The use of colored "Rib Roll" roofing and siding has resulted in a most pleasing color combination. The sides of the barn are red, the roof green, the ventilators white trimmed with green, and the window and door trim white.

There are now two of these travelling units on the road, manned by experienced salesmen and visiting many points at which Fairs are held.

From the salesman in charge you can obtain folders, circulars, prices and all particulars of the new Preston Steel Truss Barns and colored "Rib Roll" roofing and siding.

FLORENCE SHOPPE, OPP. WOOLWORTH'S

IN POLICE COURT

Let out of jail this morning after completing a term of three months, only a $1,000 bail bond posted by his uncle, Thomas Windover, kept Clarion Windover, Buckhorn, from being conveyed back behind prison bars.

It was last July that Windover was sentenced to three months when convicted under the Liquor Control Act of having in his possession at the Curve Lake reserve liquor not purchased from a vendor. Less than an hour after he had left the jail this morning, he was re-arrested and charged under Excise Act of having liquor in his possession on July 28 at the Indian reserve, which was not lawfully made in Canada or lawfully imported.

He was remanded without plea until next Thursday, his uncle posting the bail to give him his freedom until then.

Absence of a "scrap of paper" cost David Hubbs three months in jail. Hubbs was found on Simcoe street at 1:40 this morning with a gallon of wine in his truck, but he did not have a liquor permit. He was charged with having liquor while not being the holder of a permit. Pleading he was given the choice of $100 fine or three months. He will bid "adieu" to the jail on aJnuary 4.

THE RETURN OF TARZAN No. 35 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The ape-man fought with all the savage fury of his herculean strength to save himself. But though he felt his blows land and his teeth sink into soft flesh, there seemed always new demons dragging him down. Slowly he was overcome. Then bound, his hands behind his back and his feet trussed up to meet them.

Presently Tarzan was lifted up. Half dragging, half pushing, they brought him to an inner courtyard of the temple. Here, for the first time, he saw his hundred ugly-shaped captors. They were far from pleasant to gaze upon! Mumbling, grunting short words in an unfamiliar language, they trooped off, leaving him alone upon his back.

The ape-man gently tested the strength of his bonds. But he did not dare break them in daylight while he felt countless spying eyes peering at him from above. As the noonday sun penetrated the courtyard, he heard the puttering of bare feet. A low, weird chant arose. Again appeared the hideous men. Like clumsy, shuffling bears they danced about him.

For minutes this continued. Then suddenly, in unison, with upraised bludgeons and fearful yells they rushed upon their victim. At the same time a female figure, dashing into the midst of the blood-thirsty horde, beat back the advancing men with a bludgeon of gold. Tarzan thought by some strange freak of fate a miracle had saved him.

IN MEMORIAM.

WEAVER. — In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Robert Weaver, who departed this life on October 24, 1923.

Beside your grave we often stand,
With hearts both crushed and sore,
But in the gloom the sweet words come,
"Not lost, but gone before."
And only those who have lost can tell
The pain of parting with sad farewell.

Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Tears in silence often flow,
For memory keeps you ever near us,
Although you died seven years ago.
God knows how much we miss you,
He counts the tears we shed,
And whispers, "Hush, he only sleeps,
Your loved one is not dead."
So we will be brave, dear father,
And pray to God each day,
And when He calls us home to heaven,
Your loving smile will light the way.

—Sadly missed by Wife and Family.

OBITUARY

MRS. WILLIAM BROWN

MOUNT PLEASANT, Oct. 24 (Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral of the late Annie Marshal, widow of the late William Brown, was held on Saturday, the service being conducted by the Rev. John E. Whitham, of Cavan.

The late Mrs. Brown had made her home with her daughter, Mrs. George Jamieson, but on October 6 she visited her own home and while there suffered a stroke, and despite all that medical attention and kindly care could do, she passed away ten days later.

The deceased lady was born on August 15, 1847, at Lebanon in Cavan Township, where she lived until twelve years of age, when she moved with her parents to Fenelon Falls, living there until her marriage to William Brown, which took place in December, 1867.

Having reached the age of 83 years, the late Mrs. Brown was one of the pioneers of the district. There are left to mourn her loss three brothers and two sisters; four sons, William and Stanley of Toronto, Arthur of Ebenezer, and Thomas of Michigan; also six daughters, Mrs. T. Rasson, Mrs. Dunkley, Mrs. Stphenson and Mrs. Johnson of Toronto; Mrs. Brown of Millbrook, and Mrs. George Jamieson of Mount Pleasant. She is also survived by thirteen grandchildren, and two great grandchildren.

The pall-bearers were her four sons and two sons-in-law, C. W. Johnson and Robert Brown; burial being made in the family plot. Many beautiful floral tributes were received among them being wreaths from the family, the Women's Institute, Mount Pleasant Church, Toronto Police Force, Toronto Firement, and Mrs. Nugent and family.

Hudson Bay Survey Of Fish Is Inadequate

THE PAS, Man., Oct. 24 (C.P.).—The Government fishing survey which found that Hudson Bay contained no commercial fish, was "wholly inadequate," in opinion of H. S. Johnson, manager for Northern Manitoba, for an international fish company. It would take two trawlers at least two years to complete even a superficial probe in the situation, he considered.

Well-Known Lecturer At St. Paul's To-Night

The well-known lecturer and traveller, George Murray Speedie, Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, will deliver his illustrated lecture, "Seeing London from the Top of a London Bus," in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church to-night. Mr. Speedie is known to many Peterborough people, who will be glad of this opportunity to hear the Superintendent of Seamen's Missions in Canada.

Mr. Speedie occupied a similar post in Germany, and was stationed in that country when war was declared in 1914. He alone knows how close he was to being held there for the duration of the war, but for his influence with a few higher officials of the then government of the Fatherland. Mr. Speedie ultimately made England, and for some time had the oversight of the welfare of the seamen who sailed to and from the London docks. Coming to Canada a few years ago he has had charge of sailors' mission work, and has "carried on" with great success. He is a racy and fluent lecturer, with a fund of anecdotes and information anent his travels, and especially the subject on hand to-night. Specially prepared slides will be shown to illustrate his lecture. The Ladies' Aid of the church are serving supper prior to the lecture.

KIWANIS CLUB HEARS DUMBELLS

MANY NEW HITS.

That the Dumbells have a sparkling new repertoire of song hits was proved at noon to-day, when members of the old soldier troupe were the honored guests and entertainers at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis club. The songs were given with all the old time verve and snap.

"Curly" Nixon gave a vocal solo that is a sure-fired hit, "Under Italian Skies," and Harry Binns showed that his strong tenor voice has lost none of its power or range. "Red" Newman was the same old "Red" when he sang a new number to do with the sergeant major "When I shout the birds fly out and daisies fade," is one line from "Red's" new effort. Al Plunkett sang a teasing little song called, "For No Good Reason at All."

The Dumbells, all old friends of the local Kiwanis Club, earned new favor by their short performance.

FAMILY HAS CLOSE CALL FROM COAL GAS POISONING

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 24 (C.P.) — Staggering from his home half dazed and crying for help, Clarence Thorne aroused neighbors, who rushed into his home and brought out his family and two other residents in time to save them from what seemed to be certain death from coal gas poisoning. Following her removal from the gassed residence, Mrs. Thorne fainted and was removed to hospital. She will recover. Some draught trouble in the furnace is blamed for the occurrence.

Political Chaos Develops in Brazil

MILITARY JUNTA STEPS IN POWER AT CAPITOL CITY

Quiet Prevails To-day After Orgy of Destruction Following Victory.

OFFICERS DISAGREE.

President and Some Members of Cabinet Placed Under Arrest.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Oct. 25. — (AP) — Political Chaos, spurred by national-wide uncertainty, developed today to rend the camp of the revolution, victorious in a coup d'etat which yesterday unseated Brazil's retiring president. Dr. Washington Luis.

Armed Conflict Still

The armed conflict which has raged on three major fronts for the past three weeks was stilled, momentarily, but a situation still prevailed which charged with the tenseness of rival political personalities, may plunge the nation into further sanguinary internecine conflict.

In this capital a Military Junta, in charge temporarily, proceeded with formation of a provisional government, the officers composing it meeting far into the night in an effort to nominate a slate of officials to take over the administration. The Junta adjourned its meeting finally just before dawn after having reached decision on only one office, that of Minister of Justice, which goes to Gabriele Bernardes.

Meanwhile, dispatches from headquarters of the southern revolutionary army, located at Ponta Grossa, State of Parana, said that Getulio Vargas, the rebel southern army generalissimo, President of the State of Rio Grande Do Sul, and defeated National Presidential candidate in the recent elections, would take charge of the Provisional Government.

Lindolfo Collor, insurgent representative at Buenos Aires, is flying to Porto Alegre to-day to meet Dr. Osvaldo Aranha, Acting President of Rio Grande Do Sul, and proceed with him to Rio de Janeiro, to confer with the Military Junta. Senor Collor asserted that Vargas would not assent to a military government.

The third principal in the battle of politicians developing here was Captain Juarex Tavora, whose army of volunteers and revolting Federal

RAIN FALLS ON ROYAL WEDDING

MANY NOTABLES ATTEND.

ASSISI, Italy, Oct. 25 (C.P.). — With their own gay wedding attire and that of their party drenched by rain and hail, Princess Giovanna and Czar Boris III. of Bulgaria were married to-day in the upper basilica of the Church of St. Francis here before a gathering of Kings, Princes and some of the most notable folk of Europe.

The marriage ceremony was brief but impressive. The low mass which was scheduled to follow the ceremony was omitted.

Father Risso, custodian of the bascilica, read the marriage ceremony, which was brief in keeping with a union in matrimony of a Roman Catholic and a non-Roman Catholic. The ceremony itself was possible only by special dispensation of the Pope, who ruled that Giovanna might marry Boris if any children of the marriage be brought up in the Roman Church and if there was no succeeding Greek Catholic ceremony.

Noted Labor Leader Passes In England

LONDON, Oct. 25 (C.P.)—Another vacancy in the House of Commons has been created by the death of Harry Gosling, Labor member for Whitechapel, who died last night.

Harry Gosling was Minister of Transport in the Labor Government of 1924. He was a veteran in the trades union movement. As President of the National Transport Workers Federation he took a leading part in the great dock strike of 1910.

Gosling was a life-long teetotaler and a strong advocate of temperance.

SMUTS ASSURED ABOUT PALESTINE BY MACDONALD

Says Statement Cannot Be Described as Retreat From Balfour Delcaration.

GENERAL PERTURBED.

Special Measures Necessary to Ensure Double Obligation Being Filled.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Oct. 25. (C.P.) — General Jan Christian Smuts, former premier of South Africa, to-day received a cable from Premier Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain, asserting that the recent British Statement regarding Palestine "cannot fairly be described as a retreat from the Balfour declaration."

Mr. MacDonald's cable was an answer to a message from General Smuts, who had expressed peturbation over the British statement of policy in Palestine and asserted that the Balfour declaration—which began a movement for a Jewish national home in Palestine—represents a debt of honor which must be discharged in full at all costs.

Based on Incomplete Reports.

Mr. MacDonald said that the South African leader's views were based on incomplete telegraphic reports of the government's statement, and added:

"Since acceptance of the Palestine mandate the trent of events, and in particular some of the methods adopted in establishment of the Jewish home, has tended to endanger the position of non-jewish communities, which, in light of the Hope-Simpson report, are giving grave concern and convince us of the necessity of special measures to insure that the double obligation contained in the mandate shall be fulfilled."

Mr. MacDonald added that the policy does not stop or surpend colonization of the large amount of Palestine land yet undeveloped, and already under Jewish ownership; but he reaffirmed the principle that Jewish immigration should not exceed the economic capacity of the country to absorb more people.

Aged Lady Is Missing From Lindsay Home

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, October 25. — Relatives and friends of Mrs. Patrick Kenny are searching the town to-day to discover her weherabouts. A month ago, Mrs. Kenny, who is an aged woman, entered an institution at Whitby for rest and treatment. She was taken from that institution a few days ago and brought home to Lindsay.

Last night her son, James, missed the old lady, but was unable to find her. She had about $25.00 in her purse and might have gone to Peterborough or Toronto.

DELEGATES VISIT GREAT AIR SHOW

SMART CIVIL CRAFT.

LONDON, Eng, October 25. (C.P.) —Empire delegates to the Imperial conference to-day at Croydon witnessed a demonstration of many different types of British civil aircraft, and a display by fighting machines. The Royal Air Force put on an impressive display of the magnificent flying which in their annual shows at Hendon rouses some of the greatest crowds in the world. Light planes and heavy planes, fast scout craft, high-powered machines built for speed only, fast bombers and every conceivable type went in the air for the edification of the overseas visitors.

The civil craft ranged from big-triple-engined cabin planes to light, popular aircraft. The fast metal Vellore twin-engined freighter, with abnormal accommodation for goods or mails, were features. Each of the civil types shown the Dominion delegates had been already ordered for transport use or was selected as being particularly adapted to Dominion and colonial requirements.

Police And Hold-Ups Raid Gambling Den

NEW YORK, N.Y., Oct. 25 (C.P.)—Three hold-up men and two plainclothes policemen happened to select the same time last night to raid a card game in a Madison avenue cigar store. The result was a shooting match in which a hold-up man was killed and six other persons, including a policeman, injured.

The policemen found 25 men in the room, lined them against the wall and were waiting for a patrol wagon when the hold-up men entered and ordered all to put up their hands.

The policemen fired and their shots were answered by the robbers.

LEADERSHIP IS ONE OF DUTIES OF EDUCATION

University Graduate Has Advantage of Greater Training and Development.

IN VARIOUS FORMS

Louis Stephen St. Laurent, K.C., L.L.D., Speaks at Queen's General Alumni Association.

(Special to The Examiner)

KINGSTON, Oct. 25.—A public address was given before Queen's General Alumni Association this morning at 11.15 o'clock, before a large audience in Convocation Hall, by Louis Stephen St. Laurent, K.C., LLD., Quebec, President of the Canadian Bar Association, on the subject, "Leadership, A Duty of the University Graduate."

After a brief introduction the speaker said that there could be no doubt that the University graduate does owe a duty of leadership to his fellow men, because of the very fact that he has had the advantages of University training and development. That leadership may take and it does take various forms in affairs of the state, in local affairs, economical activities, intellectual and moral outlook on problems, which confront himself, and which he has to deal with in his own daily life. It may be leadership in a position of authority, or leadership only effective because its compelling force is derived from its own intrinsic appeal to the good sense and intelligence of those who recognize it and follow it. The question is: "Is the University graduate, providing in a sufficient degree, all those forms of leadership, which are organized into dependend community life, in all its modern complexities as it appears to so urgently require?"

Mr. St. Laurent took occasion to speak of leadership in Quebec. And he first dwelt on it in matters of religious thought and religious conduct. He was satisfied that the University graduate is providing the people of Quebec Province with efficient and wholesome leadership in matters of religion. He said: "All our religious leaders are University trained. They have been required to follow a full college course which leads up to the Baccalaureate of Arts and afterwards to take a four years' course of theological studies; and even after that some of them take post-graduate courses in the Superior Normal Schools of our Universities, or in some one or other of the great Universities of the Old World. And our Colleges and Universities are still contributing a portion of about one-third of their graduates to the service of the Church. At the old Seminary of Quebec, sixty-six young men graduated last June and twenty-two are wearing the cossock of the distinctive garb of their chosen careers. With that situation it seems to me that no lover of his country and of his fellow-men can have any complaint.

The Canadian men and women who are self sacrificingly devoting their whole lives to the service of their fellow-men in matters of religion and of moral and spiritual uplift though it is their privilege to feel that their kingdom is not of this world, are making the kingdom

HITLER ANSWERS ALLIANCE OFFER BY FRENCH PRESS

Claims Germany Wants Understanding But No Military Union.

BOLSHEVISM THREATENS.

Would Need Bigger Armaments to be Fit Partner For France.

MUNICH, Bavaria, Oct. 25. (AP) Adolf Hitler, Fascit Generalissimo, replied to-day in his newspaper, Voelkischer Boebachter, to proposals of Gustave Herve, French editor of La Victorire, of a Franco-German military alliance.

Answering Herve, the National Socialist Leader expressed satisfaction at the conciliatory spirit shown but asked, "Why have a military alliance? Against whom is it to be directed?

Hitler said Germany had attempted for twelve years to arrive at a Franco-German understanding and the efforts have merely led to German's becoming so poor that many of her people prefer Bolshevism to her present condition. He added "Young Germany, as represented in the movement of which I am leader, earnestly desires an undrstanding with France, but wants no military alliance."

Need to Increase Armaments

The Fascist leader expressed the opinion that to become a fit partner for France in a military sense Germany would have to increase her armaments greatly. He suggests that the better way would be for France to reduce hers, and thereby "realize the hope of a nightmare."

Herve's suggestion of a new European convention Hitler meets with the question, "Is this to be in the spirit of the Kellog Pact or does France regard that pact as unsatisfactory?"

Discussing Germany's obligations, Hitler says the National Socialists recognize her private and business debts but the binding character of her "political debts exacted by insane political pressure is doubtful." He declares Germany will either become a nation recognized as the equal of others and hence enjoy the same rights, or there will no longer be an orderly Germany but Bolshevism will reign instead."

SAUNDERS GRAVE TO BE INSCRIBED

Expense of Engraving To Be Borne By Five Well-known Canadians.

IN WESTMINSTER ABBEY.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 25. (C. P. Cable).—The grave in Westminster Abbey of Admiral Sir Charles Saunders will henceforth bear suitable evidence it is the last resting place of General Wolfe's companion-in-arms. The Dean of Westminister has permitted an inscription to be engraved on the stone, the expense of which has been borne by five Canadians—E. W. Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway; F. E. Meredith, Montreal lawyer; E. R. Peacock, native of Glengarry, Ont., and now a London financier; Sir Campbell Stuart, native of Montreal and Director of the London Times, and Dr. Clarence Webster, native of Shediac, N.B., and member of Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada.

Premier R. B. Bennett will lay a wreath on the grave before he returns to Canada. Attention was called to the grave when the memorial to General Wolfe was unveiled at Greenwich last June. Admiral Saunders played a conspicuous part in the Quebec campaign of 1759, for it was his seamanship and administrative skill, combined with unselfish and whole-hearted cooperation, which landed General Wolfe and his 9,000 troops at Quebec after a fast voyage from Louisburg.

Clothes Take Fire As Girl Uses Coaloil In Lighting Stove

Mrs. J. McColeman Seeing Her 18 Year Old Daughter's Plight Rushes to Rescue Only to Have Own Clothes Enveloped in Flames.

NEIGHBORS RESCUE 7 YOUNG CHILDREN IN TIME BUT ARE UNABLE TO SAVE THE SMALL FRAME HOME

Drinkwater Pit Family Been Stalked With Tragedy Over a Year, Mr. McColeman Being Killed This Spring and a Son Was Drowned at Iroquois Falls.

CONNAUGHT, Ont., October 25 (C.P.). — Mrs. J. McColeman and her eighteen-year-old daughter were fatally burned when fire destroyed their home at Drinkwater's Pit, about four miles from Connaught. Seven small children were saved. The daughter died immediately, but the mother lingered for several hours.

The fire was started by Miss McColeman lighting a fire in in the stove with coal oil. The oil flared up and caught her dress. Mrs. McColeman came to her daughter's rescue, and her clothes also caught fire. The girl was burnedly terribly, and succumbed instantly. Neighbors seeing the fire came to offer help, but the small house was entirely destroyed.

Purely Accidental.

The Provincial Police investigated but as it was purely accidental, it is not likely there will be any official action.

This family has been stalked by tragedy for over a year. Mr. McColeman was killed this spring and a son was drowned at Iroquois Falls also within the past year.

PRICE FORESEES BIG WATER POWER MOVE IN NORTH

Plans Under Way For Development Between Mississauga and Ottawa Rivers.

MEAN CHEAPER POWER.

W. G. Martin Feature Speaker at Galt Rally—Sanderson at Bredhagen.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 25. (CP)—An address delivered by Attorney-General W. H. Price at North Bay, was probably the high light of the four rallies, held in various parts of the Province last night in support of candidates campaigning for the four seats now vacant in the Ontario Legislature.

Speaking in the intersts of Charles R. Harrison, Conservative nominee in the constituency of Nipissing, Mr. Price forecast extensive power developments in the North Bay district by the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission. The plans now under consideration, the speaker said, would result in development of large waterpowers between the Mississauga and Ottawa Rivers, with their latent 45,000 horse-power, and the joining of these to transmission lines. In this manner Northern Ontario would be linked up with the southern section of the Province, he said.

If the development materializes, the speaker proceeded, cheaper power would result

HALTS AT COLUMBUS.

WICHITA, Kas., Oct. 25 (A.P.) — Mrs. Keith Miller, Australian aviatrix attempting to establish a new West to East trans-continental flight record for women, took off from the municipal airport here at 8 a.m. (C.S.T.) to-day for Columbus, O., where she will make an overnight stop. She plans no other landings.

She arrived here at 2.50 p.m. yesterday from Albuquerque, N. M., where she had been delayed several days for repairs to her machine. The craft was damaged in landing on a dark field.

Her elapsed flying time from Los Angeles to Wichita is 11 hours and 5 minutes, an hour and 8 minutes less than required by Miss Laura Ingalls, present record holder, to fly the same distance.

RECKLESS DRIVER IS FINED $100.00

Bailieboro Man Went to Sleep While Driving and Accident Followed.

MAN WAS INJURED.

"A man should not be in a condition likely to make him sleep while driving an automobile" said His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke, presiding over the County Court Judges Criminal Court yesterday, when he fined J. O. Jackson of Bailieboro' $100 on a charge of reckless driving and causing actual bodily harm to Vito Miccoli, George street fruit merchant on August 6th.

His Honor added that he was satisfied that the accident was the result of defendant going to sleep for a second or two, causing his automobile to go to the wrong side of the road while on a curve, and that on account of the good character and previous clean driving record, he would only impose the fine as stated above.

V. J. McElderry, K.C., prosecuted, while G. N. Gordon, K.C., acted for the defence.

It will be recalled that Jackson who is a driver for a local bread firm, was approaching this city from the direction of Bailieboro at 4.30 on the morning of August 6th, and when near the late Mr. Hatton's residence in the vicinity of Monaghan road, collided with another truck driven by Miccoli. Both vehicles were badly damaged in the smash and Miccoli was severely injured.

THREE PETERBORO MEN ARE MADE CHARTERED LIFE UNDERWRITERS

JAMES THOMPSON SPEAKER.

Three members of the Peterborough branch of the Life Underwriters' Association have gained the innermost circle of their vocation. They have proved that they have a thorough knowledge of life underwriting by passing the examinations leading to the degree of Chartered Life Underwriters, and at the meeting last night of the local association at the Empress Hotel they were presented with their diplomas. The men are: P. A. Martyn, North American Life, Charles J. Ray and Malcolm G. Cook, both of the Sun Life.

The examinations for chartered Life Underwriters were inaugurated in 1925 said Isaac P. McNabb in presenting the diplomas. Very few through Canada have passed these examinations and for three Peterborough men to be successful is proof that life underwriting here is on a very high plane.

High Lights of Convention

James Thomson, Toronto City manager of the North American Life, was the guest speaker and he reccunted the highlights of the International Convention of Life Underwriters held two weeks ago in the Royal York Hotel. Men from all over the continent gathered there, 2,016 being registered.

It was impressed upon him he said that the average man with average thoughts to appeal to the average citizen made the most successful insurance salesman. Further he estimated that there must be a definite plan of work and keen selection of prospects with much preparation of the matter to be discussed in the interview before the prospect was seen.

Before the war he said in tracing the progress of life insurance it was bought on the basis of friendship or even charity, but now all that was changed and it was bought because its high value was well appreciated. Much of this change in the public's opinion toward life insurance was directly due to advertising, maintained the speaker. In the years to come he warned that there must be an even deeper study to gain a broader knowledge of the fundamentals of life insurance by the salesman. "Life insurance is money for future delivery" he said. Further, he maintained that while other businesses were swayed by the immutable law of change, life insurance would remain basically the same.

The meeting was held in the parlors of the hotel after dinner, and D. M. Bissell, thepresident, was chairman.

DOWNING STREET SUMMONS RAISES GREAT INTEREST

Sudden Call to Premiers Indicates Change in Parley Program.

NO ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Economic Committee Extends Scope to Probe to Other Products.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 25 (By George Hambleton, C. P. Staff Writer).—An afternoon tea party at No. 10 Downing Street—the official home of the Prime Minister—has set writers who have atended the Imperial Conference proceedings bubbling with speculation.

It had been announced there would be no plenary meetings of the Dominion Prime Ministers until the committees of the Conference were ready to report. Rt. Hon. Ramsay MacDonald, British Premier was to confer with the heads of delegations in separate and informal chats and that was all.

Change in Program

But suddenly yesterday saw a change in the programme. The overseas Premiers were invited to Downing Street together. Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Canadian Prime Minister, ventured out for the first time since his throat trouble started a few days ago. The Prime Ministers had their tea and according to the bleak official communique given out, they "reviewed conference proceedings."

Now Fleet Street is wondering what it was all about.

While the heads of delegations talked over their tea the Graham Economic Committee of the Conference, headed by Rt. Hon. William Graham, President of the Board of Trade, extended the scope of its inquiries. Its investigation into the practicability of the quota system of bulk purchase has been confined to wheat. This afternoon three new sub-committees were created to consider bulk purchase by quota of canned fruits and canned fish, butter, cheese, eggs, bacon and poultry and fruits.

SOO FISHERMEN HAVE CLOSE CALL

Trio Spend Night on Rocky Shore After Being Capsized.

GIVEN UP AS LOST.

SAULTE STE. MARIE, Ont., Oct. 25 (C.P.)—Three citizens of the Soo, Robert Johnston, Oswald Kelly and William Hill, had a harrowing experience above Gros Cap on Lake Superior. When fishing from an open boat, the craft was upset by a storm which suddenly arose. The men managed to reach the deserted and barren shore and in a miniature blizzard started along the rocky shore for Gros Cap with frozen clothes and frostnipped fingers. They made slow progress and finally, after Johnson had fallen down the side of a rocky hill and received painful injuries, they camped until morning without fire, their matches having been damped by water during their immersion in the lake. Yesterday morning Kelly succeeded in starting a fire with two matches he had placed in his hair overnight and later they again started their painful journey along the shore, arriving at Gros Cap. In the meantime a Provincial Air Service plane, finding their boat on the beach, took it for granted that the man had perished. They were brought to the Soo and taken to their homes where they will be confined for some days from exposure and exhaustion.

Sinclair At Preston

In Western Ontario, where both parties are waging a consistent battle for the Waterloo south and Perth south seats three meetings were held at Preston W. E. N. Sinclair, K.C., Ontario Liberal Leader, spoke before a large gathering in the interests of N. O. Hipel, who is opposing the Conservative standard-bearer, M. M. Donald, in the Waterloo south riding.

Hon. W. G. Martin, the newly appointed Minister of Public Welfare, was the principal speaker at a rally held in Galt for Mr. Donald. He declared the Province financially was a going concern and a gilt-edged security, as it was shown in the records that a $18,000,000 debt incurred during the E. C. Drury Government's tenure of office had been changed to a $2,000,000 surplus by the present Government.

At the third rally, F. G. Sanderson, M.P., for Perth, south and Ontario Liberal Whip in the House of Commons, spake at the village of Bredhagen on behalf of the George S. Keith, Liberal-Progressive, contesting the Perth south provincial seat against Charles E. Richardson, Conservative.

Woollen Men Meet To Renew Outlook

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 25 (C.P.) — Representatives of various woollen and worsted cloth mills throughout Canada conferred here with executives of the Clothing Manufacturers' of Canada with a view to increasing the consumption of Canadian-made cloth on the home market.

The use of imported cloth was being reduced and the use of Canadian cloth gradually increasing, it was found, and steps necessary to further this trend were debated.

Means of improving conditions in the industry so that Canadian-made cloth would reach the consumer at the lowest possible price and yet be on a part with the imported brand were also discussed and various proposals offered to effect this transformation.

GOV'T SCORED ON ITS POLICY IN PALESTINE

Curbing of Jewish Immigration Brings Protest From Liberals and Tories.

LABOR MEMBERS CRITICAL.

Lloyd George Claims Action Savors of Breach of Faith.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 25. —(CP)— From Liberals and from Conservatives and from within the ranks of its own party, the Labor Government of Britain faces criticism and opposition to its Palestine policy of curbing Jewish immigration to the Holy Land and of defending at all costs the position of the native population. It was a statement issued by the Colonial Office, headed by the idealistic Lord Passfield, the Sydney Webb of other days, which aroused resentment as a somewhat similar statement dealing with East African policy and the rights of natives, had aroused the ire of the white statesmen of Africa.

"Breach of Faith"

Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, Wartime Prime Minister of Britain, declared in an address in Wales yesterday that the British statement of Palestinian policy, differing so much from the Balfour declaration of war days, savored "too much of a breach of national faith."

The Conservative leader, Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin added his voice to that of the Liberal Chieftain and was supported in his attack on the Government by Sir Austen Chamberlain and Rt. Hon. L. C. M. S. Amery. Lord Melchett, the great industrialist, resigned his place in the Jewish National Agency as a protest.

Sir John Scurr, a Labor Member of the House of Commons, in addressing constituents in a Jewish section of London last night, promised he would bring the matter up in the House at the first opportunity and it is understood that Emmanuel Shinwell, Minister of Mines, and one of the leading Jews of the Labor Party, will question the Government regarding its attitude.

REDS OVERRUN CENTRAL CHINA

Hordes Burn and Loot Foreign as Well as Native Property.

MISSIONARIES HELD.

SHANGHAI, China, Oct. 25. (CP) Missionaries arriving from devastated areas said anti-British and anti-United States Red armies were swarming over three Provinces of China, killing thousands of natives. They were reported robbing and burning foreign as well as Chinese property in a campaign against Christianity and capitalism, said to be inspired by Russian influence.

Many missionaries have fled, and others, their missions destroyed, are held for millions of dollars ransom.

The south half of China, said the missionaries, was in danger of turning Communist unless the Government sent at least 200,000 seasoned troops against bandits and Communists.

Arriving from Kian with demands for $3,500,000 Gold ransom for fourteen missionaries held captive, Father de Jenlis, French, and Bishop Magniani, Italian, reported terrible conditions.

DEPORTATION CASE HEARD ON TUESDAY

Steamer on Which Ellen Naylor's Passage Had Been Booked Sailed Yesterday.

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 25 (C.P.) — Relatives of Ellen Naylor, who is being held at Montreal pending a decision of the courts in regard to her deportation were very much cheered to-day when word came that she had not been sent away on a steamer that sailed yesterday morning, on which passage for her had been arranged. Brief word from the girls' father stated that the case will be heard in Montreal on Tuesday. Everything that he can do to prevent the deportation is being done. Mrs. Hobbins, wife of Ensign Hobbins of Petrolea and a sister of Miss Naylor's, has left for Montreal to be of whatever assistance she can to her parents in the matter.

50 YEARS NEEDED TO BRING PORTS UP TO STANDARD

Railroads Hard Hit When Full Advantage Taken of Welland Canal.

SHIPPING FREIGHT CHEAPER.

Completion of Canal Adds 230 Miles to Vessels' Voyage.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 25 (C.P.).—It will take 50 years to bring Great Lake ports up to the standard set by the Welland Canal, Major A. W. Butler, engineer in charge of the Welland Canal development, told members of the Transportation Club of Toronto at dinner here last night.

Railroads will be rather "hard hit" when full advantage is taken of the opportunities afforded by the canal, Major Butler, who was himself a railroader about 24 years ago, prophesied.

Shipping Freight Cheaper.

Comparing the cost of freight by the large vessels of the upper lakes, which will pass through the canal next year, and freight by railroads, he stated that the large freighters are capable of handling it at a rate of about one mill per ton, while the railroad rate is from five to seven mills per ton.

The canal, which was primarily to bring the large freighters to Lake Ontario, added a distance of 230 miles to their voyage, that is, to Prescott on the Canadian side, and Oswego on the American, he pointed out.

It would mean, he said, that goods would be transported from the head of the lakes to Prescott or Oswego at about one-quarter of the present freight rate, due both to the increased length of the water voyage and the increased tonnage of the ships allowed by the canal.

Time Reduced.

The time taken by ships to pass through the canal had been cut in three, and the tonnage allowed by the canal increased 600 per cent.

Standard lower lakers using the canal at the present time drew 18 feet when fully loaded, he said. Due to the maximum allowance of 14 feet afforded by the old canal they were limited in their tonnage to about 60,000 bushels of grain, although their average capacity was 100,000 bushels.

ARTHUR MEIGHEN SEES 6-HOUR DAY

Does Not Despair of Early Emergence From Present Depression.

ALL NATIONS COOPERATE.

TORONTO, Ont., October 25 (C. P.). — Unless inventive genius can devise new services or industries to absorb the present machine-created surplus of workers, the national of the world must unite in a pact to reduce working hours, Right Hon. Arthur Meigher, former Prime Minister of Canada, stated last night at a dinner given by the Toronto Jewellers' Association.

"I am not sure," Mr. Meighen said, "that William Green was far wrong when as head of the American Federation of Labor, he said, we were bound to come at last, or at all events before a great length of time, to the six-hour day."

He pointed out that experience had shown one country could not put its industries on a basis of shorter hours without the other countries doing likewise. Competition would not permit a single country or two experimenting alone. But if all marched together to the goal of shorter working hours, then a great and lasting benefit would be conferred, he said, on working men and women.

"I hope from what I have said," Mr. Meighen continued, "it will not be gathered that I despair of an early emergence from our present depression. Do not doubt that the usual rule will apply. We have come through these periods before, and in eight years more we shall have more people employed than ever."

WATERLOO LOSES FACTORY IN FIRE

Four Storey Furniture Building Razed in Town's Worst Blaze.

LOSS $15,000.

WATERLOO, Oct. 25 (C.P.) — The four-storey factory building of the E. O. Weber Furniture Company at Willlow and East Allen streets, is a mass of debris following Waterloo's most disastrous fire last night which completely destroyed the building causing a loss of $150,000, partially covered by insurance.

The building, one of several owned and operated by the Weber Company, housed the upholstering and finishing departments, as well as affording accommodation for show rooms. An unusually large stock of crated furniture was stored in place in preparation for Christmas shipping, and was lost with the building. The plant was one of the largest in Waterloo, affording employment for 75 men under normal conditions. A crowd of 8,000 people stood late into the night.

MILITARY JUNTA

troops conquered the Northern States, Payahyba, Pernambuco, Alagoas, Sergipe, and part of Bahia. He was expected here by airplane this morning from Bahia. Although united with Vargas in the revolutionary campaign the two men have long been bitter political enemies and the status of their present relationship was uncertain. Juarez Tavora has attained a huge personal following in the States through which has army has progressed as it moved southward.

The military Junta which has assumed actual control of the Government, and which brought about the unseating of President Washington Luis yesterday, is composed of General Menna Barreto, General Leite Castro, Tasso Gragoso, Admiral Iralas Noronha, Dr. Pandia Calogeras and other lesser figures. Assisting them is Cardinal Leme, who was one of the intermediaries in the final negotiations with the deposed President.

Luis Held In Fort.

Dr. Washington Luis to-day was a prisoner in Fort Capobanca. After holding out for hours against resignation with the words that he would be taken from Guanabra Palace only when he had been bound hand and foot, late yesterday he consented to the Military Junta's demands, and was taken under heavy guard to the quarters of the General Staff at the fort where he will remain temporarily.

His decision finally was made at the counsel of Cardinal Leme and Monsignor Rosalvo Costa Rego, Vicar-General of the Rio De Janeiro diocese. He left the Palace in the company of the Cardinal, the Vicar-General, and General Tasso Fragoso. As he passed through the reception room he bade good-bye to the assembled Ministers of his Cabinet and members of his civil and military household.

Outside the two ecclesiastics and General Tasso Fragoso entered an automobile with him. Other heavily armed officers mounted the running board as the deposed President was whisked away from the scene of his nearly completed four year term as Chief Executive of the Brazilian Union to the fort.

Little Apparent Animosity.

There is little apparent animosity toward the deposed President, who generally was regarded as honest in his convictions, but surrounded with a military and official family which many in the nation found objectionable. The Military Junta in its night-long meeting, decided to hold the deposed Minister of Justice, Vianna do Castello, and the deposed Minister of War, General Sezefredo dos Passos, as prisoners, setting at liberty other members of the Cabinet, all of whom had been arrested.

Despatches from Sao Paulo said that President-Elect Julio Prestes, who but for the revolution would have succeeded Dr. Washington Luis on November 15, had disappeared. There were rumors that he had fled the city in an airplane. Advices here from headquarters of the Southern Revolutionary Armies quoted the rebel generals as saying that those responsible for some measures of the deposed administration would be prosecuted.

After an orgy of destruction yesterday, in which damage estimated at $1,000,000 was done to seven newspaper offices and buildings by gangs of hoodlums, the city to-day was quiet, and presented much of its old normal appearance, troops and police guarded strategic centers. Theatres, cafes, bars and the like were closed last night but later in the evening groups of people emerged for quiet walks, and others motored through the Avenidas. Busses and street cars resumed their normal service.

The newspapers a Noite o Jornal do Brasil, O Paiz, Vanguardia, A Noticia, Critica and A Ordem all suffered in the rioting. Movable property was thrown from windows into the streets and everything inflammable was burned. Pawcets were opened in the buildings and streams of water seeped through them damaging property of their offices.

Sao Paulo dispatches said that quiet prevailed there but that there was considerable uncertainty as to what moves were to be expected of the "Federal" and "Rebel" armies still alligned against each other, although not fighting, along the Parana Sao Paulo frontier. State offices were deserted by officials yesterday after some firing on the Government Palace. It was expected that a provisional government would be formed to-day.

Because of the censorship which the Government invoked at the ports still under its control advices of the coup were received outside this country yesterday with surprise but residents of the capital had known for days that it was impending; many believing that it would be.

FORGERY BRINGS FINE OF $135.50

Galway Township Man in Lindsay Court Required to Support Uncle.

ON SUSPENDED SENTENCE.

LINDSAY, October 25 (Examiner Correspondence). — At a session of the Police Court yesterday, Harold Scarlett, of Galway Township, Peterborough County, was fined $135.50, and put on two years' suspended sentence on his own recognizance of $2,000, on the charge of perjury. He must also report regularly to his uncle, James Ritchie, whose name he forged on a cheque.

Scarlett made the cheque payable to Joseph Walker, and when investigation was first started the police were faced with a blind trail. Provincial Constable Porter finally obtained an admission from Scarlett.

18 ARE KILLED ON GERMAN SHIP

Vessel Fired On By Rebels When Leaving Rio de Janeiro Harbor.

CLAIMED AN ACCIDENT.

BERLIN, Germany, Oct. 25 (A.P.) —The Hamburg American steamer Baden reported to its home office today that 18 person aboard it were killed or wounded yesterday when a shell from Fort Chaopachana hit the ship as it was attempting to leave Rio De Janeiro harbor for Buenos Aires.

Most of the casualties were said to have been Spanish immigrants, bound for the Argentine.

It was stated that the Brazilian revolutionary authorities alleged that they had intended the shot merely as a warning and had hit the ship accidentally.

The Baden carried a large number of third class passengers.

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

MY last visit to the Workshop of John Plane gave me something of an unusually interesting nature to think about. And, at this time, I propose to place the results of my thinking before the readers of this page.

Permit me to say at the very outset that I have a particular man in mind, but refrain from actually naming him in the interests of his all-too-modest feelings. His modesty has kept him hanging around in the background when others less worthy have been strutting about in the spotlight. Like the post office clock, a great many people look up into his face in the course of a week; and if I were to name him practically every reader of these lines would know him.

To an inner circle he is familiarly known by a name of three letters. Strange to say, although I know him well, and think as much of him as most people, I have never been able to be so familiar as to call him "Bob," "Joe" or "Jim," or whatever the name is by which this inner circle address him.

CONSIDER THE RICH.

This is how it started: John Plane had been reading Dr. Fendrich's book, "Half Baked Ideas," and had picked out a question to fire at me.

It was a question about millionaires. He wanted to know if I knew any such celebrities. I told him that I knew a lot of them!

At this, I could see that he either questioned my veracity or doubted my sanity. So, to set his mind at rest on both points, I said: John, if you have read that book of Fendrich's you should have no difficulty in getting my meaning. The mistake many of us make is in thinking that wealth consists of money and real estate—and nothing else! You ought to know that some who possess such wealth as is represented in stocks and bonds, in silver and gold and real estate, possess nothing else, and are really paupers so far as the things worth while are concerned. While, on the other hand, there are some who—despite the fact that they always have to scrape to get enough to pay their just debts — have riches of far greater value than any represented in silver and gold.

THEIR REAL WORTH.

I may read that a man is worth $40,000,000. But, without wanting to be rude, will you mind telling me to whom is he worth that sum?

What would that amount be worth to himself if it were stowed into a casket with his dead body? We all know that all these millions would be worth absolutely nothing to him then!

My friend, Fendrich, tells me that the highest price a hospital will pay for a dead body is $15.

Measure most men by the quantive standard and they will turn out to be among the most insignificant objects in the universe.

It's quality that counts, not quantity!

I am told, by one who claims to be an authority, that the average man contains enough oxygen, hydrogen and nitrogen to make about $2.46 worth of illuminating gas—yet, many a man is not bright enough to see a joke, even if you labeled it and led it to him with your most winsome smile—nor has he sense enough to come in out of the wet!

What difference does it make to know that a man contains enough carbon to make 9,360 lead pencils so long as his head does not contain a single thought worth writing down? And some men are such poor "sticks" that it is small comfort to know that they contain enough phosphorous to make 800,000 matches!

When I am told that that grouchy, long-faced, sour-tempered individual contains in his make-up about 60 lumps of sugar I can't help wondering why so much sweetness went astray.

The man, with a scientific turn of mind, who estimated the market value of the average man as $7.50 could not be accused of flattering us or of contributing anything to our conceit.

VISITING THE RICH.

It was only yesterday that I went to call on my rich friend. As I approached his place of business, I found myself wondering whether or not he realized how rich he really is.

He is so genuinely gracious that one can't help liking him. Manners, with him, are not put on for effect—they are as natural as breathing.

The moment he saw me he asked me to be seated in the most comfortable chair imaginable. When I sat down in it he adjusted it to an easy angle—all the time carrying on the most friendly kind of a conversation.

Then, with the most winsome smile—he proceeded to shave me! Really, I'm not joking! Perhaps I ought to have told you at the beginning that this rich friend of mine is my barber!

Please don't laugh at me. I never was more in earnest than I am at this moment. This barber friend of mine is rich in those finer qualities which make up life at its best.

In his "Half Baked Ideas" Dr. Fendrich affirms that "every laugh has its birth in the conscience." If he is right, as I am strongly inclined to believe he is, then "Bob," or "Jim," or "Joe," or whatever his real name is, has lots of capital in the Bank of a Good Conscience. His laugh is the laugh of a man who has no reason to feel ashamed because of a sense of guilt. Any man who can laugh as he laughs is a rich man even if he hasn't a dollar in the bank.

HIS FRIENDS.

There is that about him which attracts friends as chickens are attracted to the south side of a barn on a wintry day. Any one might well envy him in the cosmopolitan character of his crowds of friends. A rather long list includes both rich and poor. He can, with perfect propriety, call lots of big business men by their first name—and that is how they speak to him. Merchants as well as mechanics have a place on his friendship list.

The man without friends is to be pitied as a pauper. And it may not be wide of the mark to say that he has himself chiefly to blame for such a state.

When a man feels that he doesn't care a hoot whether he has friends or not, and decides that he will go out into the woods to look for nuts, he should save his shoes and his strength and just take a look into his mirror. And if he is not aware of it, somebody ought to tell him that the man looking out of the mirror is a full-fledged "nut."

It seems to me that friends would be wasted on a man of that sort. The trouble with him is that he is not hitting on all cylinders.

HOW ABOUT YOU?

The extent of some men's ambition is to own a Rolls Royce, a yacht, and at least two houses—one in the city and the other in the country. And so long as they fail to realise this wish they feel that they are not getting a square deal!

But any man who can do a day's work, and has it to do; who can bring a good appetite to the dining-room table three times a day, and be sure that there will be something to supply his hunger, and has a bed to go to at night where he is able to sleep like a healthy baby, is richer than some millionaires that I have read about.

Although my barber friend does not own a high-powered car, he does not have "to hoof it" all the time. He has no yacht; and I believe the only house he has is a rented house—yet he is as contented as any man I know. He may not be as robust as some of his customers, but I believe he always enjoys his food. And I have rather a strong suspicion that he can go to sleep without the aid of a bedtime story.

BEST OF ALL—!

In some circles this friend of mine might not be considered religious—but such circles are much narrower than any contained within the Word of God. Speaking for myself, I devoutly wish that I had a congregation of his kind to work with. Such a congregation would be more my force than my field. With men of his type wonderful things would be brought to pass.

But I am convinced that my friend knows God. On the strength of this knowledge he does not presume to pose as being so pious! No, if you were to ask him regarding his hope for that hour when the accounts of both rich and poor have to be finally settled, he would not talk of his goodness or of how hard he had tried to live right—but he would feel in his soul, even if his lips refused to frame it in speech, that all his hope for the hour of judgment lay in the sinless life and sacrificial death of the Son of God. Indeed I think he might even sing, in a voice that is not so bad as some I have been compelled to listen to:

"Nothing in my hand I bring.
Simply to Thy Cross I cling."

So, John, my friend, no man can be poor who knows God in that way. And in some such way as that my barber friend is a religious man. He carries more wealth in his heart than some folks would have in their pocket if they owned the whole of Peterborough County.

THAT'S ALL!

I once read of two little girls who were playing on the street when a well dressed lady passed them with a swish and a whirl! By the noise it was evident that she wore silk.

"What makes that noise?" asked one of the little girls with a wondering look.

"Sh!" said the other child, "don't you know she's got money—rich folks always rattle and smell good!"

Whether this barber friend rattles or not I can't say, but I have yet to see him rattled. And if he has a smell I know it must be a good one!

True greatness is in the man and not in the suit he wears. Good clothes on some people make me think of a pretty label on an empty bottle.

Although this barber friend makes many a cent by a close shave, the chances are that he will never own much in real estate! Yet, he is a rich man, for all that—and his bank is one that is burglar-proof. He banks "Where thieves do not break through nor steal."

If he ever feels despondent—and who doesn't, at times?—I would ask him to ponder this story. George McDonald makes one of his characters say, "I don't know why God ever made me." To this another character replies, "God has not finished you yet. He is just making you now; you are not yet completed; this is only your beginning."

Blessed be God, while it is true that "It doth not yet appear what we shall be"—we know that when He shall appear we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is."

Yours for more work for everybody—clean pictures and clean living—a continuation of this good weather—and some good hockey!

Allan Fairbairn.

The Hour Of Prayer

FOR the blessing of labor, Good Lord, we thank Thee, for the task that is ours and ours alone, that bids us proudly say: "My Father worketh hitherto and I work." We may not build a pyramid, or hew a way from sea to sea, or turn a nation's eyes towards lands unknown; but we can do our humble darg in the fear of God, and make the record writ in us show full many a page of mean things nobly done. Inspire us so to do that we may justify our prayer: "Establish Thou the work of our hands upon us." Amen.

IT IS SO!

WHEREVER guidance is honestly and simply sought it is certainly given. If we fail to see God's hand it is because we have left the light for the shadows.

BEWARE

LET us beware of losing our enthusiasm. Let us ever glory in something, and strive to attain our admiration for all that would enoble, and our interest in all that would enrich and beautify our life.

BUILT FOR HEAVEN

THE most you can do to a good man is to persecute him; and the worst that persecution can do is to kill him. And killing a good man is as bad as it would be to spite a ship by launching it. The soul is built for heaven, and the ship for the ocean, and blessed be the hour that gives both to the true element.

Danger—

The man that blinks at danger and the man that is blind to it both equally fail to see victory; for such blinking implies fear, the overture of defeat; and such blindness signifies the want of precision which makes the steps invisible that lead to victory.

Difficulties—

Difficulties are the true test of greatness. Cowards shrink from them, fools bungle them, wise men conquer them.

Circumstance—

Prudence yields to circumstance, folly quarrels with it, pride defies it, wisdom uses it, and genius controls it.

Poetry—

Poetry is harmonious wisdom or impassioned philosophy.

A WELL WITHIN

ALL noble life must be an inspiration from within, a well of water springing up, the spontaneous outflow of a full heart. We must seek to be filled with the divine Spirit. Then self will die. Then our life will breathe benedictions and drop blessings everywhere. Our very look will be full of kindness. We shall radiate light wherever we move, chasing away the darkness of others' sorrow. Then, sharing our loaf with the hungry, our joy with the joyless, our strength with the fainting, Christ will give us more and more of comfort, joy, strength and helpful power, and at last will share with us His own crown and glory. For the well in the heart springs up into everlasting life.

Sparks From Many Anvils

DO not look forward to what might happen to-morrow; the same everlasting Father who cares for you to-day will take care of you to-morrow, and every day. Either He will shield you from suffering, or He will give you unfailing strength to bear it. Be at peace then, and put aside all anxious thoughts and imaginations.

* * *

Our Weak Hours

WE are not at all times equally strong. There are days with all of us when we throw off temptation with almost no effort. But none of us are so every day. There are hours with the strongest of us when we are weak. These are the times of peril for us, and our adversary is watching for them. In your weak hours keep a double guard, therefore, against temptation. Keep out of its way. Throw yourself with mighty faith on Him who was tempted in all points as we are, and knows therefore how to deliver us when we are tempted. In time of special weakness run to Christ for shelter.

What Awaits Us

HEAVEN is the Father's house. A father's house is a home; and can you think for one moment of a home in which the members of the household do not know each other? The sweetest, best, happiest and most perfect earthly home is but a dim picture of the love and gladness of the home in heaven. Heaven is like a holy home, only infinitely sweeter, truer and better. Home has been called "heaven's fallen sister." If in the imperfect homes of this world we find so much gladness in the ties that bind heart to heart and knit life to life, may we not be confident that in the perfect home of our Heavenly Father all this gladness will be infinitely deepened and enriched? Love will not be different in heaven; it will be wondrously purified and exalted, but earthly love will live on through death into eternity.

Chary of Kindness

WE let our friends go through life without many marks of appreciation. We are chary of compliments. We hide our tender interest and our kindly feelings. We are afraid to give each other the word of praise or of encouragement lest we should seem to flatter, lest we should turn each other's head. Even in many of our homes there is a strange dearth of good, wholehearted cheering words. Let us not be afraid to say appreciative and complimentary words when they are deserved and are sincere. Let us lose no opportunity to show kindnesses, to manifest sympathy, to give encouragement. Silence in the presence of needs that words would fill is sinful.

Arabian Proverbs

The Proverbs of a nation are not only an epitome of its wisdom, but crystallise for us much of its national temperament and popular habits of thought.

Thy beloved is the object thou lovest were it even a donkey.

IMAGINATION

IMAGINATION is, of all our faculties, the one, I fancy, which demands most schooling, and yet, I am afraid, is apt to get least or none at all; for our schoolmasters never thought of testing us as to whether we saw in the marshalled vision of the mind's eye the things we were reading about; and if the schoolmasters fail to do their duty to the imaginative faculty in the training of our youthful years, is it surprising that in the conduct of life we so often fail to do our duty to ourselves? Disappointed expectations and needless frets are the daily fruits which we see from an ill-regulated imagination. We are disappointed because we do not find what we had no right to expect, and we fret because we are apprehensive of things which in all likelihood will never take place.

A MODEST PROGRAM.

Figures given out by Hon. George S. Henry as to municipal unemployment relief programs already approved by the Ontario Government not only go to show that Peterborough's request for assistance is the most reasonable yet to be brought forward but indicate that some centres are either in decidedly bad shape as regards unemployment or they are taking advantage of the situation to stage a public improvement program at bargain prices.

Among the relief projects listed are $219,000 at Oshawa, $170,000 at Fort William, $100,000 at Sarnia, $96,000 at Kingston and $82,000 at Stratford.

In comparison with these centres, Peterborough's appropriation of $56,000 appears decidedly modest.

The conservative policy followed by the local Council in selecting construction work that will afford the largest percentage of employment and in restricting its demand in accordance with the actual need of assistance should ensure the approval of the ratepayers when the by-law to issue debentures to finance the city's half of the work will be submitted.

Unless there is an unexpected increase in the number out of work here, Peterborough's program should prove sufficient to cope with the situation—and that is all any municipal council should aim at.

THE LIQUOR SALES.

Although a small decrease in liquor consumption in Ontario for the year ending Oct. 31 is anticipated, the total sales for the year will reach in the neighborhood of $54,000,000, which is a sizable sum to be expended on a commodity that at the best can only be described as a luxury.

It is estimated that one out of every seven people in Ontario possesses a liquor permit, and making allowance for the heavy purchases made by tourists, it is evident that permit-holders are fairly steady customers in spite of economic conditions that have cut deeply into other lines of business.

No matter what their views may be as to the liquor policy most likely to do the least harm in this Province, most people will agree that $54,000,000 is a lot of money to throw away on alcoholic beverages.

One thing is clear: the prohibition era failed to make this Province dry, and there remains plenty of scope for educational work that will teach the folly and economic waste of spending so much money upon something that rarely fails to harm.

It would do no harm if the people of Ontario stopped and took stock of the situation; certainly the individual permit-holder would find it good business to check over his expenditures for the past year and ask himself if the game is worth the candle.

In a year of depression $54,000,000 is a huge sum to be tossed away for booze.

BUT WHAT ABOUT THE DEAD?

The new attitude of the British Foreign Office in discouraging the placing of memorial wreaths on the cenotaphs or tombs of unknown soldiers during official visits of foreign delegations to England is likely to be strongly criticized in many quarters.

The policy is explained on the ground that the Foreign Office wishes to discourage the perpetuation of memories of wartime antagonisms.

That is all well and good—but what about the millions of men who laid down their lives in the Great War?

Is the memory of their sacrifice to be lost because of a silly idea that war hatreds will be recalled if visiting delegations pay tribute to the bravery of those who fell?

And what about the relatives of the unreturning brave, the homes in which a vacant chair tells its own story of patriotism that endured even unto death?

Are they to be told now that the death of their loved ones is not to be recalled because of a foolish impression that wartime bitterness will be renewed.

No matter how earnestly we work for perpetual peace, no matter how firm our resolve that there must be no more wars, surely common decency requires that we continue to do honor to the memory of men who when war was not a theory but an actuality went bravely out into its horrors and died for their country.

If conditions are such that the peace of the world is likely to be threatened by simple tributes to Britain's dead paid by visiting delegations, our disarmament policy is sheer folly—we should instead be preparing for the next war.

BUYING CANADIAN GOODS.

According to a contemporary, inquiry at a number of stores discloses the fact that few customers show any anxiety as to the origin of the articles they purchase and seldom are the sales staffs asked as to whether the goods are made in Canada or not.

Probably local merchants could report a similar condition, all of which goes to show that a good deal of educational work remains to be done before the buying public becomes Canada-conscious in its shopping

The Examiner, fully aware of how much benefit to Canadian business and industry would ensue if the people of this country were to awaken to the desirability of confining their purchases wherever possible to goods made or produced in Canada, would nevertheless like to point out that it is not reasonable or fair to put the whole responsibility of education along this line upon the Government and the newspapers.

Canadian manufacturers must do their part, not only by turning out quality goods at fair prices, but by taking up their share of the propaganda necessary to make the campaign a success.

They cannot expect to sit back and let other people do the work while they await a chance to skim off the cream.

It is vitally important that this country should buy more Canadian goods, and it is the duty of Canadian industry and business to help show the Canadian people the wisdom of such a course.

A woman seldom laughs at a man's joke unless she has an axe to grind.—Detroit News.

THE UNITED STATES AND INDIA.

The celebration of Mahatma Gandhi's 61st birthday recalls what has ceased to be a front page story for several weeks—the troubles in India. A recent despatch from London announced that the disobedience campaign conducted by Gandhi is about to "peter out," as must have been expected. The inevitable consequences of strikes and closing of factories, as well as the boycotting of British goods, disturbing and retarding trade, are having their reaction even among former followers of Gandhi. When the pockets of the various communities are affected, it requires a lot of so-called patriotism to make martyrs of the members in support of a "cause" which is artificial and has no real foundation in substantial grievances.

For some time in Canada we were supposed, as the result of propaganda of certain persons who set themselves up as representative of Canadian sentiment, to be suffering from lack of status or some such disorder as that. Nobody knew just how we were suffering materially, morally, politically or any other way. Psychologically, at least, we were suffering, and that was sufficient. Somehow or other our diseased status was supposed to be cured at the Imperial Conference of 1926, but we have discovered that in effect, leaving out terminology, we are just as we were, neither better off nor worse. Gandhi's grievances are of that nature, purely psychological. In other words, mostly in the mind.

But, of course, in the United States, for instance, there is a large element who want to poke their noses into every other person's business, particularly that of Great Britain. Since 1922, Ireland has gone out of the picture as front page stuff, and India has taken its place. The London New Statesman, which is certainly shackled by no traditions or precedents in favor of Great Britain, is strongly condemnatory of sentiment among our neighbors to the south. It says:

"For the past five or six years in America Gandhi has been front page news and audiences all over the United States have heard addresses by speakers, not a few of whom use the personality of the Mahatma, and the events of his later career, as the text for an out-and-out denunciation of the British Government in India. It would be accurate to say that, with a very few exceptions, the Indians now at work in America are political extremists who indulge, by voice and pen, in the most reckless accusations, and further, that some of their American associates are equally careless or unscrupulous. (For example, it is the rarest thing to find, in the published statements coming from either group, a tolerably accurate account of any event or movement in India since 1919.) Comparatively few in number, they are remarkably active. They have the entree to many papers and magazines, while opportunities are provided for them, all over the United States, in churches and open forums, colleges and clubs, and at the innumerable associations that lunch and dine to the accompaniment of an address upon some public question of the hour."

There is no country in the world so jealous of its prerogatives, customs and practices as the United States. While its newspapers and public men are unsparing in their bitterness and extent of criticism of their own people, government and institutions, they resent most keenly any outside criticism, especially from British sources. Let a leading newspaper or public man in Great Britain or Canada say a word against the United States in serious derogation and immediately the nation is ablaze with indignation, notwithstanding that Great Britan is constantly the object of attack on their part. It used to be largely on account of Ireland, but recently it has been India or Egypt or some other part of the Empire with a grievance. It is unmeaning attack, because it is largely based upon, as the New Statesman says, incorrect and prejudiced information.

Let us take the Philippine Islands, for instance. It is held in some respects as India is by Great Britain. No doubt the United States Government is quite sincere in professing that it has no desire for ultimate absorption, but is willing to give that country independence just as soon as it demonstrates its capacity for self-government. That is, in effect, the stand taken by Great Britain in respect of India. It is aiming at granting India status equal to that of Canada or any of the other self-governing Dominions, and probably too much in that direction, because leniency has been mistaken in India for weakness. The difference between the two nations is that while the United States cries "hands off" anything that affects its territorial interests or government, its people are constantly meddling with the rights of other nations in that respect. It matters not that Great Britain has conferred inestimable benefits upon India, Egypt, the Holy Land and any other country it has taken in hand to govern or control. Britain is wrong, always wrong, in everything it does. It is simply unpardonable impertinence, and in the case of India has nothing but the effect of giving a radical discontented and unreasonable element moral and harmful support.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Provincial plowing matches may be held here trouble on ts hands, it is to be imagined, without this Palestine controversy.

Hon. George S. Henry is one man who does not worry about not having a job to do. The Minister of Highways has plenty of work on his hands trying to provide work for others.

The announcement from Essex Liberals that they want a new leader in Ontario is not the most cheerful news for Mr. Sinclair on the eve of the by-elections.

A British warship has been flying the Soviet flag, while its band played the Internationale in honor of the Russian fleet. Surely there's a Gilbert and Sullivan touch about that.

The provncial plowing matches may be held here next year—and many thousand visitors will be attracted to Peterborough as a result.

News of Our Own Village

Jack Stewart's Opry House was visited by the Dumbells this week, this being the 1st road show since Bill Finlayson of Queen's Park, west of here, said a word or 2 for Ed. Peck during last summer's political fracas.

The village soft ballers et at Graham's Hotel Fri. nite, and your scribe learns that when it comes to eating the lads all batted about 1000 per cent.

Increased business activity is reported from south end of the village, Bert McLeod, our puck-chasing pill-pounder, having put up his Quebec heater for the winter, just in time to prevent frostbites among the customers.

Dalt Johnston, governor of the village hoosegow, will soon hafta put up some of his guests in tents if O. A. Langley, our hustling magistrate, don't quit shipping fresh customers up the hill.

Fowl suppers is cutting quite a dash in the neighborhood these nites, keeping Geo. Gillespie and other patrons of the same on the move, so to speak.

Rolly Denne, our energetic mayor, and the lads from the village council was in Toronto, west of here, Wed., and persuaded Geo. Henry, pinch-hitting for Howie Ferguson, to cough up $28,000 for building drains and such. Nice work, boys, say we.

We hope that when the village council builds them drains they'll keep the manholes covered up so no Baby Austin cars can drop down the same. A stitch in time, you know, lads.

They may be a crime wave in other parts but the plowing match up in Douro Thurs. shows a lotta folks in this here neighborhood can still go straight, your scribe hastens to point out.

The village council held a meeting in the King Edward Hotel in Toronto, west of here, Wed. a.m., but the only thing opened up was the relief program, your scribe learns.

High explosives provided a thrill in the village police court Thurs., but none of the boys in the spectators' section was scared enough to give up their seats. Takes more than "soup" to scare the regulars.

RADIO INTERFERENCE

To The Editor of The Examiner:—

Dear Sir:

In answer to "Reason's" letter, of the 23rd instant, with reference to the Radio interference, we live on Park street south and during the past few weeks we have had to shut our radio off many times on account of interference of which "Reason" complains.

To-night (Thursday) it came on about 6:30 and is still on now while I am writing this letter at 9 o'clock.

I certainly do think we should have an Inspector to locate this nuisance.

Yours truly,

Reader.

CHAPTER X.

THE GREAT FLIGHT

Back at Titan Pass, Dorn put his tent in order and then skirled across to the mainland in his canoe. A couple of minor details of guarding his camp had to be attended to before he flew east to Eagel Nest and took the train on in to Edmonton, but his main purpose was to find out whether there was any stir or whisper of trouble at the jump-down. Aurore had told him that men would be silently hunting for her, that detectives would be making inquiries, trying to pick up her trail, at all the stations along the Canadian National. If spies were searching at Titan Pass, Dorn wanted to be warned, for once her enemies found clue to her and started tracking her down, then he would have to take Aurore's battle upon himself.

He walked up the path three hundred yards through a dense stand of cedar and yellow spruce to the five-acre clearing. On the south side of the station in a drove of jack pine clustered the metis cabins and Indian teepees. A wide slab walk extended along the tracks where passengers could get off and gaze around at the majestic Titans, and buy trinkets from the klootchmans (Indian women) who squatted on the walk with curios and baskets of berries and fresh-caught trout in little cedar baskets.

As Dorn came to the clearing he glanced aside and saw the laurel bush where in the moon-shadows of last night Aurore had crouched to hide, and where Kansas had stook like a wooden Wiwash.

North of the station were the H.B. post and Bergelot's snug cabin. On north at the clearing edge stood the chalet, a pretty mountain-inn of green and white, owned and run by the railroad for accommodation of its patrons who stopped off at Titan Pass to hunt or fish or climb the neighbouring giants. For the alpine work the railroad had even brought over a Swiss guide. Several of the Indians and metis thereabouts, acquainted with every nook and cranny of the ranges, could have beaten the Oberlander a dozen ways; but the poor, homesick yodeller, being something foreign, was held in greater esteem by the trippers, and they seemed to think he gave them more for their money.

At the station Dorn came upon a fat, nearly naked Indian squatting against the logs like a gingerbread statute, as immobile as Buddha contemplatiig his navel.

"Kah mitlite nika tillicum oleman Luke Illewahwacet?" Dorn demanded in the Chinook Jargon.

The Indian told him old Luke was at Bergelot's cabin. Dorn strode on up.

Behind the cabin old Bergelot sat smoking. His jaw dropped open when he saw who came, plainly he expected Dorn to scorch him with anger for being party to a deception. But Dorn could not think any act deception which had brought him into the acquaintance and the friendship of Aurore McNain.

Old Luke Illewahwacet, squatting on his haunches in the sun, was carving a horn spoon for his ancient squaw to sell.

The aged Beaver was a lovable old cynic, a bush Cato, a stern misogynist. In the spring of his young manhood he had been a mighty hunter among his people, the Mountain Beavers, who had vanished before the white man's sickness and fight-water. In dress and habits of life and grave dignity Luke clung to the ways of his ancestors. His deer-hide skirt rattled all over with grizzly claws—grizzlies killed not by rifle but by ram's horn bow. The greasy nankin or medicine robe flung around his shoulders was pictured with the salient exploits of his life.

His brown skin was tough as leathe,r and his face—two beady eyes in a mass of infolded wrinkles—was a gargoyle for ugliness. Sixty-odd Great Moons had not withered him; he had merely dried up and toughened, like moose rawhide, like an aged lean panther. In winter he trapped marten, wolverine, mink; in summer he fished and carved, and guided those sportsmen who were wise enough to choose him instead of a younger buck.

"Luke," Dorn spoke to him in the Jargon, "I go away four, five sun. You come back along me in boat to island, camp in my tepee, keep eyes yahkisilth so bad-egg 'breeds like Joe Yoroslaf no walk away with my stuff. Two dolla chickamin each sun pay. You go, huh?"

Old Luke nodded.

"Kloshe!" Dorn commented. "You go now get shoot stick. I wawa Bergelot two, three minutes, then be along you down by boat."

When the old Beaver had stalked away, Dorn glanced around to be sure no one was within earshot, and lowered his voice and spoke in French to Bergelot. "Have you noticed any strangers hanging about here?"

"There is a man, ou'. He came from the east on the morning train. He is down at the cabanes of the metis, inquiring."

Dorn felt a shock go through him. Were "they" on her trail already?

"You were just talking to old Luke Few-of-Words; he sees and knows everything; did he mention any rumours of a strange girl getting off here last night?"

"Tout de rien! Only you, M'sieu Jeem, and I, know about her."

That was some reassurance. Had any 'breed or Indian seen Aurore, the report would have had repercussions at this sleepy- jump-down and Bergelot would have heard the echoes of it. The stranger was probably one of many detectives. Without shadow of doubt the search was on for her at all the mountain stations.

"Money, power, a relentless purpose." Dorn had thought Aurore exaggerated, but he saw now her words were stark truth. The enemy she had fled from meant business. From Hazelton to Medicine Lodge, exactly as she said, they were turning every stone. By splendid luck she had escaped clean, and an airplane had whirled her two hundred miles north into the wilderness. She was safe—just so long as no one found out his connection with her.

"Her clothes weren't over in my tent. What did you do with them?"

"They are inside in my cabane."

Dorn walked around and went into the cabin. There were Aurore's clothes on a peg, clumsily covered over with a mackinaw, where any sharp-eyed operative could have spotted them at a glance.

With his back to the window Dorn took them down and laid them across his arm. What he intended to do seemed a desecration; for besides their rich beauty, Aurore had been clad in them when she came to him. But with no hesitation he stepped over to the stove and put them into it, one by one—slippers, cape, the belted suit, her silken hose and filmy undergarments—hoping he would thus destroy the last evidence of her having been at Titan Pass.

Old Bergelot followed him in. Dorn was nervous, and aware of it, and aware that Bergelot was searching his face and expecting reproach and wondering what had interposed to nullify that expected anger.

"Did she tell you—about herself, Jeem lad?"

"A little. I know she is being hunted; that she is going to hide there at the lake. But no more."

Looking sharply at Bergelot, he saw that the old man was gathering courage to say something—something he was loath to reveal but was forced to.

"What's troubling you, Dad?" he asked kindly.

The rusty old voice was apologetic. "It is good of you, Jeem lad, to take the sorrows of other folk on yourself. You must not fall upon calamity. It was I who brought Mam'selle Aurore over to you, so it is I who must speak a plain warning now. If I meddle in an affair personal to you, I ask pardon beforehand."

"Warning—you mean her enemies?" Dorn glanced through the open door and saw the stranger talking to the fat Indian down by the station. 'For myself, I'll walk carefully. See that you do. Her clothes here in plain sight——"

"I do not mean that danger. I mean . . ." He stumbled and for a moment it seemed he would not go on, but then he spoke again and there was a sort of goaded courage in his voice.

What To-day Means To You

"SCORPIO."

If October 25th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a.m. to 8:30 a.m., from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m. and 9 p.m. to 10 p.m. The danger periods are from noon to 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. to 6 p.m.

There will be a "mixed grill" of events on this date, mostly unimportant ones. Few pre-arranged plans will be carried out. Your merit and character will be attacked by jealous associates. Run no health risks, as the astrological influences are of a lowering nature.

The child born on this October 25th will have a rather tactless and unrestrained nature, and will give offence without meaning to do so. It will love freedom, adventure, amusements, sports and sociability. It will learn more from experience, travel, and observation than from books.

You are not temperamentally fitted to live a solo life. You do not necessarily want to lean on some one else but you are unhappy if you cannot share your life closely with another sympathetic being. You are a brave, unselfish, enthusiastic companion—alone you are cowardly and depressed. You desire life, gaiety and color, but you seek these externally. Your spirits need constant stimulation. You seek change and variety—not so much in people, as in other things, for you stick to your pals.

You are quick witted and entertaining, although you are not a profound and deep thinker. Your keen powers of observation are of great value to you, and your chief source of information. You are not original, but you are a clever mimic and imitator. You have fastidious tastes, and are never careless about your personal appearance. You are also proud and careful in the choice of your associates. Your likes and dislikes are very pronounced and you are rather inclined to baby them. You allow your hates to play too big a part in your life, and many of them should be conquered. You are a malicious and revengeful enemy, and you seldom forgive, and never forget. You will often sacrifice a bright future for the sake of the present, for you do not suffer discomforts with any degree of amiability. If you be a woman, you allow yourself to become hysterical at times when you should keep your head, and you should endeavor to overcome all neurasthenic tendencies.

If October 26th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a.m. to 10:15 a.m., from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. The danger periods are from 11 p.m. to noon and 10 p.m. to 11 p.m.

The influences on this date affect the spiritual and mental rather than material things in life. You will be in a proper mood to learn the truth of two paradoxes—the voice of silence and the companionship of solitude. Inspirations about the present week, and solution of a problem.

The children born on this October 26th need a good education, and should be taught to be less combative and forceful. They will be greatly influenced by environment and surrounding conditions, either for good or bad. Success will materialize for them through their own dogged self-reliance.

You have many faults which are aggravating to others, and which are drawbacks to your own advancement, but you are forgiven much because of your delightful and sweet disposition. It is difficult to knock the smile off your face, for it comes from within. "With the heart always right, the head can seldom be wrong." You seem satisfied with half the economic value of your talents, and nature has not stinted you in this respect. You lack both push and ambition, and do not seem to be observed with any definite desire to be anything, or to do any specific thing. About the only thing you will fight for is comfort and peace.

You have considerable originality and individuality, which you unconsciously express in everything you do, but you are indifferent to your own attractions, and do not try to develop them, or to force your personality. You are very warm hearted, and you will bestir yourself to help some one else, often doing more than you are physically or materially able to stand. You prefer a quiet and simple life, and the companionship of books more than any other amusement. It does not worry you to be alone; in fact, you are fond of your own companionship. You do not like to be tied down by obligations, and you try to keep free from them as much as possible. If you be a man, you like to "tinker" more than you like organized, systematic work. If you be a woman, you like to fuss about the house, but you hate real responsibilities.

THE IDEAL OF EMPIRE UNITY

(From the Empire Mail).

Having journeyed to Britain from three distant continents, the Prime Ministers and other delegates from the overseas Dominions and India will, in a few days, assemble for the opening of the Imperial Conference. It is a significant and impressive fact that the statesmen who are chiefly responsible for carrying on the King's Government in eight important countries situated in different parts of the world should consider this occasion one of such supreme importance as to justify their absence from home for perhaps two or three months just at a time when domestic problems are unusually pressing. No stronger evidence is needed to prove that the Dominion Governments desire not merely to continue to work in close co-operation with Great Britain in dealing with questions of foreign policy and Imperial defence but also to develop the economic strength of the Empire itself. This readiness of Home and Overseas Ministers to turn from the study of domestic difficulties to a joint examination of the vaster and more intricate problems of the British Commonwealth is unquestionably due to their belief that the banishment of some of their greatest troubles at home can automatically be effected by solving certain major problems in the Imperial economic sphere. World conditions generally have never supplied a stronger incentive to co-operative effort for the restoration of prosperity than they give to the countries of the Empire to-day.

The conception of Empire unity has stirred the imagination and roused the enthusiasm of ardent patriotic spirits for two generations and the Great War revealed magnificently our common ideals and purpose. But the ideal of to-day is very different from that of half a century or so ago. What were then colonies or newly federated Dominions have now assumed the rank of sister nations to Breat Britain, equally free and independent though owning allegiance to a common Crown. It is a voluntary association of partners maintained for mutual benefit. Economic unity, if it is to be fully realized, must consequently be the outcome of unanimity, first of all regarding the fundamental principle that the strength and prosperity of the commonwealth provides the best guarantee for the well-being of each constituent part and, second, regarding the main lines of Empire development and the methods to be adopted in following them. Some of the principal aspects of this question are discussed in the articles which follow, with the object of showing the great possibilities which are open to concerted action. The achievement of a large measure of Empire economic unity will be a difficult and lengthy process, yet it is certainly possible of accomplishment if broad and constructive minds are devoted to the task. Immense benefits will be conferred upon the Empire peoples by the pooling of their respective resources, while the greater stability and increased prosperity which would follow the development of Empire economic unity would, of course have a favourable influence on the world at large.

To this generation has fallen the great work of Imperial organization for production and marketing on large-scale and efficient lines, in order to make more freely available to all the varied forms of wealth which the Empire possesses and to provide larger opportunities for remunerative labour to our peoples. By combining our resources and equipment we shall find ourselves well furnished with the means necessary to the achievement of the aim. Nevertheless, we shall fail if we do not also possess in common a will to co-operate wholeheartedly and if we do not hare a willingness to make temporary sacrifices in pursuing the policy that will eventually bring prosperity. It is because The Empire Mail believes that the ideal of Empire economic unity has caught the imagination of the people of Great Britain and that their temper to-day is exceptionally favourable to the undertaking of a bold policy of Empire trade development, and, further, because we are convinced that the Dominions are waiting only for a lead from the United Kingdom, that we urge the United Kingdom to approach the discussion of the economic questions on the Conference agenda with open minds and with fixed determination to evolve the machinery necessary to fuller co-operation in the Imperial economic sphere.

Winnipeg Grain Prices Are Slightly Easier

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 25 (C.P.).—Values in wheat eased off fractionally in desultory trading on the Winnipeg market. No news of any consequence was uncovered by traders, and the purely local nature of opening business reflected no particular tendency—except to wait for developments.

October was 1-8 cent lower at 72 to 72 1-8 cents; November was unchanged at 72 5-8; December was 1-8 cent lower to unchanged at 73 to 73 1-8 cents, and May was unchanged to 3-8 lower to 78¾ cents.

Produce Plentiful On To-Day's Market

At a late hour this morning, when the tables are usually bare of produce, there was plenty to buy on the farmers' market. The basket section was overloaded with fowl. Prices generally for chickens ranged from 25c to 30c a pound. A late buyer bought a fine pair of chickens, weighing over five pounds, for $1. Ducks were 30c a pound, the same price as turkeys, which were present in small numbers.

Butter was generally quoted at 33c a pound. Eggs were 42 to 48c a dozen, with pullet eggs at 35c.

On the open market, late corn was priced at 30c a dozen. Potatoes were $1.25 a bag. Pork was 18c to 21c a lb., and lamb 20 to 22c. Chinchilla rabbits were 50c a pair.

In the basket section an interesting sale of Hallowe'en novelties was a feature.

TRADING LIGHT TODAY'S MART

FARM IMPLEMENTS WEAK.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Oct. 25.—(C.P.)—The stock market once more showed inability to accomplish more than a two day rally to-day. But most of the advances of the past days were well maintained.

Inasmuch as the market was not closed higher more than two successive days in more than two months, Wall street was not surprised. Furthermore, it is not unusual for advances to be halted on the last day of the week, as in and out traders are anxious to take profits before the week-end closing.

Farm implement shares were conspicuously weak, but losses elsewhere were mostly from fractions to a point. The closing tone was heavy. Trading was light, sales approximating 1,200,000 for the two-hour session.

GEORGE SPEEDIE GIVES ADDRESS

Ladies' Aid of St. Paul's Church Holds Annual Supper.

LARGE ATTENDANCE.

The Ladies Aid of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church derived much satisfaction last night in purveying for the large crowd which took advantage of the excellent annual supper provided. The Sunday School Hall presented a Hallowe'en appearance—pumpkin heads, illuminated, dotting the landscape, black and orange streamer on the tables, napkins in like manner also, with the walls showing here and there these bright, seasonal colors, and pot plants, ferns, and silver candlesticks—all the result of the tasty management of a busy corps of ladies of this active branch of the church life—the Aid.

Mrs. H. Morgan, president, along with her officers and executive, are due great credit for the successful consummation of this, the main part of the evening's enoyment.

Music During Supper.

The supper was partaken of to the accompaniment of orchestral music, with Martin B. Chenhall at the piano, "and all very good." This diversity took place from 5.30 until 7.00 in the hall, and later in the church.

Male Octette Assists.

From 7.30 until 8.00 an octette, consisting of Messrs. Skitch, East, Coleman, Jr., Coulson, Hope, Watson, Anderson, and Grieves, entertained the waiting audience with four New York chorus numbers.

London From a Bus Top.

George Murray Speedie, F.R.G.S., was the principal actor in the hour and a half following the supper, when he delivered a travelogue-lecture, entitled "Seeing London from the Top of a London Bus."

The lecturer was introduced by Rev. William Allan, and Mr. Speedie started off with two stories, on his own nationality (he is a native of the smallest county in Scotland, Clackmannan), with his soft, musical were the Mansion House, the Docks, manner, holding his audience with interesting descriptions of the sights of Old London—"It is a dear place to live in—the greatest seaport in the world—the hub of the universe," was his summing up of the Metropolis. The speaker said, "One can see London at its best, and its worst, from the top of a bus."

Sailor Work for 30 Years.

Mr. Speedie had been engaged in work among the sailors who came into the docks of London for 31½ years, and came in contact with seamen of every nationality. He is now posted in Canada as superintendent of the Mission to Seamen.

Clear Pictures.

Proceeding with the lecture, pictures were thrown on the screen, commencing with the Royal Exchange and the Bank of England, and among many others in rotation were the Manshionhouse,, the Docks, Greenwich Observatory, the Tower of London, Thames River, Houses of Parliament, outside and inside, dear old Westminster, where the statues and resting-places of Britain's illustrious dead are seen, the Horse Guards, the Dog Cemetery (little tombstones erected to canine pets), Mr. Speedie remarking that Britain was far from lacking even this sentiment for the dumb animals; Kensington, and the Cenotaph, in its quiet dignity and majesty, The Mall, and many other views, concluding with a bird's-eye view of the great Metropolis. Leaving the bus, the audience were taken across the Channel to Hamburg, Germany, at which port the lecturer spent some time on his official duties among the seamen. Here also is located the great Hagenbeck Zoo, the views showing the wild animals in their various native surroundings, planned by the owner, Mr. Speedie was a close friend of Mr. Hagenbeck.

The splendid pictures were vividly portrayed, the audience almost imagining it was on top of a London bus throughout the course of the tour, and the colors added to the reality of the scenes.

Boosts Canadian Goods.

The final pictures were seascapes taken in his own beloved land, and were beautifully tinted, and these were followed by Government slides boosting produced-in-Canada goods, to help alleviate the present unemployment. With Hurrell Dodds manipulating the lantern, and votes of thanks to all who had helped to make the evening a success—supper and lecture—by School Inspectors R. Lees and R. F. Downey, "O Canada" was sung as the parting number on an educationally interesting program.

WOMEN'S CHOIR PLACED EIGHTH

Brantford Ladies Compete With Cream of English Choirs.

ALSO MIXED CHOIR.

(By Thomas T. Champion C. P. Staff Correspondent.)

BLACKPOOL, Eng., October 25. — The 33 women members of the Canadian choir of Brantford, Ont., were unplaced in the big ladies' choir contest of the Blackpool music festival last night, being placed eighth, outside the prize list.

Commenting on their performance, A. C. Tysoe, famous choral adjudicator, who has just returned from Canada, said the Brantford choir competed last night against the cream of English choirs. The Canadians, Mr. Tysoe said, might be prepared to find not the top of the ladder at the moment.

The festival will be continued tonight, when the whole Brantford choir—composed of 33 women and 26 men—will compete in the mixed voice contest.

STUDENT BODY ROUTS FIREMEN

$500 DAMAGE.

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 25 (C.P.).—Queen's University students and city firemen had a lively clash on Queen's lower campus last night, when the firemen came to extinguish a bonfire the students had in full swing. As the firemen turned on the water the students are alleged to have attacked the members of the fire department, taking the hose away from them and giving the firemen a ducking. The firemen stated that during the struggle over the hose, Chief Armstrong was knocked down and trampled on, and three other firemen suffered injuries, one member losing the filling out of a tooth. The Fire Chief estimated the damage at $500 to fire department property and personal property of firemen, and it is understood the students will be asked to make good the damage. Three or four members of the police force were on the scene, but no arrests were made.

216 COAL MINERS ARE LAID TO REST

Victims of Alsdorf Disaster Placed in One Grave in Special Cemetery.

FIFTY UNIDENTIFIED.

ALSDORF, Germany, Oct. 25 (A.P.)—Bodies of 216 victims of Tuesday's coal mine disaster were buried here to-day while the town observed deepest mourning and all business ceased.

The flower-covered coffins were lowered into four parallel trenches. Protestant and Catholic divine services were read. The burial took place in a special cemetery as the local one was too small to hold all the bodies.

Fifty caskets bore no name plates because their inmates were too mangled for recognition.

Thousands of persons including miners' delegations from the Saar and Ruhr districts a attended.

With yesterday's deaths the total list of dead stood at 262, of which 46 were buried in neighboring villages where they had their homes.

BEAVERBROOK IS TARIFF BACKER

Empire Free Trader Greeted With Cat Calls at Paddington Baths.

AGAINST BALDWIN'S SYSTEM

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 25 (C. P. Cable).—Cat-calls and booing, and a subsequent outbreak of fisticuffs in the gallery section, greeted Lord Beaverbrook, Empire Free Trade crusader, last night when he started his address at Paddington Baths in support of Vice-Admiral E. A. Taylor, Empire Free Trade candidate in the South Paddington by-election. A section of the crowd also sang "The Red Flag."

"The Conservative central office seems to be well represented," Lord Beaverbrook said, and then went on to urge that the Conservative Party contest the next general election on a platform favoring duties on foreign foodstuffs in the interests of Empire economic unity.

At the conclusion of the address, someone in the gallery called for "Three cheers for Baldwin," which were heartily given in some parts of the audience.

Attack Quota System

Referring to the quota system on wheat which Right Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, considers preferable to a tariff on foreign wheat, Lord Beaverbrook said such a system would mean the appointment of inspectors and the moving of wheat from one part of the country to the other in order to balance the percentages required.

"Sometimes it will be a case of 'hold back that Canadian wheat and come up with the Russian supply' in order that there might be a complete mixture to suit the requirements of Mr. Baldwin, who will not give us a perfectly simple system of duties on foreign foodstuffs," Lord Beaverbrook said.

The proposed Conservative quota system was characterized by Lord Beaverbrook as "perfectly ridiculous," declaring it could be applied to the problems of Great Britain. He said it was almost like rationing food again.

"Why is it the Conservative party will not go to the country on a policy of placing duties on foreign foodstuffs?" Lord Beaverbrook asked. 'We have everything to gain and nothing to lose. We can hold all the foreign markets we have got, and capture the Empire markets now held by the foreigner."

The verdict was returned by the petit jury of the criminal assizes after 35 minutes' deliberation, and, immediately after the death sentence was pronounced by Mr. Justice Gibson.

THEATRE NEWS

'ALL QUIET' WILL BE SHOWN AGAIN

NEXT WEEK'S PROGRAM

In spite of the big houses for "All Quiet on the Western Front" the war picture failed to break the record made by Marx Brothers in "Cocoanuts."

However, the war picture did the second largest week's business at the Capitol, and so many people were turned back by the evening crowds that Manager Stewart has decided to bring it in again for two days. Incidentally, the very fact that "All Quiet" almost turned the record trick is evidence that there is no "hard times" generally in Peterborough and its immediate district.

Next Week At The Capitol.

Saturday and Monday, 25 and 27—"Manslaughter" with Claudette Colbert and Frederic March.

Tuesday and Wednesday, 28 and 29—Buddy Rogers and Nancy Carroll in "Follow Through."

Thursday and Friday, 30 and 31—"Monte Carlo" with Jack Buchanan and Jeanette MacDonald.

This program offers an interesting range and variety for the patrons of the Capital.

"Manslaughter" is the story of a beautiful girl whose reckless driving causes the death of a motorcycle policeman. She is prosecuted by her lover, a district attorney, and sent to prison.

Claudette Colbert was the modern young wife of "The Young Man of Manhattan", and the very good reason for Maurice Chevalier crossing "The Big Pond."

Jack Buchanan, star of the London and New York musical comedy stage, makes his second screen appearance in "Monte Carlo." Last season he had the premier role in the London success "Wake Up and Dream", which arrived on Broadway about the same time as Evelyn Laye's "Bitter Sweet."

There are at least half a dozen lilting song hits in this romantic musical comedy of the vocal screen. Paramount fans especially remember Jeanette MacDonald in her success "The Love Parade."

LUBITSCH TRIANGLE

Director "Socked" Man He Had Once Befriended.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 25—Hungry for a good scare film story, the dailies have been hopping on everything and anything, even in Los Angeles, culminating in the sensationalizing of the Ernst Lubitsch-Hans Kraly-Mrs. Helene (Ernst) Lubitsch triangle A mild tiff at the opening-of-the-season gala at the "exclusive" Embassy Club, L.A., was the scene of the alleged slap which patrons adjoining the principals never suspected occurred until three days later when a morning paper ballyhooed the triangular battle.

Kraly himself stated in interviews that he didn't know that the alleged "sock" had been aimed at him; that he thought he had been collided with by another dancer on the closely packed dance floor.

On the follow-up interviews, Lubitsch gave out lengthy statements which served their purposes fulsomely if the director, en route to New York, was aiming for the news breaks, but which his associates in the Paramount organization regarded as more or less out of order

The triangle, as a situation, was well known on the Coast, dating back many years when Lubitsch literally housed his old friend from Germany, Kraly bringing him over to America, guiding him, etc., until Kraly clicked as a writer of originals and won Mrs. Lubitsch away. Latter, as an aftermath, formally stated to the press that as soon as her divorce from the Par director becomes final she will marry Kraly.

The real burn-up for Lubitsch, an inside angle which none of the local dailies would have liked to use even if aware of it, is the phoney "society news" published promiscuously by all L.A. rags, with nonexistent "guests" attending this and that house party. The accuracy percentage is estimated at 25 per cent. Since nobody squawks, hostesses continue to send out lists with sundry Joe Doakese attending, plus some sure-fire celeb names, who perhaps hardly know the donor of the party.

Whether an actuality or fact, Mrs. Lubitsch's entertainments at the $150,000 Beverly Hills' estate, which she was given in property settlement under the stringent laws of the State of California, were generously sprinkled with names of Lubitsch's former friends.

At the charity function at the Embassy, Lubitsch was rancing with Ona Munson (Mrs. Eddie Buzzell) and supposedly attacked Kraly, who was escorting the ex-Mrs. Lubitsch. Miss Munson didn't know anything had happened.

The dailies, however, needed only something to pipe up a situation that was already known and was in the morgue of every sheet.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Oct. 25 (C.P.)—Foreign exchanges irregular. Great Britain 4.85 13-16; France 3.92⅝; Italy 5.28¼; Belgium 13.94; Germany 23.82; Montreal 100.14 1-16.

SCREEN AND STAGE NOTES

Claudette Colbert's forthcoming picture, "Strictly Business," will be filmed in English and French. The decision to produce a French version in America rather than at the Paramount Joinville studios in France came as a result of Miss Colbert's performance in the French version of Maurice Chevalier's "The Big Pond." With the exception of Miss Colbert, two casts will be assembled for the two productions. Dorothy Arzner will direct both versions at Paramount's Astoria studios with the aid of a French director on the Gallic edition.

"Just Imagine," a Fox movietone musical offering composed by De Sylva, Brown and Henderson, was shown recently at the Carthay Circle Theatre in Los Angeles. "Just Imagine" is the second screen composition of this combination, their first being "Sunny Side Up." The cast includes Maureen O'Sullivan, John Garrick, El Brendel and Marjorie White. David Butler directed this musical fantasy.

Wesley Ruggles, director of the forthcoming radio picture, "Cimarron," started his screen career portraying "cops" in Keystone comedies.

The talking pictures in various stages of production at the Paramount Hollywood studios are:

"Stampede," with Richard Arlen; "Dishonored," with Marlene Dietrich; "Tom Sawyer", with Jackie Coogan and Mitzi Green; "The Virtuous Sin," with Walter Huston and Kay Francis; "The Right to Love," with Ruth Chatterton, and "Fighting Caravans", with Gary Cooper, Lily Damita, Tully Marshall and Ernest Torrence in the cast.

Paramount productions to be released in the near future include: "Along Came Youth," with Charles Rogers; "Morocco," with Gary Cooper and Marlene Dietrich; "Sea Legs," with Jack Oakie; "Derelict," with George Bancroft, and "Playboy of Paris," featuring Maurice Chevalier.

Carl Laemmle, now in New York on his semi-annual visit, is planning a trip to Europe, where he will confer with Erich Maria Remarque, who wrote "All Quiet on the Western Front," and John Drinkwater, the playwright, who is now engaged in writing a biography of the film producer.

"We'd still be doing silent pictures if it weren't for him—so he says," was one wheeze about Al Jolson in the Hollywood Masquers' Revel.

Mrs. Adele Rowland Tearle, present wife of Conway Tearle, filed suit against Mrs. Josephine Park Tearle, former wife of Tearle, for $9,659. She claims Mrs. Tearle No. 1 had two automobiles of theirs attached to collect alimony from Tearle.

Blanche Sweet Neilan, divorced from Marshall Neilan, petitioned the Superior Court, Los Angeles, to permit her to drop the Neilan from her name.

There is no one in motion pictures who rehearses more than Douglas Fairbanks. 'Reaching for the Moon' starring Mr. Fairbanks and Bebe Daniels, goes into actual production Monday. All these last few weeks have been spent in rehearsing. Saturady night the final dress rehearsal was held and a new member of the cast discovered in the person of Jack Mulhall, who has just been added to the cast and will play one of the important parts.

Hollywood has developed the reported interest of Ronald Colman (long separated from Thelma Hayes) and Evelyn Laye. These two are English. She divorced Sonnie Hale, English actor, naming as co-respondent Jessie Matthews.

Miss Matthews, to complete the complications, was simultaneously divorced from Alva Lytton. Miss Matthews came from London to New York to appear with Jack Buchanan in "Wake Up and Dream." For a time Evelyn Laye was seen with William Rhinelanders Stewart, New York society millionaire. Then she was reported engaged to Carlisle Rowntree, wealthy Texas cotton broker, who lives in New York and has become a race horse owner.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

THE DUMBELLS

It speaks volumes for the popularity of The Dumbells that in spite of economic conditions and an unusual run of super-talkies, Captain Plunkett's soldier entertainers drew a capacity audience at the Grand Opera House last night and are certain to do so again to-night, when the final performance of their present visit will be given.

"Happy Days," as the Dumbells' twelfth annual revue is called, brings back most of the old favorite members of the Plunkett combination, Morley Plunkett being the only notable absentee from last year's cast. Captain Plunkett himself, the debonair Al, the irrepressible "Red" Newman, that sad-faced little comic Pat Rafferty, the ever-amusing Fred Emney, Charlie Jeeves, the smooth-working "straight," Harry Binns, who sings frequently and always to advantage, and other well-known Dumbells all contribute materially to the success of the production, while the female members of the company have gained a charming recruit in little Audry Carline, who scores heavily in song numbers. The Dumbelletes in costumes that interfere not in the least with the freedom of their movements—there's not a stocking in a bus load—register effectively in a number of dance routines.

"Happy Days" is produced on typical Dumbell lines, a melange of music, comedy, sketches, and dancing, handsomely mounted and moving at rapid tempo. Fred Emney, whose comedy is as infectious as ever, scores the biggest individual triumph and his every movement on the stage brings a laugh while his piano playing goes over as big as ever.

The assistance of Charlie Jeeves in the comedy passages is a material factor in the laugh-making. "Red" Newman and Pat Rafferty unload plenty of merriment. Al Plunkett introduces, in his own characteristic style, a series of song hits of which "Madelon" is the most notable. Harry Binns and Jessie Butt offer several duets; "Forget-Me-Not," opening the second act being perhaps the most meritorious. Captain Plunkett himself is heard in a musical specialty with Brother Al and Fred Emney that is one of the bright spots of the program. The Corrigan Sisters dance cleverly, their tap dancing standing out.

There are no dull moments and few numbers fail to register—in other words, "Happy Days" will please regular Dumbell fans and make new friends among those who have not seen earlier Plunkett successes.

At last night's performance Captain Plunkett, in a graceful little speech, acknowledged the presence of such a splendid audience and hoped to see all his patrons again next season, when the Dumbells would return with their thirteenth annual revue.

HUMAN FREAKS FOR RINGLING

African Savages With His Main Show Drew Crowds.

STORY OF THE UBANGIS.

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—Next season will likely see great changes in the circus business.

Freaks, especially human ones, will play a major part in all the programs of the six circuses now under control of John Ringling.

Success of the Ubangi savages, on the Ringling Barnum circus, this past season, is credited with causing all the switching. Show had a few of these duck-bill natives, brought from some spot in Africa, and surrounded by colored help hired in America. Phenomenal success of this circus, as compared with the other five, that went in the red, featuring only the regular old time circus draws, has convinced the Ringling interests the time is right for a change.

Scouring Europe

At present John Ringling is reported to have a half a dozen men abroad scouring the foreign spots for attractions than can be featured on all his outfits. They are looking for six separate draws, which can be featured on each outfit, and which will pull as did the Ubangi Savages for the big show. All, whatever they are, will be featured to the exclusion of other draws.

So strong is the Ringling office working on this basis that no one of the standard turns has been given a come-back contract for next year. With the freak draws, it is figured to give these acts second place instead, of, as in the past, first.

Black Beauties.

The Ubangi women are also shown in Paul Hoefler's film "Africa Speaks."

This tribe lives at the edge of the Sahara Desert and the story of how the disks became popular was told by Mr. Hoefler.

Many years ago, according to the traveler, the Arabs swept down across the Sahara and raided the native villages for slaves. They took with them all the comely young girls of the Sara Kyabe whose good features and graceful figures had made them long desirable in the slave market. The natives tried to resist the invaders with little success until finally they clubbed together at a large water hole, built a fort of matted grass and awaited the Arabs.

But their preparations were of little avail. Their primitev spears and bows and arrows were no use against guns, and the women were taken away. The chieftains came together once again and this time decided that the only way to discourage pillaging was to disfigure their beautiful women. So each man returned to his home and slashed his wife's cheek, rubbing dirt in the cut to make huge, ugly blisters and sores, and slitted the girl child's lip and inserted a small disk in it. This disk was enlarged as the child grew older until maturity, when the disk sometimes reached a diameter of eight or nine inches.

The Mother of Invention.

With this disk in the mouth the women are unable to dance, for it falls out, and when eating they must remove it, so that their countenance are indeed a discouraging sight for any covetous trader. Trading and raiding have long since stopped, however, and the reason for the disk having been forgotten, the disk itself is now recognized as a thing of beauty and a customary procedure. It remains a sign of the "haute monde" among Ubangi women.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

CHICAGO PRODUCE

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—Despite promising rallies at times, cereal markets yesterday failed to hold gains, and finished at lower levels as compared with twenty-four hours previously. Reports of cheaper offerings of Argentine and Russian wheat abroad had a late bearish influence, and so likewise did indications of good progress being made by domestic winter wheat crop, especially in Kansas. Official announcement was received that Argentine wheat acreage was 1,177,000 acres larger than estimates heretofore called for, and that Australia also has a bigger acreage than last year, with crop prospects in both countries excellent.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, ½c to ⅝c a bushel lower than Thursday's finish. Corn closed ⅝c to 1⅛c down, oats ⅛c to ¼c off, and provisions ranging from 2c setback to an equal advance.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Oct. 25.—Egg prices of fresh seconds will be raised two cents a dozen on Monday and all storage grades one cent, it was announced yesterday. No further advances will be made on top grades of fresh eggs. Less than carlot prices yesterday for fresh extras were 48c to 50c a dozen; fresh firsts, 42c to 43c and seconds, 28c. Receipts were 444 cases.

The butter market was firm and quiet, with Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery butter, in carlots, quoted at 30c a pound. To retailers solids were 32c to 33c and prints, 33c to 34c. Receipts were 863 cases.

On the cheese market Quebec cheese was 14¼c and 14½c a pound, and Ontario cheese 15½c to 15¼c, with receipts totalling 2,639 boxes.

The potato market was unchanged.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, October 25. — Losses of 1⅝ to 1½ cents were recorded at the finish of meagre trading on the Winnipeg wheat market yesterday. It was one of the dullest sessions for many days, with light grading of unimportant nature. Overnight export business could not be confirmed, and general business was limited in volume.

Chicago's strength straightened up the market at mid-session, after the general apathy brought recessions, but offerings became too general at the close, and values slid off to the finish.

LEADERSHIP

of this world a better and brighter kingdom for us all by the lives they are leading and the lives they are influencing in it."

Set Standards

In the matters of state, he felt that University graduates in Quebec have set standards of state craft that would enrich the annals of any nation and of any country. He regretted that political obligation were not supported as they should be. It was charged that politics were bad and that might be so, but, perhaps, if it were not for the aloofness of so many, they might be improved to the substantial advantage, not only of one's self, but of the whole membership in the community. In many cities and towns, the administration was lax and it seemed the time to indicate that the leadership of the University graduate herein is woefully insufficient. It was not always that way. And Mr. Laurent quoted the splendid service rendered by those who occupied the office of the Mayor of the City of Quebec. They had stepped into Provincial and Federal life and had brought fame and renown to their birthplace. He regretted that at the present time University graduates had no seats in the Council, but the well-being of the community, notwithstanding, is as great now as it ever was. He commended to the young men the thought that the service of the community in which they will find themselves in the years to come is a duty, which rests on all. The speaker added, I do not mention this in any 'holier than thou' for I must confess that I have never served my own community, even as a church warden or a school trustee. Most of those who volunteer advice to the younger generation would find their material very seriously curtailed, if they were restricted to preach only that which they themselves have sufficiently practiced." He spoke of the leadership of the University graduate in the learned profession. And the splendid success that has followed them in their career.

He urged those who were entering law, not to count too much upon luck but to fight hard and to discover their own weakness. The law does provide some enviable positions, but there is lots of disappointment in the practise of the profession. He suggested that there are other careers where one can lead more useful and satisfactory lives than in a genteel mediocrity masked behind a lawyer's shingle. That great genius Caesar preferred to be first in the Gaelic Hamlet rather than second at Rome.

The same applied to the medical and dental profession—the fields were overoded. "It seems to me" he he said, "that too many of them are drawn to the easier and more comfortable and more interesting life of the towns and of the hospitals and that few of them feel that profound, sincere, and disinterested devotion to all those, who are ailing, without which it is inconceivable that anyone should undertake the weary round of day and night visits to patients lying in homes poorly adapted to the recovery of their health. And where the doctor himself is deprived of the material comforts and intellectual contacts to which he has been accustomed by his training and culture. The country doctor and the country clergyman were both glorified by the Divine Master Himself, in the story of the good Samaritan. There is room and need for leadership in matters of health in many a rural Canadian community; the cities and towns will always be plentifully supplied. He spoke of the splendid opportunities offered in making over the face of the world. There was room for vision, for quickening and strengthening of attachment in the soil of Canada by the things we erected upon it. He paid tribute to the work of the professional engineer, who without doubt in this industrial age, have had great duties of leadership cast upon them and who have extended so tremendously the dominion of man over the gigantic forces of nature. He concluded by saying: "Our country had great possessions, but nevertheless, it has nothing of greater importance than the men and women who constitute its population, and let us all see to it that those great possessions are properly used, and the fruits thereof kept sufficiently distributed as means to the end that those men and women and their children and their children's children, may, all of them, enjoy full and self-supporting and self-respecting lives as behoove free men happily associated together in a prosperous and well ordered commonwealth."

FOUR SCHOOLS ENTERED IN TRENT RIVER PUBLIC SPEAKING CONTEST

Educational Event Sponsored by Members of Women's Institute.

SPLENDID ADDRESSES

TRENT RIVER, Oct. 25.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—The first of the series of oratorical school contests was held on Wednesday evening in Conolly's school where Earl Fairman is teacher. Four of the schools of West Seymour were entered: Conollys, Flemmings, Wests and Trent Bridge. The Women's Institute is giving $8 as prizes, $2 to each school.

Mrs. Charles Macoun in her capable manner presided for the program and in her opening remarks stressed the need of the training of the boys and girls and said the oratorical contest was a great opportunity.

Earl Fairman related a number of practical jokes in referring to the contest for his pupils. The judges were Messrs. Todd of West School, Umphreys of Trent Bridge, and H. B. Wood.

There were six subjects to choose from and Don Free the first speaker chose, "An automobile tire," Lowa Outindyke, Clarence Stanbury and George Dunham also chose this subject.

Douglas Liberty and Vera Clark, the second and third speakers, chose 'The Tenants in our orchard," while Lillian Stanbury spoke on "What a girl can do to help."

Harold B. Wood spoke regarding the rules of the contest and was followed by a selection and song, 4,000 years ago," by Ray Keating, and a recitation by Margaret McCulloch. Mr. McMillan also delighted the audience several times with violin selections.

Play Presented.

A play entitled, "Bugginsville Uplift Society," was presented by seven younger members of the Institute, Mrs. Snubbins, a self elected president of the society, Miss Reta Longmuir; Mrs. Tattler, vice-president, who never gossips, Miss Violet Hooper; Miss Clubby, secretary who is very popular, Miss Maggie Waddell; Mrs. Muddle, the treasurer, who can never get things right; Miss Berenice Clark; Mrs. Doolittle, Miss Helen Clark; Mrs. Scrubbitt, friendly enemy and member of the committee, Miss Ruby Dunham; Mrs. Yellett, a very deaf old lady, also a member of the committee, Miss Vera Clark.

At the conclusion of the play a recitation was given by Ralph Rutherford and a chorus, "The Darling Black Moustache," and "O Hulligan" by six young ladies. Mrs. Macoun announced that Conolly's school had received second prize for the best collection of flowers at the School Fair at Campbellford, and Mrs. James Todd presented Mr. Fairman with a cheque for three dollars.

Miss Vera Clark gave a recitation and Mr. Umphrey spoke regarding the three points for the contestants to observe— manner, delivery and material. On delivery the contestant should talk straight to his audience and thereby gain their attention and lose self consciousness. Mrs. Howard Clark, president of the Institute, thanked all who had taken part and gave a short reading, "A Psalm of Marriage."

George Dunham Winner.

Mr. Umphrey in announcing the winner, called on Vera Clark, George Dunham and Clarence Stanbury. George Dunham being the winner, and special mention being made of the addresses of Vera Clark and Clarence Stanbury.

Mrs. Macoun spoke of the three girls attending the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto, Misses Maggie Waddell, Helen Clark and Violet Hooper. There are only five attending from Northumberland County and three of them are from this district.

MISSIONARIES INTRODUCED.

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 25.—The annual convention of the Union of Regular Baptist Churches of Ontario and Quebec, which has been in session in the Central Baptist Church here since Tuesday, was brought to a close last night. The church was packed to the doors with a record attendance.

The final session included the presentation of the report by the Resolutions committees, and two addresses by the Rev. J. F. Holliday, President of the Young Peoples' Union of Ontario, and the Rev. T. I. Stockley, D.D., Dean of Toronto Baptist Seminary.

The afternoon session was chiefly devoted to a discussion of foreign missions. Three missionary candidates who have been accepted by the new board of the Union to go almost immediately to the mission field in Liberia, West Africa, were introduced to the convention. They were Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Mellish and Miss Minnie Lane of Hamilton. Mr. Mellish has for two years been pastor of Miner's Bay Church, and Mrs. Mellish, who, before her marriage was Miss Catherine Hartley, graduated last June from the Women's College Hospital, Toronto, and is also a graduate of Toronto Bible College.

Miss Lane is a graduate of Toronto Baptist Seminary.

OBITUARY

LEONARD COX

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 25 (Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral of the late Leonard Cox was held on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the house of Mr. Michael Allen on Queen street, where Mr. Cox had made his home for the past eight years, proceeding to St. John's Church, where the service was held. Rev. W. J. Creighton officiated and gave a short address during the service, recalling his first acquaintance with the deceased when he was first in Lakefield twenty-three years ago. There are many happy memories of Mr. Cox, who was a skilled artisan, a man with a great capacity for friendship and kindliness and very loyal in his devotion to his church. Let us remember these things and so we leave him to God, Who has taken him to Himself for evermore.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. W. Chappell, T. Cunningham, Dr. M. P. Kennedy, Messrs. E. H. Northey, C. Thomson and T. Watson. Interment was made in Hillside Cemetery.

The late Leonard Cox was born in England about seventy years ago and has lived in Lakefield about twenty-five years, where he had made many friends. He was a bricklayer by trade and did a great deal of work in the community. Although entirely alone in this country, he had a definite place in the community life and he will be very much missed, as he took a keen interest in the affairs of the municipality and was loyal and unswerving in his devotion to his church. Among those who gathered to pay a last tribute of respect, there were many stories told of his kindliness of heart.

UTTERLY WORN OUT

Women Weakened by Worry.

"I don't want to worry, but I can't help it," said a woman recently when told to take things easy and not worry. It is the duty of every woman to save her strength. If she finds herself getting depressed; if she feels utterly worn out; worries over trifles and frequently has nervous headaches, she will be wise to realize her nervous system needs attention.

Starved nerves mean a breakdown. To feed the nerves you must build up the blood. To do this there is nothing to equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills not only enrich the blood but actually create new blood which feeds and strengthens the nerves and banishes the cause of nervous disorders.

Women cannot always rest when they should, but every woman can maintain her strength by the help of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Start taking these Pills now and see how soon improvement will show by increased energy, keen appetite, strong, steady nerves and robust health. These Pills are sold by medicine dealers or by mail, postpaid, at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

STRAUS FAILED METRO

Composer's Visit To Hollywood Produced No Hits.

Oscar Straus' six months in Hollywood netted nothing musically but headaches aplenty for the composer and the studios which engaged him. Originally he was brought over by Warners. Within three weeks the studio and the composer couldn't agree and Straus walked. Metro engaged him, allegedly agreeing to pay him $50,000 for six months.

Straus went to work on music for "The Great Day", but there is little chance of much of his efforts appearing in this picture due to the present box office disregard of music. Metro is said to have paid Straus $42,961 in all.

According to Straus' civil court complaint just filed in Los Angeles he lived up to his end of the contract and did not violate the clause suspending payment "if incapacitated from full services or refusal or neglect to perform."

Shanghai, China, plans to spend nearly $4,000,000 on new municipal buildings.

TURKEYS REQUIRE 6 WEEKS FEEDING BEFORE KILLING

Birds Which Have Been on Open Range Should Not Be Penned Up.

MAKE CHANGE GRADUAL

Feed Mashes Morning and Mid-Day and Whole Grains at Night.

Turkeys which have been held over from the Thanksgiving Festival with the intent of preparing them for the Christmas trade should be put on a fattening ration about the middle of November. Birds which have been on open range during the growing season should not be confined to pens during the fattening period. When properly fed they will take no more excercise than is necessary for good digestion, whereas if they are confined in pens there is great danger of the birds going off their feed, developing digestive disorders with accompanying loss of flesh, and quite frequently the loss of a number of the birds.

When the weather is cold the birds will not flesh as rapidly as earlier in the autumn, and at least five weeks' feeding will be necessary to get them ready for Christmas. As it will take one week to dress and ship them to market, fattening should commence at least six weeks before Christmas. If the birds are very thin even a longer period may be required to flesh them properly.

Start Feed Gradually

Feeding should be started gradually, in fact the birds should be fed regularly twice daily from about the last of September. The birds should receive just what they will clean up nicely with two feedings daily, morning and early evening during the third week in November. After that time feed three times daily until killing time.

The feeds should consist both of mashes and whole grains. Feed mashes morning and mid-day and whole grains in the evening. The birds can digest more food when it is fed in the form of mash but the feeding of whole grains in the evening will prevent them from becoming very hungry before morning as grains are assimilated much more slowly than mashes.

A good mash can be made by a mixture of equal parts ground oats, barley meal, cornmeal and wheat bran. Ground buckwheat is also good and can be used instead of cornmeal or barley meal if necessary. To this mixture add about 10 per cent beef meal and 5 per cent ground charcoal. Mix thoroughly before moistening. Fattening mashes should be fed in a moist condition but only sufficient should be moistened for one feeding. It is a good practice to have the morning feed moistened the night before so that it will become thoroughly swollen before feeding. By adopting the practice of moistening mashes a few hours before feeding time many digestive disorders can be overcome. Water or sour skim-milk can be used for moistening the mash and at feeding time it should be fairly solid, not sloppy or watery.

Feed all mashes in V shaped troughs which should be thoroughly clean. Remove any food from the troughs, which may be left over after the birds have satisfied their appetites.

Whole corn which has been properly ripened is about the best grain for fattening purposes at this season of the year. It is palatable and the birds take kindly to it. New corn or corn which is not ripe should be fed sparingly. Give the birds only what they will clean up nicely before going to roost. Fresh water, grit, and oyster shell should be kept where the birds can help themselves.

Feeding Barley Cuts Cost

Where the turkeys can be induced to eat a mixture of whole barley and buckwheat with a little corn added for the evening meal the cost of the ration can be considerably reduced. Home grown grains should be used wherever possible.

Turkeys for the Christmas trade should be sent to market dressed. Starve the birds for twenty-four hours before killing, during which time they should be given all the fresh water they will drink. The water aids in cleaning out the intestinal tract and also aids in improving the quality of the flesh.

Bleeding is done by sticking in the mouth. Hang a can on the lower part of the beak to catch the blood. By passing the knife up through the roof of the mouth and giving it one turn, thereby piercing the brain, plucking is made much easier. The birds may be cleaned of feathers, or in some cases the flight wing feathers and the main tail feathers may be left on. Plucking should be done just as soon after killing as possible. The head and feet are left on, and the birds left undrawn.

The birds should be thoroughly cooled before being packed for shipment. Packing may be done in barrels or boxes, the birds being arranged closely together so as to prevent moving in transit.

Fruit from Ontario Enters New Market

The Dominion Fruit Branch last month organized a test shipment of Ontario prunes, pears and peaches to the West Indies. The shipment went forward x-Halifax on the C.G.S. "Lady Hawkins" September 18. The first report received by the Fruit Branch on the shipment was October was received by the Markets Division. The new shipment will be going forward to the Port of Spain, Trinidad, by the next boat. Quite evidently the quality of Canadian fruit was appreciated in the West Indies.

ORANGES BOUGHT IN SOUTH AFRICA

New Fruit of Excellent Flavor and Fine Quality—Lemons Imported.

BUY APPLES IN RETURN.

The current market report of the Dominion Fruit Branch contains an item of special interest in the receipt at Montreal of 5,559 cases of oranges from South Africa and 10 cases of lemons. This fruit is of excellent quality, attractive in appearance and of fine flavor, and it is meeting with splendid reception in the retail markets of Eastern Canada.

The development of orange imports from South Africa is essentially reciprocal with Canada's exports of apples to that Dominion, which last year amounted to 13,657 barrels. The prospect this year is favorable to a substantial increase in the volume of Canada's exports of apples to South Africa and those in close touch with the market see in the South African orange the demise of importations of California fruit, which has enjoyed a monopoly of the market for so many years.

The development of the fruit trade between Canada and South Africa in respect to the markets of eastern Canada and between Canada and Australia with respect to the western market, is causing concern to the citrus fruit growers of the Pacific Coast states. The present propect is that in the course of a comparatively short time Canada will be no longer dependent on the United States for her supply of citrus fruits.

TOBACCO RAISING SPREADS RAPIDLY ACROSS EMPIRE

Development Traced to Imperial Preference Granted by Britain in 1919.

INDIA HAS MILLION ACRES

Nyasaland Proves Canada's Strongest Competitor in Dark Grades.

The Empire tobacco producing industry has, in recent years, become of greatly increased importance. This development may be traced directly to the Imperial preference first granted by the United Kingdom in 1919. This first concession amounted to one-sixth of the gross duty. In 1925 this was increased to a money value of 2 shillings and a halfpenny per pound, and later stabilized at this figure for a period of ten years.

The results have been remarkable. Expansions of production took place in all parts of the Empire, including, in addition to Canada, Northern and Southern Rhodesia, Nyasaland, Union of South Africa, India and Cyprus. Experiments to test out the possibilities of tobacco production were undertaken in Australia, New Zealand and many of the colonies and mandates. A market rapidly developed in the Old Country. In 1919 only 1.01 per cent of the clearances of leaf for home consumption was of Empire origin; by 1924 this had risen to 8.42 per cent and in 1929 to 17.10 per cent. By far the most important sources of supply have been India, Northern and Southern Rhodesia and Nyasaland, in addition to Canada. These Empire countries all compete with Canadian leaf in the United Kingdom market, and it is important that Canadian growers know something of the nature of the competition. With this end in view, the Tobacco Division of the Department of Argiculture, in co-operation with the Department of Trade and Commerce, has gathered much valuable information.

India Grows Million Acres

Over a million acres of tobacco are grown in India, with a production estimated at one thousand pounds. Three main types are grown one of which is used for native cigarettes, another for cheroots and the third for snuff. Most of the leaf is absorbed by the domestic market, but over nine million pounds were exported to Great Britain in 1929. This consists mainly of dark reddish leaf used in the manufacture of pipe mixtures.

Two types of leaf are grown in the Rhodesias, namely, bright flue-cured, and Turkish. Production of the former has fluctuated considerably in recent years. In 1928 nearly twenty-four and a half million pounds were grown but, owing to market conditions, this fell off to six million pounds last year. The production of Turkish amounts to about 500,000 pounds annually. The domestic market is negligible, but a considerable quantity is absorbed by the Union of South Africa. Exports to the United Kingdom amounted to over five million pounds in 1929, but a considerable decrease is noted owing mainly to the presence of large stocks of unsold leaf exported in previous years. Rhodesian flue-cured is widely used in the manufacture of cigarettes.

Of the Nyasaland crop 85 per cent consists of the dark-fired type. The remainder is made up of bright flue-cured leaf. Production amounts to about 1 million pounds. Imports into the United Kingdom amounted to nearly eleven million pounds in 1929. The dark-fired tobacco is of excellent quality, being used for twists, rolls and pipe mixtures. It is this Nyasaland dark-fired which constitutes one of the strongest competitors of Canadian dark tobacco.

The tobacco industries in other Empire countries are of less importance. The Union of South Africa produces considerable Turkish tobacco. Most of the production is consumed in the home market. Cyprus exports Latakia tobacco to the United Kingdom. Cigar leaf is produced in British North Borneo and Jamaica. Attempts are being made to grow bright flue-cured tobacco in Australia and New Zealand. Tobacco is also grown to some extent in Palestine, in Kenya and even in England itself.

WESTERN CATTLE SENT TO ENGLAND

Shipment to Test Suitability o Range Cattle for British Market.

The Dominion Department of Agriculture through its Live Stock Branch has completed arrangements for a test shipment of Western range cattle direct to the British market.

The shipment has been organized with representative ranchers and breeders in Western Canada for the purpose of determining the suitability of range cattle for the British market. In the ship-load of 380 head will be an approximately equal number of two-year-old, three-year-old and four-year-old beef cattle, and both fat and store cattle types will be included.

The cattle will go forward from Montreal on or about October 30th on the SS "Manchester Citizen" to Manchester, and arrangements have been made for a well-known firm of auctioneers to handle the shipment on arrival. At the same time special attention is being given to ensuring the attendance at the Manchester auction of as many buyers of both fat and store cattle as may be possible.

Brandcd With "C"

Special care is being taken to identify the cattle going forward in this shipment, and each animal will bear a letter "C" branded on the left cheek before embarkation. A veterinary inspector will travel with the cattle, and it is expected that some of the ranchers who supply the cattle may accompany the shipment. This will afford them an opportunity of becoming thoroughly acquainted with transportation methods, and the requirements and operations of one of the leading British cattle markets.

The organization of this test shipment already induced definite inquiries from some of the larger stockmen of the West, who may follow this shipment with substantial shipments on their own responsibility before the close of the shipping season.

For many years the outlet for Western beef and range cattle has been southward to the United States, but with the outlet now closed the Western stockmen have to find a new outlet.

This is the first occasion on which western range cattle have been shipped direct to the British market, and it will provide an opportunity to determine their relative worth alongside of Irish and other cattle coming onto that market. It will also determine the suitability of the various breed types and age groups for the British fat cattle and store cattle market.

Interest Growing In Testing for T.B.

An increased interest in t.b. testing has developed in Peterborough county in recent weeks due to shippers of whole milk who have accredited herds. A number of applications for accreditation have been found forwarded this week and a greater number of herds than normal have been tested in the county this season.

ORATORY TO FORE.

Seymour West Schools and W. I. Are Encouraging This Art Among Children.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 25 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Working in conjunction with the Woman's Institute the schools of Seymour West are staging a series of contests among the pupils, to help along the art of oratory. These contests, which are combined with a program of entertaining numbers, are being held in the different schools.

To encourage the children to take an interest in public speaking the W. I. are giving a prize to the best three speeches in each school. Two of these contests have already been run; one at Connelly's school and one at West's.

This is a step in the right direction, and it is expected that it will increase the interest and efficiency of the school children in this part of the country.

TEST NEARS END FOR EGG LAYING

With Only Three Weeks to Go Honors Lie With White Leghorns.

BARRED ROCKS CLOSE UP

The Eleventh Egg Laying Contest completed its forty-eighth week on October 2nd and with the close of the year's competition only three weeks away the race for premier honors is tight enough to be especially interesting. The pen of Barred Rocks entered by Mrs. W. J. Thompson which held the lead through ten months of the contest, is now in fourth place, the first place is held by a pen of White Leghorns entered by Richard Green of Farrington Park, Preston, England, by a lead of only 13.4 points. Another pen of White Leghorns entered by C. D. Calder of Cowanville, Que., now holds second place with a lead of 3.2 points over another pen of White Leghorns entered by J. W. Spence of Vancouver. This pen in turn is only nine-tenths of a point ahead of Mrs. Thompson's Barred Rocks.

With the number of eggs and the weight of eggs combining a scoring point anything may happen in the next three weeks. As things stand at the present time it looks as though premier honors would go to the pen from England, but a change in the weather may check performance by the White Leghorns and give the Barred Rocks sufficient advantage to enable them to take the championship shield.

That the Barred Rocks have more than a good chance is suggested from the fact that the present individual leader in egg laying performance is a Barred Rock with a record of 282.8 points or 246 eggs. A Rhode Island Red is second with 281.8 points and a White Leghorn third with 270.8 points.

CANADA'S BIG BID FOR GRAIN HONOR AT CHICAGO SHOW

Dominion Growers to Make Strong Showing in International Show.

WORLD LEADERS COMPETING

Canadian Co-operative Producers, Ltd., Offer Additional Prizes.

CHICAGO, Ills., Oct. 25 (C.P.)—Canada is again expected to make an impressive showing in the International Grain and Hay Show, to be held at Chicago, Nov. 29 to Dec. 6, in connection with the International Live Stock Exposition. Already entries are being received, some from the most distant parts of the earth. Three samples of wheat have arrived from New South Wales, according to the management.

Distinction for having made the first entry in the rye and wheat classes of the exposition this year goes to a Saskatchewan grower, James A. Paur of Langham. In the rye classes of the 1929 Exposition, Paur's sample ranked high.

Other successful Canadian exhibitors at the last exposition, who are expected to take part this year, were George Avery of Kelso, Sask., who had reserve championship on a two-rowed barley sample at the 1929 show; W. G. Gibson of Ladner, B.C., and William Darnbrough of Laura, Sask., who had champion and reserve champion respectively on field peas; Joseph H. B. Smith of Wolf Creek, Alta., and S. Lacombe of Birtle, Man., who ranked first and second with samples of Red Spring Wheat; Eddie J. Shank of Athabaska, Alta., who won a blue on an early oats sample, and many other Provincial exhibitors whose samples placed creditably high in the competition.

Canadian In Charge

A well known Canadian, Dr. G. I. Christie, president of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, Ont., and a director of the International Live Stock Exposition is in charge of the International Grain and Hay Show. ENGLISH BLOODS

A Review of Mr. DelaFosse's Book

"English Bloods," the early experiences of Mr. DelaFosse, of Peterough Public Library in Canada, is "out."

The publishers, The Graphic Company, of Ottawa, have done good work and no doubt will make a handsome thing out of this very readable publication. When the real author submitted the book to the publishers its title was not "English Bloods," but the publishers insisted on changing it, and Mr. DelaFosse changed the name of the author to "Roger Vardon accordingly.

He probably thought that if he were to characterize his old-time friends and acquaintances as "bloody" there might be uncomfortable quarters for him, if not worse.

The book is very amusing and, what is more, interesting. To people who know anything of earlier Ontario and especially that loveliest part of it, Muskoka, the descriptions of the settlers, both original and imported, will provoke many a laugh. It is, we understand, now available at all bookstores.—J. H. Burnham.

DEPENDABLE CANADIAN EGGS

Where eggs were anything but a dependable article of diet twelve to fifteen years ago, today Canadian eggs of the higher grades are looked upon as quite safe to offer anyone for breakfast and need not be broken before coming to the table. The result of grading i. that production and consumption have more than doubled during the past ten years.

EARLY COMPLETION OF TRENT IS URGED

Deputation Will See Manion

Eleventh Annual Meeting of Trent Waterway Association Held at Midland.

J. C. MILLER PRESIDENT.

Department Will Be Asked to Open Fishing Season Last Monday in June.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

MIDLAND, October 25. — With a New Minister in charge of the Department of Railways and Canals, the Trent Waterway and Iroquois Trail Association will tell their old, old story to the Hon. Dr. Manion one of these days when it is expected he will receive a deputation from the municipalities extending across the Province from Trenton to Midland.

The old, old story is the importance of completing the Trent Canal by constructing the long delayed lock in the Severn section.

At the eleventh annual meeting of the Association here yesterday, Mr. A. B. Thompson, M.P., of Penetanguishene, promised to interview Dr. Manion in the near future and ask him for an appointment for the proposed deputation.

Two members of the Federal Parliament, representing ridings at this northern end of the canal, attended yesterday's meeting, and both promised their support to any petition to the Government for the completion of the canal. Other members of Parliament for constituencies traversed by the canal have also pledged themselves to co-operate with the Association in their perennial quest for the construction of the long delayed locks in the Severn section, thereby opening the canal for navigation from Lake Ontario to Georgian Bay.

Dunning Favorable

Hon. Charles A. Dunning, as Minister of Railways and Canals in the King Government, had declared himself deeply impressed with the trip which he made from Trenton to Midland and also by the representations which the Association had made to him at that time, when a concerted effort was made to win Mr. Dunning's approval of the project. He had all but officially committed the Government to the Severn undertaking, but in the meantime the Conservatives were thrust into the Federal authority and the Association has virtually to retrace the path they had worn during the last years of the Liberal administration.

At yesterday's meeting, James T. Simpson, M.P. (North Simcoe) said: "If anything is brought before the Dominion Government regarding the completion of this end of the waterway, it will have my sympathetic support."

A. B. Thompson, M.P. (East Simcoe) assured the Association that he would give it every possible assistance.

"All I can say here is that Dr. Manion told me he was considering this matter, and that he was taking an active interest in it," said Mr. Thompson. "Mr. T. H. Stinson of Lindsay, and probably other members from this part of the province, tried to impress upon Dr. Manion the advantage of starting the Severn lock construction as unemployment relief at the present time."

Frank Stinson of Peterborough, manager of the Association, read correspondence from E. A. Peck, M.P. of Peterborough, and T. H. Stinson, M.P., Lindsay, in which they said they would assist in the Trent Waterway Association in its petition to the Government. A similar letter was read from Mayor W. A. Fraser, M.P., of Trenton, and from every prospective source of help and reinforcement came proffers of support.

It is understood that when Mr. Thompson arranges for a hearing of the deputation that the municipalities represented in the Trent Association will be urged to send delegates to join together in appealing to Hon. Dr. Manion to complete the canal at once. It is intended that this request will be submitted to the Minister next month if possible, in order that it may be considered long before the winter session of Parliament, and in time for the 1931 estimates.

The resolution instructing Mr. Stinson to proceed with the plans for mustering the proposed deputation was moved by Gordon K. Fraser of Burleigh Falls, and seconded by George Ross of Midland.

Opening Fishing Season.

Another resolution petitions the Ontario Government to make a slight advance in the opening of the fishing season, from the present date, July 1, to the last Monday in June.

Frank Stinson, in supporting the motion, said it would give the proprietors of summer resorts almost a whole extra week in their season, and it would not substantially affect the closed season for the protection of fish.

"If the season for fishing in this district opened on the last Monday in June this would be an attraction for a great many visitors to come on that day and not wait a week or so until the first day of July. This little advantage would be of assistance to the owners of summer resorts by lengthening the open season by almost a week, and we don't think there can be any serious objection to the idea."

This motion was presented by George Ross, and was seconded by W. Scott of Orillia.

Officers Elected.

J. Bruce Hanly, Midland, president of the Association during the last two years, was chairman of the meeting. The officers elected for the coming year were:

Hon. president—G. K. Fraser.

Hon. vice-presidents — Walter M. Fowlds, Hastings, and J. B. Hanly.

President—John C. Miller, Orillia.

1st Vice-president—J. J. Duffus, Peterborough.

2nd Vice-president—George J. Overend, Orillia.

The municipalities comprising the Association will be asked to name representative directors for the year.

Retain Assessment Plan.

The Association decided to retain the five cents per capita municipal membership plan.

Frank Stinson's financial report showed a balance of $251.76 on August 31.

Mr. Fraser's Reminiscences.

J. K. Fraser, of Burleigh Falls, recalled that this was the tenth annual meeting of the Association which he had attended.

"And we were organized in 1920," Mr. Fraser remarked. "I believe the Severn river end of the Trent waterways looks more like being completed now than it did ten years ago. I believe that we should make a special effort this fall to appeal to the government for the construction of the locks that are needed in the Severn division of the canal."

Mr. Fraser spoke of accomplishments by the Association during its exitsence.

Tourists Bring Money.

Mayor J. B. Roebuck of Midland welcomed the members of the Association and as an acknoweldgment of its effectiveness he said that Midland had noticed this year substantial results in an increased tourist trade, much of which was undoubtedly due to the publicity work of the Trent Waterways Association.

"We all know the importance of the tourist business," Mayor Roebuck said. "I don't know what we'd have done in Midland this year without the tourists. Some years ago we regarded the fall months and December as the busiest period of the year for our merchants, but we realize now that this has been changed, and our best months are from June until to the end of September."

Quebec Visitors.

C. H. Hale sketched again the suggestion which he broached last year for a special effort to attract tourists from Quebec. The committee had appointed Mr. Hale chairman, but he admitted that he had been unable to give this proposal the time it required. He recommended that John C. Miller be appointed chairman, and that the committee be requested to consider this matter. The personnel of the committee is: J. C. Miller, Orillia; W. M. Fowlds, Hastings; J. B. Hanly, Midland; G. J. Overend, Orillia; J. N. Stone, Campbellford and George Ross, Midland.

Letters of regret at their inability to attend the meeting were received from M. H. McCallum, Fenelon Falls; W. M. Fowlds, Hastings; W. C. Moore, Bobcaygeon; F. D. Kerr, Peterborough; T. H. Stinson, Lindsay; L. A. Peck, Peterborough; and W. E. Tummon, M.P., of Tweed, who incidentally affirmed his support of the Trent Waterways Association's plans.

Resolutions Passed.

The meeting's resolution urging the completion of the canal, and the deferring of other work on the route until this is accomplished was adopted. Another motion asked that bridges built by the Department of Canals dispense with swing sections where the level of the abutting land permitted this type.

The Association expressed its appreciation of the co-operation of the Department of Highways in the Trent waterway publicity exhibits at motor boat shows in the United States.

Another resolution solicited the assistance of the Federal Government in Trent waterway publicity.

The Dominion Chamber of Commerce is asked to recommend the appointment of a special committee to study ways and means of developing tourist traffic during the winter, summer and autumn months.

Grateful to Mr. Hanly.

The Association expressed to Mr. Hanly its appreciation of his labors as president for two years.

Another resolution acknowledged the painstaking and capable work of Frank Stinson of Peterborough.

"Very few of the members realize the extent of Mr. Stinson's work and his interest and capability," remarked Mr. Hanly.

Peterborough was represented at the meeting by Alderman M. McIntyre, J. K. Fraser and F. G. Stinson.

POWER PLANTS IN SEA PROMISED BY FAMOUS FRENCH INVENTOR

Assures Engineers His Plan Will Yield Vast Energy Soon.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25. — George Claude, famous French inventor of the commercial process of liquifying air and of the neon light, defended his new process of obtaining power by utilizing the difference between the temperatures of water at the surface and at the lower depths of the sea, before an audience of engineers and scientists last night at a meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers in the Engineering Societies Building.

M. Claude, who has just come to the United States from Cuba, where on Oct. 6 he succeeded in lighting forty electric light bulbs of 500 candlepower each with power obtained from his revolutionary apparatus, replied specifically to assertions of other scientists and engineers that his process, even though theoretically sound, was commercially impracticable because of the enormous cost of plant involved.

He replied also, with some feeling to certain ridicule which has been directed at his invention and remarked caustically that matter is much easier for an inventor to deal with than man.

Sees Constant Power Source

Not only was his plan not impracticable, he declared, but it opened to mankind a vast untouched reservoir of energy. His process was equivalent, he asserted, to harnessing a cataract of tropical seas 300 feet high, falling forever in unlimited volume. Such a cataract would be incalculably greater than any source of waterpower in the world, he asserted.

"Without belittling the difficulties that remain to be solved," he went on, "I affirm my faith in the realization of admirable plants running ceaselessly from the beginning to the end of the year, without being hampered by the scarcity of waterfalls or vagaries in the cost of coal. And I hold that all this is not the task of a remote future, but of tomorrow."

As evidence of his faith in his invention's commercial possibility, M. Claude declared his intention to go on with his plans for the construction of a commercial power plant with a net capacity of 25,000 kilowatts in the region of Santiago de Cuba.

"Paris was not built in a day neither was New York," he remarked, "and I think that I can affirm that humanity has from now on the certainty that its industry will never lack for the precious energy to animate it."

Prisoner Knocks Out Police Officer Twice

BRAMPTON, Ont., Oct. 25 (C.P.) —Thomas Haywood, Toronto, was arrested here last night on a charge of passing a worthless cheque. He did not submit peacefully, however, and before Highway Traffic Officer R. Bond succeeded in taking him into custody, Haywood scored two knockdowns, both for lengthy counts. The last one gave him time enough to put five miles between himself and the officer. But the latter is of a determined nature and after recovering consciousness overtook the prisoner on a motorcycle and effected the arrest.

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

The best cough remedy that money could buy, can easily be mixed at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs and chest colds, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a 16 oz. bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it, you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. At the same time, part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which follow cold epidemics, are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Seek Suspension Of Minimum Wage Act

MONTREAL, Que, Oct. 25.—(CP)—Application has been made to the Quebec minimum wage board by a number of firms engaged in the leather industry for the suspension of the Women's Minimum Wage Act at present in operation. The emergency tariff which went into operation last month has increased the cost of certain raw materials to such an extent that Canadian houses are finding competition too great, according to the manufacturers who ask this means of reducing costs.

The absolute minimum, according to Gus Franco, president of the board, will not be reduced, but concessions may be given the manufacturers if the tariff is found by the board to be prohibitive to Canadian industries.

An investigation of the whole situation will be necessary, it is stated.

NOTED SCULPTOR AND LOCAL LADY ADDRESSES CLUB

Miss Katherine Wallis Speaks to Members of the Art Association.

ON WAY AROUND WORLD.

First Canadian to Become Member of Societe Natoinale Des Beaux Arts.

"An ounce of encouragement is worth pounds of blame", said Miss Katherine Wallis to her hearers yesterday, when she spoke to them in the studios of the Conservatory of Music, under the auspices of the Lyceum Women's Art Association.

Miss Wallis referred to a German lady who accorded the young art student much encouragement in the days when the speaker was taking water-color lessons in Dresden, where she had gone with her sister.

It was an intimate and interesting glimpse of a life that has reflected glory on its native land and city that Miss Wallis gave her audience yesterday and they listened with intent appreciation to her brief and modest recital of the manner in which she worked and studied to reach the goal she has now achieved as a full member of the Societe Nationale des Beaux Arts of Paris, France, an honor seldom bestowed on a woman, never on a member of either sex until he or she has reached a very high plane in artistic endeavor, and, as far as is known, never heretofore on a Canadian.

Miss Wallis is a native of Peterborough and has spent much of her life, in intermittent periods between Gleaming hair!

The way modern hair dressers accentuate your hair by lovely lines and contours makes it important to keep the hair in perfect condition.

Now, millions know the quickest way to give the hair new life and lustre: to bring out its natural color, is with Danderine. It is so easy to use; you simply moisten your brush with it each time you arrange your hair.

Danderine dissolves the crust of dandruff; stops falling hair; puts the scalp in the pink of condition. It helps the hair grow long, silky, abundant; gives it more lustre than brilliantine. It makes the hair easy-to-arrange; holds it in place. Waves look nicer; stay in longer when "set" with Danderine.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright,
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet
Or dims the radiant light.
No unkind word our lips shall pass,
No envy sour the mind,
But each shall seek the common weal,
The good of all mankind.

BELMONT.

Paper given by Miss Williams, secretary of Belmont Women's Institute at meeting held on October 16, at Township Hall, Belmont.

"MOTHER".

The light, the spell word of the heart,
Our guiding star, in weal or woe,
Our Talisman, Our earthly chart,
That sweetest name, that man can know.

We breathe it first with lisping tongue,
While cradled in her arms we lay;
Fond memories round that name are hung,
That will not, cannot pass away.

We breathed it then, we breathe it still,
More dear than sister, friend or brother,
The gentle power, the magic thrill,
Awakened at the name of mother.

The mother is the fountain head of the home, the home is the fountain head of society and of the Church of Christ And no influence in the universe contributes so much toward guiding immortal soul heavenward as the home, and "Mother."

If I were asked to name any one principal that seems to have an almost universal application, it would be this one—"Show me the Mother, and I will show you the man". Next to the Sovereign Grace of God, the influence of a Mother's teachings and example, are the most effective in moulding character and shaping destiny.

Intellectual power, even, decends most commonly on the Maternal side. Nearly all the remarkable men, have had mothers of more than ordinary mental calibre. Great men often have weak children: Great women seldom have. If we trace evils to their true source, we must go farther back than to the men who stand prominent in producing them.

All the great change from bad to worse, which have rendered nations so corrupt as to consign them to ruin, have been effected through the corrupting influence of mothers, acting on those in childhood, who in manhood became the leading men of the day. For example, think of the mothers of Israel, and of Judah's Kings, when in the days of the Nation's decline the throne passed in such rapid succession from one king to another. Why was all this so carefully noted? It was to show that the bane of the nation was to be found in the nurseries of her kings? where their infant minds were tainted and poisoned by their Jezabel mothers, and that being thus early led into sin; when in after life they gained the throne, their baleful influence was felt in spreading wickedness around them, until their nation was carried away in captivity, and their land left to desolation.

If maternal influence is thus powerful for evil, it is equally powerful for good, when rightly and wisely employed. I do not believe the assertion at all too strong, when I say that the greatest and best of those whom we count among the great and good of our race, have always derived the elements of their characters from maternal care bestowed on them in childhood. Take for example the mother of Moses, the mother of David, the mother of John, the forerunner of Our Saviour, the mother of Timothy, and there are many more great men, who have had pious and faithful mothers. It is no picture of the imagination, when I ask you to come and see the son of a faithful mother who has long pursued a course of crime, till he seems hardened o everything good or true, and many times "sits in the seat of the scorner", and scoffs at everything good or true: but yet, hardened and dead as his heart may be to everything else you may urge there is one point on which till his dying day he can be made to feel. You touch it when you remind him of his mother, of what he saw and felt when a child in the care of a tender, good mother.

His sensibilities there he never loses, and often by that, as the only tie that holds him from utter perdition, is the prodigal brought back and restored. There is no influence so powerful, as a mother's on the coming destinies of the Church, and the world. She acts a part in forming the ministers of religion, and the rulers o. the land, without which all subsequent training is comparatively vain. On her also, it devolves to train those who are to be mothers when she is gone, and to do for their generation what she has done for hers.

The queen that sits upon the throne of home, crowned and sceptred as none other ever can be is "Mother". Her enthronement is complete, her reign unrivalled, and the moral issues of her empire are eternal. Rebellious, as times, as the subjects of her government may be, she rules them with marvellous patience, winning tenderness and undying love. She so presents and exemplifies Divine Truth, that it reproduces itself in the happiest development of Childhood, character and life.

Her memory is sacred while she lives, and becomes a perpetual inspiration even when the bright flowers bloom above her sleeping dust. She is the incarnation of goodness to the child, and hence her immense power. Scotland, with her well known reverence for motherhood, insists that an ounce of mother is worth more than a pound of clergy.

Napoleon cherishes a high conception of a mother's power, and believed that the mothers of the land could shape the destinies of his beloved France Hence he said, "The great need of France is Mothers. The ancient orator bestowed a flattering compliment upon the homes of Roman mothers, when he said "The Empire is at the fireside" who can think of the influence a mother wields in a home, and not be impressed with its far reaching results. What revolutions, would take place in our homes and communities if that strange magnetic power were fully consecrated to the welfare of the child.

Mahommed expressed a great truth when he said "Paradise is at the feet of mothers". There is one vision that never fades from the soul, and that is the vision of home and mother. No man in all his weary wanderings ever goes out beyond the overshadowing arch of home.

Let him stand on the surf beaten coast of the Atlantic, or roam over western wilds, and every dash of the waves, and murmur of the breeze will whisper 'Home Sweet Home". Set him down amid the glaciers of the north, and even there thoughts of home, too warm to be chilled by the eternal frosts will float in upon him. Let him roam through the green waving groves, and over the sunny slopes of the south, and in the smile of the soft skies, and the kiss of the balmy breeze, Home will live again. Abraham Lincoln said "All that I am and hope to be, I owe to my mother. Benjamin West said, "A kiss from my mother made me a painter." John Gray said "The hand that rocks the cradle, rules the world", John Randolph said that only one thing saved him from Atheism, and that was the tender remembrance of the hour, when a devout mother, kneeling by his side, took his little hand in hers, and taught him to say, "Our Father Who Art in Heaven".

HAVELOCK.

Address given by Mrs. G. F. Choate at Havelock Women's Institute continued from last week.

We have three classes of salads, according to the place they occupy in a meal. Salada may be served, as a main dish: as an entree: and as a dessert.

The main dish salad, will constitute the main part of the meal. It should be substantial and rich, so will include some protein food, (meat, fish, peas, beans, eggs, nuts or cheese). The main dish salad I will prepare for you is Tuna Fish Salad, and it would be served as the main part of a luncheon or supper menu.

Next we have the salad, served as an entree. By that we mean the salad served as part of a dinner, either along with the main course, (meat, potatoes, and vegetables) or as a separate course. For this salad we have used a combination of fruit and vegetables, in our pineapple and cucumber jelly salad.

The third salad, which I wish to make for you, is a fruit salad. Any combination of fruits may be used, as long as you combine a mild flavored fruit, with one that is tart. To the fruits I am going to add a few marshmallows, as I think they reduce the acid flavour of the fruits. Try them and see if you like them.

Regardless of when you intend to serve your salad, it is always built up in the same way.

1. Foundation, lettuce, cabbage, cress or parsley; 2. Body, fruit, vegetable, or protein foods. 3. Dressing, mayonnaise, French or boiled. 4. Garnish, nuts, cheese, balls olives, pickles, paprika, etc. 5. Accessory. Roll, biscuit, saltine, toast sandwich etc.

Make your salad complete, by seeing that it has these five parts.

For those of you who are interested in food values, let me say that,

Salads supply vitamines and mineral matter to the body.

Salads are refreshing, so stimulate the appetite.

Salads give variety to diet.

Salads provide bulk, which helps to prevent constipation.

If reducing, eat salads, but limit the dressing, as it is the dressing which contains the food material that may be stored in the body in the form of fat. If you wish to gain in weight, eat salads, and use as much dressing as you like.

If you would have salads which are a real success remember to,

Have everything clean, crisp, cool: handle all ingrefients, lightly and quickly; use a fork; combine only three ingredients; use dressing sparingly;

Make your salad attractive to the eye, as well as to the palate, It must be beautiful.

If you are the only person to do the work in your home, and if you do much entertaining, you will no doubt already have learned the trick of using jellied salads.

In spite of all our suggestions;
The table and things you eat,
'Tis not these that make the impression
But the kind of hostess that you meet.

You cannot be the kind of hostess that you would like to be, if you have to be too much concerned about food. A jellied salad in the frigidaire, or basement ice box, relieves you of much needless worry, and gives you a real sense of satisfaction.

Here are some salad combinations that should appeal to you:

Cabbage, pineapple, cocoanut; peaches marshmallow, and nuts; pineapple and cucumber; bananas and apricots (dried); lemon jelly with grapefruit, and green cherries.

Tuna Fish Salad.

One cup tuna fish, one cup celery, one cup small peas, pimento, lettuce, mayonnaise. Method. Combine ingredients pile high on lettuce leaf, and garnish with paprika. Serve with bread and butter sandwich.

Cucumber and Pineapple Salad.

One package lemon jello, 1½ cups boiling water, ½ cup pineapple juice, ½ teaspoon salt, 2½ tablespoons vinegar, one cup cucumber, one cup pineapple. Method. Dissolve jello in boiling water. When cool add fruit juice and seasonings. When jelly begins to congeal place a little in bottom of mold, and add to it the cucumber and pineapple, layer about. Chill. Serve with boiled dressing, and garnish with almond or green cherry.

Fruit Salad.

Four peaches, 2 oranges, ½ cup malaga grapes, ½ doz. marshmallows, fruit dressing. Method. Dice fruit and marshmallows, and mix with fruit dressing, to which whipped cream has already been added. Pile high on fruit dish and garnish with walnuts and cherry. To be served with a piece of white cake.

WHEN PAIN COMES...

Two hours after eating

WHAT many call "indigestion" is very often nothing but excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. The best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard anti-acid with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali will neutralize instantly many times as much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this more pleasant way. A small bottle is sufficient to show its merit.

Be sure to get genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for more than 50 years in correcting excess acid. 50c a bottle; any drugstore. Complete directions for its many uses are enclosed with every bottle.

The Genuine Milk of Magnesia is always a liquid—never a tablet. Look for the Phillips' name on the bottle.

Home Economics enters very largely into the Women's Institute program, as from the outset the improvement of the home was the goal, and it is conceded, by those who are in a position to know that there has been a great improvement. Domestic work has reached the status of a university course, with a university degree, Bachelor of Household Science.

Well-trained domestic science lecturers and demonstrators take the results of this training into the county homes through the mediums of the Women's Institutes. School luncheons have received particular attention. Libraries on home crafts may be had from central libraries. Many colleges have summer courses for institute members. Quietly, but steadily the campaigns against the fly menace, dust, dirt, bad water, unclean milk, inconvenient kitchens, freezing toilets have been carried on.

They aim to have the rural schools as sanitary, attractive, and well equipped as the city, and that with a due regard to curtailing unnecessary expense. Women are on school boards, and while they feel that, generally, men should be in the majority, they also feel that one woman should be on every board.

Music, especially vocal, is encouraged, and practically throughout the country they encourage and aid the school fairs.

MOUNT PLEASANT

"Cheerfulness", a topic often discussed at Institute meetings and worthy of consideration by many of us who are busily engaged from day to day trying to accomplish the many tasks laid before us. The farm women especially seem to have more than their share of extra tasks, but it always pays to take time to be cheerful.

"God bless the cheerful person—man, woman or child, old or young, illiterate or educated, handsome or homely. Over and above every other social trait stands cheerfulness. What the sun is to nature, what the stars are to the night, what God is to the sticken heart, which knows how to lean upon Him, are cheerful persons in the house by the wayside. Man recognizes the magic of a cheerful influence in women more quickly and more willingly than the potency of dazzling genius of commanding worth or even of enslaving beauty. If we are cheerful and contented all nature smiles with us; the air seems more balmy, the sky more beautiful, the trees have a richer foliage, the flowers a more fragrant smell, the birds sing more sweetly and the sun, moon and stars all appear more beautiful.

"Cheerfulness." How sweet in infancy, how lovely in youth, how saintly in old age. There are a few noble natives whose very presence carries sunshine with them where ever they go; a sunshine which means pity for the poor, sympathy for the suffering, help for the unfortunate and benignity toward all. How such a face enlightens every other face it meets and carries into every company vivacity and joy and gladness! But the scowl and frown begotten in a selfish heart and manifesting itself in daily, almost hourly fretfulness, complaining, fault-finding, angry for the asking.

Criticisms, spiteful comments on the motives and actions of others, how they thin the cheek, shrivel the face, sour and sadden the countenance; no joy in the heart, no nobility in the soul, no generosity in the nature; the whole character as cold as an Alpine rock, as arid as the wastes of the Sahara—which of the countenances are we cultivating? If we find ourselves losing all our confidence in human nature, we are fearing an old age of vinegar, of wormwood and of gall.

"Look at the bright side. Keep the sunshine of a loving faith in the heart. Do not let the shadow of discouragement and despondency fall on your path. However weary you may be the promise of God will never cease to shine, like the stars at night, to cheer and strengthen.

Learn to wait as well as labor. The best harvests are the longest in ripening. It is not pleasant to work in the earth plucking the ugly tares and weeds, but it is as necessary as sowing the seed. The harder the task the more need of singing. A hopeful spirit will discern the silver lining of the darkest cloud, for back of all planning and doing, with its attendant hindrances, shines the light of divine promise and help. It is for us to be faithful. Be cheerful for it is the only happy life. The times may be hard but it will make them no easier to wear a gloomy and sad countenance. It is the sunshine and not the cloud that makes the flower.

There is always that before or around which should fill the heart with warmth. The sky is blue ten times where it is black once. We have troubles, it may be, so have others. None are free from them. Perhaps it is good that none should be. They give sinew and tone to life, fortitude and courage to man. That would be a dull sea and the sailor would never be skilled where there was nothing to disturb the surface of the ocean. It is the duty of all of us to extract all the happiness and enjoyment we can without and within us, and above all we should look at the bright side of things. What though things do look a little dark? The lane will turn and the night will end in broad day. In the long run the great balance rights itself. What is ill becomes well; what is wrong becomes right. We are not made to hang our heads and lips, and those who do only show that they are departing from the paths of true common sense and right. There is more virtue in one sunbeam than a whole hemisphere of cloud and gloom. Cultivate what is warm and genial—not the cold, repulsive, the dark and remorseful.

CAVAN.

It is the custom of many Institutes to purchase bulbs in the fall or plants in the spring for the members. Many homemakers each year make some addition to their perennials and shrubs. For those who are making a garden or improving their gardens, the following article should be a help.

The Resurrection of the Flowers

After tumult comes peace; after pain blessed surcease; after winter and rough weather, the spring flowers. If we would enjoy these harbingers of spring we must be up and doing in these autumn days; we must prepare the kindly soil and tuck the little brown bulbs snugly away in the hospitable earth.

The first shipment of bulbous stock generally arrives somewhere in September; that lovely season of the year when summer and autumn meet, and every shortening day becomes doubly precious to such of us as must spend the long winters indoors in great suffering instead of enjoying the vigorous outdoor life we long for.

Any time from late September until hard freezing will serve admirably for planting spring flowering bulbs. About the second or third week in October seems to be a very good time to do this work, that the subjects may have time to develop good root systems before spring weather. If planted too early there may be a premature start of tender top growth at the expense of the roots, also the former will be sure to be injured by weather conditions. Excavate the earth to a depth of at least a foot, then strew two inches of sandy, small grave' (or gravelly sand) in the bottom of the trench, then fill in the soil to the desired depth, next, setting the bulbs and finally filling in the soil. The roots find themselves in clover immediately on sallying forth, and the foundation for a future burst of beauty has been successfuly laid. Do not use barnyard manure unless it is extremely well rotted and then not too near the bulbs. Strew it over the beds after hard freezing, removing it in spring and working the residue into the top soil. Avoid poultry manure at all costs. The Holland growers strew a good commercial fertilizer over the fields in the winter allowing it to settle with the spring rains.

Darwin and Breeder tulips may be left in the same positions undisturbed (except by cultivation and so forth) for about three years, or until the flowers begin to deteriorate, when they may be taken up in the fall and re-set, giving the little ones a nursery row to themselves until they are large enough to merit a position among the mature representatives of the tulip clan. After the ground is thoroughly frozen a coat of strawy manure may be applied to the beds. This is raked off in the spring and does no harm, as it is well away from the bulbs and the frozen ground prevents any undue seepage of strong manure—water to them. Never put manure directly in the trench, unless you use great care to prevent direct contact with the bulbs themselves.

The smaller bulbs such as crocus are placed at the front of the beds or borders, while the very tall Darwin and Breeder tulips occupy a commanding position at the rear. The general rule for depth of planting is about three times the depth of the bulb itself, although the planting depths will vary according to the character of the soil; in very heavy clay it is not wise to plant too deeply, while in soil of a rather light mature too shallow planting will result in heaving in the alternate thaws and frosts of ealy spring. Just use you own judgment according to the nature of your soil. Crocus and such small bulbs are often thrown down carelessly in groups and planted in the artistically, natural positions they thus assume. Mixed varieties of crocus are generally satisfactory, although there are charming named varieties on the market. The blue and yellow may be bought separately and are lovely when planted together.

In buying daffodils purchase the double-nosed bulbs (as they are called by the trade). The extra flowers compensating for the slightly increased cost over the round-nosed bulbs. For garden planting Emperor (yellow), Empress and Victoria (cream and yellow and Von Sion (double) are all eminently satisfactory. Of the newer varieties Van Waveren's Grant, Olympia and King Alfred are gems, having extremely large flowers, but are as yet rather expensive to be used in generous quantities. The older varities are mores suited to extensive planting.

Attribute their Good Health

To the use of this great restorative

It seems that to properly appreciate good health we first have to lose it.

And so it happens that many thousands of women are going about their daily tasks feeling tired and worn out and are wondering how they can win back their energy, vigor and attractiveness.

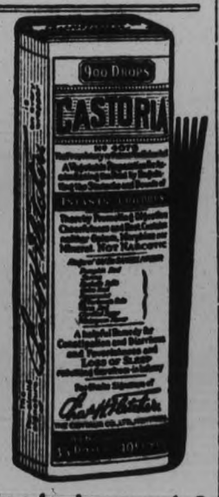
For TEETHING troubles



FUSSY, fretful . . . . of course babies are uncomfortable at teething time! And mothers are worried because of the little upsets which come so suddenly then. But there's one sure way to comfort a restless, teething child. Castoria — made especially for babies and children! It's perfectly harmless, as the formula on the wrapper tells you. It's mild in taste and action. Yet it rights little upsets with a never-failing effectiveness.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given to tiny infants—as often as there is need. In cases of colic and similar disturbances, it is invaluable. But it has every-day uses all mothers should understand. A coated tongue calls for a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever older children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset, a more liberal dose of this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed. Genuine Castoria has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Doctors prescribe it.

DO YOU KNOW THAT CHEESE is a good meat substitute, it is so nourishing? But be sure you use a little

At their opening function for the season, held yesterday in the studios at the Conservatory of Music, the members of the Lyceum Women's Art Association had the honor of entertaining Miss Katherine Wallis of Paris, France, who is a native of this city and who recently had the honor of being made member of the Societe National des Beaux Arts of Paris. Miss Wallis is visiting the city on her way around the world, via the Orient and Western Canada. She left to-day for Toronto, where an exhibit of her works takes place shortly under the auspices of the Toronto Women's Art Association, and will probably also exhibit in Montreal before her return to France. Mrs. W. Blackwell, president of the society, in introducing Miss Wallis as a charter member of the local organization, spoke of the founder of the Art Association in Canada, Mrs. Mary Dignam of Toronto. She said: 'A year ago, at our opening meeting, we had Mrs. Dignam, founder of our society and now still Advisory President of the mother organization, which has for forty-three years guarded the interests of Canadian arts and handicrafts. Mrs. Dignam is also convenor of the International Relations committee of the Council of Women in the League of Nations. We must always feel gratitude to her for her foresight, vision and perseverance and for leading us on to achievement." Arrangements for tea, which was served at the conclusion of Miss Wallis' interesting address, were in charge of the convenor of the Social committee, Mrs. H. E. Connelly, and Mrs. A. Barton. Tea was poured by Madam Goulet and Miss Annie Wood, assisted by Mrs. H. Wightman, Mrs. G. E. Porter, Mrs. Frank Stinson, Mrs. N. C. Staples, Miss Maud Rush, Miss Grace Reinhardt and Miss Leta Brownscombe. The table was charmingly arranged with a lace cloth centered by a low bowl of yellow glaze pottery filled with branching bittersweet with its scarlet berries, and barberry. Yellow candles were in junior silver candlesticks.

At the home of Miss Margaret Eastwood, Antrim street, a very successful Hallowe'en tea was held yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Mission Circle of the Murray street Baptist church. The guests were received by Mrs. L. Eastwood and Miss Elizabeth Webber, the president of the Circle. Mrs. J. H. Sutcliffe assisted in the living room, and Mrs. G. W. Fitzgerald ushered the ladies into the tea room. Mrs. L. H. Ingram acted as general convenor, assisted by Mrs. A. H. Campbell and Mrs. D. V. Canning. Mrs. R. Gavine was in charge of the tearoom, assisted by Mrs. L. Gould. Mrs. S. Phillips and Mrs. S. Gillespie had the sale of home made cooking, and Mrs Howard Fry acted as treasurer, with Miss Mary Scott. The decorations were very effective and were carried out in the Hallowe'en manner in orange and black. The table was draped with a cloth of orange paper tissue bordered in black, and was centered with a mirror reflector that held a pumpkin basket filled with fruit, its handle tied with a bow of orange tulle. Tall yellow candles were in holders of black satin glass, the mints in orange and black were in pretty tissue paper baskets, and the room was decorated with a profusion of Hallowe'en novelties and cut-outs. Tea was poured by Mrs. G. Post, assisted by Mrs. John Ward, Mrs. P. Dallin, Mrs. A. H. Campbell, and Mrs. D. V. Canning. A very pleasant program, arranged [illegible] Ingram, was given during the afternoon and included vocal solos by Miss Daisy Davidson, Miss Trucie Pearson and Miss Bertha Hill, readings by Miss Viola Payton, and a piano solo by Mrs. George Nicholls. Accompanists were Mrs. Nicholls and Miss Elizabeth Webber.

study abroad in various lands, in this city. It was as to a gathering of old friends that she spoke yesterday and as a charter member of the Women's Art Association.

Introduced by the president, Mrs. W. Blackwill, who spoke of the joy and pride felt by the members in the success attained by one of their associates, Miss Wallis alluded first to the forthcoming exhibition of her sculptural works which will be held in Toronto at 23 Prince Albert street for a fortnight, commencing November 5th, under the auspices of the Toronto branch of the Lyceum Women's Art Association. Later, she alluded to the difficulties experienced in bringing her works into Canada and the demand for customs duties on them.

Artistic Career

"Peterborough looks wonderful. There are many improvements in our fine old town" commenced the speaker, who went on to refer to the artistic desires of her own mother and the manner in which she had wished that these might be evolved in her daughter's life.

Studied In Scotland

When Miss Wallis was a young girl, she went from Canada to Scotland and there spent three months in the Edinburgh National School of Arts. But her father fell ill and she returned home to spend a number of years here. Later, she went with her sister to Dresden Germanmy, and there studied water-color painting.

Then came a course of study at the South Kensington School of Art and still later, the Royal College of Art, which dispenses degrees and scholarships to its students. Here, although she entered to study design, she started to model in clay, gaining a bronze medal during her first year and, during the second term, a scholarship for modelling.

In Paris, some time afterwards, she made daily trips to the Jardin des Plantes, the Paris Zoo, and these modelled from life in animal subjects. There, too, she met Monsieur Waldman, the Swiss sculptor and artist, who has been her patron for many years.

In a brief resume of the activities of the four great Salons of Paris, Miss Wallis spoke first of the Societe Artistes Francais, the oldest society of its kind in France and possibly the oldest in the world. It was founded two hundred years ago and was open only to Frenchmen, at first. Little by little, foreigners were admitted, however and medals of gold, silver and bronze were awarded.

In 1889, a group of members, including several notables like Rodier and Meissonier, decided that the principles of the society were wrong and they seceded from membership, to form the Societe Nationale des Beaux Arts. First, one became an associate member, and later, if one's work was considered good enough, full membership was allowed. It is in this society that Miss Wallis has been admitted to full membership, being one of the very few women so honored.

"Then there is the Societe Automne designed for the benefit of younger artists whose work is mainly of a decorative type. And lastly, there is the Salon des Independents, in which "anyone who has money enough to pay for the wall room" may exhibit.

The Struggle for Life"

Miss Wallis alluded to the work to which she owes the honor of being a Societaire, the large sculpture in wood entitled "La Lutte pour la which a mother is depicted as defending her babe from the onslaught of a wolfe. Its inspiration rose from a story heard by her in the Kensington School in England, when a companion related the struggles of a Russian woman attacked in such a manner.

In Paris, Miss Wallis, after securing with much difficulty a large piece of mahogany for the design, used an Italian woman as a model. One day, the model becoming somewhat indifferent as to interest, Miss Wallis awakened her to fright and an attitude which was later transmitted to the wood, by crying suddenly, "The wolf, the wolf!"

A very sincere and appreciative vote of thanks to the speaker was voiced in eloquent words by Mrs. J. F. Allan and seconded very gracefully by Mrs. L. J. Pettit.

Miss Wallis, in responding, spoke of the splendid efforts in the cause of the furtherance of art and artistic appreciation done by the Lyceum Women's Art Associations of Canada, especially in Toronto and in Peterborough, commending in the latter the spade work of the early founders of the society and of the president, Miss W. Blackwill, and Mrs. R. Gliddon. She linked with her own appreciation of their efforts, the names of former teachers of her own, the English Stephen Webb, the French artist, Monsieur Renard, and the Swiss, Monsieur Waldman.

Later, tea was served to the large number of ladies who were present for this, the opening meeting of the year for the Art Association.

Miss Wallis, who is visiting Peterborough on her way around the world, by way of the Orient and Western Canada, may exhibit in Montreal before her return to France and also expects to exhibit in Toronto at the opening of the Canadian Royal Academy at the Grange.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Since the cooler weather we begin to wonder about keeping the house warm during the winter—and usually when the cooler weather settles down we think of changing furniture so that it will suggest warmth.

• • • • • • •

Great stress has been laid lately upon the benefit of getting warm machine effects into a house by means of paint and color of textiles. The idea of grouping furniture to suggest warmth and of having the shape of furniture protective against cold is of equal value.

• • • • • • •

There are some articles of furniture that were originated with the sole idea of keeping out draughts—the high back settee is an excellent example of this. When draw up before the fireplace the high back assures warmth to the backs and the lengths of wood reaching nearly to the floor beneath the seat give similar protection to the legs of the occupants.

• • • • • • •

The wing chair, is a later development of protective furniture, and this chair is a welcome addition to many modern rooms. It cuddles the occupant cosily and keeps draughts away.

• • • • • • •

Furniture upholstered in silk satin or woolen textiles gives a warmer tone to a room than that minus upholstery of such kind. This is one reason why slip covers are taken off in winter. They are of cotton or linen and are chosen because they look and feel cool.

• • • • • • •

But it requires the warmth of winter textiles to stress comfort in winter decoration.

• • • • • • •

Furniture grouped around an open fireplace give an immediate hint of warm comfort in winter.

• • • • • • •

In a room that is very sunny and which is occupied chiefly in daytime, the windows can be centres of attention, each having its particular feature.

• • • • • • •

For instance a writing desk may be by one with its accompanying chair, while by another a wing or easy chair with side table or sewing cabinet conveniently close in inviting.

• • • • • • •

If lighting fixtures or lamps are positioned to provide a warm glow near the windows in the evening, this arrangement can be pleasing both day and night.

• • • • • • •

It will be seen that transformation from summer to winter decoration for rooms may be brought about by re-arrangement of furnishings and by accenting furniture which in shape or in upholstery suggest warmth.

• • • • • • •

It is not essential to get new things but to use what you have correctly for the season.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

COARSE FOODS AND ENEMAS.

You have often heard the expression "You can get too much of a good thing." I think this applies to that body of yours more than anything else of which I know.

For instance you have been told about the importance fo having a regular intestinal habit—once or twice daily. This is very true, but if in order to accomplish this, you eat all kinds of coarse foods, bran, apples cores, the skins and seeds of fruits, coarse oatmeal, raw cabbage and so forth, you are going to be bothered with indigestion, gas formation, and probably loss of weight.

Further, if you decidet o take medicines to purge the large intestine, what happens? The intestine gets cleared out all right, but as it takes two or three days for it to get filled again, you might feel that in order to get an intestinal movement daily, you should take medicine daily.

This is likewise a mistake, because no harm can come by waiting until the large intestine is filled again; a matter of two days usually.

The point then is that while a little bran added to the food or a little fruit is advisable, large quantities are unnecessary and can cause indigestion and irritation of the lining of the intestinal wall.

And the same thing applies to enemas.

There is no question but that an enema—or injection as it is often called—is one of the most valuable forms of treatment known. In cases of colic, of gas formation, of chronic constipation, nothing gives quicker or more effective relief than a good enema.

But the mistake of course is that some individual feels that they should take an enema every day.

An enema everyday is unnecessary because as mentioned above, the large intestine requires two or three days to fill up.

Further, if enemas are used too frequently, the natural, tone, muscular power of the intestine, is weakened if not lost, because the muscles are not asked to grasp anything, they do no work owing to the fact that the enema cleanses out all the waste.

Also the control of intestinal contents is sometimes lost if enemas are used too often.

The lesson then is that while the bowel should be moved daily if possible, the overuse of coarse foods or enemas is not only unnecessary, but is positively harmful.

Softball Sportsmen Gather At Annual Banquet

SUGAR BOWL PRESENTED WITH W. H. TAYLOR CUP; WIN CITY CHAMPIONSHIP

True Spirit of Sportsmanship Predominates Note of Happy Gathering.

DELEGATES APPOINTED.

Major G. C. McArthur Tells of Growing Popularity of Game in His Address

Softball enthusiasts of the city gathered together at the Empress Hotel last evening, on the occasion of the annual banquet of Peterborough Softball Association, to do honor to the League Champions, The Sugar Bowl team, who this season captured the handsome silver cup which was donated for annual competition by former-mayor W. H. Taylor.

The spirit of sportsmanship, fostered on the playing fields was the predominant note which this happy gathering suggested.

Jack Sullivan past-president of the Association presided and was ably supported by the president F. Scates.

Major G. C. McArthur, president of the Ontario Softball Association for the past three years, in a brief address referred to the growing popularity of softball in Ontario and mentioned something of the amenable relations which are coming into being between the O. S. A. and their former rivals in sport, the Hardball Association.

He thought that a lot of this success could be traced as entirely due to the support given by all the local associations throughout the Province. Incidentally he mentioned that only two minor protests had engaged the attention of the O. S. A. this past season, a fact which led him to assume that there are less hard feelings among softball players than are to be found in any other kind of organized sport.

"Other amateur sports are beginning to take notice of softball", said the speaker, adding, "that amateur softball is 100 per cent amateur". He advised hislisteners to always keep it that way, and reminded them of a general meeting of the Association which is to take place in Paris next spring, and suggested that Peterborough should send three delegates to see that the proper men are elected to office. In that way softball will grow, and everybody will rsepect it, if it is handled by men who are generally respected.

Enter Team Here

Speaking of the creation of a Senior B series this year, Major McArthur, thought there was no reason why Peterborough should not have a league in this series in the near future. His advice was that, the league encourage the juvenile players and bring them up to the game. "Peterborough need not take a back seat to anyone", he declared, "and in time should be in the Ontario playoffs".

In his opening remarks the chairman feelingly touched on the tragic death of Raphael Darling, who pitched for the Westclox team during the season just passed, and asked that the assembly stand for one minute as a tribute to his memory. One could almost feel the silence, which was only broken by the whirring of an electric fan, as the request was reverently complied with.

Extending a hearty welcome to the visiting players, to the Sugar Bowl team and to Harrison's Northenders, the runners-up, Mr. Sullivan also voiced his congratulations to the winners, who had been so ably captained by George Dormer. He was glad to see that the game was making such rapid progress, but would like to see more teams in the league. He made a suggestion to the president that a club league should be organized next year, that recreation might be provided for many men over thirty years of age, who are not now taking any active part in sports. The chairman also made special mention of the untiring efforts of Mr. Scates, president and David Leether, secretary and other members of the association.

He then asked Mr. Dormer's acceptance of the Taylor Trophy, emblematic of the Peterborough Softball Championship.

Cupwinners

The Cup bears the following inscription: "Presented by Mayor W. H. Taylor, December 1923 to Peterborough A.A.A. for perpetual competition among teams playing in Peterborough Softball Association."

In 1922 it was held by the Knights of Columbus team; 1923 and the spring and fall of 1924 by Belmont Club; 1926 C. G. E.; 1927 Belmont Club; 1928-29 Harrison's Northenders.

All the members of Harrison's team were the recipients of prizes which took the form of watch fobs, having as pendants small gold-plated spheres, representing softballs.

Walter Firth a member of the Softball executive also made presentations to the following men who have materially assisted the work of the league during the summer by their assistance as umpires, etc.: Ted LeBarr, chief umpire; Max Board; "Scotty" Galbraith; "Bud" Weese; "Sailor" Maudsley; Norman Lang; Jack Playford; Silas Haskell; Tommy Holyman; V. Stewart; Wm. Bennett; A. Smith; G. Webb; J. Dougherty and Mr. Scates.

Another presentation wa smade by the president was that of a token of recognition to Mr. Leether, who has so ably discharged the duties as secretary.

In replying the secretary stated, that this was his first year of active service in organized ball games, but for many years he has taken a keen interest in sports of all descriptions.

At the annual meeting of the Ontario branch of the Women's Amateur Athletic Federation, Miss Mabel Ray of Toronto was elected president. Miss Ray succeeds Mrs. W. J. D. Alesandro in the position. The new president is well known and has been actively connected with women's softball associations since the first game started.

He had in discharging his duties always tried to give the best he had

Alderman Stocker representing His Worship Mayor Denne, in the latters unavoidable absence, in a few words made reference to the new ball park which is to be constructed in East City. He said that already grading has been done there and after a little more work at it in the spring he saw every prospect of a fine ground.

He dealt with the great advance which sport has made in the past few years and spoke of it as a healthy and wise means of utilizing spare time.

"If I am chairman of the Parks Committee, next year," he promised, "I will do my best to make the proposed ball ground the very best possible."

R. M. Glover, past-president of the Ontario Hockey Association and sponsor of sport of all descriptions, in being called upon by the chairman, paid striking tribute to the work of the local Softball Association, making special mention of the president Mr. Scates, saying, "If he serves you as well as he has always served me on The Examiner staff, you have had good service."

He mentioned also a letter he had received from Mr. Leether, secretary in which he had thanked Mr. Glover on behalf of the association for the keen interest he had manifested in their association and for the valuable assistance he had rendered through The Examiner. Mr. Glover assured them that he was glad to think that anything he had done was so highly appreciated, and he assured them that the columns of The Examiner were always wide open in the interests of any legitimate sport.

He was of the opinion that sport was the finest thing any young man could take up, and that to gain a reputation as a good sport—a man who could take defeat with the same grace as he regarded his triumphs, was a man to be envied.

In conclusion Mr. Glover made feeling reference to the sudden death of Raphael Darling, and urged them all to also give full consideration to the more serious side of life.

Delegates Chosen

Following on Major McArthur's suggestion that the local association should be represented at the general meeting in Paris next spring, Mr. Sullivan called for nominations, which brought forward the following six names: D. Leether, secretary; F. Scates, president; T. Holyman, J. Beckerman, W. Firth and W. Bennett.

Mr. Sullivan declined nomination, saying that he wished to see some of the younger men of the association act as delegates, although he promised that he would also be at the meeting, if it were at all possible.

The following three delegates were elected by ballot: F. Scates, D. Leether and T. Holyman.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well Mac, they hasn't been much in the sporting line this week to get excited about. True, the cash and carry hockey teams has started training, the usual amount of pre-season hooey fills the sporting pages, and the fans is more or less beginning to take notice, but otherwise the football heroes has the stage to themselves.

The Intercollegiate looks like a real scrap this year, Mac, and this Western outfit, figgered as a push-over for the rest of the college machines, may yet prove to be the gang to spill the Boston confectionery. Up in Toronto last Saturday many fans passed up the Varsity-Western clash under the delusion that the Mustangs would be just a Honeydew lunch for Mister Les Blackwell's lads, but when the proceedings got under way the Varsity rooters hadn't a great deal to cheer for. True, the Toronto team finally win by the odd point in five, but it took a couple of brakes to turn the tide, and even then the Varsity boys didn't look so hot. A fumble put them in possession almost on the Western goal line, but Toronto fell down badly trying to plunge through for a major score and had to be content with a boot to the dead line for the winning point, not a very impressive showing I'm here to tell you. Anyway, Varsity and Queen's has win 2 games each, and a lot depends on the clash Sat., which the customers'll know all about before they read this—if ever.

Our Collegiate seniors is going along nice, Mac. Up on the windswept Lindsay gridiron last Sat. Mister Legon's young hopefuls romped home in their 3rd successive win by a big score, and if they bump off Cobourg here this Sat. they'll be out in front of the parade and hard to head off for the group honors. The Central Park—I mean Confederation Square—knowledge brigade has lots of courage, plenty of speed and a smart assortment of football plays, and they put on a show that's worth while seeing at any time or place.

The softball epidemic which subsided here 2 months ago, has bust out again in Lakefield, and many of the lads that performed up in the Central School grounds last summer is in action up in the Cementville rink, which some folks think is just about the kind of place that kind of a game should be played in. Anyway, the row has started all over again, and they don't seem nothing to be done about it at that.

Well, Mac, they may be more done next week. In the meanwhile we'll call it a day.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

Bowling Alley Gossip By Pin Boy

Four teams in the Junior Mercantile League got under way on Thursday night at the Duffus Alleys and exhibited plenty of enthusiasm. The Bachelors froze out the Legions in a one-sided battle, winning three games. Kennedy, for the winners, had high single for the evening of 272.

The Postal Clerks swamped the Redpatch quintette to win three games in easy fashion. Moore and Fallen being high with 218 and 216 respectively. Johnson's and the Mail Carriers, the other two teams in the league, will bowl their initial game in the near future.

The A.Y.P.A. League will get underway early in November six teams strong. This league enjoyed a very successful season last year and was one of the strongest mixed leagues on the alleys. Alice Shurety held the season's high single record with a total of 312, while Jack Hope was also in the limelight with a 305 single and 756 triple.

Dormer shattered two of this season's records in the men's section of The Examiner League last night, when he piled up a single of 311 and a triple of 779. His three scores are as follows:
296 — 311 — 172 = 779

Howley Plans Trade With Pittsburgh Team

PITTSBURG, Oct. 25.—There were indications at Pirate headquarters yesterday that Jewel Ens will be retained as manager of the Pittsburg National League Baseball Club.

Ens, who arrived yesterday from Cuba, was called into conference by Owner Barney Dreyfuss, who had as his guests President Sidney Weil and Manager Dan Howley of the Cincinnati Reds, here to see if something could be done in the way of a trade.

Following a long conference behind closed doors, it was announced there was "nothing to report," but it was learned Weil and Howley will remain here until the end of the week.

Clancy Leads Practice With Ottawa Senators

OTTAWA, Oct. 25.— Led by their former captain, King Clancy, who is now the property of the Toronto Maple Leafs, Ottawa Senators yesterday took to the ice for the first time this season. Only a few minutes was spent in getting the feel of the skates, and no pucks or sticks were allowed. Clancy will report to Manager Conny Smythe in a day or two.

Allan Shields, the only holdout on the Ottawa squad, is still unable to come to terms with Manager Dave Gill. He may be sent to some other club this winter, either by sale or trade.

TORONTO LEAFS WILL CARRY ONLY THE ONE NET-MINDER

Frank Calder, president of the National Hockey Association, who presided over the deliberations of that body and who announced during the course of the gathering that Cooper Smeateon, former chief of the referee's staff of the N.H.L., had been appointed manager of the Philadelphia club, the newest addition to the league. The Quaker City franchise was formerly operated in Pittsburg. Mr. Calder also predicted that pro hockey was in for the biggest season in its history.

Chabot and Grant Will Have to Battle for the Position.

TEAM ROUNDING IN SHAPE.

TORONTO, Oct. 25. — Manager Conny Smythe and the Maple Leafs' good-will expert, Frank Selke, arrived back from the Parry Sound training camp of the Leafs yesterday and reported the athletes to be making great strides in their conditioning exercises Andy Blair's condition is not causing the local club any worry and Manager Smythe believes the lanky westerner will be ready by the time the season starts.

The Parry Sound camp will break up next Wednesday night and the Leafs will hold their first ice practice at the Arena Gardens next Thursday morning. "King" Clancy will join the team on Monday next. He worked out yesterday with the Ottawa Senators in an ice practice.

In regard to Williams and "Shrimp" McPherson, Smythe had little to say. Terms were wired Williams, and if he sees fit to accept all well and good. No extra inducements are being made to the Tulsa player. It is understood he is not under contract to Tulsa, although that club is endeavoring to sign him again, and Williams is evidently playing one club against the other in order to get the best terms, McPherson will have to show how well he fits into the Leaf line-up in order to be given a contract. It is not at all certain he can make the grade, and if not he will not be signed.

The Leafs will carry only one goal-keeper this season, and Lorne Chabot and Benny Grant will have to battle for the position. What disposal will be made of the one who does not make good is not known, but an effort will be made to place him in one of the minor league clubs providing waivers are given by the other N.H.L. teams.

Coach Art Duncan will have full charge of the Leafs this winter, and only one practice session open to the public will be held at the Arena Gardens. All practices with that one exception will be behind closed doors.

Added incentive for Canadian farmers to participate in the 1930 International Grain and Hay Show will be generous cash prizes offered to Canadian winners by the Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers, Limited; the Canadian National Railways; the Canadian Pacific Railway; and the Governments of Quebec, Ontario, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. To the Albertan winning a grand championship in either wheat or oats, the Calgary Board of Trade offers a round trip railway ticket and sleeping car fare to the 1931 International Grain and Hay Show.

B. H. Heide, secretary of the International Live Stock Exposition at Chicago, says: "Growers should not be discouraged from taking part this year because of possible decreased quality of their samples owing to unfavorable growing conditions last summer, which since the situation was general to the North American continent will, I believe, be generally reflected in most all of the samples submitted."

Whitton, McArthur, Cowell, Blue and MacKay Will Play on Campbellford Line-up.

GOOD PROSPECTS.

CAMPBELLFORD, October 25 (Examiner Staff Corespondence). — Champions last year, and with the prospect of again heading the league, the Campbellford Hockey Club at its annual meeting last night saw a bright future for the Maroon and Orange. Many of the regular players will be on the line-up this season, and with few exceptions, the team will be as last year. The meeting was marked by its enthusiasm, and was assured of the support of the citizens of Campbellford.

A strong slate of officers was elected, showing some new faces among them. This year's task will be a difficult one for them to handle. Having the T.V.L. title to defend will perhaps prove a harder task than winning it, but the new officers are determined to do all they can to assist the team to again bring home the bacon. The officers are as follows:

Hon. presidents—C. R. Davidson, G. A. Kingston, C. Nadoo, A. D. Bennett, Dr. H. T. Scott, Dr. S. L. O'Hara.

President—G. A. Ironside.

1st Vice-president—J. M. Ferris.

2nd Vice-president—Douglas Maybee.

Secretary—Hilton Beattie.

Treasurer—E. McKeel.

Manager—Les. Stover.

There was no executive appointed this year, but a managing committee was slated to work under the manager. This committee will handle the matter of new players and will arrange for the appointment of a coach. It consists of—Chairman L. Stover, C. Calvert, C. Holmes, and Dr. O. C. Watson.

Finance Committee—W. S. Wiggins, W. Smith, with the president and secretary.

Representatives to the annual meeting of the Trent Valley League will consist of G. A. Ironside, L. Stover, and Douglas Maybee.

Whitton, McArthur, Cowell, Blue, and MacKay, it is expected, will be on the line-up this season, with Hendy and McPherson, and some very fast hockey is expected.

During the course of the meeting, appreciation of the work done last year by the coach, Bennie Brant, was voiced by the members of the team.

WESTERNERS TO JOIN QUAKERS

Members of Winnipeg "Big Four" Leave For Eastern Metropolis.

PILOT'S KNEE INJURED.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 25 (C.P.)—Frank Frederickson, unconditionally released from the managership of Pittsburgh Pirates in the National Hockey League, to-day has completed the handing over of records to the team. By long-distance telephone he transmitted to Benny Leonard, owner of the club, all details in connection with outstanding contracts.

As a result of the veteran centre man's negotiations, two members of the Melville team in the Saskatchewan "Big Four" League, leave today for Pittsburgh to join the squad of the Pirates, now re-named Philadelphia Quakers. They are Freddy Carter, forward, and Wilf. Cude, goalie. Both are former Winnipeg boys.

Though Frederickson has made no arrangements for playing this Winter, he is working out daily on the hockey rink here. He states that he has recovered entirely from the injured knee which kept him out of the game last year after the season had been started three weeks.

BILLIARD GIANTS CLASH IN ENGLAND

Lindrum, Australian Marvel, Newman and Davis of England in Tourney.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—(By the Canadian Press)—The international billiard tournament now going on in England is a competition between the four greatest "English" billiard players of all time, Walter Lindrum of Australia, (scratch), Joe Davis, England, who receives 7000, T. Newman, England, who receives 6000, and Clark McConachy, New Zealand, who receives 7000. Two games are played simultaneously, one in London and one in the Provinces. The games are of two weeks duration, two sessions daily of one and three quarter hours each.

Brilliant as Lindrum has proved to be, the magnitude of his task in this tournament can be judged when it is considered that each of his three opponents have breaks of around 2000 to their credit, and that this handicap calls for Lindrum to score an average of over 166 points per hour more than each of his opponents for the whole fortnight. The games are being played upon several match of tables, another handicap to Lindrum, whose wonderful and consistent play last season was always on the same make of table.

The tournament started September 29, and will finish December 20 the winner being the player winning most games.

The players with a handicap commence each game on their mark, 7000, even when playing against a player with the same start. This is on account of a special prize which goes to the player with the high aggregate (including start) Aggregate may also decide the actual winner of the tournament in the case of two or more players having an equal number of wins to their credit.

The tournament is being promoted by W. A. Camkin of Birmingham. In addition to payment for playing, cash prizes running to big figures are to win, also a magnificently Gold Cup, valued at $500, given by the News of the World.

In addition to the Billiard Tournament, a Snooker Tournament is being played. One game is staged after each billiard session, the total aggregate points at the end of the two weeks deciding the winner of this. It was first decided that Joe Davis, Snooker Champion,should give the value of a pink and black, thirteen points, in each game played, but this handicap was later revised with the result that Davis, Lindrum and McConachy start at scratch and Newman receives 200 points from each of the others in each two weeks play. In snooker Davis ranks above the others almost as Lindrum does in billiards.

In the first games played in the Billiard Tournament Lindrum beat Newman and Davis beat McConachy, the highest aggregate of points scored going to Lindrum with Davis a close second. Several runs around the thousand mark were made by all four players. The amount of points totalled by each player, in each game during the Tournament will be around the twenty-five to thirty thousand mark.

November 24—McConachy v. Newman at London; Lindrum v. Davis at Leicester.

Women's Votes Help Religious Parties

London Paper Draws Deductions From Statistical Record of German Women's Choice.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—(By the Canadian Press)—The votes of women in Germany have given increased support to the moderate clerical party and to the Fascists, extreme right wingers, points out an editorial in The Observer which used statistics of the sex vote to show that religion benefits from women's suffrage while the fair sex are not so reluctant, as is popularly supposed, to support extreme parties. The editorial says:

"Before women won the vote there was a current theory that their enfranchisement would, in some obscure way, transform party politics. Even now the British parties are each apt to claim that their program has a peculiar attraction for women. But in Germany, where in many towns the men and women vote on different colored cards, there is actually a statistical test of the direction in which the sexes vote. The figures we give to-day are taken from Cologne and Wiesbaden, but where the statistics from other towns are available they give substantially similar results.

"There is only one tendency which markedly differentiates the women from the men voters. The parties which are definitely religious in basis are supported predominantly by women voters. In cologne, for instance, the number of women who voted for the great catholic Centre party was nearly double that of its male supporters. There is one other notable feature. The common view that women tend to vote for the moderate parties and avoid the extremes has not very much to support it. True, comparatively few women voted for Communist candidates at the recent election; but the National Socialists, or Fascists have been almost as popular with the, women as with the men.

"In general the parties have been fairly equally supported by both sexes. After all the influences which induce men to vote for one party rather than another tell equally with women, and the notion that the electorate would vote according to sex is a relic of a time when women were temporarily united by a common objection to not having the right to vote at all."

ART NEED NOT BE ND BY TRUTH

Camera Frees Painter From Real Objectivity, Miss Leighton Finds.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 25.—The way to understand a picture is to look, and look, and look, said Miss Clara Leighton, Associate of the Royal Society of Painter Etchers, recently, at the People's Forum, in a lecture on "Pictures and How to Look at Them." The way to misunderstand a picture was to go around with guide books, listen to other people, read what other people have to say about the artist of the picture, or look merely for the subject instead of for design, color and technique.

There is or hypocrisy in art than perhaps anything else, Miss Leighton went on. For when it is only a question of preferring oranges to grapefruit, people tell the truth. In art they are not sure of themselves and pretend. The man who says "I don't know anything about art, but I know what I like," probably gets the most out of it, and in any case the layman gets more than the artist, who is more concerned with practical details of tone, line and color. What was a picture? Most people had an idea of a heavy oil painting with a gold frame, the artist averred. Quite "civilized" people had massive paintings in their houses merely because they had picked them up cheap at an auction sale. But a picture could be a cave painting, a "Woolworth" painting, an engraving, or a drawing.

Then,the camera had freed the artist by taking from him the necessity of real objectivity, Miss Leighton averred. It was not longer needful for the artist to be truthful, in the popular acceptation of the term. For there were two truths—that of nature and that of beauty. What was the use of having an artist if you use him only as a camera? Directly the camera came the artist was free to "let himself rip."

Another use for the camera in art was that it gave new ideas about perspective. The camera was the friend of art, not by any means its enemy. For what, then, should one look in a picture? Well, the artist had probably put as much pains into a picture as a novelist into his novel, and it needed pains to get it out. One should look at one picture, not a whole gallery-full.

In fact, the picture should look ar oneself, not oneself at the picture, Miss Leighton contended. One should look at it with an open mind and think afterwards. If necessary, one might read about the artist's craft and how he did his work, but on no account s ould one read what someone else had to say about the artist or the picture. The first thing to be looked for was design, which, although indefinable, was made up of balance, rythm, contrast, and sympathy. One should try to get at the idea that prompted the artist to make the pictur —that "seed pearl" of the picture.

GEHRIG GETS SERIE CUT, NOW AWAITS TWO OTHERS

Yankee First Sacker to Undergo Slicing of Bad Finger and Elbow Next Week.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Lou Gehrig who just missed winning the American League batting championship last month, got his cut of the world series melon yesterday, something less than $560, which was the Yankees' individual reward for finishing third. Next week Lou hopes to take two more cuts, one on the little finger of the right hand and the other on the left elbow.

"But please explain that they are not taking any growths off my ears," explained the Yankee slugger last night when commenting on a story which had him badly in need of many repairs. "The finger and the elbow of my throwing arm and, of course, that finger which I broke just before Labor Day, need repairs. Bnt it won't take long to fix up these two points."

Gehrig's finger stiffened after the fracture early in September, and he announced befor the close of the season that he would go into the hospital for treatment after the close of the season. A number of exhibition games in which he and Babe Ruth have been taking part have delayed the session with Dr. E. W. King, who takes his cut at the Yanks who need repairing. Next Sunday the Ruth-Gehrig jaunt will close and Lou will be ready to meet the Doc. He said last night he wasn't sure just when the cutting would take place.

Plays With Break

Gehrig was advised to rest when the finger was injured but he was anxious to prolong his string of continuous games and he remained in the daily line-up to the close of the season, running his total to 886 successive games. For a few days he wore splints on the injured finger then he discarded them and finished the season with nothing on the finger.

Joe McCarthy failed to put an appearance at Yankee headquarters yesterday afternoon but he is expected here today for a conference concerning 1931 plans. The Yankees already have obtained waivers on a number of players and of this group only Henderson and Gibson have been sent away. McCarthy will undoubtedly cut a few more adrift before the Winter baseball meeting in early December.

The new manager has obtained from Art Fletcher some expert data on the possibilities of certain players who finished the 1930 season in Yankee uniforms. It is probable that at least eight of the players who now are numbered as Yanks will be cut adrift before the Winter meetings.

Speaking of cuts, but not the kind Mr. Gehrig is to take Jim McDonnell, veteran ticket man of Springfield, who has helped to conduct the Yankee tours of the South for some years past, has announced his retirement from these barnstorming tours.

"It was tough enough to find out at the end of the tour that the remuneration had been cut in half by the business office without any warning" explained Jim. "Then to be told that my carefare back home was to come out of the balance was the last straw. No more barnstorming for yours truly."

Asks The Removal Detroit Officers

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 25.—C.P.)— Immediate removal of three high officials of the Detroit Police Department has been recommended by the Wayne county grand jury.

Garvin last winter; Inspector Norval Marlett, head of the blackhand squad, and Detective Lieutenant Max Wahlfogel, also of the black hand squad.

The jury appended no explanation to its recommendation for the removal of these officers.

OLD FRAME SHOP BEING REMOVED

Building on South Side of Present Modern Store of Comstock Bros. Being Torn Down.

ONCE MUCH LARGER.

Closely linked with A. Comstock and Sons, century of business progression in this city, an old building situated on the south side of the present modern store premises is being demolished at the hands of the wreckers.

Dry with age, the old timber building has stood throughout the years, having served successively as a workshop, temporary residence, and then again as a workshop, which purpose it served until two years ago.

The removal of the old building means the loss, to the Comstock Brothers, of a piece of property of great sentimental value which served as a link with the past, when the business was in its infancy.

It is a little over one hundred years ago since Aaron Comstock first commenced in business at the corner of George and Sherbrooke streets. He was there for almost half a century before seeking an outlet for expansion in the old premises recently vacated by John Hill and opposite the present spacious premises, which extend for the full distance between George and Water streets for a depth of 220 feet.

At the time the late Mr. Comstock was doing business in those far away days, the old building now in the course of demolition was standing somewhere on the site of the present store. It was originally twice as large as the building now being wrecked, but was cut in two. One half of the building was erected near the old car barns, but was demolished about a year ago, after serving as a storeroom for a long period; the other half of course constitutes the old building now falling down to the tune of the wreckers' hammer and axes.

Old residents can recall the time when the present store now occupied by Comstock Brothers covered an area infinitely smaller than it does now. It was a four-storey building, with a frontage about half the present frontage of 50 feet and looked as if it might very easily succumb to a hard gust of wind.

As time went on and the business expanded under the capable leadership of the late Aaron Comstock, the house still standing at the rear of the store was built. It was while this was in the course of construction that the Comstock 'boys' made the old wooden building their temporary home.

Time has seen further radical changes and to-day a splendid business, under the management of the Comstock Brothers stands as a monument to the untiring industry of the late Aaron Comstock founder of the business.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE CROSS BEAR.

Uncle Wiggily and Baby Bunty sat in the woods near a honey tree, and the old rabbit gentleman, as well as the little orphan bunny girl, wondered how to get any of the sweet stuff. For the tree was very high.

Of course you all know that honey doesn't grow on trees. Though flowers grow on trees and it is from flowers that bees get the sweet juice they make into honey. Bees make honey in a hollow box, called a hive, which is their home.

But wild bees make their hive in a hollow tree and store their honey there. It was wild bees which Baby Bunty and Uncle Wiggily had seen on flowers in the woods. The two rabbits had followed some of the bees until they reached the honey tree.

"Let's wait a little longer!"

"But I don't see how we are ever going to get any honey out of such a high tree," said Uncle Wiggily with a sigh as he sat beside Bunty. "When I came to the woods to look for a honey tree I thought I might find a low one, that I could easily reach up into. But this high one is quite out of my reach and I can't climb a tree."

"Neither can I," said Baby Bunty. "But something good will happen, I am sure. Let's wait a little longer."

So she and Uncle Wiggily waited. All the while more bees flew into the honey tree from where they had been gathering the sweet juices of flowers far away in the forest. The little wax cups in the hollow tree hive must be full of sweet honey now.

"Well," said Uncle Wiggily after a while, "nothing has happened yet, Bunty. I guess we had better go look for a little honey tree."

"No, wait, please," said Baby Bunty. "If Jacko or Jumpo Kinkytail were to come along now they could climb the tree and ask the bees for some honey for us."

"Yes, those monkey boys can climb trees all right," agreed Mr. Longears. "But they may not come. We'd better go, Bunty."

"No, not yet," said the little orphan. "I'm sure something good will happen. Hark! I think I hear some one coming now! Listen! It may be Jacko or Jumpo!"

So Uncle Wiggily listened. Surely enough he could hear, as did Bunty, some one crashing their way through the bushes and over the dried leaves in the woods.

"I told you something good would happen!" chuckled Bunty.

"Well, nothing has really happened yet," spoke the bunny gentleman. "And when it does it may not be good. This may be one of the Bad Chaps coming, Bunty. We'd better get ready to run. Let the honey go."

"Wait just a minute!" whispered Bunty. "I'm sure this is one of the monkey boys and they'll get some honey for us. They can climb as high as anything."

So the two rabbits waited. The crashing, crackling, scrabbling noise sounded near and nearer. Then, all of a sudden, Baby Bunty and Uncle Wiggily saw a very fine t[h]ing chap, but it was neither Jacko nor Jumpo.

Instead it was an old, black bear. It was neither Mr. Whitewash, the jolly Polar bear from the land of icebergs, nor was it Mr. Stubtail, the good bear father of Neddie and Beckie. Instead it was a cross old bear. He shuffled over the dried leaves, shaking his shaggy head from side to side and he growled:

"I'll get it! I'll get all the honey in the bee tree and I'll eat it all up! That's what I will! All up!"

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily!" Did you hear what he said?" whispered Bunty, who, with Mr. Longears, had slipped back of a log so the bear couldn't see them. "He's going to get honey and maybe he'll give us some."

"Yes, he'll climb up the tree and get the honey all right," said Mr. Longears. "But that cross, old bear will give none to us. No, Bunty, don't hope for that."

The hidden rabbits watched the cross bear climb up the honey tree. The bees buzzed around him and the Queen Bee came out of the hollow hive and fluttered her wings as she said:

"Please go away and let our honey alone!"

"No! No! No!" growled the cross bear. He stuck his big paws down inside the hollow tree and pulled out great gobs of the sweet, sticky stuff. And then the Queen Bee buzzed:

"Sting him, my children! Sting the cross bear!"

A thousand bees at once began to sting the bear on his soft and tender nose. He howled, yowled, dropped a big gob of honey to the ground and then he used his paws to rub his stung nose. He forgot to hold to the tree and down he fell ker plop to the ground, and away he ran, chased far off into the woods by the stinging bees.

But on the ground was a big piece of wax, filled with honey.

"You may have that, Uncle Wiggily!" buzzed the Queen Bee.

"See! I told you something would happen!" laughed Bunty. "And it did!"

Then she and Mr. Longears took home the honey dropped by the cross bear.

So Sick She Was Unable To Move

Then Dodd's Kidney Pills Brought Relief

"I once had Lumbago so badly that I could not move in bed," writes Mrs. A. W. McCoy, MacLennan, Ont. "I decided that I would try Dodd's Kidney Pills so my husband drove six miles one Sunday evening for a box and the next day I could almost raise up in bed. Before the box was half finished I was able to be around. I therefore say that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best kidney remedy of any kind that I have ever used."

The reason Dodd's Kidney Pills have come to occupy such a prominent place in the home is that so many ordinary everyday ills come from sick kidneys. 200

Provincial Office Urges Co-operation

I.O.D.E. Chapters Should Aid in Child Welfare Work—Regular Meeting.

The October meeting of the 57th Regiment Chapter I.O.D.E. was held in the Armouries yesterday afternoon with a good attendance. The Regent, Mrs. T. W. H. Young, presided, and after the opening prayer the flag was brought forward by Mrs. B. Poole. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. F. Miller, and a number of letters from the Provincial Office urging the primary Chapters organize for some form of child welfare work and co-operation between the department of auxiliary classes in connection with our public schools and the Daughters of the Empire. The financial report of the recent community bridge as given by Miss M. Rogers, was very gratifying, and a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Miss I. Wesley for the use of her home for the tea. Mrs. Sharp reported for the sick and visiting committee. Mrs. W. Gordon Hall's report, owing to her illness, was given by Mrs. Young. A quantity of clothing had been sent to Mrs. W. G. Morris, who was looking after this work in connection with the Women's Council, and a request was made that members having anything to donate to this cause to send them to Mrs. Morris. Mrs. T. W. H. Young and Mrs. F. Miller were appointed to visit the auxiliary class at South Central School.

Mrs. Young gave a very interesting account of the last meeting of the Women's Council and requested more members of the Chapter to attend these meetings.

Mrs. R. Cottrell was appointed to purchase a wreath to be placed on the Cenotaph on Sunday preceding Armistice Day.

It was decided to apply the funds raised from the Armistice tea toward the fund set aside for a permanent base for the flag to be erected in Little Lake Cemetery.

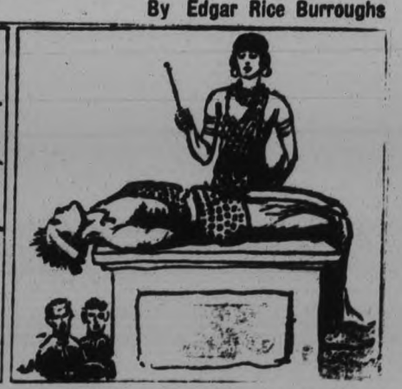
THE RETURN OF TARZAN No. 36 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The girl drew a knife and cut the bonds from Tarzan's legs. She led him through winding corridors to a great chamber where stood a blood-stained altar. The men followed in twos. Now Tarzan realized he had fallen into the hands of sun-worshippers, destined to be a human sacrifice to their flaming city

Human skulls, grinned from countless niches in the towering walls. A procession of females advanced through an arched doorway. Gold chains were about their waists. Golden ornaments covered them. Each carried two golden cups. The chanting began anew, as from a dark passageway came a young and very beautiful woman.

"The high priestess," thought Tarzan. Her bare arms and legs were almost concealed with massive, bejeweled ornaments. In her girdle she carried a long, jeweled knife. All knelt before her. She addressed Tarzan, but he could not understand. For a moment she looked intently at him, awaiting his reply. Then she gave a signal.



The priests rushed upon the ape-man and laid him across the altar. Tarzan knew that in a minute more, this lovely woman would be transformed by fanatical ecstasy into a wild-eyed, bloodthirsty executioner. With dripping knife she would be the first to drink her victim's warm red blood from the little golden cup that stood upon the altar.

Coste Says Englishman Greatest Aviator in World

HAVRE, Oct. 25.— (C.P.)—Dieudonne Coste, France's famous aviator who, with Maurice Bellonte, spanned the Atlantic in an east-west flight, paid tribute yesterday to another great airman. As the French flyers stepped ashore from an ocean liner on their return to their native country, Coste was asked by newspapermen to name the greatest aviator in the world.

His reply was brief and without hesitation: "Kingsford-Smith."

Fire Sweeps Providence Coal Yard

SEVEN SAILORS HAVE CLOSE CALL AS VESSEL BURNS

Four Forced to Leap Into Water, Rushed to Hospital.

FIREMEN TRAPPED ON ROOF.

Whole Water Front Menaced Before Blaze Controlled.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 27.—(CP)—The yards of the Turks Head Coal Company and a cargo boat, the Lake Gilt Edge, laden with 1050 tons of sulphur for the Rumford Chemical Company were swept by a spectacular fire this morning. Seven members of the crew of the boat had to jump into the Providence river and swim to safety.

A large section of the Providence water front was menaced by the blaze when it broke through the roof of the coal pockets and sulphur unloading bins affected. Firemen, called by a general alarm, went down the roof of the big power plant of the Naggaragansett Electric Lighting Company and played streams over the steamer Mt. Hope, moored nearby.

Four of the men who jumped overboard from the Lake Gilt Edge was taken to the Rhode Island Hospital for treatment for immersion.

At 11:20 the Fire Commissioners declared the blaze under control. At that time, however a 115 foot hoisting tower collapsed and fell into the burning cargo boat.

It was feared that there had been some injuries at that time.

Narrow escapes featured the blaze, in on instance a group of horsemen being trapped on the roof of the big shed. They managed to escape over and adjoining roof.

A dense pall of smoke overhung the business section of the city, which is not far from the coalyards.

LAD SHOT IN BACK HOLDING HIS OWN

Youth Escaping From Industrial School Brought Down After Chase.

COMPANION MISSING

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 27. (CP)—Gordon Clay, shot in the back by Police Officer Church after a lengthy chase which took them over back fences, through alleys and over lawns, and later was admitted to the hospital last night, is holding his own in his fight for life.

Clay it was stated here this morn- and after stealing a car from the highway drove to that city. The car suddenly stalled and when Officer Church who was on the opposite corner come over to see what the trouble was the youths fled.

The officer becoming suspicious took up the chase and fired two shots in the air to intimidate the boys. When this failed he aimed his shots toward them. A blood transfusion was given the wounded youth after he was admitted to the hospital by Police Constable Robert Cummings. So far as yet the police have found no trace of Clay's companion who is believed to be a Hamilton youth.

STUDENTS STRIKE OVER NEW POLICY

500 in Seville University Smash Class Room Windows and Doors.

MAY WITHDRAW PLAN.

SEVILLE, Spain, Oct. 27 (C.P.).—Nearly all of the five hundred students at the University of Seville went on strike to-day and rioted in the various buildings, breaking class-room windows and doors.

The strike was a protest against the operation of Spanish Universities under a plan devised by Senor Callejo, who was Minister of Public Instruction under the Primo de Rivera dictatorship.

Ramon Carnave, Rector of the University, promised the students that he would telegraph Madrid and request that the Callejo plan be withdrawn.

Hallowe'en Parade

The Hallowe'en parade sponsored by The Examiner for the past few years will be curtailed for this year, inasmuch as it is felt that the money so expended might be used, and is being used already, in form of relief. While the need is not nearly as great in Peterborough as in many other municipalities in Canada, it was felt that probably there are those requiring food, fuel and clothing in the city who would be benefitted by the change in plans and that those usually participating in the events of the evening would forego the prizes and the dance after the parade.

For this year The Examiner has arranged with the Peterborough Rangers' Band to leave the Armouries at 8.00 o'clock, and those in costume who desire are asked to get in line. The route of the parade will be announced later.

TURKEY FORGETS ANCIENT ENMITY

Thousands Welcome Premier Venizelos of Greece, Enroute to Angora.

TO SIGN NEW TREATY.

ISTANBUL, Turkey O.ct. 27.—(A.P.)—Turkey, forgetful, temporarily at least, of old enmities, held out a hand of welcome to-day to Premier Venizelos of Greece, who is en route from here to Angora where he will sign a Turko-Grecian treaty of commerce and amity.

Five thousand Greeks, meeting his boat Sunday at Haudar Pasha, in Asiatic Turkey, broke police lines in their enthusiasm and cried "Hail Venizelos," the first time in eight years the cry has been made without bringing arrested to the offender. Turkish guns boomed a salute for him on his arrival.

The Premier's special train to Angora must pass over the Sakaria river where in 1922 the Kemalist forces won a victory over the Grecian army. Accompanying him are his wife and M. Mihailico-Polos, Minister of Foreign Affairs.

3 NATIONS' HEADS HOPES RUN HIGH FOR NAVAL PACT

Speeches Broadcast Over World as Treaty Ratifications Are Deposited.

BRIGHT AUGURY FOR PEACE.

Happy Day For Universe When Frasce, Italy Add Signatures to Treaty.

LONDON, England, October 27 (C.P.). — The Governmental leaders of the British, Japanese, and United States peoples, conversing around the world to-day on attainment by the London Treaty of binding effectiveness, hailed that covenant as signifying the end of competitive naval building among the three Powers.

The British Foreign Office at noon was the scene of a simple ten-minute ceremony when the formal treaty ratifications were deposited. A while later Premier MacDonald, President Hoover, and Premier Hamaguchi exchanged their views that the occasion was a bright augury for peace.

International Broadcast.

The speeches were broadcast internationally from Washington, London, and Tokio.

They emphasized that the Treaty restricts for the first time all types of naval building by Great Britain, the United States and Japan. France and Italy failed to agree at the conference, but signed the pact without becoming parties to the section which limits strength on the seas.

Premier MacDonald, who witnessed the ceremony of deposit, voiced an earnest hope that recent negotiations between France and Italy "may before long reach a successful issue." President Hoover expressed a similar hope.

Premier Hamaguchi declared the pact was "bound to exercise an immense moral influence on the growing consciousness of mankind."

"One cannot but feel," he said,

BLAME CAPTAIN FOR SHOTS FIRED UPON HIS VESSEL

Brazilian Officials Claim Liner's Commander Refused to Halt.

PORT CLOSED.

Disastrous Shell Taking 27 Lives Sent Only When All Orders Ignored.

SAO PAULO, Brazil, Oct. 27 (C.P.).—Brazilian officials asserted to-day that Captain Rollin, commander of the German steamer Baden, which was fired on Friday by a Rio de Janeiro fortress with a loss of 27 lives was entirely to blame for the incident.

They said Captain Rollin did not follow written instructions from the captain of the port regulating the departure of steamers.

Captain Carvalho, commander of Santa Cruz fortress, described the incident to-day. He said that at the moment the Baden approached the harbor exit the fortress flew a signal showing that the port was closed. Notwithstandin this, he added, the ship continued its course outward without making signals.

Ship Continued Despite Shells.

One blank shot was fired, but the boat continued ahead at full speed. A second blank shot was disregarded, then a loaded shell was fired to drop close. With this disregarded, a larger shell was fired, but the gunners still were careful not to hit the Baden.

This was followed by another shell. Captain Carvalho continued, but now the Baden was out of Santa Cruz fort's range. It suspended firing, but the action was taken up by Vigia fortress, which fired the shell which did the damage.

Naval officers to-day expressed great regret over the incident, especially since it involved the ship of a nation which they said was linked to Brazil by traditional ties of friendship.

Police Use Staves Vigorously in Breaking Up Flag Saluting Ceremony.

TWO HOUR SCUFFLE.

BOMBAY, India, October 27 (C.P.). — Two hundred and sixty-five persons were injured, about 100 seriously, Indian Nationalists claimed to-day when police yesterday broke up a flag salutation ceremony of the All-India National Congress on a sport field near the Maidan Espianade. Most of the injuries were inflicted by the lathis, or staves, of the Mahratta foot police, and the canes of the white sergeants. Fifty-seven persons were arrested, among them 22 women.

Edmund A. Gullion of Washington, D.C., 17 years old, won the contest, and Clemente Perez-Zanartu of Santiago, Chile, was third.

DELEGATES HALT ON PARLEY POSER

Labor Gov't Open to Conversion if Dominion Heads Equal to Task.

FOOD TAX STAND FIRM.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 27 (By George Hambledon, C. P. Staff Correspondent)—The delegations to the Imperial Conference are now engaged, apparently, in the task of attempting to convert each other.

The British Government has received back from its department experts their facts and figures in regard to Premier R. B. Bennett's offer of reciprocal Empire tariff preferences. They have been submitted in conversations between Premier Ramsay MacDonald and the Dominion Prime Ministers.

The British Labor Government remains where it stood before—against the imposition of taxes on foreign food. In effect its reply to the Dominions is:

"Here are the facts and figures in support of our position. That is our stand, but we are open to be converted, if you can convert us."

A British spokesman was asked if any facts of figures ever produced would be likely to change Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden's firm stand against food taxes. "No," was the dry reply. "But Premier Bennett is prepared to do his best."

And there the Bennett offer stands.

Outcome Doubtful

So far there has been no official intimation of the outcome. But various ministers of the Labor Government, notably Chancellor Snowden have made it clear the Government could not accept the principle of taxation of foreign foodstuffs entering Britain in order to give Dominion producers an advantage. The Labor Government is much more favorable to the various bulk purchasing and quota schemes which are still before the conference as alternate proposals, and in all probability it will be one of these that is adopted in the end as a measure of stimulating Empire Trade.

Premier Bennett's offer, however, has still to be accepted or rejected. The rest of the Dominions ar supporting it. In brief, he proposed a preference in the Canadian market in exchange for like preference in the other Empire markets, based upon a ten per cent. increase in the prevailing general tariffs or in tariffs yet to be created.

Since this offer was laid down shortly after the conference opened, Mr. Bennett took opportunity to again stress that if it were not sel-

SEARCH STARTS FOR MISSING TRIO IN NORTHERN B. C.

Dorbandt and Cope Leave on Long Hop Over Mountains to Laird.

FEAR PLANE FROZEN IN.

Rescuers Use Craft With Wheels in Hunt For Men Lost 16 Days.

ATLIN, B.C., Oct. 27 (C.P.).—In the extreme north-west corner of British Columbia, two search-flyers to-day were ready to speed across the rugged Cassiar Mountains, bound for Liard Post, on the fringe of the North-West Territories. Pilot Frank Dorbandt and his mate, Bill Cope, are attempting to find three men who disappeared into Liard Valley 16 days ago.

Capt. E. J. A. Burke, "Three-Fingered Bob" Marten, and Engineer Kemil Kading are the missing trio. They have been unreported since they hopped off from Atlin for Liard on October 10. Since then a sudden cold snap occurred, which may have frozen their pontooned plane into some northern lake. Dorbandt and Cope will trail the missing men to-day.

From Hazleton, B.C., where the Canadian National Railway shoots to its most northerly point, Dorbandt flew to Atlin over the week-end, bucking snowstorms and high gales, but refusing to be halted. His north-west route carried him some 400 miles, but he faces just as long a hop over the mountains and almost exactly along the 60th parallel to Liard. He flies a wheeled plane, spurning pontoons, now that the lakes are frozen.

SHAFT UNVEILED TO EARLY SAINT

Notables of Church and State Attend Impressive Ceremony in Quebec.

SLAIN IN 1649.

VAL TETREAU, Que., Oct. 27.—On the spot where he sojourned five years previous to his martyrdom in 1649, a monument now stands to honor the memory of Saint Jean de Brebeuf, French Jesuit Missionary to the Indians. The monument was unveiled before 3,000 persons who gathered at Val Tetreau Park Sunday for the impressive ceremony.

The bronze statue of the recently canonized Saint, right hand outstretched holding a cross, the left bearing a paddle, symbolic of the fight of the early French missionaries into the very center of the then unknown and uncivilized country, is a gift of Josephat Pharand, of Hull. As its background the Ottawa River rapids roar along, literally carrying the sound to the Parliament buildings, standing a short distance eas; on the opposite shore.

Mr. Pharand unveiled the monument in the presence of the large crowd which included leaders of the church, state and judiciary.

LONG SERVICE MEDAL PRESENTED AT ANNUAL MACHINE GUN DINNER

Spirit of Good Comradeship is Renewed When Machine Gunners Meet.

MAJOR WHITELAW PRESENT.

Officers, N.C.O.'s and men of No. 3 Company 4th Battallion, Canadian Machine Gun Corps, along with their guests foregathered at the Armouries on Saturday evening, in that spirit of good comradeship and esperit de corps founded on years of tradition—a feeling typical of all military gatherings, and which is not found anywhere else.

The Canadian Machine Gun Corps while one of the younger arms of the service, won immortal fame on the fields of France and Flanders, as an integral part of the Canadian Corps, and looking over the faces of those gathered around the festive board, on the occasion of the annual company dinner, one could not help but feel that the type of men represented could be relied upon to worthily uphold the highest traditions of their corps.

Major J. A. Dewart, M.C., O.C., No. 3 Company competently discharged the duties of toastmaster. Following the toast to the King and after Major Dewart had extended a warm welcome to his guests, he called upon Major Ray Scott, M.O., to propose the toast to the staff.

In a few well-chosen words Major Scott voiced the regret of the assembly at the unavoidable absence of the D.O.C. Colonel Anderson, for whom Major R. G. Whitelaw of M.D. 3, was deputising.

Having attended a recent dinner at Ottawa, in which he had the privilege of hearing Colonel Anderson speak, he knew that he had the interests of the Battalion at heart, as also did Major Whitelaw, who is himself an old machine gunner.

Praise and encouragement was the keynote of the message which Major Whitelaw brought the company from Kingston, "I want you to realize the fact that you are a Battalion and not an isolated Company," he stated, and continued to state that the showing which the company made in camp this year was a great credit to the corps. He characterized the march past, which he witnessed at Barriefield Camp, as being an extradorinary good showing. The work on the

McGill Professor Dies In 63rd Year

CHICKEN THIEVES WORK DURING DAY

Daring Thefts Made at Farms Along the Keene Road.

USE CLOSED AUTO.

In these days of fast moving automobiles, the modus operandi of chicken thieves has undergone a radical change from those of the former night marauder, whose stock-in-trade was a gunny sack in which to carry his booty — if he was lucky enough to get clear with it. To-day the chicken thief drives up in a car, in broad daylight. He generally has a companion, who sits at the wheel with the motor running in preparation for a hurried get-away.

They like to operate when they know that the man of the house is away working in the fields; at least, that is the experience of several farmers' wives out on the Keene Road who report that such pests are causing genuine annoyance as well as considerable loss. They also coolly help themselves to potatoes and turnips or any other vegetable which they can lay hands on. So far it has not been possible to note the number of the automobile license plate, but it is stated that the car is a closed one.

Lady Aviator Sets West-East Mark

VALLEY STREAM, N.Y., Oct. 27 (C.P.).—Mrs. Keith Miller of Australia set her "Bullet" plane down at Curtiss-Wright Airport Sunday, establishing a new women's speed record for West-East transcontinental flight. It was her second record in a few days for she recently flew to the Pacific coast faster than any other member of her sex ever did. Her total flying time from Los Angeles to New York was 21 hours and 47 minutes, almost four hours better than the record of 25 hours 25 minutes recently set by Miss Laura Ingalls.

FINAL ACT MADE IN RATIFICATION OF NAVAL TREATY

Documents With British, U. S. and Japanese Signatures Are Stored Away.

NOW IN FULL EFFECT.

Short Ceremony Held in Locarno Room of British Foreign Office.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 27 (A.P.) — The final act in the process of putting the London Naval Treaty into full effect was performed at noon today when British, Japanese and United States ratifications of the momentous document were deposited at the British Foreign Office.

Prime Minister MacDonald and Arthur Henderson were present at the ceremony for Great Britain, and Ambassador Matsudaira for Japan, while Ambassador Dawes represented the United States.

The ceremony was held in the Locarno Room of the Foreign Office, 10 Downing street. It lasted ten minutes.

The Premier of the British Dominions, who are here for the Imperial Conference, were present with Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Henderson.

The French and Italian Ambassadors witnessed the ceremony but did not sit at the table with the other envoys.

MacDonald Extends Welcome.

Prime Minister MacDonald welcomed them and said he hoped the time would come when their status would enable them fully to join in the provisions of the treaty.

Irish Free State was not represented because the Dail had not yet ratified the pact.

The British ratification and that of all the Dominions was signed by the King with the pledge that the Monarch "engages and promises his Royal word to give effect to the treaty."

The British ratification papers were in a book bound with blue leather and gold.

All of the representatives signed a declaration that they had met and had deposited ratifications "of the Treaty for the Limitation and the Reduction of Naval Armament," signed in London on April 22, 1930.

The British Premier and Foreign Secretary Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson sat at the head of the table in the Locarno room with the Canadian Premier, Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, the Australian Premier, J. T. Scullin, and with them were General Hertzog, Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa, Premier Forbes of New Zealand. United States Ambassador Charles Gates Dawes and the Japanese and Indian envoys, Ambassador Tsuneo Matsudaria and Sir Atul Chandra Chatterjee.

The declaration of adherence to the Naval Treaty, also signed by Ambassador Dawes, contained the reservation of the United States' Senate that no secret agreements were involved in any way in connection with the London treaty.

BRANDS CONTINENT HYPOCRITICAL; HOLDING PEACE TALKS AT GENEVA BUT PREPARING FOR WAR AT HOME

Urges Hardening of Policy Against Foes Abroad and in Italy.

DOCTRINES WORLD WIDE.

Greatest Armed Gathering Rome Ever Seen in History Set For 1932.

ROME, Italy, October 27 (C.P.). — Premier Mussolini, in an address to-day, called upon the Fascist Party for a hardening of policy against its foes in Italy and beyond her borders, and predicted a wholly Fascist Europe within two decades.

He spoke in Venezia Palace to the Fascist Council on the eve of the eighth anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome.

"Unmasked" Europe.

The Duce said that having "unmasked" this hypocritical Europe, which talks peace at Geneva and prepares for war nevertheless, his legions would continue to combat all antagonisms and expel their enemies until none remain.

The Premier declared that the doctrines and ideas of Fascism had become worldwide but that the opposition forces were centering their attack politically upon Italy. He called this "moral opposition" and asserted that it was but preparation for military war.

Mussolini said that in 1932, upon the tenth anniversary of the march on Rome, the "greatest armed gathering Rome has seen in its 3,000 years of history would mark that anniversary. He declared fifty battalions of Fascists, with 50,000 young Fascists, 90,000 standard-bearers of 9,000 combat groups would gather in the capital and that other great meetings would be held in Milan, Perugia and Naples.

Lenient Only to Black Shirts

The Duce charged Giovanni Guiriati, whom he recently appointed to succeed Augusto Turati as secretary of the Fascist party, with the "purification" of Italian Fascism saying "You must be lenient only to the Black Shirts whose service antedates 1922, to comrades who are ready to risk their lives for Fascism, not to the heroes of the sixty day who have come to Fascism now that the time of tempest is passed and who are capable of cutting the cord if such time returns. While the Duce was speaking in the Palace a large crowd gathered, filling the square and shouting for him. He appeared on a balcony and responded with the Roman salute.

WEEK-END TOLL TAKES 10 LIVES

Six Die From Auto Accidents, Two Burn to Death, One Drowns, Train Kills One.

TWO VICTIMS UNKNOWN.

TORONTO, Ont., October 27 (C.P.).— A variety of accidents mounted Ontario's week-end death list to 10, it is indicated by reports reaching here from various parts of the Province. Automobile smashes, as usual, caused the major number of deaths, six persons losing their lives in this manner.

Mrs. J. McColeman and her 18-year-old daughter, of Drinkwater's Pit, were burned to death in a fire which destroyed their home in the only double fatality reported. The auto victims were: John Watters, Eauclaire, in motor accident near North Bay; John Henry Welch, Toronto, in crash near East Oro; Mrs. Davis Rudy, 72, Tavistosk, struck by car near her home; Mrs. Sophie Quesnel, Ottawa, struck by truck; two unidentified men killed on Toronto streets.

George Pilson, of Hamilton, was struck and killed by a train at a crossing in that city, while the only drowning victim reported was George Atkinson, St. Catharines, whose body was recovered from the Welland Canal.

Empire Parley Is Getting Nowhere

FORBES CLAIMS SNOWDEN'S VIEW HINDERS ADVANCE

Whole Question Apparently Wrapped Up in Food Tax Issue.

LITTLE ADVANCE.

Laborites Offering Only Theoretical Remedies For Vast Problem

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 27 (C.P.)—The veil that has shrouded the deliberations of the Imperial Conference since its opening session was ripped aside last night by Premier G. W. Forbes of New Zealand, who declared that the attitude of the British Labor Government on tariffs left little hope of real progress.

"We simple seem to be drifting and not getting anywhere," Premier Forbes said in an interview.

"The whole question is wrapped up in that of food taxes. Mr. Snowden says distinctly that there will be no food taxes. Well, you can't get beyond that.

Theories Advanced

"Instead of food taxes, the Government is suggesting theoretical remedies. We are practical people in the Antipodes. We know things which will work and have worked, but we look upon theoretical things with some suspicion.

"The attitude of the Government, therefore, leaves little hope of real progress. We cannot force them to change their views, we can only put forward our side.

"The people of New Zealand, I know, will learn with regret that little advance has been made so far in the effort to promote greater trade with the Motherland.

"In adopting Mr. Snowden's view of preferential tariffs, the Government has, in my opinion, precluded any hope of real progress."

PANIC IS AVERTED BY CALM SPEAKERS

Fire Breaks Out During Political Meeting at St. Eustache, Quebec.

ST. EUSTACHE, Que., Oct. 27 (C.P.)—Panic was narrowly averted when, during a political meeting in support of the Liberal candidate, Ernest Bellefeuille in the Provincial by-election in Two Mountains, fire broke out in the crowded City Hall. Only the calmness of the speakers and committee on the platform prevented a stampede for the fire escape. It took twenty minutes for the audience to file out of the smoke-filled room. Firemen discovered a heap of burning rags under a stairway. Little damage resulted and there were no injuries. The meeting adjourned to the steps of a near-by church. Hon. Athanase David, Provincial Secretary, was on the platform and aided greatly by speech and example in calming the crowd.

SAWMILL DESTROYED

MILTON, Ont., Oct. 27.— (CP)—Yesterday the saw mill owned by Elgin Moore, Nelson township, was totally destroyed by fire. The blaze was discovered by a motorist, who immediately raised an alarm. The neighbors formed a bucket brigade and after a hard fight prevented the fire from spreading to the lumber yard and Greer's blacksmith shop, the cause of the fire is unknown, and the loss is estimated at $3,500. There is no insurance.

NEGLECTED MAN DIES.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 25.—(C.P.)—Alleged to have been left behind by a United States' racing stable while in ill health, Edward Ross 35, died in a hospital from pneumonia.

According to information secured by police the man was found lying seriously ill in a stable at Dufferin Park, local half mile course, by Martin Cruse, a thoroughbred owner. He was in a helpless condition and was immediately taken to a hospital. It is said the interests who employed Ross left for United States' tracks at the conclusion of the race meet here last week.

Lloyd George Shorn of His Locks

Not many days ago David Lloyd George, famous British statesman, stepped into the barber's chair and said: "I want it cut short" and before the head barber had really recovered himself the most famous flowing locks in all the British empire had dropped to the floor, robbing caricurists of half the pleasure of living and press cameramen of the zest of their enterprise. The photographs reproduced above show the noted statesman and former British prime minister in three characteristic poses. (1) During a recent speech at oudoor meeting at Stowmarket, England, at which he he addressed agriculturists. Here the famous locks have vanished. (2) Typical study as Lloyd George was known of yore, with his locks intact, seen at his home at Churt England, and (3) another study of Lloyd George at the Stowmarket meeting shown in the well-known gesticular pose.

'CHUTE JUMPER SETS NEW MARK

Toronto Man Has Close Call When He Lands on City Street

DROPPED 11,000 FEET.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 27 (C.P.).—Jumping from an altitude of 11,100 feet, Terry McGovern broke the Canadian record of 10,200 feet established by Charles Daly of Toronto less than a month ago for parachute jumpers.

McGovern's jump caused some excitement for a time as he was apparently headed for grass fire raging off Bathurst Street. Then his course downward brought him through a maze of telephone wires to the pavement on Albertus Street.

It was thought at first, he had been injured, but beyond a slight bruise on his hip, he landed safely. Charles Daly stated he would attempt a drop of 18,000 feet next Sunday. McGovern's aeroplane was piloted by "Wally" Gallagher.

BARGE WORKER BATTLES FLAMES TO RESCUE FOUR

Sailor Awakes to Find Buffalo Pier a Mass of Flames.

CARRIES WIFE OUT FIRST.

Struggles Through Flames Second Time to Warn Rest of Crews.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Oct. 27.—(C.P.)—Up and down the Great Lakes, starting from the fire-swept ore dock of the Lehigh Valley Railway here, a tale of heroism and devotion is spreading. Fresh water sailors, barge hands and others who range the northern coastline were telling a tale of Theodore Brunner and his crippled wife, Emma, who won their way to safety when the roaring flames swept down yesterday on the barges moored along the dock, cutting off the sleeping crews. Damage was estimated at $55,000. One barge was destroyed, another damaged and 500 feet of pier burned.

Brunner awoke to discover the dock, a crane and the deck of his own barge, the George J. Benedict, in flames. Snatching his crippled wife from her bunk, Brunner wrapped her in a blanket, lifted her in his arms and with lowered head, fought his way through the flames to a safe section on the dock. Then he went back—back through that wall of fire to the crews on other barges tied along the dock. Once again he struggled through the choking sulphurous fumes of the blazing dock, followed this time by three men and a woman, all of whom reached safety. Brunner and his wife were almost suffocated, and were treated by a physician. They are residents of New York city.

Police And Hold-Ups Raid Gambling Den

NEW YORK, N. Y., Oct. 27. (C.P.)—Three hold-up men and two plainclothes policemen happened to select the same time last night to raid a card game in a Madison avenue cigar store. The result was a shooting match in which a hold-up man was killed and six other persons, including a policeman, injured.

The policemen found 25 men in the room, lined them against the wall and were waiting for a patrol wagon when the hold-up men entered and ordered all to put up their hands.

The policemen fired and their shots were answered by the robbers.

OFFICER TARGET OF THIEF'S SHOTS

Bandit in Stolen Colborne Auto Opens Fire When Forced Into Ditch.

ESCAPES OVER FIELDS.

COBOURG, Oct. 27.—An armed automobile thief last night fired two shots aimed deliberately at Provincial Highway Constable I. R. Spencer of Colborne, on a side road just east of that town, after the officer, pursuing him, had forced the thief off the highway.

The shots were fired at a distance of 100 feet, and Constable Spencer, not yet off his motorcycle, heard their venomous hiss close to his head.

The bandit, who is described as a tall man about 30 years of age, wearing a dark overcoat and dark felt hat, made his escape across the fields. Constable Spencer, carrying his revolver under a heavy leather jacket, did not have time to return the bandit's fire.

Constable Spencer was on the look-out for the car, owned by W. L. Allen, College street, as he had been telephoned by Chief Constable Ruse of Cobourg immediately the car was stolen. The Allen car was taken here by the theif, who "exchanged" it for a sedan stolen earlier in the evening from Bowmanville. The abandoned sedan was discovered by Police Constable F. L. Barker of Cobourg.

100 MINERS DIE IN GERMAN SHAFT

Maybach Disaster is Second Tragedy in Two Weeks.

500 KILLED IN 4 MONTHS.

SAARBRUCKEN Germany, Oct. 27.—The coal mine disaster at Maybach colliery Saturday appeared last night to have taken at least 100 lives.

Ninety bodies lay in mortuaries, while all hope was given up for eleven men known to be still underground.

Coming before Germany's flags were hauled up from half-mast mourning for the 262 victims of the recent Alsdorf mine explosion, the Maybach disaster fell upon the nation as a stunning blow. The Saarbrucken disaster was the second major calamity to hit the German coalfields within four months.

The July disaster at Neurode, last Tuesday's at Alsdorf, and Saturday's at Maybach have, between them, snuffed out the lives of well over 500 miners.

ELECTION FIGHTS ARE WARMING UP ACROSS ONTARIO

Sinclair Bears Brunt of Speaking For Liberal Interests.

HEENAN TO JOIN FRAY.

Finlayson and Dunlop to Campaign in Northern Riding.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 27 (C.P.).—The last two days of campaigning in the four Provincial constituencies where by-elections are to be held on Wednesday to elect members to the vacancies in the Ontario Legislature, promise to be the busiest of the campaign as far as the rival candidates and their supporting speakers are concerned.

In the riding of Nipissing where J. H. Marceau, Liberal, and C. R. Harrison, Conservative nominee, are waging a strenuous fight, two Provincial Cabinet Ministers will make their appearance to-night at Mattawa and at Madawaska and Whitney on Tuesday. The Ministers, Hon. William Finlayson, Department of Lands and Forests, and Hon. E. A. Dunlop, Provincial Treasurer, will support the candidature of Mr. Harrison.

Liberals will not be idle, and Tuesday night will hold a rally at Mattawa. Saturday they staged a meeting at Bonfield in support of Mr. Marceau.

Heenan Enters Fight.

Hon. Peter Heenan, former Minister of Labor, enters the campaign tonight at Galt, where he and W. E. N. Sinclair K.C., Ontario Liberal leader, will speak in the interests of N. O. Hipel, Liberal nominee, who is opposing the Conservative candidate, M. M. Donald, in Waterloo South.

To-morrow night M. F. Hepburn, M.P. for Elgin West, will address a meeting at New Hamburg on behalf of Mr. Hipel.

In this riding and in Perth South both parties have been waging a hard battle. Charles Richardson is the Conservative nominee in the Perth constituency, while George S. Keith, Liberal-Progressive, is opposing him. The Government candidates in both ridings have been supported throughout the campaign by several Ontario Cabinet Ministers, while Mr. Sinclair has borne the brunt of the speaking duties in the Liberal interests.

The three candidates in Lanark South are carrying on their campaigns pretty much by themselves. Mr. Finlayson has spoken in the interests of the Conservative standard bearer, Edward Stedman. Captain W. G. Ferguson, Independent Conservative, and Richard Running, Independent, are opposing him.

A school for aviation draftsmen has been organized by the French Government.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

EVERYONE is looking forward to the Hallowe'en entertainments which will be given this week in Peterborough and there is no doubt but that there will be a large number.

• • • • • •

The Examiner will not sponsor a Hallowe'en parade this year, much to the disappointment of many young folks, the parade being a delight to them, but no doubt they will have a good time, anyway.

• • • • • •

Hallowe'en parties too are enjoyed because there is a hint of the mysterious and the magic about the time that lends excitement.

• • • • • •

For decorations for the party, harvest decorations are favorites. Corn and pumpkins lend themselve very nicely and then, of course, there are black cats and witches galore.

• • • • • •

Place the corn stalks in corners of the room and don't forget the grinning Jack-o'-lanterns in darker corners of the room, where they shed their flickering gleams.

• • • • • •

One can purchase large black cats with humping backs and these are most effective when placed as if they were waiting to spring across one's path.

• • • • • •

Have your lights as softly shaded as you are able to make them—this is very essential for the success of your party.

• • • • • •

I wonder if you would like another game? I gave some games a few days ago. This is one that is entirely different, though. I don't believe you have ever played it before, although you may have.

• • • • • •

You might call it Jack O' Lantern game, if you like. I don't know what the real name is, but the originator certainly used his of her imagination.

• • • • • •

Cut a large circle from pumpkin colored cardboard or calico. With brown paint (if paper is used) or coarse darning cotton if a textile is used, make lines representing grooves in a pumpkin.

• • • • • •

Cut out places for eyes, nose and mouth so spaced that a person could be behind the mock Jack O' Lantern and these features would be positioned right for the person's real ones to show through.

• • • • •

Fasten this mock Jack O' Lantern to a length of old cloth and cut the textile away where the features come.

• • • • • •

Then on the night of the party, arrange the curtain of old cloth in a doorway so that the height of the head will be approximately that of the average person at the party. The rest of the doorway should be curtained with cloth.

• • • • •

To play the game divide the company into three groups. One is the audience and sits facing the door, but not too close to it. The other group leaves the room.

• • • • •

One by one the members of this last group stand so that their features show through the slits in the Jack O'Lantern.

• • • • •

The members of the audience have to guess who the various people are, as they stand for one minute—no longer—with their features showing through the Jack O' Lantern.

• • • • • •

Then the two groups change places, and the game continues. It can be a guessing contest with tallies and prizes, if you wish. If the game is a contest, supply the members with Magic Candle tally cards.

• • • • • •

These you can make by cutting candlesticks from pumpkin-colored cardboard. Paste a short bit of paper cut on the back of the candlestick so that a tally pencil slipped into it will hold firmly and stick up straight.

• • • • • •

Have half as many numbers on each tally card as there are players and award a prize to the one in the audience who guesses the largest number of names when the features were shown.

• • • • • •

Award a prizr also to the one of the acting group who was able to so delude the audience that he or she is recognized by the fewest players in the audience.

LONG SERVICE MEDAL PRESENTED

ranges and the parade ground was also of a high calibre.

He spoke of some agitation which is abroad to do away with the M.G.C., and stated that in his opinion it would be a great pity if such a thing should come to pass. The showing you made at camp and the dinner to-night, is the spirit which is going to keep the corps in existence, and he reminded them, although unfortunately the battalion is split up into three companies widely separated, they would all be meeting again at the next annual camp, closely knit together by the same common ideals.

The speaker expressed regret at Colonel Anderson's absence and apologized on his behalf, stating that he had a prior engagement. The Major was pleased indeed to meet the officers of the Peterborough and Ottawa Companies, and stated it had been the intention also of the O.C. Kingston Company to be present, but unfortunately he could not get away.

Sergeant Ashby Gets Medal.

Before resuming his seat, Major Whitelaw presented to Sergeant W. H. Ashby a long service medal. The decoration is silver, with the head of King George on one side and on the reverse the inscription, "For long service in the Colonial Auxiliary services." The medal is suspended from a green ribbon.

Sergeant Ashby enlisted over twenty-one years ago in the Queen's Own Rifles at Toronto, and has served the majority of his time with the militia in this city.

Major Dewart, commenting on the award, said it was a very popular one. Sergeant Ashby, as orderly room corporal has done a lot of good service for the company, and when I congratulate him on receiving this distinction, I think I am voicing the sentiments of the whole company, he said.

The O.C. Company also referred to the fact that he had served in the same unit along with Major Whitelaw in France, namely the M.G.C. He knew that the M.G.C. was Major Whitelaw's pet hobby, and the accommodation we have received at the armouries and in many other matters can be credited to him.

The Battalion

In proposing the toast to the Battalion, Captain James Turnbull, second-in-command of No. 3 Company, said, "In a battalion like ours with segregated companies there is a tendency to think in terms of the company only."

He thought that if such an idea were allowed to flourish it sounded the death knell of progress.

"If we are to have a first class battalion we have to see that the personnel is of the highs stamp-keen so that we may be efficient—clean that we may make a favourable impression on other units and maintain our own self-respect."

Capt. Turnbull said having been a member of the battalion since its organization, he knew something of tre difficulties that have beset its way. Until this year other companies were merely numbers, but at Barriefied camp, they had had the opportunity to become acquainted, they had congregated as a battalion, had absorbed the common ideal and were better for it.

"I know in our unit the spirit among us who had been to camp for the week, had a distinct battalion flavour, which still exists to a large degree, to our ultimate benefit," he continued, and in looking back over the year of progress, he considered that much of the credit must be given to Colonel Harris of Kingston.

High Compliment

In responding to the toast Colonel Harris, O.C. Battalion, paid strong tribute to the Peterborough Company, in saying, "The unit marched into camp like a regiment of guards." He was very impressed with the favourable showing made by the boys of the "Electric City."

He dwelt on the fact that militia training is not wholly designed to make soldiers out of young men, but to give them fellowship of the best type.

He had made a special effort to come to Peterborough and had looked forward to the event for a long time.

Corporal J. Hope was the recipient of Colonel Harris's congratulations on having won the prize as the best shot in the company for the year, 1930. In presenting him with the prize he also handed him a cheque. Private W. Hope also received a cheque as the second best shot.

The toast to No.'s 1 and 2 Companies was proposed by Sergeant Major Hatcher and was responded to by Captain H. R. Travers, M.M., O.C., No. 2 Company.

Major Dewart called attention to two new officers of the Company who were present, in the persons of Lieut. L. C. Gilders and Lieut. Dr. R. Honey. "I am more than pleased to welcome them to our midst and assure them we are all mighty glad to have them with us," he exclaimed.

He further mentioned that Lieut. Gilder had served the interests of No. 3 Company for some time in the capacity of Sergeant, and congratulated him on his recent promotion.

During the course of the evening a carefully prepared musical program was staged, Martin Chenhall accompanying at the piano.

Vern Morphet contributed a song entitled, "Vagabond," giving as an encore "Bachelor Gay," from the Maid of the Mountains.

Lieut. Honey demonstrated his talent by rendering the song, "Ol Man River," while a quartette composed of the following members of the company, also contributed to the success of the program: Sergeants J. Cullen and E. Ridyard, Corporal Claveson and Gunner Spencer Hope.

Arrangements for the catering were attended to by Sidney Watley, in a capable manner.

Canadian Mounties Are Sent To Port Arthur

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct 27. —(CP)— The Royal Canadian Mounted Police are sending a party composed of one officer and twenty-five men with horses to Port Arthur on instructions from the minister of justice, acting on the request of the attorney-general of Ontario. The party will be augmented by a few R.C.M.P. men at Winnipeg as the train passes through that city. The Ontario government is taking this precaution because of trouble threatened by the Communists of Port Arthur.

Youth Lives 14 Months With a Broken Neck

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 27 —(CP)—Richard Vernon Blackmore aged 19, who fractured his neck 14 months ago when he dived into shallow water at the Windsor bathing beach, at the foot of Bridge avenue, died yesterday in Grace hospital.

Local surgeons say it was one of the most remarkable cases ever to come to their attention. Blackmore, whose vertebrae were completely severed, was not expected to live more than two days, but he had been clinging to life on his reserve strength until two days ago, when complications set in.

Aylmer Soup Week Is Being Held In City

Supported by the splendid co-operation of the Peterborough grocers, to-day opens the Annual Aylmer Soup Week in Peterborough. A large number of stores are giving the soups a good window display and including them in their advertisements.

A Canadian product that does not yield leadership to that of any other of the kind, these soups are making a strong bid for popularity through the columns of The Examiner, and the endorsement of hundreds of regular users in the city and district.

Highly recommended by the stores where they are sold, this National Soup Week is a good time for new patrons to try these tasty viands, and to lay in a good supply for the cool, seasonable weather which makes a steaming plate of delicious soup so acceptable.

GOLFERS—AND THE 19TH HOLE.

It is not surprising to find that the statement of a Toronto divine that a golfer who took a drink of liquor could not play as good a game as the total abstainer, has caused a good deal of amusement in golfing circles.

Doubtless the speaker sincerely believed in what he was saying, but evidently he spoke with little knowledge of famous golfers and their habits, for, according to those who are close to the game, the majority of the best known performers, amateur and professional alike, are not strict abstainers.

If he had confined his reference to golf to a statement that a player under the influence of liquor could not play as good a round as a strictly sober golfer, he would have been straight down the fairway, but he was off in a bunker when he tried to sell the idea that in order to achieve golfing fame it was necessary to leave liquor alone.

The history of the game shows that with one or two exceptions the men at the top of the golfing ladder are not blue ribboners.

No one, of course, claims that the occasional drink they may take has been a factor in their success, but on the other hand their record of achievement shows that it has not interfered with their expertness as golfers as this particular speaker set out to prove that it did.

The cause of prohibition suffers more from the over-zealous and misinformed statements of its friends than it does from the attacks of its enemies, and this particular gem would seem to be on a par with the proposal that only total abstainers should be allowed to take out automobile driving licenses.

A PROBLEM FOR THE CABINET.

Application has been made to the Quebec Minimum Wage Board by several firms engaged in the leather industry for the suspension of the Women's Minimum Wage Act at present in operation.

These manufacturers claim that the emergency tariff passed at the special session of Parliament has so increased the cost of raw materials required by them that it has become necessary, in order that competition may be met, that other operating costs should be reduced.

It is to be hoped that the Federal Cabinet has not missed the significance of this application.

If these firms are correct in their statements they are entitled to relief, but that relief should come in the form of a tariff readustment, certainly not at the expense of their employees.

If the increased protection means that workers are to submit to wage cuts then the result is as bad as increased prices to the consumer would be.

In the latter contingency the Government has promised that where it has been shown that the tariff changes have been followed by greater costs to the purchasing public the increased protection will be promptly removed.

It is just as important that when it has been proven that the tariff readjustment is interferring with the wages of workers the Government should act with equal promptness in removing the cause for such a development.

The women employees of the leather industry should not be called upon to carry the burden.

CALLS FOR AN EXPLANATION.

A letter received by the trustees of the police village of St. Jacobs in Waterloo County by J. A. Ellis, who is secretary of the Ontario unemployment relief fund, calls for an explanation.

It was written in answer to an application made by the village authorities to the Government for assistance from the special relief fund in carrying out a program of construction work projected to help the unemployed in that hamlet, and read as follows:

Gentlemen,—I am in receipt of the estimates of the cost of the works you desired to proceed with in the village of St. Jacobs in order to aid in unemployment relief. I regret that grants cannot be made out of the unemployment fund to police villages.

Yours very truly,
(Sgd.) J. A. Ellis, Secretary,
Unemployment Relief Fund.

The $20,000,000 voted by the Federal Parliament was for the relief of unemployment in Canada, and surely it was never the intention that the only workless to be helped would be residents of incorporated municipalities.

There are unemployed in the little places as well as in the larger centres; the people of the little places assume their share of financing the country, and also their share of this special grant which naturally will come out of general taxation and will be paid by the whole Canadian people.

That being so, the right of small centres to a share of relief would seem to be self-evident, and if Ontario's unemployment program does not provide for that relief a readjustment should be effected without delay.

COMPLETE THE WATERWAY.

The members of the ridings bordering on the Trent Waterway and the municipal authorities of the same district should throw themselves heartily behind the campaign of the Trent Waterway and Iroquois Trail Association for the early completion of the waterway.

Only the Severn portion of the canal remains to be finished, and it should be possible, with the co-operation of the people of this section of Ontario, to convince the Government that the sum required for the completion of the project—a decidedly small amount when compared with what has been expended on the waterway since the inception of the work—would be money decidedly well spent.

In fact, the Federal Government would be well justified in launching the Severn construction as soon as possible as an enterprise that would provide a good deal of work for the unemployed.

In any case the completion of the waterway should be listed in the diary of Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion as one of the projects that must be undertaken in the near future—a project that when finished would mean a decided increase in the tourist traffic through this part of the Province and add materially to the general prosperity of the people.

The tourist trade has become one of Canada's major industries, and when it is remembered that no class of tourist spends as much money en route as the visitor who tours the waterways in a palatial pleasure craft, the advantage of completing a marine route that for scenic beauty has no superior on the continent and that would attract hundreds of such tourists every season should be evident to everybody.

WHO SHOULD MANAGE THE CANADIAN NATIONAL?

The idea that the Canadian National Railways should be run by the politicians, dies hard. Also the idea that by some divine right public ownership should be subordinated to the needs and advantages of private ownership.

Illustrative of what we mean are two editorials before us, from the Victoria Colonist and Montreal Gazette, respectively. The Colonist, dealing with a report that the Canadian National may exercise its perfect right to establish a steamship service on the Victoria-Seattle-Vancouver route, says:

"It most assuredly was not contemplated at the time nationalization was being considered that commitments would be entered into which would involve new and growing obligations upon the people of Canada above and beyond those assumed in the taking over of the various enterprises which now comprise the Canadian National Railways."

The Colonist thinks (an extraordinarily curious notion) that the Canadian National should not set up a competitive service on this Victoria route against the C.P.R.; says that it will cause both railways to lose money; suggests greater parliamentary (political) control over the National management.

The Montreal Gazette, of course, gives its blessing to the Colonist. The Gazette's idea of paradise is a world in which there would be no thought or mention of public ownership, or a world in which, if such an evil had to be tolerated, it should never be permitted to interfere with the profits of private ownership. So the Gazette, following upon the hearty benedictions to its Pacific Coast contemporary, says that "in other words, Parliament should exercise more direct control" over the policy of the Canadian National. Hopeful, too, that this is to be done, it expresses gratification over reports that the National directorate is to be reorganized, says:

"This may, perhaps, signify a change in the policy which has been pursued heretofore in the administration of the great transportation enterprise owned by the people of Canada. It has become more evident in recent years that some changes could be effected without in any way encroaching upon the Canadian National's legitimate field or retarding the progress of the system."

All this simply because the Canadian National, in planning to operate ships on the Vancouver-Victoria-Seattle route, is simply reviving a service that was carried on by the old Grand Trunk for years. That service was discontinued in order to enable the Canadian National to improve its Alaska service; and no reason in the world exists why it should not be resumed, particularly as nobody can argue that a water route can be the exclusive privilege of another company. The Canadian Pacific, which has large experience in operating ships, would be the last to seriously hold such a thing.

In any event, who is to determine what the Canadian National should or should not do in a matter of this kind? Are the arbiters to be the Canadian National's competitors? or the devotees of private ownership? or Parliament and the politicians?

Well, that matter has been decided. It was decided by Canada ten years ago. It has been confirmed by Canada several times since. And it was only recently re-stated by Premier Bennett.

The decision was this: That the Canadian National Railway must be managed by the Canadian National Railways management. By its president, with his executives. If the people of Canada want to change the management, well and good. That is their privilege. The Journal ventures to think, however, that when the change is made, it will not be to hand the road over to the whims of politicians. Not to make it a mere aid and auxiliary to private ownership. There can be no mistake about that.

No one wants to be unfair to the Canadian Pacific Railway. The Journal has stated that times without number; states it now. The Canadian Pacific Railway has been, is, a mighty asset to Canada; cannot be injured without injuring Canada. But fairness is enough. The Canadian Pacific cannot expect, no sensible Canadian should expect, that it should be exempt from free, fair, and hard competition; that Parliament and the politicians should be used whenever necessary to save it from the Canadian National.

In this respect, the position of the C.P.R. must be precisely what it would be if the Canadian National Railways were a purely private enterprise. That, undoubtedly, so far as the Canadian National's management is concerned. And this, of course, involves the right of the Canadian National to fight for business, to make what extensions it deems wise.

The Victoria Colonist, blessed by the Gazette, gives the impression that whereas the Canadian Pacific pays taxes, the Canadian National pays little; that this is unfair. It would be unfair if it were a fact. But the truth is that the Canadian National does pay taxes; pays the sales tax upon everything it buys; pays provincial taxes; pays heavy municipal taxes. It is one of the heavy taxpayers in Canada.

Summed up, the kernel of the thing is this: That it is altogether too late in the day to try to revive the notion that the Canadian National Railways can be best run by Parliament and the politicians. Canada had an experience of that. It remembers the old Intercolonial. So long as that memory remains, and so long as the Canadian National continues to get along as it has been getting along under its present management, the people of Canada will be willing to let that management decide what should be done in the matter of policy and extensions.—Ottawa Journal.

MILLBROOK AUDIENCE HEARS ILLUSTRATED TRAVEL ADDRESS

Dr. N. D. Buchanan Gives Talk in Parish Hall of Saint Thomas' Anglican Church.

THROUGH SOUTH SEAS.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 27 (Examiner Correspondence) — An evening of travel to some of the world's most beautiful islands, set in seas of sapphire-blue, fanned by soft breezes, and bathed in warm sunshine, with glimpses of the luxuriant growth of blossoming shrubs, palm trees, and tropical vegetation, was afforded the audience which gathered in the Parish Hall of Saint Thomas' Anglican Church on Thursday evening, and listened to the illustrated travel talk given by Dr. N. D. Buchanan, of Peterborough, under the auspices of the local branch of the A.Y.P.A.

The views thrown on the screen were taken by the speaker during a cruise which a party from Peterborough of which he was a member last winter to Bermuda, the West Indies, Trinidad, Venezuela, through the Panama Canal, and so home by way of California and the Western route.

The explanation of the coral formation of the islands was made clearer by showing some pieces of the coral itself which Dr. Buchanan had brought home with him, its whiteness having further illustration as the pictures were thrown on the screen, and the white-walled and white-roofed houses and other buildings gave evidence to what extensive use this commodity is put where it is so plentifully produced.

The fact that, in Bermuda, the drinking-water must all be collected in cisterns, from the roofs of the houses, as there is no hard water on the islands, was an item of interest not apparently, generally known. Importation has occasionally been necessary, through the medium of tank steamers, when the rainfall has been below normal. In February, when Dr. Buchanan and his party were visiting the islands, they drove through hedges of oleanders in full blossom, with hibiscus, poinsettias and many other flowers, "a wonderful sight after leaving the winter well established here."

"There are also no autos to dodge, and one may almost imagine oneself back in the Victorian era driving along in comfortable, low-swung conveyance, listening to the rhythmic hoof-beats of the horses on the pavement. Bermuda lives on the tourists, and has been compared in shape to hand and arm outstretched, waiting for the American dollar. Perhaps not the American dollar alone, for tourists from all over the world come to this delightful spot, with its fine climate and many other natural attractions, not forgetting the dustless roads cut through the coral rocks and winding through a profuse growth of flowers and vegetation everywhere."

On the contrary, Porto Rica, with its luxuriant growth and its hills cultivated to the very top, was said to have few tourists, the reason popularly acclaimed being that no liquor is sold there. A visit to St. Pierre, on the island of Martinique, of which only the ruins are now visible since its destruction by an eruption of Mount Pelee in 1902, was of peculiar interest as the lava-streaked landscape was put upon the screen; the cutting of cane sugar with big knives, or hatchets, here and in the Barbados, the loaded carts drawn by donkeys or oxen being then taken to the sugar-mills; the native huts, sometimes thatched-roofed; the ancient wind-mills; the capital city of Bridgetown, with the market, and the black women carrying baskets of merchandise, or of piled-up laundry on their heads; make up a list of but a few of the views shown on which information was given, the attention of the audience being closely held throughout.

The great pitch lake at La Brea, on the island of Trinidad, covering one hundred and ten acres, from which the world's supply of asphalt is taken, the manner in which it is chopped out with axes, East Indian laborers being employed; and the pil-wells which surround the lake, were all made very real as, from personal observation, the fascinating story was told.

Venezuela was the 'final port of call' of which Dr. Buchanan spoke on Thursday evening, the reels for the remainder of the trip not being shown lest the meeting grow unduly long. The beautiful drive from the port of LaGuaira to the capital city, Caracas, three thousand feet above sea level, being vividly described together with the bull-ring and the big ampitheatre; the statues of Bolivar the George Washington of his country; the barren hillsides, with the cactus plants; and many other facts of particular interest.

W. E. Bonneville, president of the A.Y.P.A., presided at the business meeting which immediately preceded the lecture, the speaker being introduced by Rev. P. W. A. Roberts, rector in charge of the parish. Cameron Vance moved the vote of thanks to Dr. Buchanan, Henry Gray being the seconder; the hearty applause which followed testified to the endorsation by the audience. The meeting was dismissed with the National Anthem.

THE SILVER HAWK

By

WILLIAM BYRON MOWERY

"Last night in your tent I saw the marvel in your eyes when you looked at Mam'selle Aurore. And she is not alone pretty but, whatever men may think of her and what she has done, she is a girl pure of heart. So you will discover. Your acquaintance deepening—there will be no disillusionment. You already prize her friendship——"

Dorn felt the blood in his face. He knew now what old Bergelot was stammering to say; and though it was true, he denied it.

"I merely took her up there, fixed things around for her, came back——"

"You excused my lie because I brought her over to you!" Bergelot pointed out, and Dorn had no answer to that.

"I should have spoken up last night, Jeem lad, while we waited in the dark for her to dress. But a warning would have seemed ridiculous then. Now . . . Jeem lad, you have changed. You came up the path whistling. You smiled at Luke and me. It is not your usual way to light cigarettes sans cesse and toss them out the window."

"All of us"—Dorn meant his brotherhood of aviators—"we're nervous after a flight. I just came in from one."

Bergelot took up the word. "You've made many flights, yes. But last night, that was different from any before. Or from any you will ever make again. When you carried Aurore McNain away with you, then you began the Great Flight."

Dorn did not deny it further. He was aware of something momentous to come. "What of it?" he demanded, a little pale.

"And I must turn you back," old Bergelot went on. "Except for you and me, Aurore is alone in the world. And moi—old husk—I do not reckon in this trouble ahead. She is alone in the world except for you. This trouble is coming down to battle. It is you who will fight those wolves. You will be visiting her there at theat lonely cabin. In that there is dynamite. You do never deceive yourself, Jeem lad. You know I am speaking truth——"

Dorn cut him short, summing up in a swift word all those stammerings. "You mean I might come to love her. Would that be calamity?"

"Yes. An evil hour."

"What? Evil! Why? You tell me why!"

In that silence old Bergelot seemed gathering courage for a blunt, tremendous sentence. He poured the words out like a bucket of rocks.

"Because, Jeem lad, you can never under heaven marry her."

CHAPTER XI

THE SILENT PACK.

Afterward on his flight east to Eagle Nest that evening, Dorn grappled for two lone hours with the mystery behind old Bergelot's "You can never . . ."

It had angered him, a momentous statement like that, thrown out with no subsequent word of explanation. He had pumped and cross-examined. But the old man, his warning delivered, had drawn into his shell like a moss-backed land tortoise, and his stony silence was impregnable as the Rock of Gibraltar.

To every question he had stubbornly replied: "It is not my story to tell, but hers. She has promised you."

Dorn's first thought had been that Aurore was married. That was an easy explanation of the warning. But he had probed beneath the surface. Old Bergelot spoke of her as Mam'selle Aurore, and with no hesitation about the Mam'selle part of it. Once, as a trap, Dorn had called her Mrs. McNain. The name sounded odd in his own ears, and he knew from Bergelot's reaction that it sounded still more odd to the old man.

With that explanation hardly possible, he turned to other guesses and examined them in cold-blooded logic. "You can never"—what did "can" mean? Was it a legal or a moral "can"? A previous marriage was the only legal barrier, and it scarcely justified the "never." Since marriage was ruled out, the 'can never" must have been meant in a moral sense.

That opened up several possibilities. Different religions? Hardly. The fact that Aurore was rich and might belong to the highest rank of society? Perhaps! The social fences were indeed high on the west coast in those cities which boasted themselves more English than the English; but a little bush-loper like Aurore, if she met and loved a man outside the pale, would take so superficial a barrier at one jump. Had she done something which he could never morally countenance and which would make her a hunted exile from human society? Remembering her words, "I know what you'd say and feel and think," this last guess seemed to Dorn the most plausible of all. But he did not believe it. He could not believe any evil of Aurore McNain; all prejudice and emotion aside, he knew with profoundest conviction that she was a sensible and wholesome girl, comradely, unspoiled by wealth, and, as Bergelot phrased it, a girl of pure heart.

He remembered the telegram she had asked him to send; and hoping it would give him some insight into her trouble, he pulled it out and read.

The message was addressed to a man in Calgary, whom Dorn vaguely recalled as owner of a string of small-town newspapers. It commanded.

Get in touch with H. C-S. Tell him I am safe, alone, and wish to remain so. If this becomes known, it will be because he insists upon finding me.

AURORE.

Dorn reasoned: "That man in Calgary knows her. This H. C-S is the chief among her enemies. They want to find her. It must be a matter of terrible importance to them. But why? And what did she flee from?"

So he was left without even a substantial guess as to what lay behind that blunt "can never." The notion came to him that the words were an exaggeration of some inconsequential difficulty, and that Bergelot had made mountain out of molehill. The thought was a solace and Dorn harboured it, and gradually he came to believe that the warning was not based on irremovable fact; and he tried to consign it to the limbo of dead worries.

At Eagle Nest late that evening he spiralled down upon the aviation camp of his fellow birdmen and had the Silver Hawk towed ashore where three mechanics with full equipment could overhaul it while he was in Edmonton.

Ordinarily he did all his own adjustments and inspections, bringing his plane across to base camp only for sizeable repairs. He was not above getting his hands soiled, and besides, grease-monkeys had a way of being careless at times. After giving them orders covering what he wanted done, he went up to the tent and had supper with the three cartographers.

Kansas was gone—fishing back in the mountains. Dorn was glad he was away. Kansas would have asked him questions: Had he seen or heard anything more of the girl who got off the Transcontinental? Dorn did not want to lie to a partner. In six years of mutual adventuring, mutual peril, mutual plans for their future he had never concealed any serious trouble from Kansas. He believed, too, that a storm might break upon him in the days ahead, and he knew how Kansas would come roaring across the mountains to back him up. In the face of that loyalty a lie would be shameful.

But Kansas, being here in daily company of other men, might drop an unguarded word which would bring down the avalanche. And to Dorn that wilderness lake and cabin and Aurore McNain seemed to his own sacred secret—an intimacy that no man should share with another.

In the tent he noticed a pile of newspapers. He himself took none, and was out of touch with current happenings. The latest paper, an Edmonton publication, was only a couple of days old. Perhaps here . . .

Methodically, while waiting for the train, Dorn started down through the pile. From every page he expected the picture of Aurore to leap up at him, with some screaming headline of what she had done. Outside the front sheets which ran to the hot political campaign and the society columns which ran to middle-aged hostesses wearing pearl necklaces, he did find several pictures of women and write-ups about them. Once he paused at the account of a daring banditry over at Prince Rupert—the direction she had come from—but the hard-faced female pictured alongside bore not the remotest resemblance to Aurore, and Dorn leafed on, feeling ashamed for even stopping.

He combed through a month of papers, and found nothing.

On the train to Edmonton, as it thundered under snow sheds and coiled through the beautiful foothills down upon the monotonous wheat plains, he read over the list Aurore had given him, and smiled at its oddity. "It's like her," he thought. It led off with an assortment of grub items such as any wise sourdough would have chosen; then a bathing suit size 34; then an outfit of woods clothing, fishing tackle, folding canoe, two white fluffy H.B. blankets, toilet articles, a dish-pan and a box od chocolate candy.

(To be continued.)

What To-day Means To You

"SCORPIO."

If October 27th is your birthday, the best hours for you to this date are from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m., from noon to 1:30 p.m., and from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. The danger periods are from 10:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., and from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m.

The merit of your work and character will be tested on this date, but your name will stand clear and triumph. A possible business setback—cooperation on work is necessary. Domestic "incidents" of a tantalizing nature.

The child born on this October 27th will be ardent and rather petulant but will seldom bear malice. It should be ingenious and versatile, and be able to master many branches of learning. It will readily assimilate new ideas and new modes of living.

You are by nature highly strung, critical, sensitive and inclined to chafe. Your sojourn through life will not be a restful one, nor are you a restful companion, for you are too tensely organized. You have very quick perception, which enables you to seize opportunities, but you are too impatient to develop them properly, and a promising harvest is often a scanty one because of your poor cultivation of fertile seed. You could not be called indolent, but you are not willing to drudge, when only drudgery will bear fruits. You cling to old customs and view anything in the nature of change or innovation with disfavor. You are not willing to be "told" anything and experience is an expensive teacher, albeit, a thorough one.

You have a very discreet tongue and seldom air your own affairs in public, and you do not dip into the affairs of others. It irritates you to be questioned, and you can cleverly evade direct answers. In some ways you are a mystery man or woman to both your family and the outside world, and although there are few people who have less to hide, you are extremely secretive, although not deceptive.

You do not enjoy reading in fields alien to your every day interests, and you do not have any serious hobbies. You are very fond of music and have a good sense of time and rhythm. You will not fall easily, but you will fall hard, when you do fall in love, and you will be both faithful and loyal to your mate.

MOUNTIES READY FOR RED ACTIONS

Detachment of 25 Sent to Port Arthur to Reinforce Local Officers.

MOVE EXPECTED TO-NIGHT.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Oct. 27 (C.P.)—Red coats of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police are seen about the streets of Port Arthur to-day. Early this morning a detachment of 25 men and horses arrived from Regina and Winnipeg, having been assigned to local duty on instructions of the Minister of Justice, as a result of representation from local authorities to the effect that threat against law and order existed in a radical or Communist movement which during last week caused a small riot on the streets.

This riot followed the presentation of a series of demands to the City Council, together with threats that if they were not complied with stores would be looted. The Mounted force, in charge of Inspector T. H. Irvine, will co-operate with City and Provincial Police in maintaining order.

Rumor is that certain arrests which have been contemplated since the Monday and Tuesday disturbances will now be carried out. The testing time of strength for the Communist movement is expected this evening when the City Council meets. The Unemployed Association has 825 men who signed the demands and who have said they will attend the meeting.

MORE ACTIVE NEW YORK ISSUES LOSE 1 TO EIGHT POINTS TO-DAY

Farm Implements Again Under Pressure While Case Drops to New Low.

SLUGGISH TRADING.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Oct. 27. C.P. The stock market drifted lower in light and sluggish trading to-day.

During the morning, the more active shares lost 1 to 8 points, a few breaking through last week's resistance levels, but the list steadied after midday, and some of the losses were reduced.

Farm implements were again under pressure. Case dropped 8 points to a new low, but then rallied 4 from the bottom. International Harvester declined 3 points to new low ground. Westinghouse Electric dropped 5, and shares selling off 2 or more included U. S. Steel, Radio, American Telephone, North American, Dupont, Baltimore and Ohio, and Sears Roebuck. Several recovered a point or more. Radio Keith was a firm spot, gaining more than 2 points.

It was notable that suspension of another stock exchange member for insolvency failed to bring out any active selling. Although the firm's interests were believed to be relatively small, compared to those of two other firms suspended this fall, the nonchalance with which the market greeted the announcement was regarded in brokerage circles as encouraging.

Weakness of case was attributed to recent publication of an analysis which suggested that the company might undertake some new financing. So far as could be learned, however, no such plan is now pending. International Harvester apparently declined in sympathy.

ARABIA'S FATE DISCUSSED BY REV. DR. McLEAN

Will Country Become a Great State, a Great Church or End in Chaos.

ADDRESSES ROTARY.

Club Member Deals in Interesting Manner With Arabian History and Politics.

Will Arabia eventually become a great state, a great church or will pandemonium and chaos be the final development, was the intriguing question asked by Rotarian Rev. Dr. C. V. McLean, in finishing a most interesting address on "Arabia; Its Past, Present and Future," before the Peterborough Rotary Club to-day. Rev. Dr. McLean's summary of the Arabian situation gave evidence of close study and was followed with the greatest interest by the club members.

Introduced by Rotarian T. H. Gillespie, Rotarian Dr. McLean remarked that Canadians, having demanded a right to share in the forming of the foreign policies of the British Empire, it was essential that the people of this country should know more about the factors entering into those policies. He therefore proposed to tell Rotarians something about Arabia and its place in world politics.

The speaker dealt first with the geography of Arabia, pointing out that it covered an area half the size of the United States and occupied a most important strategic position in regard to Britain's route to India and French supremacy in Syria. It had a population of seven million people and raised a large number of products.

Rev. Dr. McLean then tersely outlined the history of Arabia, pointing out that it had at first been divided into seven different tribes or races, until the efforts of Mohammed brought about a unification. The speaker told of the spread of Arabian armies into Persia, Egypt, Spain and Austria and asked what would have been the history of the world if the forces which invaded Spain and Austria respectively had effected a juncture and encircled the northern shores of the Mediterranean. He then related the decline of Arabian power and told of the doctrine of Wahab, whose idea was that Arabia should become a great church and rule the world, not by force of arms but by religious influence.

Passing on to modern days, Rev. Dr. McLean referred to the promise of Great Britain that the Jews should have a national home in Palestine, Woodrow Wilson's policies in regard to the autonomy of different nationalities, the Versailles Treaty and Britain's mandate in Palestine and Iraq, and other developments that make the Arabian situation a most intricate one.

The outcome depended upon which of the three parties striving for control in Arabia gained the ascendency. The first of these was composed of the believers in Wahab's doctrine that Arabia should become a great church; the second consisted of the opportunists who believed that they could beat the other nations of the world at their own game of politics; and the third comprised many Arabians who believed that the destiny of Arabia was to become a great state.

Rotarian George A. Gillespie expressed the thanks of the Rotary Club to Rev. Dr. McLean for his educative address.

Football Teams In Six Scoreless Draws

FORT WILLIAM, Oct. 27. — (C.P.)—Two public school football teams at this lake-head city have originated a new endurance stunt that backs flag-pole sitting and marathon dancing off the map. They have played six scoreless draws in an effort to decide supremacy. They spurn the suggestion that a coin-toss should now make the decision.

GIRL DEPORTED WITHOUT MONEY OR FRIENDS

Second Case of Epileptic Woman Brought to Light at Hamilton To-day.

OFFICIALS TAKE ACTION.

Girl Had Developed Disease Here—Lived in Canada For 17 Years.

HAMILTON, Ont., Oct. 2.—(CP)—Civic officials moved rapidly today to present protests to Ottawa as another case of deportation of an epileptic girl came to light here today. The mother and father of Alice Barton applied to Mayor Peebles today for assistance in securing the return of their daughter who had been in the country 17 years and who had developed epilepsy after her sojourn here.

The first intimation of the deportation came to the family this morning when a pathetic letter was received from their daughter. The message was posted from Qubec last Friday and was written on Canadian Pacific stationery evidently from a liner which was sailing that day.

"Hope for best", wrote the young woman, hope that you will see me again. I don't know where I am going."

The girl had nobody but an aunt in England who was not incircumstances to assist her, the mother informed the mayor. The young woman had been in a Wodstck institution fr six years and was "getting on fine", the parents said. While all they had done for her maintenance was to supply her with clothing. The young woman worked for her support.

Is War Veteran

The father is a war veteran, and with the exception of the period of his service overseas, has been living in Canada since the year 1913.

In regard to the previous case, that in which a mother was deported from Canada, Alderman Lewington stated this morning that the woman was now in an infirmary at Bolton, England. He stated when she arrived at Liverpool, she was penniless, and the Salvation Army had been her only resort until she entered the institution.

It was proposed this morning that the city solicitor be sent to Montreal and Quebec to investigate the two cases. In the meantime, the question has been laid before C. W. Bell, M. P. for West Hamilton.

RUSSIAN DOMINATION OF WHEAT EXPOSED AS MERE PROPAGANDA

Thomas D. Campbell, Official Adviser to Soviet, Explodes Bubble.

ISSUES WARNING.

(Special to Examiner. Copyright, 1930.)

TORONTO, Oct 27 — "The Campbells are coming'" At least, two of them.

Each of these two doughty warriors of the Campbell Clan, come to us on a mission of rescue. Each in a way, but each in a somewhat different way, would rescue a woefully misled and credulous public, from a desperate menace, a menace threatening the very life and economic structure of whole nations.

There are in fact, two menaces. Hence the necessity for two rescuing champions Each with his own work to do.

The first knight to enter the lists was the Campbell of Montana. A "King" in his own right, like he of the Lion Heart, but unlike the valiant Richard, the Campbell's kingdom is over wheat.

Thomas D. Campbell's job, he of the Montanas, was to vanquish the Russian wheat menace. Clad in double plated armour, first as a wheat king, and also as an official adviser to the Soviet government itself, our champion and rescuer from the Russian menace, set about his job in right earnest, dealing hefty blows, as he shattered a menace which, according to Thomas D. proves to be nothing but a myth and a creature of the imagination.

Quoth Campbell of Montana:

"It was absurd to say that the present low price of wheat has been caused by this small addition to the world's exportable surplus of approximately 800 million bushels, and when the world produces, including Russia, almost four billion bushels of wheat."

Mf, Campbell doubted whether Russian wheat exports this year would exceed 20 million bushels, but even assuming it might amount to 60 million,it was still but a small amount compared to the total world exports.

So far as any immediate Russian menace is concerned, during the current crop season at all events, Mr. Campbell pretty effectually shattered the bogey.

At the same time however, he carried words of warning as to what might happen in the course of the next three or four years.

"It will take the Russians several years, said Mr. Campbell, "to increase their production to equal their own growing requirements, but after three years every country in the world will feel the keen competition of Russian grain exports."

So that, for the present season, at least, we may rest comfortably in our beds, without fear of being seriously disturbed by the nightmare of a Russian bugaboo.

The second champion to come to the world's rescue from a menace even more devastating than the Russian scare, was the Campbell of the London Grain Exchange. In shining armour comes this new Don Quixote of the British Miller's Association, whose mills, and the mills of the whole world, are at the moment menaced by that greater danger than even a Russian windmill, to wit, and in less than the Canadian Wheat Pool.

Against this world menace, Sydney S. Campbell of London and Edinborough vintage, girts his armour, and with true Don Quixote valor and enthusiasm, rushes into fierce combat with this new Frankenstein, the Canadian Wheat Pool.

In entering the encounter this second Campbell not only plainly shows his hand, but at the same time shows his teeth. Teeth too that might fairly be described as "fangs" so venomous do they appear in the latest savage assault on the Wheat Pool.

It may be a little premature to say just what the outcome of the first round in this epic battle may be, but in the end, and final round, may be in a few years, very few, from now: just what the Wheat Pool will do to the Sydney S Campbells may be too awful to contemplate.

In the meantime, the wheat problem, the world's wheat problem, still stays with us. And while the Frank Olivers and the Sydney Campbells are barking their shins against the Quixotian windmills, the problem itself is being tackled by the biggest men, and the best brains in the British Empire, and out of it.

South Rhodesia Eggs Are Offered For Sale

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 27.—(By the Canadian Press)—The first consignment of eggs from Southern Rhodesia, comprising 368 cases, each of 30 dozens, was offered for sale on the London market recently, and met with a favorable reception, wholesale prices beginning at 14 shillings per 120 eggs. An official of Empire Dairies, Limited, the dairy importing agency of the Overseas Farmers Co-operative Federation, stated that the eggs had arrived in a satisfactory condition, considering their long journey in cold storage. He had found them to be well-graded and attractively packed and in every essential they compared with eggs from the Union of South Africa. There is stated to be every likelihood of regular autumn supplies from the colony.

FLOODS AND FAMINE IS OLD TERROR OF NORTHERN CHINA

Millions of Unfortunates Doomed for Many More Years to Recurring Tragedy.

GREAT STRETCH OF LAND

SHANGHAI, Oct. 27.—(By the Canadian Press)—A tragic picture, eloquent in its simple presentation of the bare facts, of North China's food and famine stricken millions, is presented by C. A. Pao in the Chinese Nation, Chinese review. He gives three reasons for the conditions, geographical, economical and political. And he adds that although the constant famines and floods have their geographical and economic background, "the unscrupulous militarists and corrupt officials have to share half the responsibility for the deplorable plight of the uffering masses in the north."

Both China and India have been historically known as the lands of famine. Of late India has been fairly well developed in both irrigation and transportation thus greatly reducing that catastrophe, while China has seen only a little improvement in her famine prevention system and is still struggling under periodical famines and droughts, causing appalling suffering to the population. The most frequent catastrophes visiting China are floods, droughts, and locusts. Sometimes a prolonged drought is immediately followed by a flood and at other times locusts descend upon the harvest simultaneously with a drought, resulting in a disastrous famine in the affected districts. Earthquakes are not infrequent in the north-western provinces, which also has a very damaging affect on the agricultural enterprises in the affected regions.

The northwestern provinces are still suffering under a serious famine, says Mr. Pao. Since 1927 droughts and locusts frequently visited the North, until now nearly all northern provinces are affected, especially Shansi, Honan and Kansu. According to reports from famine relief associations, the affected northern provinces are Honan, Shensi Kansu, Shantung, Hopei, Shansi, Suivan an Chahar. In Honan one half of the province is in the grip of famine; Shensi is suffering as a whole; and Kansu has 65 districts out of a total of 78 districts affected, while Shantung and Hopei are undergoing a famine as well as a disastrous flood as a result of the over-flowing of the Yellow Wiver in Shantung and the Tachingho and Yungtingho n Hopei.

Kansu has a total population of 10,000,000 half of which are victims of famine, the same report states. About 300,000 people died last year of banditry, exposur and starvation, while and average of 2,000 people are reported to be dying daily in the affected regions. More than 1,000,000 people are reported to be in a destitute condition and they are compelled to feed on barks and grass roots. In Antinghsien alone, which used to be a city of 60,000 people, the population has dwindled to 3,000. Shensi has a total population of 10,000,000 people, of which 7,150,000 are now affected by famine. Of this number 780,000 have fled from the province, while 200,000 have died of starvation. These two provinces are worthy of special mention, since they are the worst famine-stricken areas in the North.

OFFICER RECEIVES MEDAL

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 27.—(By the Canadian Press)—The gallantry of a 68-year-old retired naval officer of distinguished rank was described at Portsmouth Police Court, when the Lord Mayor presented a certificate of the Carnegie Hero Fund to Engineer Rear-Admiral Henry Percival Vining, of Southsea, for life-saving.

Two small girls playing on the sea wall in front of Southsea Castle fell into the sea. Admiral Vining jumped in and brought one of the girls to the sea wall, but was unable to obtain a grip, and could not land. He and the girl were in serious danger before the Admiral was able to catch a lifebuoy thrown by a man on the wall. The other girl was rescued by a visitor, James Lock, of Limerick.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND BRIEFS

A SPECIAL SERVICE TO THE EXAMINER

From now on shareholders of Canadian companies will be called upon to attend frequent annual meetings at which financial statements will be presented and approved and official addresses made out lining operations for the period and a few words on the outlook for the future. The current year has not been without anxiety for stockholders to have been lower and in certain cases insufficient to meet dividend requirements and it is expected the gatherings this year will meet with a larger attendance than in past years. The first meeting of the Canadian chattered banks is that of Imperial to be held in about a month's time and the Consumers Gas Company of Toronto, will hold their annual November 17. Hiram Walker-Gooderham and Worts, Limited, and Distillers Corporation-Seagram, Limited, have already called their meetings along with many others. At this time the annual meetings are being augmented by numerous special general meetings called for one purpose or another and immediate future promises to be a very busy season for those stockholders who intend to be present at meetings of companies in which they are financially interested.

Annual Meeting.

Two general meetings of shareholders of Canadian Corporations of special interest to-day are those of the Maple Leaf Milling Company and the King Edward Hotel company. Shareholders of the former company will gather for their annual meeting and probably hear more of the extraordinary losses that resulted in a loss from operations of over $3,000,000 and a reduction in surplus of over $5,000,000 in the sixteen months period ending July 31, 1930. President C. W. Band's remarks accompanying the financial statement spoke of speculations by the former arrangement without authority of the board of directors and unauthorized advances. At the time Mr. Bands remarks were written officials were taking legal advise as to what further steps should be taken and it is anticipated stockholders present at to-day's meeting will hear the result of these conferences. King Edward Hotel stockholders have been called to attend a special general meeting to-day for the purpose of reviewing the operations of the company and giving consideration to the adjustment of the financial structure. No information has been given out in a advance of the changes to be made in the financial structure and shareholders will learn of this for the first time at the special general meeting.

Notice has been forwarded to the stockholders of Fraser Companies, Limited, calling a special general meeting for the sanctioning of a by-law authorizing directors to create and issue not exceeding $30,000,000 principal amount of refunding mortgage and collatorial trust gold bonds, accompanying the notice of meeting is a letter from the secretary in which it is stated that on account of a capital expenditures in connection with the company's recent construction program and to provide for current business requirements, an arrangement has been concluded for the issue and pledge of $5,000,000 of 6 per cent refunding mortgage, and collateral trust gold bonds. The bonds are to be used as collateral security in connection with the funding of $2,500,000 of current indebtedness and a further advance of $1,500,000 repayable July 1, 1923. While only $5,000,000 of these bonds are to be issued and pledged at the present time, directors consider it advisable that means should be available, if future conditions permit, for the eventual refunding of the mortgage debt of Fraser Companies, Limited, and its subsidiaries, and this will be kept in view in the drafting of the trust deed.

CLOTH COMPANY ASKS AGREEMENT ON ASSESSMENT

Adjourned Meeting of Campbellford Court Revision Held Friday.

ADAMS CASE SETTLED

Echoes of Wallace Block Blaze Heard When Assessment Rebate Asked.

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 27.—The adjourned Court of Revision was held at Campbellford on Friday evening when several more cases of appeal against assessment were heard and disposed of. Those present were: Reeve J. M. Bygott, chairman; Deputy-Reeve N. Stone; Councillors N. A. MacColl, J. R. Battisby, H. N. Carr and the town assessor, R. Lowry.

The first appeal to come before the court was that of J. I. Adams, who had based his claim on the building of an unsightly party line fence by his neighbor. This case was adjourned from last court to give the court an opportunity to view the structure. After consideration it was decided on motion of Councillor MacColl, seconded by Deputy Reeve Stone that the assessment of the property of J. I. Adams be confirmed.

The next case was that of the Campbellford Cloth Co., who appealed for a rebate of taxes and a fixed assessment. This matter had been before the council and had not been settled. The Cloth Co. based their claim on the fact that they were doing their best to keep the local plant operating. They had promised to expand the plant and had done so by installing two units of the rayon industry, thus increasing there staff by thirty-two. It was also their intention in the near future to expand the silk industry in Campbellford by moving the majority of the rayon industry, thus increasing their staff was expected to be in Campbellford by January.

The Cloth Company, up until a short time ago, had been on a fixed assessment. That however had now expired, and it was their desire that a new agreement be entered into in regard to this matter.

Councillor MacColl moved that the consideration of this application be postponed until the next setting of the court and in the meantime the town solicitor be instructed to give the court instructions as to their right to deal with the matter. This motion was seconded by Councillor Battisby.

Wallace Block Improved

A. McKeel appeared on behalf of the two Misses Wallace to seek a reduction of assessment on the Wallace Block. He explained that the owners were perfectly satisfied with the assessment as far as it went, but felt that owing to the loss of the block by fire and the large outlay that the building up of the block necessitated they should be considered by the court. Mr. McKeel also stated that rebate of rent had to be made to the stores undamaged by fire, that the majority of the stores had been vacant for the matter of five months and that now that the block was rebuilt it was a great improvement to the appearance of the town.

Mr. Lowry, speaking on the subject, stated that the property was not assessed as high this year owing to the fact that the appartments were classes as unfinished rooms.

The court felt that the Miss Wallace's deserved credit for the improvement they had made to the corner of Front and Bridge streets and on motion of Deputy Reeve Stone seconded by Councillor Carr, it was decided that te matter be left over unti the next meeting to enable the tax collector to give an account of the taxes on the stores that suffered in the fire.

R. McKelvie appeared before the court to ask for a rebate of his assessment on the flour mill property. He explained that at present the mill was assessed nearly as high as it was when it was at a 250 barrel capacity. Now it was only running as a 40 barrel mill and the majority of the space was vacant, being used only as a warehouse. Also all the machinery had been moved from the property.

Councillor MacColl moved that the taxes on the flour mill property for 1930 be rebated on a basis of $8,100. This was seconded by Deputy Reeve Stone.

An appeal against his water rate on Front street was made by J. Farrell, but as the court had no jurisdiction over this matter it was passed on motion of Councillor Carr, seconded by Councillor Battisby, that the applicant be advised to bring the matter before the next meeting of the town council.

On motion of Councillors MacColl and Carr the court adjourned until Monday, October 27.

2 Real Estate Firms Have Actions Halted

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 27 (C.P.)—Officials of two real estate companies with offices in different parts of the city have been served with interim injunctions restraining them from engaging in real estate transactions under what is known as the "lunch and lecture method."

The Hames Huteson Company and W. S. Pratt and Company were the two firms. The injunctions were served under that section of the Security Frauds Prevention Act which defines fraud in regard to real estate as the "taking of an exorbitant and unconscionable profit." It is alleged the two firms operated contrary to the provisions of the Act.

The Ontario Attorney-General's Department is making a survey of other real estate concerns in the province, and similar action will follow if officials find that the spirit of the Act has been broken.

BACKACHE

Wonderful Relief From Pain

Backache is one of those wearying complaints which bind all their victims together with a common bond of misery. And when any one sufferer from backache finds a sure remedy, fellowship prompts the quick report of that discovery to others. Here's a woman who has her friend to thank for knowledge of a remarkably successful treatment. Now gratitude compels her, in turn, to pass along the good news to you.

"I am writing to tell you of the great benefit I have received from Kruschen Salts. My friend, Mrs. H., has received so much benefit that she begged me to give Kruschen a trial, although at first I was doubtful, because I had tried so many things. At last, however, I tried some of her Kruschen, and, feeling hopeful, I purchased a bottle and I can honestly say that before I had finished the bottle my backache was gone. I have suffered for years with kidney trouble and dreadful headaches, and now to be free from the pain altogether is wonderful."—(Mrs. C.).

Labor Is Triumphant In New South Wales

SYDNEY, New South Wales, Oct. 27 (C.P.)—The State of New South Wales, the most populous and important of the Australian Commonwealth, has turned its back squarely on its Nationalist Party Government, under Premier T. R. Bavin, and has cast its vote overwhelmingly in favor of the Labor Party.

Fifty-one Labor members have been returned to the Legislative Assembly of ninety in the States elections which have just closed. This will provide the Labor Party, under Hon. J. T. Lang, former Premier, who was defeated in 1927, with a clear-cut majority. Twenty-three Nationalists and thirteen members of the Allied Country Party will compose the Opposition, numbering thirty-six. The three members unaccounted for are Independents and two, at least, may be expected to vote with the Labor Government.

THE ONTARIO LIBERAL CONVENTION

To The Editor:

May one who has for many years hoped for a comprehensive, aggressive Liberal party in Ontario offer a suggestion, in view of the December convention?

Some call for a leader; others for a program. Both are important; neither is dominant.

After the 1929 defeat Nelson Parliament, who knows more Liberals more intimately than any other politician, said the Liberal party lost the election because it had lost its soul.

Souls are restored neither by choosing some leader who has given no sign of having travailed in his own soul, nor by passing resolutions which so shrewd a politician as Mr. Ferguson may easily take unto himself. If Mr. Parliament is right the Liberal party needs a spiritual revolution which will discover its own leader as the result of tonics that contain far more brimstone than treacle.

What man is in sight can breathe into Ontario Liberalism's pallid nostrils the breath of life? You hunt around for somebody whom you HOPE will wield a sharp blade on the Fergusonian head; and what have you, then? You have a commitment for several years to a worthy partisan who may or may not fit his place; but who, up to now, has certainly given no Cromwellian demonstration of his capacity to create a new model Liberal army.

During the twenty-five years since a disgusted electorate destroyed the Ross Government the Liberal party has had eight leaders who have fought eight elections, the net result of whose campaigning is that the party has now one eighth of the membership of the Legislature. No leader, during that time was selected as the outcome of a fearless, public stocktaking of the fundamentals of Queen's Park statesmanship, and the Liberal party's relation to them. Eleven years ago, forty-five (I think) Farmer and Labor representatives took possession of the Government. They have dwindled to six, during three elections. But of the thirty-nine seats thus lost the Liberal party has not been potent enough to increase its strength in the place where it hopes to rule. Has anybody ever heard of any prominent Liberal discussing the realities of such remarkable, persistent declines?

In such a situation, to pitch a mantle to any shrinking Elisha in the wings would put us again at the mercy of an Unknown Quantity. Surely what is wanted, above all things, is the discovery of a New Spirit, a new courage; and new dynamic resources in the Liberalism of Ontario which, I am sure, is waiting anxiously for such a baptism of power; out of which a gloriously militant party can emerge. The December Convention is the greatest opportunity for a well-informed, fighting Liberalism since the Convention of 1924, which I attended, and which was the swan song of the Cap. Sullivans and the Minnie M's.

PRUDENTIAL MEN HONOR SEDGWICK AT BIG LUNCHEON

Fred Sedgwick is Honored on His Apointment to Kingston Post.

CLUB BAG PRESENTED.

Has Served Prudential Insurance Company For Almost 22 Years in Peterboro.

After having served for almost twenty-two years with the Prudential Insurance Company in this city, R. F. Sedgewick was on Saturday the guest of honour at a luncheon tendered to him by the superintendent John I. Allen at the Empress Hotel, and at which all the local and district agents of the company were present.

His appointment with the company dating from May 17, 1909, Mr. Sedgewick was on February 6th of the following year appointed assistant-superintendent here, a position he held until his promotion as superintendent, dating from October 20th, of this year. He and his wife will leave shortly to take over the district at Kingston.

As a token of the esteem in which Mr. Sedgewick and his wife also, are held in this city, they were presented with a handsome travelling bag and intimation was given that Mrs. Sedgewick would be presented with a token of esteem before they leave the city.

John I. Allen who presided, in reviewing the history of the Prudential Company in this city, said that he well remembers arriving in Peterborough on April 3rd, 1909. He opened the office here. The company then had no connection in this district. It was in May of that same year, that Mr. Allen met Mr. Sedgewick. He was then a young man, and was selling real estate, having come in from the farm in Otonabee township.

Assistant Superintendent

Impressed by his bearing and feeling that he was the type of man he could develop into a real insurance representative, Mr. Allen approached him; took him into the insurance business, promoted him to assistant-superintendent in February of 1910 a position which Mr. Sedgewick held until his recent promotion.

Mr. Allen said that the appointment was well merited. Mr. Sedgewick had taken an unfailing and keen interest in the district and in his staff.

The speaker called attention to the many men who have graduated from the Peterborough office of the company, and who are now holding important positions. He mentioned incidentally, that he has himself been with the company 27 years, and his son Fred, is now associated with the editorial work of the Prudential Company's publication.

He called upon Albert Ray, oldest agent of the company in this city, who congratulated Mr. and Mrs. Sedgewick on their removal to Kingston where they would be entering upon a wider and more successful sphere of work. He recalled the many years he had been associated with Mr. Sedgewick and said that in business his leadership was always an inspiration. It was Mr. Ray who made the presentation of the leather bag.

Talks Most Inspirational

Mr. Sedgewick responded in a brief and capable manner, saying that he appreciated very much their kindness to him and to his wife. They would take the bag with them and it would always serve as a token of that spirit of good fellowship which had prevailed among the staff. He also paid tribute to the helpful guidance and help he had always received from Mr. Allen and mentioned the benefits which the entire staff receives from Mr. Allen's weekly inspirational talks.

Mr. Sedgewick and his wife were also the recipients of the individual congratulations from many members of the local and district staff who rose to their feet and made suitable short speeches, in which the majority of them recalled several amusing anecdotes and incidents connected with their long associations.

Mr. Sedgewick's position here will be filled by W. H. Fair who was transferred to Orillia as assistant-superintendent after having served for some time on the staff in this city.

He had given 45 years of faithful service to the C.P.R. and will be remembered by many as conductor on the Toronto-Havelock run and on the Peterborough-Port McNichol run.

He was a kind hearted, genial man and when off duty took a keen interest in making his home and grounds comfortable and attractive.

He was born in Caledon, Ont., and in politics was a Conservative. Many friends of the deceased and of Mrs. Davis will regret to learn of his death after a short and unexpected illness of heart trouble.

M. W. SINE.

STIRLING, October 27 (Examiner Correspondence). — The death occurred on October 24 at midnight of a well-known and much-respected citizen of Stirling, M. W. Sine, V.S., after an illness of long duration.

Born in Rawdon Township on September 23, 1855, the eldest son of Silas and Sarah Sine, U.E. Loyalists, he spent his boyhood days attending school No. 6 and Stirling High School. Later he took up carpenter work with his father and uncle, Frederick Sine, contractors building churches, schools, and houses. Not so very long after, when 24 years old, he contracted inflammatory rheumatism, which left him with a weak heart. Later he went to the Ontario Veterinary College in Toronto, and graduated from it in 1885. For a short time he practised in Madoc, then moved to Kingston where he practised for ten years, but on account of his health, he moved back to his own locality at Sine, where he farmed for twenty years and practised his profession, and later became reporter of the Belleville Ontario for some ten years.

The deceased was secretary of Sine Creamery for fifteen years, and made up the books of the Evergreen Cheese Factory for ten years. He sold his farm at Sine and bought a farm in Sidney, where he only remained a short time, having a serious breakdown in health. Afterwards he came to Stirling to live, about thirteen years ago. In 1919 he was appointed tax collector, which office he held till his death. He was secretary of Rawdon Agricultural Society for ten years, resigning this year.

Fraternally he was a member of the subordinate Cataraqui Lodge I.O.O.F., No. 11, and Stirling Encampment, at one time Past Noble Grand of the former and Past Patriarch of the latter, having been representative at Grand Lodge a number of times, and was one of the best-posted members in the Province on the principles of the Order. The deceased was a broad-minded man, and politically independent, putting principle before politics at all times. A man of strict integrity, a kind neighbor, reserved, and never seeking publicity, the good he did was in a quiet way. In religion a Baptist, but attending the Presbyterian Church while in Stirling, as there is not a Baptist Church in the district, he often served on the Board of Managers and on various committees. At the time of his death he was a correspondent for The Peterborough Examiner.

In 1886 he was married to Miss Mary Sinclair, eldest daughter of Peter and Agnes Sinclair of Madoc, who with one son Kenneth and two granddaughters survive. Bronchitis and heart trouble were the direct causes of his death at seventy-five years.

The funeral took place on Monday, October 27, at 2 p.m., at his late residence. Burial service was in charge of the Oddfellows' Lodge.

ZAM-BUK HERBAL OINTMENT & MEDICINAL SOAP

Complete treatment for Bad Legs, Ulcers, Eczema, Poisoned Sores, Scalp Troubles, etc.

HOW TO RELIEVE CATARRHAL DEAFNESS OR HEAD NOISES

If you have catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises caused by catarrh, or if phlegm drops in your throat and has caused catarrh of the stomach or bowels, you will be glad to know that these distressing symptoms may be entirely overcome in may instances by the following treatment which you can easily prepare in your own home at little cost. Secure from your druggist a 1 oz. bottle of Parmint (Double Strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. An improvement is sometimes noted after the first day's treatment. Breathing should become easy, while the distressing head noises, headaches, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., should gradually disappear under the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell, taste, defective hearing, and mucous dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms which suggest the presence of catarrh and which may often be overcome by this efficacious treatment. If nearly ninety per cent of all ear troubles are caused by catarrh, there must be many people whose hearing may be restored by this simple home treatment.

P.C.I. Gains Lead in C.O. Interscholastic Group

GARNET AND GREY 32—7 VICTORY OVER COBOURG TEAM MAKES 4TH IN ROW

Defeat Drops Lakeshore Team Down to Tie With Oshawa For Second Place.

PLAY CLOSE IN FIRST.

Outweighed at Every Position, Legon's squad Wins By Speed and Clever Plays.

Coach Legon's Garnet and Grey gridiron warriors proved vastly superior to the highly-rated Cobourg Collegiate squad at James Stevenson Park on Saturday afternoon smothering the team from the lakeshore town under a 32 to 7 score. The victory made the fourth in a row for Peterborough Collegiate and eased them into first place in their group of the Central Ontario Interescholastic O.R.F.U. League, while the defeat bumped Cobourg down to a tie for second place with Oshawa C.I.

The Garnet and Grey will encounter Cobourg again next Saturday on the lakeshore in the final game of the league's schedule. A win for P.C.I. will give them the group title, but a Cobourg victory will produce a three-cornered tie.

Cobourg fielded a squad of young huskies on Saturday that outweighed the locals at every position, but against the dash, speed and cleverness of Coach Legon's athletes the extra poundage proved no advantage. Both on the attack and the defence P.C.I. were much superior to their rivals.

Play Close In First.

During the first half the going was rather close, but even at that stage Cobourg could not gain yards, and only a gift touchdown kept them in the running.

In the final half P.C.I. ran wild piling up 24 points to their opponents' one. In the fourth quarter the Cobourg line was torn wide open and P.C.I. rammed through for big gains regularly and often.

A feature of the game were two smart forward passes tossed by Richardson. Both were perfectly executed and each made a gain of thirty yards. The punting given by Johnson for Cobourg and Armstrong, the P.C.I. booter, was another highlight. Both got height and distance into their boots.

Young, Preston, Mackey, Dinesen, Richardson and Dunkerley were all stalwart yard gainers for the winners. Mackey relieved Preston at quarter during most of the second half and displayed great skill in getting the plays away. Ward, Wagar and Lord's tackling combined to prevent any enemy gains on end runs. The P.C.I. wingline again demonstrated that they know their work, and opened big holes for the ball carriers.

Outstanding Players.

Dufton, R. Cooper and E. Cooper were outstanding for Cobourg. R. Cooper clicked off their one big gain of the day when he speeded around the end for thirty yards.

P.C.I. kicked off to Cobourg's 20-yard line. Young ran Cobourg's kick back twenty yards through a host of tacklers to centre. P.C.I. carried the ball to Cobourg's 15-yard line on straight downs to lose it on a fumble. After an exchange of kicks, Armstrong booted over the Cobourg line for a rouge, and the first point of the first point of the game.

Richardson's thirty-yard forward pass to Ward opened another P.C.I. offensive which carried the play to within 20 yards of the Cobourg goal posts. Young's drop kick was intercepted, Cobourg grabbing the ball on their own five-yard line. Cobourgs kick took play back to centre. With Dinesen, Fraser, Gordon and Preston carrying the ball play was pushed to within five yards of Cobourg's touchline when quarter time sounded.

Scores Touchdown

At the start of the second quarter Clayton vaulted over the few remaining yards for a touchdown.

A. P.C.I. extend was fumbled and Cobourg gained the ball at centre, and Johnson kicked to P.C.I.'s five-yard line. Again a P.C.I. extend went wrong and Cobourg secured the ball on P.C.I.'s 16-yard line. Johnson kicked behind the P.C.I. touchline. Young fumbled the catch and the ball bounded toward the side, a Cobourg outside falling on it for a touchdown, which was converted. This mishap tied the score 6- all.

A minute later Armstrong kicked for another rouge and P.C.I. were again in front. R. Cooper reeled off thirty yards on a Cobourg end run. Armstrong's kick carried play back to centre. Cobourg gained possession on a P.C.I. fumble on their own 15-yard line. Dunkerly was away for a thirty-five yard gain. Mackey added fifteen more. Armstrong kicked to Cobourg's five-yard line. Cobourgs kick was returned by Young for a rouge.

Starting the final half, a Cobourg forward pass gained twenty yards. Cobourg kicked to P.C.I.'s 35-yard line and P.C.I. lost the ball on their failure to make yards. Johnson kicked for a rouge, giving Cobourg another point.

After an exchange of kicks, Richardson grabbed the ball when it bounced out of the hands of Cobourg player and ran thirty yards for a touchdown, which Clayton converted.

Young ran the kick-off back twenty yards to P.C.I.'s 30-yard line. Richardson tossed another forward pass, Young grabbing it for a thirty-yard advance. On straight plays P.C.I. carried the ball for a touchdown, Richardson taking the ball over.

From then on P.C.I. gained with slight interruption.

Armstrong kicked for a rouge. There were more big P.C.I. gains and Fraser went over for a touchdown, P.C.I.'s fourth try of the game.

Cobourg appeared powerless to stop P.C.I.'s hammering attacks and repeated thrusts carried play again to their touchline. Armstrong taking the ball over.

After a 40-yard run by Dunkerly, Young's attempted field goal missed the posts but went for a rouge. A minute later the same play was attempted with a like result.

McGILL NARROWLY MISSES WHITEWASH

London Lads Fight Uphill Battle to Start Scoring in First.

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 27.—University of Western Ontario registered their first victory of the season in the Intercollegiate Senior Football Union when they turned back McGill 5 to 1 at the J. W. Little Memorial Stadium on Saturday afternoon. Playing superior football Joe Breen's Western squad took the lead in the first ten minutes of play and increased it in the second and third quarters.

Gordon Paterson, stellar backfield player for Western, kicked the 5 points, and his best effort came in the third quarter when he made a spectacular drop kick from the 30-yard line to give Western their first major score of the year. In the final period Young's onside kick resulted in McGill's lone point.

Varsity Downs Queen's 6 to 1

SINCLAIR'S FINE KICKING GIVES BLUE AND WHITE WIN OVER TRICOLOR GRID SQUAD

Toronto Leads Intercollegiate Union as Result of Saturday's Victory.

QUEEN'S OUTPLAYED.

Deadly Tackling of Varsity's Outside Wings Largely Responsible For Win.

KINGSTON, Oct. 27.— The Blue and White triumphed over the tricolor here Saturday when University of Toronto defeated Queen's, 6-1, and took the lead in the race for the intercollegiate football championship.

Varsity dominated the play for four-fifths of the game and except for a few minutes in the final period when a succession of penalties and several mammoth kicks by Howard Carter threw them back on the defensive, looked much superior in every way to Queen's.

Aid in Victory

Jack Sinclair's effective kicking and the deadly tackling of the Varsity outside wings contributed largely to the success of the Toronto team. Sinclair was a whole team in himself and easily out-ranged Carter in distance while he used excellent judgment in placing his kicks. Billy Bell gave Sinclair great support.

Most of the Queen's kicks were directed at the Toronto light weight but he never faltered, and gave a beautiful performance.

Varsity showed a diversified attack except when they had a chance for a touchdown at the beginning of the last period, when they failed to get a major score when they had the ball within three yards of the Queen's goal line. Sinclair scored all of Varsity's points and had the satisfaction of getting one or more points in every period. There was a strong wind blowing down the field, Varsity having the advantage in the first and third periods and Queen's in the second and last.

Keith, Dewar, Traynor, Jim Sinclairth, Gooderham, McGuigge, Bennett, Galloway and Adams were prominent in the Varsity attack, which functioned more smoothly fought a plucky uphill battle and than in any previous game. Queen's were simply outplayed by a better team. Carter and Gilmore performed brilliantly on the backfield, while Hamlin, Elliott, Gourley and Stuart showed to advantage at times.

After the game the Varsity students tried to remove the south goal posts, but were repulsed by superior numbers after a fierce battle. The celebration of the Toronto victory was then continued down town. This victory gives Varsity a decided edge for the championship. They have to play McGill and Western away from home and Queen's in Toronto. They look like an improving team and a championship possibility in any company.

Saskatchewan Wins West's College Title

Defeats University of British Columbia 18 to 3 in Final.

SASKATOON, Sask., Oct. 27—University of Saskatchewan stands as football champion of the colleges of the West. The new title was won on Saturday, when University of British Columbia bowed to an 13 to 3 defeat in a match where a victory would have given them their second successive intercollegiate championship of Western Canada.

More diversified attack through the agency of a superior front line, spectacular broken field running and superior kicking were the factors that contribute to the downfall of the coast blue and gold squad.

Thirteen of Saskatchewan's points were scored as a result of Harry Dempster's punting. He shared the honors with Dewey and McAdam in supplying the thrills in clever runs around the ends of the coast team's line. The lone touchdown of the game was scored by Mickey McNab when he recovered the ball on Mcore's fumble and raced across the visitor's goal line.

With the victory of the University of Saskatchewan, a new threat for the Western Canada championship looms up. The University of Saskatchewan team has, through the intercollegiate union, notified the Western Canada Union and the Canadian Union that it wishes to take part in the playdowns for the Western and Dominion honors. The challenge is now in the hands of the Western and Canadian officials.

GAME OF DECADE SEES TIGERS TIED BY WINGED SQUAD

One Play Bars Wheelers From Victory on Montreal Gridiron.

SCORE IS FIVE ALL.

Argos Not Extended in Beating Ottawa Senators For 20-2 Count.

NELSON STADIUM, MONTREAL, Oct. 27.—One play barred the Montreal Winged Wheelers from their second straight victory of the terrible Tigers of Hamilton Saturday afternoon.

A blocked kick by burly Brian Timmins in the first quarter of probably the greatest gridiron battle Montreal had witnessed in a decade gave the Dominion champions their only score. It saved the jungle kings from defeat, for the batting Winged Wheelers fought back to the limit of their stout hearts and tied the count at 5-5. That's the way it ended, and the vaunted Bengals were hanging on at the finish.

Not one of the crowd of close to 10,000 will deny that Bill Hughes' men should have won the game. They had the yellow and black tanks corps as if they were mired in the soggy field and only four times did they advance the yard sticks on line play. The Wheelers played alert football and Wally Whitty outkicked Bert Gibb and Beano Wright both into the wind and when it aided the aerail attacks.

Argos Not Extended

TORONTO, Oct. 27.—Led by Captain Frank Turville, the Argonauts had little trouble in defeating the Ottawa Senators 20-2 here in the first game of the double header played at Varsity Stadium on Saturday. It was Argos first home appearance in the Big Four schedule.

The start of the game was a trifle early for the regulars, and there were only about 600 in the stands when play commenced, although as many thousand were present before the game ended. Turville has turned in several clever performances locally, but it is questionable if he ever played a better game than he did on Saturday. He displayed his usual clever kicking ability, while little fault could be found with his all-round play. When victory was assured the local stalwarts, Turville was relieved by Ernie Armstrong, who also provided a high-class effort, his catching and running featuring.

The success of the locals can be attributed to the clever all-round backfield play of Turville. Armour Munro and Armstrong, while "Johnny" Johnson, the midget halfback, also gave a good account of himself when he was used in the last period. Johnson, a tricky, dodging runner, lacks the weight to make him a real standout, but he can always be counted upon to give his utmost in the cause. Gordie Beal, a quarterback, also deserves much credit for the fine manner in which he handled the team on Saturday. He made few mistakes and accounted for several large gains by tricky end running.

Queen's Seconds Win Intermediate Game

Defeat U. of T. in Intercollegiate Fixture By 13 to 3.

TORONTO, Oct. 27. — A strong Queen's team defeated U. of T. 13 to 3 in an Intercollegiate intermediate football fixture at the stadium on Saturday morning. While the Blues were far from being outplayed and put up a great uphill struggle, several costly fumbles lost them opportunities to score on more than one occasion. Queen's big advantage lay in the kicking, where McKay outdistanced the best Toronto efforts and continually forced the Blue and White back on the defensive. The local linemen showed the effect of a week's hard drilling, several times breaking up the Tricolor plays before they got under way.

NORTH BAY, Ont., Oct. 27 (C.P.)—The Toronto Seiberlings, Southern Ontario Intermediate finalists, defeated the North Bay Kinkey Dinks, Northern champions, 10—2 here, on Saturday afternoon in a sudden-death match for the intermediate championship of the Ontario Women's Softball Association.

"ORPHUNS" WIN LOOSE CONTEST

U. of T. O.R.F.U. Senior Team Defeats Camp Borden By 30-12.

SOME GOOD FEATURES.

TORONTO, Oct. 27.—University of Toronto "Orfuns" made it a perfect day for the Blue and White senior teams when they scored a convincing 30-to-12 victory over the luckless Camp. Borden twelve in the second game of a doubleheader at Varsity Stadium on Saturday afternoon.

Although the game was not as well played as its predecessor, there were many exciting features, and the large crowd of about 7,000 fans were upon their feet cheering time and time again. The issue was marred slightly by the numerous fumbles on the part of both teams, but sensational broken-field dashes on either side offset these and made the game interesting to watch.

For the first half the Airmen showed up remarkably well, and got at least an even break on wingline play, while their backfield of Lalonde, Cable and Broadbent held their own in booting and running with Don Woods, Copp and Snyder on the "Orfuns'" rearguard. But in the last half the Blue and White came to their own and ran the Airmen off their feet, piling up 15 points to their opponents' 1.

Galt Team Defeated 12-0 By Oshawa Intermediates

GALT, Otc. 27—The Oshawa Blue Devils now lead the local grouping of the O.R.F.U. Intermediate series as a result of their 12—0 victory over the Combines here Saturday. It was a hard and close-fought game, with the score not a true indication of the play. Fumbles both in the scrimmage and by the half line were costly to Galt. The local front line, though not possessing the weight of that of the Motor City squad, held up well, but the halves were weak and suffered a severe blow when in the first five minues of play Bert Steel, their kicking half, suffered a hip injury.

The locals lacked the team play of their opponents.

DEPARTMENT OF TRADE AND COMMERCE
OTTAWA, CANADA

October 25th, 1930.

To Wage Earners,
Everywhere in Canada.

Don't be Penny Wise Pound Foolish!

Has it ever occurred to you that bargains, even honest-to-goodness bargains, are not always an unmixed blessing?

Of course many so called bargains are not real bargains at all. Like the rosy apple that is rotten at the core, they appear to be something that they are not. A bargain is only a real bargain when it is offered you at a price less than what the article is really worth.

Due to causes that predicate a loss to some Canadian producer, real bargains are sometimes available to you. And when they are, and you need the articles offered, you would be foolish not to take full advantage of them. For if you don't, someone else will! Meanwhile anyone buying them is doing the Canadian producer a good turn by helping him to dispose of merchandise that, for one reason or another, he is compelled to convert into immediate money.

But when the subject of the bargain is a foreign-made article, the whole situation takes on a different aspect.

Like as not the foreign producer, whom you would be helping out of a jam if you purchased his bargain, has a production cost that is far below the Canadian cost of producing the same article. And if you were to institute enquiries with a view to finding out why his production cost was so much lower, like as not you would find it was because he was paying his employees rates of wages that were away below the scale paid for similar work in this country.

In that event, it would be reasonably safe to assume that a much lower standard of living prevails among the workers in his country than prevails here. Possibly he requires his employees to work longer hours than is customary in Canada. Possibly the laws of his country are not as strict as they are here regarding the employment of child labour. Possibly he is not taxed, as Canadian manufacturers are taxed, to ensure compensation on a reasonable scale being paid his workmen who suffer injury in the course of their employment. Possibly he is not required to maintain his factory at anything like as high standards of ventilation, of sanitation, of heating, of lighting, of protection against fire and accident, as are in force in Canada.

In all these matters—hours of labour, rates of wages, standards of living, factory inspection, social legislation and industrial betterment work—Canada is much more advanced than most of the nations that make products similar to hers. The result is that Canadian wage earners are more fortunately circumstanced in almost every way, than are the wage earners in most other countries. Obviously they can only hope to retain those advantages as long as their employers, the manufacturers of Canada, are able to overcome in the domestic market the competition of foreign-made goods that are produced under longer working hours, lower wage scales, and lower standards of living. For should the time ever come when they can no longer compete, either their Canadian employees must agree to wage reductions and the loss of decent living conditions, or the manufacturers themselves must close up shop.

You can see therefore what serious trouble these bargains in foreign-made goods may cause you—what serious trouble any foreign-made goods may cause you whether they be bargains or not—if you allow yourself to be persuaded into buying them. Should you say there is nothing harmful in buying them once in a while, you will probably see nothing harmful in buying them every chance you get. And if you buy them every chance you get, you cannot blame others for doing the same thing. Once everybody in Canada starts doing it, you know what will happen!

So for the sake of a small immediate saving or merely to satisfy a passing whim, why run the risk of setting in train a movement that in a few years might easily prove your undoing! Wouldn't it be far better for you, and your family, and all your friends, to stand fast by the policy of buying "Produced-in-Canada," as the surest means of protecting Canadian rates of wages and Canadian standards of living?

Very sincerely yours,

H. H. Stevens

WESTERN "PIGSKIN" GLADIATORS ENTER TITLE SERIES THIS WEEK

Field of Seniors and Juniors Ready For First Lap of Title Tussles.

B. C. UNSETTLED.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 27. (By the Canadian Press).—Blue-blooded champions of their unions were lined up at the barrier to-day for the annual running of the Western Canada rugby stakes. Complete with only one exception, the field of seniors and juniors was ready for the first lap of the title tussle, scheduled for decision on two prairie gridirons next Saturday.

Only British Columbia had not decided its contender after week-end clashes. Vancouver Meriomas and University of British Columbia still were in the chase for the B.C. nomination. Champion eligible for a play-down competition are:

Senior

Alberta—Calgary Tigers.

Saskatchewan—Regina Roughriders.

Manitoba—Winnipeg St. John's.

Junior

Alberta—Calgary.

Saskatchewan — Saskatoon Hilltops.

Manitoba — Winnipeg Native Sons of Canada.

Crowned inter-collegiate champions of Western Canada when they defeated British Columbia Saturday, University of Saskatchewan had applied for a play-down rating. If their request is granted at the annual meeting of the W.C.R.F.U. at Calgary Nov. 9 and 10, the collegians will make the fifth starter in the race.

First battles next Saturday bring together Regina and St. John's at the Saskatchewan capital in the senior series and Saskatoon and Calgary at the Alberta city in the junior classic. The Saskatchewan teams, in both cases, are defenders. Roughriders are groomed to win their fifth straight Western title. With Moosejaw Maroons out, Saskatoon are fighting to retain the junior crown for the mid-prairie province.

A sensational spurt by Moose Jaw Maroons which carried the ball from their own goal-line for a touch in the last minute of play was the feature of the final game of the Saskatchewan senior league schedule playd Saturday at Moose Jaw, when Regina Roughriders took a 15-5 verdict from the Maroons.

First Touchdown

It was the first touchdown scored against Regina by a Western team this fall. A. fumbled kick and a 45-yard run gave the Maroons the ball on Regina's two-yard line and Alex Wilson, former junior star, tore over for major points just before the whistle blew.

Vancouver Athletic Club, pre-season favorites to cop titular honors in the provincial "Big Four" league, passed out of the championship picture when they dropped a 4 to 1 decision to their inter-city rivals, Merlomas.

St. John's, Manitoba's senior rugby champions pushed over indifferent Winnipeg resistance and marked up their fourth straight Manitoba Union victory. Preparing for next week's play-down battle with Regina Roughriders, the Saints gave their most impressive performance of the season.

University of Alberta broke their losing streak in the West's inter-collegiate rugby union at the expense of Manitoba's representatives, when they scored a 7-2 victory at Edmonton.

Alberta cinched their victory in the first quarter when a rouge and touchdown gave Bud Morgan's green and gold stalwarts a 6-0 lead.

Calgary Tigers were forced to come from behind to retain the Alberta senior crown by outscoring Edmonton Eskimos 24 to 11 at Calgary. The victory was the fourth out of five starts for Tigers this fall and qualified them for the prairie final.

University of Saskatchewan stands as rugby champions of the west after trouncing the team of University of British Columbia by 18 to 3. The game played at Saskatoon, was featured by a more diversified attack through the agency of a superior line on the part of the Saskatchewan representatives. The stellar punting of Harry Dempster accounted for thirteen of the winner's points.

Manitoba's junior rugby title rests in the hands of the Winnipeg Native Sons squad. The Sons battered their way to an 8-to-1 win over Winnipeg Canoe Club Saturday in a match that was marked by continual mid-field play and by capable defensive tactics on the part of both teams.

'Go to Church' Sundays Announced At St. John's

It was announced yesterday in St. John's Church that the next two Sundays are to be special "Go to Church" Sundays, on which every member is to attend one of the services each Sunday. This effort has been advanced by a committee of men visiting for a canvass, and though it should not be necessary, has been found by experience to be of great value. It is appropriate the first Sunday should be the one next to All Saints' Day, and also that Captain Casey, head of the Church Army in Canada, should be present to give the address at the morning service.

C.G.E. Social Club Meets On Tuesday

The annual meeting of the C.G.E. Social and Athletic Club will be held to-morrow night in the Canadian Legion Hall, Murray Street, beginning at 7.30 o'clock. The present constitution of this organization calls for an attendance of at least 50 members at the anunal meeting before busines can be transacted. This ruling has caused considerable inconvenience and delay each year, and it is very likely that a revised constitution will be introduced at this meeting. It is imperative, however, for this time that fifty members be present, and the C.G.E. employees are requested to turn out in sufficient numbers to get the club under way for the coming year.

SELECTS BEAT CHALLENGERS FIVE TO ONE

JUVENILES PLAY.

Stripes Narrowly Save Themselves From a Whitewashing —Broken Ball Holds Up Play.

The team chosen by the executive to represent Peterborough, in the recent game against Toronto demonstrated their worth against the challenge eleven of the city on Saturday afternoon when they trounced them to the tune of five goals to one, at King Edward Park.

Ben McMaster being in the mood to score goal, and had four of them to his credit. The inclusion of a few juveniles resulted in the younger element showing their worth in senior company. The son of Jack Clark, who acted in the capacity of referee for years, gave a good account of himself at right half. While Arthur Downer, at outside left, was always dangerous on that wing.

First Half

It was a game in which play kept swinging nearly all the time. The Stripes should have taken the lead, but Preston missed the cross-bar from close range. Then mid-field tackling ended in favor of the Blues, Buchan dribbling his way up through the halves of the opposition side to let Jack McMaster gain possession. With a feint to the right, he beat two men in succession to slip the sphere right up the centre to his brother. Ben jumped upon the pass to beat the full backs on the run and with a smart left footer that left his foot like a shot of a gun, opened the scoring. Five minutes later, Jack McMaster held the upper hand of an attack to trap the ball when being tackled, and with a timely touch put his team ahead with number two. Preston then opened an aggressive campaign to reduce the lead. Repeatedly Foster carried the play right down into the corner to centre into the goal where Preston and David Green battled to gain possession, with each claiming an occasional victory. Play ran from end to end, with Ben McMaster repeating his same performance on the next visit to the Stripes goal. Fowler, for the Blues, gave a great display in goal to hold Burgess, Preston and Foster scoreless for the rest of the period. A surprise shot by Ben McMaster just before the interval increased the count to four. Petes (Blues) 4; Stripes, 0.

Half Time

The second half opened with the Stripes' goal being hard pressed and the defense of Blowers and Pottle working overtime to hold the citadel from downfall. A prolonged interval caused by the ball being in an unfit condition, finally left the players in a quandry as to what should be done. David Leether came to the rescue by procuring another ball and the battle continued with the contestants waiting to battle out the decision to the limit. A break-away by Newt. Downer ended in Ben McMaster landing a smart drive into the far corner of the net with the count standing at five. To save the challengers from a white-washing, they instituted a bombardment to get the desired goal to make the game end. Petes Select (Blues) 5; Stripes, 1.

Petes Select—Fowler (Caledonians), goal; D. Green (Brinton) and A. Downer (C.P.C.) full backs; B. Bolam (C.G.E.), J. Buchan (C.P.C.) and J. Clark (Juvenile) halves; Murphy (Caledonians), N Downer (C.P.C.), B. McMaster and J. McMaster (C.G.E.), and Arthur Downer (Juveniles), forwards.

Select.—J. Lewiston (C.G.E.) goal; J. Pottie (Caledonians) and G. Blowers (C.G.E.), full backs; S. Laidler (Brinton), W. Robb (C.G.C.) and A. Bromley (C.P.C.), halves; A. Burgess (C.G.E.); A. McPhate (Juvenile), R. Preston (C.P.C.), D. Best (Caledonians) and T. Foster (C.P.C.) forwards.

Referee—Jack Hodson.

IN POLICE COURT

Blood flowed freely on George street late Saturday night, when Constable Jack Deannard endeavored to arrest two pugnacious drunks. The men were taken to the station despite the damage created by their flying fists, and this morning pleaded to being intoxicated and obstructing an officer in the execution of his duty.

One was charged as a second offender under the L.C.A. and was given the choice of a $75 fine or two months, while the other who is alleged to have started the fight, pleaded guilty to obstructing Constable Deannard, and was given $100 fine or two months.

Fifteen days was given a local man who pleaded guilty to vagrancy. Again the man said that he had harmed no one and was merely looking for work. He had lost his job through illness, he said, and was actively searching for another.

"There is a new angle to this case and I am asking for an adjournment until Friday," Crown Attorney McElderry said, when the four Poles, charged with beating up a Serbian on Aylmer street last Sunday night, were marshalled into the dock. The adjournment was granted.

Said to have been "cutting up" around Young's Point a young married woman pleaded guilty to vagancy. She was remanded until Friday at the request of the Crown Attorney.

WESTBROOK IS STAR AT MEET

Local Youth Shows Heels to Rest of Sprinters of McMaster University.

IN HAMILTON STADIUM.

Harry Westbrook, of Peterborough, showed his heels to the sprinters of McMaster University on Friday afternoon at the Hamilton civic stadium when that college held its annual sports field day. Westbrook won the 100 yards, 220 yards, and 440 yards and was second in 220-yard low hurdles. R. Salmoni pulled up enough points in the other events, however, to tie Westbrook for the meets individual point honors.

A cold wind chilled the athletes, but sufficient enthusiasm was displayed by competitors and spectators to prove that field sports are booming at McMaster.

Due to the dumping of Russian grain on the British market, the farmers of Southern Ireland are getting for the oats the lowest prices in 30 years.

INTERPROVINCIAL UNION RACE TURNS INTO 3-CORNERED TIE FOLLOWING WEEK-END RESULTS

Seven Scheduled Major Fixtures Tightly Contested With Lead Depending on Three.

ARGOS TO MEET M.A.A.

Wally Whitty and Gordon Perry Stars of Montreal Clash.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 27.—(C.P.)—Weary and battered football players rested to-day after Saturday's hectic struggle in Eastern Canada's three major leagues. The seven scheduled fixtures were nearly all tightly contested and on the result of three of them depended the leadership of the three unions.

Montreal Amateur Athletic Association provided one of the feature developments of the day by holding the vaunted Hamilton Tigers to a five all deadlock in an Interprovincial Union match played at Montreal. The Wheelers by their inspired play not only kept abreast of the Dominion champions in the standing but also did Toronto Argonauts a good turn. The latter by defeating Ottawa Senators, 20 to 2, advanced into contention and are but one point behind Montreal and Hamilton, so that the race has developed into a three-cornered affair.

CHIEF OBSTACLES.

Splendid punting by Wally Whitty, steady playing half-back, coupled with Gordon Perry's spectacular running through the broken field, proved the chief obstacle to the Tiger's tenth straight victory.

Brian Timmins, one of the greatest plungers in the game to-day, crashed through the Montreal defence early in the first quarter to block Whitty's kick and gallop over for a touchdown which was not converted. Early in the second frame the Winged Wheelers tallied three points on Whitty's placement kick following a 60 yard dash by Perry. They added another single in the third to knot the count and conclude the scoring of the best game Montreal fans have witnessed in years. Argos encountered little difficulty in beating the youthful Ottawa squad and should be in fine condition for the battle against Montreal here next Saturday.

Gordon Beal, clever quarterback found an opening around the short end to race 35 yards for a touchdown which he converted in the second quarter, to give Argos a commanding lead. The only other major score was credited to Joe Wright, Jr., a local oarsman, who dribbled a blocked kick 40 yards for a try. The balance of the Argo points resulted from a placement kick, rouges and deadline singles.

First Since 1928

It was a happy squad of University of Toronto players who returned from Kingston with the first victory over Queen's university since 1928 tucked under their belts. The score was six to one and like most of the other intercollegiate union fixtures played to date the game was marked by the absence of major tallies; all the scoring being done via the aerial route.

The game was bitterly fought and many old feuds were settled. The difference between victory and defeat as was expected rested with the opposing backfielders. Jack Sinclair, Varsity's kicking luminary, tipped the scales in the Blue and White clad team's favor for he not only outkicked the Queen's ace, Howard Carter, but also out-generalled him. Sinclair scored every one of Varsity's points, a feat he has performed in every game to date. He was given great co-operation by his team-mate Billy Bell, who was the best broken field runner of the game.

After two heart breaking defeats University of Western Ontario gave old man "Jinx" the go-by when they defeated McGill University, five points to one, to register the most popular victory in any union. Now they have gotten the winning habit Western may surprise inter-collegiate fans by climbing steadily in the standing.

Smashing gains through the line plus "Pat" Paterson's excellent kicking was largely responsible for the Mustang's triumph. Paterson scored a beautiful drop kick in addition to two singles and played a faultless game in handling the McGill kicks.

Another Surprise.

One of the real surprises of the day occurred at Hamilton, where the steadily improving Tiger Cubs of that city trounced the Sarnia Imperials, holders of the Ontario Rugby Football Union crown, by 14 points to 9, in a keenly contested match. The victory gave the Cubs undisputed possession of first place in the Western group standing. Kitchener-Waterloo who were previously tied with Sarnia and the Cubs at the top also suffered a reverse, losing to Windsor 10 to 7.

The Cubs won their game after Sarnia had crashed over their goal-line for a major score in the opening quarter. Rallying brilliantly, the winning team scored a try and a single to knot the count at 6-6 by half-time. During the last half the Cubs tallied eight more points on a touchdown, and a field goal, while the Imperials were held to a safety-touch and a rouge.

Noel Jubeville's spectacular 85-yard run for a touchdown was the highlight of Windsor's victory over Kitchener. Wilson converted the try and also scored a clever drop-kick to help the Border Cities' cause.

In the third O.R.F.U. game played in the Eastern group, University of Toronto "Orphans" and Camp Borden played a wide-open brand of football with the "Orphans" winning 30 to 12.

CLUB PRESENTATION IS WELL RECEIVED

"As a Woman Thinketh" Presented in Lecture Hall of Mark Street Church.

Despite the bad weather and so many attractions in the city, on Friday evening a good crowd gathered in the Lecture Hall of Mark Street Church for the play, "As a Woman Thinketh," so ably presented by the Dramatic Club of Knox Church.

The play has become very popular in the last few weeks, not only because of the skilful performance of the players, but because the theme is interesting and instructive, portraying as it does the psychological reaction of very ordinary human beings to an enthusiastic and very determined "sub-conscious mind." Mrs. Weeden, a slave to her house and family, attempts to clean up her sitting-room on the morning after a party, and learns very disquietening things about her family. She is utterly disheartened, when she faces her husband's ill-temper, her daughters' extravagance and taste for low company, her schoolboy son's addiction to cigarettes, and her servants' dishonesty and stupidity. A Hindu lecturer is introduced by the Secretary of the Modern Science Club, who very forcibly, with his modern ideas and ideals, instils in her a desire to transform her family to her tastes. She immediately puts her plans into operation, to the great amusement of the observer, as there seems to be at first some doubt as to her sanity, and later as the characters are transformed, literally on the stage. The experiment proves a complete success, and the drudge of the first act becomes the idolized mother of an adoring family, devoted husband and efficient and trustworthy servants.

Mrs. A. Huffman, as Mrs. Weeden, had a difficult and arduous part, which she performed with characteristic thoroughness and skill. All other players had a full share in the humor and the plot, and all were convincing in their respective roles.

Mrs. McLachlan, who directed the play, has been gratified by its reception, and has accepted a series of engagements, both in this city and in neighboring towns.

Mr. Hughes ably assisted between the first and second acts with a solo. Mr. T. Allen and Miss M. Pollock obliged with a piano duet between the second and third acts, followed by a reading by Mrs. C. Huffman. This entertainment was well rendered and received great ovation.

The players were as follows:

Charles Weeden—Just an every day husband—Bill Wedlock.

Rev. Dunning—A Pastor of the Past—Gord. Morrison.

Will Weeden—The son, inclined to be wild—Tom Wallace.

Caleb Mead—Olive's Husband, always in the shade—Alex. Wedlock.

Hawk Drips Blood, Forecasts Battle

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 27. (CP) An extraordinary tale of an Egyptian mummified hawk that drips "blood" during wartime was told to-day by Lord Robert Baden-Powell chief scout.

Lord Baden-Powell says he is not superstitious enough to believe that the hawk really forecasts the coming of war, but thinks its prophetic powers are "an amazing coincidence."

"Mind you, I am not superstitious enough to think that the hawk by some weird means forecasts war, but no doubt many people would seize upon that theory. Personally, I think it is just an amazing coincidence" he says.

National Hockey League Bell-Ringers Hear Delayed Penalty Rule Explained

MONTREAL, Oct. 27.—Representatives of six clubs, eight referees and several coaches and other hockey officials gathering here Saturday for the annual "explanation of rules" of the National Hockey League by President Frank Calder. The meeting lasted over four hours, during which time the rule book was discussed from cover to cover, and old regulations gone over once more, as well as newones studied.

Those attending the meeting were: Cecil M. Hart, Montreal Canadiens; Duncan Munro, Maroons; Lester Patrick New York Rangers; Arthur Ross, Boston Bruins; Dave Gill and Newsy Lalonde, Ottawa Senators; Cooper Smeaton, Philadelphia Quakers; and the following members of the 1930-31 N.H.L. Refereeing Board: Bobby Hewitson, Bert Corbeau, George Mallinson, Jerry Goodman, Redvers Mackenzie, Ernie Davins, J. Wagner and Eusebe Daignault.

Four clubs were unrepresented—Detroit, New York Americans, Chicago and Toronto. Mr. Calder will hold another meeting with Adams, Gerard, Tobin and Smythe, respective managers of these clubs, in Toronto in the near futue. To-day's discussion will be repeated for the benefit of these managers at this meeting.

The greatest innovation in this year's rules, the "delayed penalty" section, was carefully gone over by the meeting. The rule states: "If a third player of any team shall be penalized while two players of the same team are serving penalties, the penalty time of the third player shall not commence until the penalty time of one of the two players already penalized shall have elapsed. Nevertheless, the third player penalized must at once proceed to the penalty bench, but may be replaced by as substitute until such time as the penalty of the penalized player commence.

CODRINGTON COUPLE CELEBRATE FIFTY YEARS OF MARRIED LIFE

Children Honor Mr. and Mrs. David C. Plumpton on Golden Wedding Anniversary.

ONTARIO PIONEERS.

CAMPBELLFORD Oct. 27.— (By Examiner Staff Correspondent.)—Fifty years of married life is to the credit of Mr. and Mrs. David C. Plumpton of Codrington who on October 13 celebrated their golden wedding and are still hail and hearty and eagerly watching the transition that is taking place in the world as they have watched it from the early days when rush lights, ox teams and man power were the vogue.

The celebration was featured by a family gathering when all the children living in Ontario were present to pay their respects to the family heads. Many letters and telegrams were received by Mr. and Mrs. Plumpton from their children and friends in the west. The happy couple also received many beautiful presents.

David C. Plumpton and Nancy Jane Helmer were married on October 13, 1880 at Norham, settling after their wedding on the farm at present occupied by them.

The head of the Plumpton family in Canada, Mr. Plumpton's grandfather, came to this country from England over one hundred years ago. He settled in the Codrington district, which was then all bush, and commenced the arduous task of hewing for himself and his family a farm out of the virgin land. This property, which is the present Plumpton farm, remains as a memorial to the hard work, thrift and industry of the grandfather.

Mrs. Plumpton is of United Empire Loyalist stock whose parents settled in the Cornwall district. On their death Mrs. Plumpton moved to Murray township and resided with a married sister, from whose home she was married.

This venerable couple, pioneers of the early days and two of the builders of rural Ontario, reared thirteen children. These are: Jacob John of Calfax, Sask.; Ernest, at home; Mrs. Blake Cryderman of Campbellford; David Louis of Belmont, Man.; Mrs. Harry Craig, of Brighton; Mrs. Harry Mitchell of Wawanesa, Man.; Charles of Trenton; Mrs. Ross Sherwin of Campbellford; and Miss Vera at home. Three of the family died at an early age. There are also twelve grandchildren, seven in Ontario and five in the west.

And so the happy pair live on, with their children scattered over the Dominion, yet proud in the thought that they are part of that big family that has laid the foundation of our country.

Progressive Reports Read At Meeting

Mrs. Howard Jordon Entertains Woman's Auxiliary of Saint Thomas' Church.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 27.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—Mrs. Howard Jordan entertained the Woman's Auxiliary of Saint Thomas' church for its October meeting at her home, Anne street, on Monday evening, the attendance being most gratifying, and the reports of activities in progress encouraging and showing good results obtaining.

The president, Mrs. C. M. Westmacott, occupied the chair, and Rev. P. W. A. Roberts, rector in charge of the parish, read the opening scripture lessons and the prayers.

The secretary-treasurer of the Woman's Guild, an organization within the Auxiliary membership, Mrs. H. R. Scott, reported a fair balance on hand, and during the discussion of business items it was decided to hold a home baking sale, November 1, probably in Dr. H. A. Turner's store, under Guild auspices, to assist in having the required amount on hand before the close of the year.

Mrs. Jordan reported for the Junior W. A., emphasizing the good attendance of the boys and girls, and the work well under way for the year. Mrs. Scott's report dealt with the Little Helpers, and was satisfactory in its details.

Mrs. Whyte assumed the responsibility for the sale of the church calendars for another year, fifty orders having already been received. The president read a letter received from Mrs. Townsend, of Haliburton, who expressed gratitude for the parcel of clothing which the Auxiliary had sent last month in response to an appeal for help in this particular. Mrs. Westmacott also read an interesting article from the Missionary Bulletin, and reminded the members of the extra individual pledge of one dollar per member to be brought in at the November meeting, this to help toward the missionary apportionment.

Rev. Mr. Roberts took up the time usually given to the study book, reading an instructive report from the recent Lambeth Conference on "The Life and Witness of the Christian Community in the Home and Family Life."

The invitation of Miss Muriel Smith to have the November W. A. meeting at her mother's home was gratefully accepted. This will be the final meeting for this year, and the election of officers will probably be held; the first meeting for the new year will be held in January and arrangements for this will be completed at the next regular meeting.

Mrs. Jordan served dainty refreshments during the social hour enjoyed at the close and the usual vote of thanks were extended to the hostess before the gathering dispersed.

Rev. Dwelly Inducted Into His New Parish

On Thursday, October 23rd, at All Saints' Church, Penetanguishene, Rev. R. T. C. Dwelly, B.A., B.D., formerly of Young's Point, was inducted as Rector of the Parish of Penetanguishene. The Rt. Rev. J. F. Sweeney, M.A., D.D., D.C.L., L.L.D., Lord Bishop of Toronto, conducted the induction service and preached from the text, Acts vi., 4: 'The Ministry of the Word,' taking as his subject the Ministry of the Christian Church.

Rev. A. E. Winnington Ingram, Rector of Midland, read Evensong. Rev. W. C. Stubbs, L.Th., Rector of Elmvale and Rural Dean read the lesson, and Rev. C. R. Spencer of Shanty Bay acted as Bishop's Chaplain. At the conclusion of the sermon, A. H. Cuttle, Esq., Finance Commissioner of the Diocese of Toronto, gave an address on the Layman's responsibilities.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—Forecasts of a huge enlargement of wheat production this season in Argentina and Australia pulled grain values downward Saturday, regardless of Argentine reports of rust. Late despatches from Rosario, Argentina, told of rust threatening the wheat crop in the Province of Cordoba, but omitted any assertion of actual damage yet. On the other hand, tentative estimates were current that Argentina and Australia together soon would have a combined exportable wheat surplus of 295,000,000 bushels, an increase of 145,000,000 bushels over the past season's shipments.

Closing Prices Are Weak

Closing quotations on wheat here were at virtually the day's bottom level, ¾c to 1⅝c a bushel lower than Friday's finish. Corn closed ¾c to 1¼ down, oats ⅛ to ⅜c off, and provisions varying from 10c setback to a rise of 5c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, October 27. — Losses of ⅞c to 1⅛c occurred in the wheat market on Saturday, easiness at Chicago and the cessation of export buying near the end of trading resulted in the losses. The first hour of the session witnessed moderate export buying, which held values firm until the final hour.

Trading was fairly active in the futures, cash wheat and coarse grains were unchanged in price.

EARLY ELECTION IS PREDICTED

Political Uncertainty Predominates as Next Session of British Commons Draws Nearer.

PALESTINE POLICY.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 27 (C.P. Cable)—In view of the political uncertainty wherein the British Parliament begins its session to-morrow, many people are talking of the possibility of an early election. How an election would be brought about is another matter. The Labor Government can be defeated in the House of Commons only by a combination of Conservatives and Liberals, and there is no sign at present of any desire on the part of the Liberals to turn the Government out.

While the fact that Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Lloyd George have both criticized the Government's Palestine policy is regarded in some quarters as a new menace to the Government in next week's debates is not yet certain this question will come before the House of Commons in the form of an amendment to the address. Carrying of an amendment to the address means defeat of the Government and resignation or dissolution. While the Palestine question will certainly be discussed in general debate, it is improbable that it will be made a matter of life or death for the Government by proposal of an amendment to the address.

Mr. Lown was born on November 18, 1879. His work in connection with transportation began in 1893 as a boy in a railway office. His ability won rapid advancement and in 1912 he was appointed to organize a traffic department for Imperial Oil Limited, whose head offices were then situated at Sarnia, Ontario. During the period from 1912 until a few days ago when illness intervened he was continuously in charge of this department which has grown rapidly as the company has become the biggest customer of the Canadian Railways.

Mr. Lown was widely known as an export in matters relating to transport and his phenomenal memory in connection with rates and other matters of business was often a subject of amazement for his associated. He knew practically evern person in the railway industries in Canada from those in the most humble positions to the highest officers of the lines.

JAPANESE TRADE IS BEING SOUGHT

Canadian Commerce Delegates Will Study Requirements to Boost Business.

OCEAN BOND OF UNITY.

YOKOHAMA, Japan, October 27 (C.P.). — "In Canada we are coming to feel with you in Japan that the ocean, which seems to divide us, is in reality a bond of unity," John M. Imrie, Edmonton, chairman of the Canadian Chambers of Commerce trade delegation to the Orient, said in a statement given to the press of Japan upon arrival of the delegation here to-day on board the Empress of Russia.

Mr. Imrie's statement read as follows:

"It is a desire for closer and more intimate contacts with the business interests of Japan that has brought this delegation across the Pacific from Canada. Our coming is prompted by friendliness and goodwill and the hope of mutual benefit.

"In Canada we are coming to feel with you in Japan that the ocean which seems to divide us is in reality a bond of unity. The several countries that border it have become a community of nations. Among these Canada is as a child. But while lacking your rich history and maturity, Canada has lately displayed in common with Japan, a capacity for vigorous expression in a rapidly widening export trade, for part of which the sea lanes of the Pacific have provided a common channel.

"To-day, Japan is Canada's third largest customer and Canada's purchases in return are increasingly substantial. Yet we in Canada have lagged behind you in personal analysis of the means of fostering this mutual trade. This delegation has come in a spirit of humble and friendly inquiry to study the trade conditions and trade requirements of Jaapn."

GIRL UNWANTED GETS SIX MONTHS

Local Girl Appears in Police Court in Cobourg on Vagrancy Charge.

FOUND TO BE PENNILESS.

(Special to The Examiner)

COBOURG, Oct. 27—Unwanted by her parents in Peterborough who wrote Chief of Police Ruse that they "could do nothing with her" Beatrice Douglas, 17 in July of this year, who claimed Peterborough as her "home" was sentenced Saturday by Col. W. H. Floyd, Police Magistrate, to six months' determinate and six months' indeterminate in Mercer Reformatory. Accused had been charged with vagrancy.

When the charge of being an "idle person" was read to her, the young girl declared she had "nothing to say" and her manner proclaimed that she was uninterested in what was to happen to her. She asked no questions of either Provincial Constable Bill Carey or Chief Ruse when they told the court their reasons for believing her a vagrant.

In passing sentence, Col. Floyd said, "You have led an idle life and it is time you were checked. I am going to give you a chance to clean house and to profit by your past experience. It is for your good, and I hope you will come out a better girl, that you will be kinder to your parents. You have to make the change, no one can do it for you."

The young forlorn accused, who looks even younger than her 17 years, was arrested Oct. 18 by Provincial Constable Carey when he found her on King street East, penniless, alone, and without definite destination.

She had come here from attending the fair at Roseneath, previous to which she had been "laid off" by a Peterborough Canning firm.

DOROTHY DIX writes on Feminine Daintiness...

Dorothy Dix

PETERBOROUGH Girl's Letter

MARCIA C hasn't found the key to romance . . .

"He likes me, Miss Dix," she writes, "but there isn't a sign of his falling in love with me, and yet he's the one man in the world—"

To all the girls like Marcia in this city I want to say . . . don't be disheartened romance can be yours. It is every girl's birthright.

To win out, Marcia, you must have, first of all, faith in yourself. Faith in your daintiness—your charming femininity.

Clothes will help you . . . for clothes have a subtle effect on a woman's psychology . . . and I don't mean just the clothes that show.

When everything you wear—including your lingerie, your stockings, all your intimate things—is very dainty, colourful, you yourself feel perfectly charming.

And because you FEEL charming you ARE charming.

It is all summed up in two simple rules—

FIRST: Buy the loveliest, laciest underthings you can, for they make you believe in yourself.

SECOND: Keep them colourful, shimmering, like new—for drab, faded underthings cannot give you this feeling of dainty femininity.

You may ask, "But how can we keep these delicate things colour-fresh in spite of frequent washing—colours fade so easily!"

No doubt colours do fade when washed the ordinary way with ordinary soap, but there is a wonderful product made especially to preserve colour in the daintiest fabrics.

"You must have faith in yourself—in your daintiness — in your charming femininity"

Of course I mean Lux. Lux is especially made to cleanse without disturbing the vibrant, alluring loveliness of colours.

NOT ONLY CAN YOU WIN CONFIDENCE of charm through the effect dainty, colourful lingerie has on you, and also directly through the magnetism of colour in frocks, blouses, scarfs—but through your very surroundings.

THE RETURN OF TARZAN No. 37 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Tarzan gave himself up for lost, when the priestess, forming in two lines, marched about him. He noted a commotion among the priests. A burly, gorrila-like one tried to claim a smaller one's place in the line awaiting the victim's life-blood. Tarzan heard him grumble and growl as La, the high priestess, ordered him back.

Standing above Tarzan, La began an incantation, while she slowly raised her thin, sharp knife aloft. It seemed ages to the ape-man before her arm ceased its upward progress and the knife halted high above his unprotected breast. Slowly it started downward. Still he heard the angered priest's voice rising louder and louder.

Tarzan rolled his head in the direction of the sound in time to see the burly fellow leap upon a priestess and dash out her brains! Then that happened which Tarzan had witnessed many times among his own tribe. There was scarcely any of the males of the forest that did not at times fall prey to it. The priest went mad!

With fearful cries of rage he ran amuck, dealing terrific blows, sinking his yellow fangs into each luckless victim. And during it, La stood with poised knife above Tarzan, her eyes fixed in horror upon the maniacal thing dealing death to her votaries. Now in the emptied room remained only the dead and dying, the victim upon the altar, the high priestess—and the madman!

WEDDING BELLS

MANN—ARCHER

The Gilmour Memorial Baptist Church, prettily decorated with Autumn flowers was the scene of an interesting wedding on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 23 at 2.30 o'clock, when Mary Mildred Archer, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Archer, youngest daughter of Mr. Archer of Smith township, was united in marriage to James Earl Mann of etroit, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Gordon Mann of Smith.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe of Peterborough. The Lohengrin wedding march was played by Miss Mabel Paul.

The dainty bride entered the church on the arm of her father.

She was attired in a graceful gown of eggshell crepe satin of ankle length. Her veil was white silk net with a lace cap held in place by a cluster of orange blossoms. Long white kid gloves, white silk hose and white kid shoes completed the bride's costume. Her bouquet was of Butterfly roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Margaret Mann, sister of the bridegroom, wore honey dew crepe, black velvet hat and black satin shoes and carried Briarcliff roses.

Little Shirley Bothwell, niece of the bride, made a charming little flower girl, wearing a pink Swiss dotted muslin dress and pink velvet poke bonnet trimmed with fur. She carried a basket of feathery pink asters.

Clarence Mann assisted the bridegroom. Ushers were Harold Archer and Joseph Mann. During the signing of the register, Mrs. James Young, aunt of the bride, sang "All Be Thine". Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The house was decorated with pink and white crepe paper and Autumn flowers.

Mrs. Archer, mother of the bride, wore a gown of black canton crepe trimmed with sand and a corsage bouquet of roses.

Mrs. Mann, mother of the bridegroom, wore a gown of black spanish lace and a corsage bouquet of pink mums.

The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a topaz dinner ring; to the bridesmaid, a brilliant bracelet; to the best man and ushers, green and white gold knives and chain; to the pianist a silver bon-bon dish and to the soloist an oil painting.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Mann left by motor for their home in Detroit, the bride travelling in a beige dress and a navy coat trimmed with fur and a blue hat.

THIEVES ENTER COCA COLA PLANT

Eighteen Bottles of Beverage Were Removed Over the Week-end.

SAFE NOT TOUCHED.

Some eighteen bottles of the beverage from which the firm derives its name was the booty carried off by thieves who some time between Saturday night and this morning broke into the local plant of the Coca-Cola Company on George Street. Entry was obtained by smashing the lock of the garage at the rear of the building, through which the thieves made their way into the main plant. The safe there was apparently not interfered with, the uninvited guests merely stopping for "the pause that refreshes," and helping themselves to a dozen and a half bottles from the large stock kept on hand.

IN MEMORIAM.

BRIOUX.— In loving memory of my twin sister Katie (Dot Graham) wife of Alphonse Brioux, who passed away Oct. 27, 1924:

Gone from earth so swiftly
Plucked like a flower in bloom,
So young, so fair, so loving,
Yet called away so soon.

We think of you in silence
And your name we oft recall,
But there's nothing left to answer
But your picture on the wall.

IN MEMORIAM

DALY—In loving memory of Mrs. James Daly who departed this life Oct. 28, 1929.

ONE YEAR AGO

One year ago this month of rosary
An Angel came to call our Mother home
And guide her soul to that eternity
Where dwells the God of love on heaven's throne.

One year ago the sun of morning bright
With golden glow shone 'round you, Mother dear
But loving hearts were sad e'er came the night
For you had gone and left us sorrowed here.

One year ago today your lips we pressed
And knelt beside your silent form in prayer
The cold still hands we crossed upon your breast
Above that kindly heart now stilled for e'er.

One year ago today in realms above
Amid the Saints in heavenland on high
Your soul was crowned through Christ's redeeming love
With life eternal that shall never die.

One year ago. Fast flow the sands of time.
Some day again our Mother dear we'll see
And in the garden of God's love divine
Walk hand in hand for all eternity.

Farwell 'till then, oh dearest Mother mine
And when on earth each task of life is o'er
Our souls made pure shall journey home to thine
To share your joys with God for evermore.

—Ever remembered by her son, Joseph E. Daly.

3 NATIONS' HEADS HOPES RUN HIGH

"that the moment is favorable for a wide extension of the policy of disarmament that is embodied in this Treaty."

Encouragement for Future

Emphasizing the world's hopes for disarmament, Premier Ramsay Macdonald asserted to-day that the solution of the British-Japanese-United States naval problem under the London Naval Treaty should be a great source of encouragement to future endeavors in such agreements.

The Premier's speech, following those of Premier Hamagucki and President Hoover on the deposit of formal treaty ratifications at London, touched at some length on the Franco-Italian negotiations to solve the naval limitation question between these two countries.

The ultimate failure of these negotiations, the Premier said, was "unthinkable" to him, since world hopes for progress in disarmament were focused on these efforts.

"What a happy day for the world will be the day of that agreement," Premier MacDonald said.

At the outset, the Premier pointed out that to-day's ceremony, while simple in character, represented the culmination of the second successful effort in naval disarmament.

Text of Address

The text of the Prime Minister's statement follows in part:—

"This morning I attended a dignified little ceremony of the deposit of ratifications of the London Naval Treaty.

"The ratification's deposited were those of His Majesty the King, in respect of the members of the British Commonwealth of Nations; of the United States of America, and His Majesty the Emperor of Japan.

"Owing to a purely technical difficulty, the King's ratification in respect of the Irish Free State could not be deposited to-day, but the delay is not expected to be more than a few weeks at the outside and at the end of that time the Treaty will come into force as between the powers which have ratified it.

"Although the ceremony was short and simple it represented the culmination of the second successful effort in naval disarmament.

"The first was taken at Washington in 1922, when the five principal naval powers agreed to the limitation and regulation of their capital ship and aircraft carrier construction. Now, for the first time in history, the three principal naval powers will put into operation a system of limitation and reduction which will apply to all parts of their respective fleets up to 1936.

Thus for the period named, and we fondly hope for all time.

"The treaty was also signed by France and Italy, but these two powers are not yet parties to that section of the treaty which limits naval strength. It is my most earnest hope that the negotiations which have recently been proceedings between France and Italy to enable them to come into this part of the treaty may before long reach a successful issue.

Failure Unthinkable.

"Ultimate failure is to be unthinkable, for world hopes for the progress of disarmament are focused on these efforts and the good wishes of all of us must go out to those who are responsible for these difficult negotiations. What a happy day for the world will be the day of that agreement, what a vast addition to national security will then be made, how high will the value of our peace efforts then rise.

"Those who read that part of the London Naval Treaty which settles the ratios between the United States, Japan and ourselves up to 1936 may think this a fairly simple matter, but in reality the success of to-day was preceded by years of abortive negotiation and by the emergence of problems which at one time looked well night insoluble. The way of the peacemaker and not only of the transgressor, is verily hard.

"During all those years there were natural feelings of irritation and suspicion in the countries concerned and behind all lurked the dark spectre of the race in armaments which has so often in the past proved to be the current running down to war. Unless we—and by that I mean every naval power in the world—manage to stop this now, history will inevitably repeat itself.

Improved Relations.

"Perhaps there is no better way of estimating gravity of the dangers and difficulties which we have escaped than by recognizing the enormous benefit to the relations between the three powers which has become apparent since the signature of the treaty. Make bold to state that at no time in their history have the relations between the Governments of the United States and Japan and the Governments of the British Commonwealth of Nations been closer or more cordial than they have been since the signature of the treaty, and what is true of the Governments is true of the people, and will become increasingly so as time goes on and the essential fairness and value of the treaty is understood by an ever-increasing circle.

"Of course, the treaty has been attacked in this country as in the United States and Japan, but an interesting comparison has been made of the arguments used by the protagonists of this campaign in each of the three countries, and they have been found to cancel themselves out almost completely. In other words, each group of critics has considered the treaty unfair to its own country for reason which, when tabulated, have been found to be almost identical.

"The friendly relationship and collaborations between our countries which is directly attributable to this treaty should surely be a great source of encouragement to those who are now endeavoring to reach agreement among themselves and afterwards with us. However painful may be the process of negotiation, success has the effect of smoothing away dreaded international difficulties in an almost magical way, and surely some slight sacrifice of claims hitherto considered important is worth while with such a glorious goal in view."

Hoover's Address

Mr. Hoover's address, which took six minutes to deliver and was transmitted by radio from Washington to every section of the world, along with those of the representatives of of the other two Governments, follows in full text:

"To-day the Governments of Great Britain, Japan and the United States have deposited the instruments of ratification to the London Naval Treaty. Prime Minister MacDonald and Premier Hamaguchi are joining with me in speaking to you to mark the significance of this realization of further advancement in the world hopes of a practical limitation of naval armament.

"The task begun eighteen months ago for the limitation of all types of naval vessels thus draws to a close. The naval powers have bridged obstacles and achieved an understanding to relieve their peoples of excessive naval urdens. Three of these powers commanding the great part of the world's naval forces have turned away from rivalry in armaments, and disproportionate growth of their navies is now prevented by an arrangement founded in common sense.

"This relinquishment of competitive buildings among the three great naval powers with its consequent contribution to the security of the world is the greatest significance of this treaty. If the limitations now established can be maintained we may looked forward with assurance to the fact that future conferences will find it easier to bring about further steps in reduction. It is the fervent prayer of right-thinking men and women of this generation that the international confidence which has been so patiently and single-mindedly achieved may endure so that the agreements which have been reached may live and be extended. Never again must a race in naval armaments be allowed to develop.

Solution Hoped For.

"France and Italy are not as yet full partners in the London Treaty. They have been making active efforts within the last few months to arrive at a complete understanding. The people of Great Britain, Japan, and the United States, and indeed the peoples of the whole world, have watched those efforts and confidently hope that patience and goodwill may yet lead to a solution.

"The sessions of the five Powers at London have served to strengthen mutual trust and confidence among them and they give me assurance that the hopes of the world will not be disappointed. It is a pleasure to felicitate the peoples of Great Britain and apan, and the people of this country, upon the conclusion of a sound and reasonable agreement between them, fair to all and dangerous to none, which has been accepted by each nation as affording adequate protection and which substitutes for suspicion and competiton mutual trust, goodwill, and confidence. Let this day fill us with thanks and inspire us to go forward with the courage of hope."

Hamaguchi's Speech.

Joining Premier Ramsay MacDonald and President Hoover in celebrating depositing by the three Governments adhering to the treaty of their instruments of ratification, the Japanese Premier, in an address at Tokio, said, "We may now believe that a more generous and neighborly spirit is fast replacing the jealousies and suspicions of the past."

His address follows in full text:

"The memorable conference which was held in 1921 and 1922 at Washington failed to give a complete measure of relief to a war-weary world. A totally unexpected competition set in among naval architects in the production of numerous and very formidable cruisers. These vessels were so heavily armed, so swift and so well protected as to constitute a factor of extreme importance in any comparison of fleets. It was some time before the existence of the problem and its dangers and difficulties became apparent. Various efforts were made toward its solution, but they seemed to lead to no result, and the leading naval powers were rapidly drifting towards an impasse, with the prospect before them of a renewal of the wasteful competition and crushing expenditure which had been temporarily arrested at Washington.

Danger Averted at London

"This dangerous possibility was averted at London. The assiduous labours exerted in 1927 at Geneva were not without fruit, but paved the way for a welcome measure of disarmament. An understanding was reached between Japan, the British Commonwealth of Nations and the United States to put an end to competitive building in all categories of Auxiliary combatant vessels. Nor is that tripartite agreement relating to auxiliary craft the only outstanding feature of the work of the London conference.

A treaty embodying further provisions, designed to reinforce the limitation of naval armaments laid down in the Washington Treaty, and to regulate the activity of submarines in conformity with the dictates of humanity, was elaborated and signed by the five principal naval powers committed to one and the same noble end.

"I feel it a great privilege to have contributed, so far as in me lay, to this happy result The new treaty is bound to exercise an immense moral influence on the growing consciousness of mankind. It is a striking demonstration of mutual confidence and good will among the nations, and I congratulate the people of all the participating countries on such a signal achievement. I know that nothing is nearer the heart of every thinking Japanese than to enjoy security and to live in peace with the rest of the world.

"One cannot but feel that the moment is favorable for a wide extension of the policy of disarmament embodies in this treaty. Now that the Pact of Paris initiated by Mr. Briand and Mr. Kellogg has definitely outlawed war, it is clear that any breach of that solemn engagement must rally the whole world against the aggressor. Whether other powers come forward to offer active help or not, it is hardly conceivable that they would allow the pledge-breaker to interfere with their trade and to enjoy the other privileges of a lawful belligerent.

"But apart from calculations of mutual aid in time of war, may we not believe that a more generous and neighborly spirit is fast replacing the jealousies and suspicions of the past?

Bright Hopes For Future.

Shall we not confidetly hope that the deliberations of the Preparatory committee on disarmament of the League of Nations, which is to meet this coming month, will be conducted in the same genial atmosphere that alone made the success of the London conference possible? I trust that these expectations for the future will not be betrayed.

"The Treaty of London has opened a new chapter in the history of human civilization. We have once for all escaped from what I may call the "pioneer" stage, in which every nation's hand is actually or potentially against every other. We have entered on the sane and friendly "settlement" stage, in which every one is united to suppress intrusions by any one of another's sphere. A momentous step forward on the road of international peace and friendship has now been taken. Let it prove a prelude to still greater triumphs for that lofty cause.'

ed on this occasion there might never be another chance. Prime Minister Hertzog of South Africa, similarly speaking outside the conference room, declared that South Africa and the Dominions would involve a great change in British fiscal policy.

The latest pronouncement came from Premier G. W. Forbes of New Zealand who frankly stated last night that the conference seemed to be simply drifting and getting nowhere.

CROWDS WITNESS BRILLIANT MARCH TO WESTMINSTER

Speech From Throne Read Before Combined Session of Lords and Commons.

FIRST SINCE ILLNESS.

Projected Electoral Reform is Feature of Five Minute Address.

LONDON, England, October 28 (C.P.).—The King opened Parliament to-day in its annual meeting for the first time since the beginning of his serious illness two years ago. A great crowd witnessed the pageantry of the march from Buckingham Palace to Westminster, where he read before a combined meeting of the Lords and Commons his Speech from the Throne.

Politically speaking, the high point of the Speech from the Throne was His Majesty's brief statement that "a measure of electoral reform will be submitted to you." It was believed that with this measure the Labor Government will assure itself continued Liberal support, and thus place a further guarantee upon its remaining in office for some time.

Hopes for Parley Success.

The King also expressed hope of solution of pressing questions by both the Imperial Conference and the Round Table conversations of India which are soon to begin.

The speech gave indication of at least one highly controversial feature in addition to the electoral reform project, this being projected nullification of the law which made the general strike of 1926 illegal and placed restrictions on certain trade union activities which made strikes possible.

The King, who appeared to have recovered entirely from his long illness, wore a long grey greatcoat as he rode with Queen Mary in their gilded stage coach from Buckingham to Westminster through streets lined with cheering thousands.

Her Majesty, radiant and smiling, was garbed in a long coat of white material, both seemed very happy, and were greatly interested in the crowds. The Queen, frequently waved her hand and bowed in answer to the crowds' cheers.

The crowd also caught a glimpse of the Prince of Wales, and applauded him heartily as he drove from St. James' to the House of Lords in the state landau, arriving shortly before his Royal parents.

New York Police Playing Santa Claus Now Believe They Were Bait in Racket

NEW YORK, October 28. — When police of the West 123rd Street Station subscribed $25.00 to aid a woman who said she had been without food for two days and her eight-months-old baby, they believed they were helping innocent victims of the unemployment situation, but yesterday most of them were convinced they themselves had been the victims of a novel "racket."

The woman, who applied for aid for herself and her child, said she was Mrs. Celia Becker, formerly of 237 West 121st Street, the wife of Harry Becker, a motion picture operator out of work. Moved by her tale of semi-starvation, eviction for non-payment of rent, and other hardships, the policemen subscribed about $25.00, and arrangements were made to establish the woman in a rent-free room opposite the station house. After twenty minutes in her new home "Mrs. Celia Becker" departed and her blue-coated benefactors have not seen her since. The address she gave, they said, is fictitious, and no trace has been found of her husband.

BRAZILIAN GOV'T MOVES QUICKLY TO QUELL REVOLT

Rio de Janiero Police Battalion Rebel at Food Served Them.

100 CASUALTIES.

Generally Accepted Getulio Vargas Will Be Declared President.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil Oct. 28. (AP)—Strong precautionary measures were invoked to-day by the provisional authorities to preserve calm in the city until a new government can take charge and bring order out of the chaos which has succeeded deposition of President Washington Luis.

More than 100 casualties were counted in rioting which developed yesterday when parts of the fifth, second and sixth battalions of police, who in Brazil serve as soldiers in time of national need, revolted at the character of food offered them and attacked the Rio de Janeiro garrison quarters.

Fight Lasts 2 Hours

It was two hours before garrison troops could quell the uprising and restore order, the situation being greatly aggravated by hundreds of citizens who, fearing a counter-revolution, broke open stores and obtained arms with which they joined the fray. More than 400 shots were fired.

Colonel Bandeira de Mello, commanding the fifth battalion, led the police in their attack on the gar-

Mistaken for Deer, Man Shot in Back

NORTH BAY, Ont., October 28 (C.P.). — Tony Holden of Sturgeon Falls is in hospital here seriously wounded, the first victim of the hunting season in this district. Mistaken for a deer as he was running toward a runway, he received a bullet in the back from the rifle of another hunter. The slug entered just below the left shoulder blade and came out under the collarbone. The accident occurred near Mlok, about five miles from the railroad, at 10.30 on Monday. Fortunately a doctor was in the same party, and first-aid was immediately available. The injured man was taken to camp and brought into this city at six p.m. He spent an exceptionally easy night. To-day an X-ray will be taken.

FERGUSON TILTS WITH MACDONALD

Britain Described as Country of Shibboleths Resented By British Premier.

WISHED FOR SNOWDEN.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 28 (C.P. Cable). — Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and Premier G. Howard Ferguson of Ontario had another verbal tilt last night. It was at the Canada Club's dinner, when Premier Bennett and many other overseas Premiers were present.

Premier MacDonald was engaged in the customary dinner with his supporters on the eve of the opening of a new session of Parliament, but was so anxious to greet Premier Bennett he arrived almost as the Canada Club function was finishing. At the moment Premier Ferguson was speaking.

The Ontario Premier gave his impression of Great Britain as being a country of Shibboleths. In his own country safeguarding meant the protection of the people and homes, not primarily protection for industries, he said. And Empire Free Trade was another Shibboleth which could not be regarded as meaning literally what it said.

"We hear also of reciprocal tariff preferences, which appeal to me in the simplicity of my mind because it is something the ordinary layman can understand," Premier Ferguson concluded.

Would Have Brought Colleague

Premier MacDonald remarked Premier Ferguson had spoken with his usual downright manner. He always agreed with Premier Ferguson when he was right, and profoundly disagreed with him when he was wrong. Premier MacDonald said. He added he would have asked another colleague (obviously Mr. Snowden) to accompany him if he had known he was going to encounter Premier Ferguson talking in that strain.

Premier Bennett confined his own speech to a review of Canadian aspirations, ignoring the problems before the Imperial Conference to a great extent. He did say, however, that he was not despondent, and neither was he depressed. "For I am as confident as I am of anything in this world that the destiny of the British peoples will never be truly discharged until we have made our dream of co-operation come true."

"We realize the time has come when those invisible ties which bind together a quarter of the world's population should have some more tangible basis of strength and power than mere sentiment," Premier Bennett remarked

60 PASSENGERS KILLED

C.P.R. FREIGHT TIES UP TRAFFIC NEAR HAVELOCK

Regular Trains Are Routed Along the Lakeshore Main Line.

6 CARS DERAILED.

Accident Occurs in Vicinity of Peterson's Siding at Midnight.

Owing to the right of way being blocked by six freight cars and an engine between Bonar Law and Peterson's siding on the C.P.R. passenger traffic between Montreal and Toronto and Ottawa and Toronto through this city, is temporarily discontinued. The track was cleared for train No. 36 Toronto-Montreal, which went through here at noon.

The cause of the derailment is unknown. It is stated by The Examiner's Havelock correspondent that the train which was an extra from Smith's Falls, was proceeding over a bridge about thirteen miles east of Havelock. It was going slowly as is the usual practice when crossing bridges. For some unknown reason the train became derailed. The box cars which were empty did not overturn, and remained resting on the ties.

The train was in charge of conductor Wm. Griffith while the engineer was Jack Watson, both of Havelock.

An auxiliary train was sent out at about one a.m. from Havelock in charge of conductor W. J. Green and with engineer Duncan both of Smith's Falls, and later section gangs were sent to the scene of the derailment.

The two regular midnight trains through here were routed to Ottawa and Toronto along the lakeshore mainline, but a hurriedly made up train brought passengers from Toronto to Peterborough early this morning. There was only one westbound passenger train here this morning being made up at Havelock and running to Toronto.

Mailmen in the city had an easy job this morning. No mail entered the city on the C.P.R. from the east or the west owing to the wreck, and the absence of the daily pile of letters was felt in business and industrial offices throughout the city.

All east and west-bound freight through here was held up while gangs of men speeded the work of clearing the tracks for traffic.

The last east-bound train into Tweed was that arriving from Toronto at 10.10 p.m., stated Chief of Police Moon of that town, who was not in possession of any details as to the cause of the derailment.

CHINA DESIRES CANADA'S TRADE

Would Have Chinese Legation in Ottawa and Canadian in Peiping.

BROACHED IN KING REGIME.

(By Ken Clark, C. P. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 28.—The Chinese Government is apparently willing to consider the exchange of diplomatic missions with Canada. This impression is gained from Dr. C. C. Wu, Chinese Minister to Washington. An informal suggestion for such an arrangement, it is understood was made to Ottawa while the Government of former Prime Minister Mackenzie King was in power.

The idea of a Chinese legation in Ottawa and a Canadian legation in Peiping has been in the Minister's mind for some time. He pointed out that there were a great many Canadian products that might be used by China in greater quantities — for example wheat and newsprint.

"Most people," he said "look upon the Chinese as a rice eating nation. As a matter of fact half our population eat rice and the other half eat bread made from wheat flour."

Newspapers in China, he continued, were growing in numbers and size and more pulp and paper were continually required.

The Minister did not agree with the suggestion that complete political quiet in China was a necessary pre-condition to greatly increased trade between Canada and China. He remarked the fact that for several years Chinese customs receipts had been of record proportions.

Dr. Wu obviously considers the establishment of diplomatic relations of major importance. Failing such an arrangement he suggested the bringing of Chinese-Canadian diplomatic matters under the control of the legation at Tokyo.

Tame Mallards at Rice Lake

This domestic flock of Mallard ducks will not fly south with their kin when the colder weather sends them on their way. They were reared "in captivity" by George Paudash at Hiawatha, and are so tame that they are here shown getting an extra dinenr dessert from Art Blade, who says they actually ate out of his hand. The flock was developed from eggs no doubt found at Rice Lake, and they are sold by Mr. Paudash as live decoys. They wander from the Paudash poultry yard across the road to the lake, but as the behaviorists might affirm they show no inclination to seek their hereditary freedom.

FINAL RALLIES HELD TO-NIGHT OVER ONTARIO

Gov't Ministers Just Concluded Tour in Western Ontario.

BY-ELECTIONS WEDNESDAY.

Henry Spiritedly Defends Absence of Premier at Imperial Parley.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 28. (CP)—Rallies to-night will conclude the campaign which has been waged in the last few weeks in the four Provincial constituencies where by-elections will be held to-morrow to fill the vacancies in the Legislature.

At Hamburg, in Waterloo south, where a straight party fight has been fought between Norman O. Hipel, Liberal candidate and M. M. Donald, Conservative standard bearer, Liberals will conduct a meeting with M. F. Hepburn, M.P., for Elgin west, listed as the principal speaker.

Perth Campaign Ended

With the exception of minor meetings the campaign has already closed in Perth south, where Charles Richardson, Conservative is opposing the combined forces of Liberals and Progressives who are supporting Georges Keith.

Ontario Government Ministers have just concluded a lengthy speaking tour in the Western Ontario ridings. Their activities in the campaign were criticized by Mr. Hepburn at a meeting held at Galt last night in the interests of Mr. Hipel. Ministers of the Ontario Cabinet, he said, were telling the constituents of proposed public works. "Even the Hon. W. G. Martin, Minister of Public Welfare had come into this riding and told of a proposed girls' school" Mr. Hepburn said.

Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Highways and acting Premiers,

TORONTO OFFICER GRANTED REMAND

Bail of $2,000 is Renewed in Case of Motorcycle Officer Church.

LITTLE CHANGE IN BOY.

TORONTO, Ont., October 28 (CP.). — Motorcycle Officer Church, who shot Gordon Clay after a chase through city streets on Sunday evening, and who was arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of wounding, appeared in Police Court this morning. He was remanded until November 12, and bail was renewed at $2,000. Frank, Skarratt, of Hamilton, a companion of Clay, who eluded the police officer, later giving himself up, will appear in Juvenile Court to-day on a charge of escaping from Mimico Industrial School and stealing an automobile. Gordon Clay, who was shot twice in the back by Officer Church, lies seriously injured in St. Joseph's Hospital, and this morning it was reported that his

Sneak Thieves Drain Gasoline From Car

Following an epidemic of chicken thieving in Otonabee Township, comes the report from O. Stewart of R. R. 11 of a sneak thief, who some time during the night came to the garage and drained the gas tank of Mr. Stewart's car. He also helped himself to a half-gallon of motor oil. The garage is but 100 yards from the farmhouse, but discovery of the theft was not made until this morning, when Mr. Stewart noticed that the garage door was standing partly open. He then traced the tracks of the unwelcome visitor's car on to the main road, where they were of course lost in the maze of tracks made by other vehicles which had since passed.

AUSTRALIA FACES FINANCIAL CRISIS

Scullin May Rush Home if Ministers Fail to Stave Off Labor Challenges.

AGAINST NEIMEYER PLANS.

CANBERRA, Australia, Oct. 28.—(C.P. Cable Via Reuters).—With organized Labor and the Australian Labor Party on record against the financial proposals of Sir Otto Neimeyer and the Government's economy measures, Australia faces another financial crisis unless the Government can achieve a compromise.

Spurred on by the victory of the Labor Party in the New South Wales State elections, the Labor Party conference last night expressed disapproval of the recommendations of Sir Otto, who had been requested by the Government to investigate Australia's financial position.

Scullin May Rush Home.

Prime Minister J. H. Scullin, now in London for the Imperial Conference, may find it necessary to rush back to Australia if the acting Government Ministers here fail to stave off the Labor challenges.

The Scullin Administration is a Labor Government but there is a wide diversion between the views of the Ministers, harassed by the serious economic depression with all its consequences, and the members of the Labor Party at large who are fearful of reduced wages and other drastic measures if Sir Otto's recommendations were acted upon.

The Labor Parliamentary caucus met to-day after the general conference last night, and was openly hostile to Premier Scullin's policy. Hon. J. E. Fenton, Acting Prime Minister, and Hon. J. A. Lyons, Acting Treasurer, are fighting with their backs to the wall in a desperate effort to secure approval of their economy measures. No one expects them to do this.

BISHOP OF WORCESTER IS DEAD

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 28 (CP)—Shortly before the arrival of the King and Queen at the House of Lords for the opening of parliament to-day, the Bishop of Worcester the Reverend Ernest Harold Pearce, one of the many spectators standing outside, was suddenly taken ill and removed to Westminister hospital. On his arrival there he was found to be dead.

LABOR GOVERNMENT ENDS HOPES OF CANADA AND OTHER DOMINIONS FOR BRITISH MARKET PREFERENCE

Startling Announcement Made Before House of Commons.

"ACTION IMPOSSIBLE."

Some System of Bulk Purchasing or Quota Arrangement Only Hope.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 28.—(C. P. Cable)—Premier Ramsay MacDonald announced in the House of Commons this afternoon the Labor Government was not prepared to put a tariff on wheat. "We cannot do it.", he said.

End of Hopes

Thus the Government officially put an end to any hopes that Canadian or other Dominions wheat products would receive a tariff preference on the British market. His announcement definitely restricted the possibilities to some system of bulk purchasing or quota arrangement which would favor the Dominions as against foreign wheat growers.

The Prime Minister was discussing the Imperial Conference during the debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

He said that when the British government asked how it could help the Dominions, the first thing every Premier said was "tax wheat." "We could not do it," declared Mr. MacDonald.

H. C. Charlton, Labor, Leeds South, who opened the debate, pointed out the difficulties facing the conference, but said all proposals should be examined in the view of what was in the best interests of the whole commonwealth.

Royal Couple Safe After Rough Trip

CORINTH, Greece, Oct. 28.—(AP)—King Boris of Bulgaria and Queen Giovanna, delayed aboard their yacht Czar Ferdinand by violent storms in the Adriatic and Ionian Seas last night, arrived at the entrance to the Corinth ship canal at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon.

OKLAHOMA BLAST IN COAL TUNNEL CLAIMS 5 LIVES

Twenty-four Workers Still Trapped Down Wrecked Shaft.

ALL BELIEVED DEAD.

Debris on 13th Level, Half Mile from Entrance Hinders Rescuers.

McALESTER, Okla, Oct. 28 (C.P.).—Bodies of four of the 29 men trapped by an explosion in the Wheatley No. 4 mine of the Samples Coal Company near here last night, were found on the sixteenth level of the mine at six o'clock this morning. They had not been brought to the surface. With the finding of the bodies, the death toll mounted to five. William Donley, working at the mouth of the mine, was killed instantly.

Stretchers Sent Down.

The rescue crew reported that it reached the bodies after encountering debris down virtually all of the slope. They asked that stretchers be sent down with which to bear the bodies to the surface. Due to the wreckage inside the shaft, it was impossible to send a car into the mine and remove the bodies.

Miller D. Hay, State Mine Inspector, who arrived at 2.30 this morning and immediately went into the mine to assist in rescue work, said it was doubtful if any of the victims had survived the terrific blast, the detonation of which was heard in McAlester, two miles from the mine entrance.

The relief workers reported they were handicapped in their search for the victims by debris in the thirteenth level, evidence of the seriousness of the explosion. The thirteenth level is nearly half a mile from the mine entrance, where most of the damage to the mine occurred.

Rumor Bennett Dead Surprises Delegates

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 28 (C.P. Cable).—The Canadian delegation to the Imperial Conference were greatly surprised to-day to hear of rumors in Canada that Premier R. B. Bennett was dead.

It was pointed out that while Premier Bennett suffered from a throat infection and was confined to his hotel room for a few days, it was nothing serious, and he had recovered. He spoke at a Canada Club dinner last night.

The deep-harbor project at Trinidad, British West Indies, has been postponed indefinitely.

VICE-PRESIDENT OF BELL TELEPHONE ADDRESSES CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Many Newcomers to the City Are Welcomed at Dinner Meeting.

RADIO A BY-PRODUCT.

One of the foremost industries of the world and the one on which all other industries, general business and society have come to depend immeasurably—the telephone industry—was the subject of an address delivered last night to a general meeting of the local Chamber of Commerce at the Empress Hotel by J. E. Macpherson, vice-president of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada. The tremendous growth of telephone communication and its tremendous importance to modern civilization was described, and also the daily improvement in service, which is the result of man's inventive genius.

The meeting took the form of a dinner and was the first general meeting of the Chamber of Commerce since Spring. It was seized as an opportunity to express warm words of welcome to newcomers in the city, who attended the dinner as the guests of the Chamber's executive.

Not only did James Dutton, president of the Chamber, welcome the guests, but also Mayor Denne, in a characteristic speech of a few sentences, added his welcome. He urged the support and co-operation of everyone in the city's endeavour to overcome present conditions.

Other guests at the meeting were the employees of the local branch of the Bell Telephone Company. Mr. Macpherson was introduced by J. J. Duffus, thanked by H. H. P. Johnston, local manager of the Bell, and E. A. Peck, M.P., who recalled the early days of the telephone in Peterborough and also stressed the im-

The pastor instructed the ushers to whistle every time a dollar or more was dropped into the plates. They whistled 105 times.

The Duke was met at the station by the Emperor, the Crown Prince and other High State and Church dignitaries.

ALD. FRED TUGGEY SUGGESTS CHARITY BOX FOR HALLOWE'EN

Box Will Be Placed in Front of The Examiner to Receive Donations.

RECEIVE CLOTHING.

The action of The Examiner in holding the Hallowe'en parade but diverting the major part of the cost to relief, has been agreed to as the best thing to do this year from the number of calls received and a suggestion from Ald. Fred Tuggey will be acted upon.

Talking to The Examiner last night he suggested that as a number of families were short of the necessities— fuel, food and clothing—that The Examiner on Hallowe'en have a box in front of the office into which could be dropped bread or milk tickets, cash or orders on grocers or butcher shops for meat or groceries and the receipts could be distributed to those requiring assistance at the present time.

Ald. Tuggey has already donated $5 worth of bread tickets for this fund, and six loads of wood have been received from another source.

The Examiner will also be open to receive any warm clothing on Hallowe'en night that might be donated. A number of families would appreciate this.

LINDSAY, Ont., October 28 (C.P.). — Lindsay will not tolerate members of its unemployed ranks driving to work in their motor cars while securing employment under the local relief scheme.

In an announcement to-day, Mayor W. E. The Chief Magistrate did not consider it proper that men should drive cars while earning 30 cents an hour.

Boy Dies Following Accident On Highway

BRANTFORD, Ont., Oct. 28.— (CP) — Roy Pritchard an 18-year-old youth who came from the old country here and was employed at the farm of Wilfred Smith, Jerseyville, died in the Hamilton General hospital yesterday from injuries received when run over by a trailer containing baled hay on Thursday last. It transpires that the accident occurred on the Brantford and Hamilton highway and it is alleged no report was made to the police about the matter until death ensued.

Details to be Furnished.

Civic heads interviewed C. W. Bell, K.C., M.P., who gave assurance everything will be done to provide complete details at the earliest date. He was unable to confirm a report prevalent here that there are several hundred epileptics in Ontario institutions, public charges, who are to be returned to their native homes. The five-year residence does not apply and legally the Province can proceed, it is stated.

The married woman, whose case came to light last week, is now in England, while her husband and three children reside here. Details of the deportation proceedings, as told by Alderman Lewington to civic heads, reveal that friendless and without a penny in her possession, the young woman was left alone on the docks at the port of arrival in England. She was finally taken care of by a Salvation Army officer. She is now in a hospital in Farnworth, Lancashire.

It is understood her deportation was carried out at the request of the Provincial Secretary of Ontario, on the grounds she was an epileptic at the time of her entry to Canada, evidence being adduced she had treatment for this affliction in England. She is further stated to have become a common public charge since she entered a hospital in Hamilton in 1924. She sailed from Montreal on Friday of last week.

Case Heard To-day

Miss Ellen Naylor, London, Ontario, who has also been listed by the Ontario authorities for deportation, is still in Montreal pending a judgement in the Superior Court. A writ of habeas corpus to block the deportation was presented to the court last week following disclosure of the proceedings in London. The writ will be argued to-day.

Interviewed concering the three cases, Hon. Dr. J. M. Robb Ontario Minister of Health said his department reports discovery of these cases to the department of immigration, Ottawa and whatever action follows is taken by them.

"It might be well to point out" he proceeded, "that in one of the mental institutions, of all admissions made during the last year one-third were foreign born."

Other officials of the department interviewed declared accommodation in these institutions is at a premium and there is scarcely room for Canadian-born citizens without permitting those to remain who are subject to deportation under the immigration laws.

Potato Burglars Do Job Up Right

MILTON, Ont., Oct. 28.—Last night thieves with a truck visited the potato patch of Matthew Job, a well-known farmer of Esquesing Township, and dug up his entire crop, about 50 bags, placed the stalks back in rows as though they had not been disturbed, and escaped without being detected.

LABORITES WISH TO CONTINUE JOB

MacDonald Denies Persistent Rumors of Going to Country Soon.

COME ONLY WITH DEFEAT.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 28.—Premier Ramsay MacDonald last night disposed of persistent rumors that the Labor Party would seek an early general election to clear up the confused parliamentary situation in England. He told guests at a reception organized by the National Labor Club that the Government might be turned out by one of the other parties, but its intention was to continue with its work.

"I see there are all sorts of speculations about a general election. A general election will come when the Government is turned out, and either of the other parties can do it when they like", he said.

"But so far as the Government is concerned, its intention is to continue with its work."

The Prime Minister predicted that the parliamentary session opening today would be particularly heavy and strenuous.

MAY USE HONEY IN SUGAR'S PLACE FOR WINE MAKING

Move By Liquor Control Board Will Aid Ontario Honey Producers.

MEAN BETTER WINE.

Manufacturers and Board to Split Slight Extra Cost of Change.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 27 (C.P.)—Use of honey in the manufacture of wine in place of sugar has been recommended by the Liquor Control Board of Ontario and the Government has been asked to agree to the amendment of the Liquor Control Act to provide for this, Attorney-General W. H. Price has stated.

Foreign sugar, mostly from Cuba, is used by manufacturers in making wine, and the substitution of honey, which contains about 85 per cent. sugar would improve the quality of the product as well as be of great service to honey producers who have a surplus of a million pounds of honey this season, it was stated.

Cost Slightly More

Use of honey instead of sugar will be somewhat more expensive for the wine manufacturer, it was explained. The Liquor Control Board has agreed to take up half the extra cost, about nine cents, and the manufacturers will bear the remaining half.

Col. Price stressed the fact that adoption of the Liquor Control Board's recommendation by the wineries would provide a needed impetus to the progress and development of the honey producers in the province. They would be assured of having their surplus taken care of at a fair price. Cuban sugar costs five cents a pound and honey costs about seven cents in its unrefined state.

The matter was discussed with Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, and it has his entire sanction, the Attorney-General stated. In the opinion of the Minister of Agriculture it would be a very great service to the honey producers if the amendment was made.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 28.—(A. P.)—Sir Thomas Lipton, entraining to-day for Sorthampton to take the Leviathan for the United States stated that he had determined to have another Shamrock ready in two years to race for the America's Cup. It will be one, he said, that 'will make the Americans sit up."

"Am I going to contest for the America's Cup next year"? said Sir Thomas. "I don't think so, unless I have a boat like the Americans have." He laughed, "But by the following year I'll have a Shamrock that will make the Americans sit up."

POLICE SUPPLIED LIST OF K.K.K. MEN

Ex-Inspector States He Was Told to Get "Anything" on Suspected Members.

PROSECUTIONS REMANDED.

REGINA, Oct. 28 (C.P.).—Allegations of political interference with the Saskatchewan Provincial Police in the Swift Current area during the elections of 1927 were made before the Royal Commission investigating alleged administrative scandals when the declaration of James Taylor, ex-inspector of the Saskatchewan police, was being heard.

Taylor alleged that Archie McCallum, at that time Highway Inspector for the Liberal administration, supplied him with a list of 109 supposed members of the Ku Klux Klan in the Swift Current district of South-West Saskatchewan. That Ku Klux Klan activities were anti-Liberal at that time. Taylor claimed McCallum had given him instructions to "get anything" on the Klan members and give it all publicity possible.

During the course of the 1927 Provincial election campaign, said Taylor, liquor prosecutions were ordered remanded not only by McCallum but from Regina headquarters.

BOOK EVIDENCE TO BE ALLOWED

Paterson, Campbell, McLean Face Judge on Conspiracy Charges.

LENGTHY ARGUMENT.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 28.—Argument regarding the admissability of books and the publication of the firm of D. S. Paterson Company by opposing counsel occupied much of the hearing at the trial of D. S. Paterson, Austin Campbell and Edgar McLean, brokers, on charges of conspiracy to defraud the public and conspiracy to affect the market price of stocks.

It was only after lengthy argument by defense counsel against the admission of the company's ledgers that the case proceeded. Counsel for the defense contended the books were not evidence against the accused as they had no knowledge of what was written there in.

But W. N. Tilley, K.C., special Crown Prosecutor, referred to the decision in the Solloway Mills case in Calgary when it was ruled that all the books of all offices of the firm were admissable as evidence against those managing and directing the firms affairs. His Lordship concurred.

The three men are the second of five groups of mining brokers to be tried at the Fall Assizes. A third charge, that of "bucketing," on which they were indicted, is being withheld from trial pending Mr. Justice Jeffrey's decision on a motion to quash it made by Peter White, K.C., counsel for Paterson, on the grounds that 172 contracts were referred to in particulars when there was only one charge in the indictment.

Walter Bilborough, accountant for the company, was the principal witness yesterday. Under questioning he described the method of calculating the day's transactions of the firm, and their indication as being long or short in the trading accounts according to the color of the ink used.

BULGARIAN YACHT OUTRIDES STORM

Craft With Royal Newlyweds Aboard Struck By Gale in Adriatic.

UNREPORTED FOR HOURS.

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 28 (C.P.)—The Bulgarian Royal yacht, Czar Ferdinand, with the royal newlyweds, Czar Boris and his queen, Giovanna, aboard, appeared at noon to-day to have won a battle with a violent gale which made their crossing of the Adriatic from Brindisi most difficult and dangerous.

After hours during which, because of atmospheric interference, the Czar Ferdinand was out of touch with the world, she radioed that she was off Patras at the entrance to the Gulf of Corinth and expected to pass through the Corinth Canal shortly after 3 p.m. Some anxiety had been felt for the ship, both because of absence of reports from her and as a consequence of violence of the storm, which drove many small boats to shelter.

It was regarded as certain here that Boris and Giovanna, who were married Saturday at Assisi, Italy, and left Brindisi Sunday for Varna, Bulgarian Black Sea port, have had a very rough voyage thus far.

POWER COMPANY APPEAL THEIR ASSESSMENT

J. G. G. Kerry Puts Case Before Campbellford Court of Revision.

TOTAL ASSESSMENT $81,000.

Court Has No Power to Rebate Taxes of Campbellford Cloth Company.

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 28.—The major portion of the business of the adjourned Court of Revision, held in the Public Library, Campbellford on Monday evening, was taken up with the appeal of the Trent Valley Power Company against their assessment. Reeve J. M. Bygott occupied the chair and those present were Deputy Reeve N. Stone, Councillors N. A. MacColl, H. N.Carr, J. R. Battisby, the town solicitor, J. D. Lynch and the town assessor, R. Lowry.

J. G. G. Kerry, president of the T. V. P. Company, presented the claim to the court. In making the appeal he commenced by explaining what the company was. In the first place he said it was a useful adjunct to the Paper Board Company, for the purpose of financing, secondly, that all its floating stock was owned by the Paper Board Company, thirdly, that in Campbellford the T.V.P. Company never had an employee, but was operated by the Paper Board Company, and last, that if there was any margin of profit shown by the power company it went to the Paper Board Company, after its obligations were met.

Although the two concerns were legally separate, they had always been regarded as a unit.

On Four Joints

In making the appeal under section 121 of the act, Mr. Kerry based his claim on four points. (1) In the cases of property remaining vacant for more than three months of the year. He stated that in 1928 the plant was completely shut down. (2) In the case of extreme poverty and being unable to pay. Mr. Kerry here stated that the Paper Board Company went into the hands of the receivers in February and that all payments had been cut off, and that they will not be able to be meet their obligations in January. (3) By reason of gross or manifest error. He did not consider it a gross error, but a manifest error, stating that the whole basis of assessment in the company's opinion was wrong. He stated that the whole basis of assessment should be what a concern is able to pay, and not is actual cost.

In answer to questions from the Court, Mr. Kerry said that a fair valuation was one that was comparable to that placed on mills elsewhere. He thought that this should be lower in small places than it is in large centres. Quoting from the company's plant at Montreal he stated that it was assessed at $7,200 with an output of 12,000 tons, which averaged at 60c per ton.

Compared with this Campbellford plant was assessed for the current

MEREDITH SCORES POLICE SHOOTING

States if Lad Shot By Officer Dies, Murder Charge Should Follow.

TIME FOR ACTION.

LONDON, Ont., October 28 (C.P.).—"It is disgraceful," declared Hon. Richard M. Meredith, recently resigned Chief Justice of Ontario Supreme Court, when speaking of the reported shooting of fifteen-year-old Gordon Clay by a Toronto traffic officer. "Constables of all sorts and kinds, without character, some of them, who ought not to be trusted with dangerous weapons, are allowed to carry them and to shoot without a shadow of right," the Chief Justice declared.

Senator Lynch-Staunton brought in a Bill to correct this condition in the last Parliament, but the Minister of Justice had it set aside on the promise that an investigation would be made, Mr. Jusice Meredith continued. "It is high time to take action and to see that an end is put to such shootings. The officer in this case should most certainly be prosecuted, and if the boy dies he should be charged with manslaughter, murder, or both."

Large Citron Weighed 22½ Pounds, Other 20½

The winners of the two fine citrons left in The Examiner office by W. H. Downs of Lakefield were won by Mrs. M. H. Pammett, Indian River, and Mrs. J. R. Jackson, R.R. No. 6, Peterborough. The larger of the two weighed 22½ pounds, with the other 20½ pounds. Mrs. Pammett guessed the correct weight for the larger one and Mrs. Jackson estimated the weight of the other one at 20 pounds, seven ounces. Many estimates were received and keen interest was taken in the contest. If the two winners will call at The Examiner Office they may obtain their citron.

The one-cent stamp will change its "dress" from orange to green, the two-cent stamp will be red, in place of green as at present, the mauve five-cent stamp will make way for one of blue, and the eight-cent postal carrier will give up its blue color for a modish orange.

BRIDAL COUPLE CRUIZE ADRIATIC

King Boris and His Italian Princess Bride Head For Varna.

THRONGS CROWD DOCK.

BRINDISI, Italy, Oct. 27. (CP)—King Boris III of Bulgaria and his fair-haired Italian bride, Giovanna, were cruising to-day on the Adriatic.

The royal yacht Czar Ferdinand is bound for Varna, Bulgaria, where there will be round after round of ceremonials culminating in formal registration of their marriage next week.

Giovanna cried as she said goodbye to her sister, Mafalda, and her brother, Crown Prince Humbert, at departure of the yacht from Brindisi but as the boat cleared its berth she smiled again. She threw her arms around both time after time before she could tear herself away.

Cheering thousands were at the docks to bid her goodbye, as the boat drifted away from the shore she raised her arm in a Roman salute. Handsome Boris doffed his cap.

Shortly after departure the Crown Prince and Princess, and the Prince and Princess of Hesse, the latter being the former Princess Mafalda, departed aboard the Italian yacht Quarto to escort the bridal couple part of the distance toward Varna.

Giovanna, like some others of the Italian royal family, is fair of complexion, and has fair brown hair. Her mother, Queen Elena, is the daughter of the former King of Montenegro, Nicholas.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, October 28. — Unable to hold the fractional gains scored in early trading, wheat prices yesterday gradually declined to touch the low points of the session in the last hour. The close was weak, ¾c to 1c lower than Saturday.

Trade for the most part was of a local character and made up largely of spreading operations. Elevator interests were reported hedging against country purchases.

Export sales over the week-end and during the morning were estimated at half a million bushels, but it was intimated in some quarters that a larger amount than that reported had changed hands.

On limited offerings, trading in cash wheat was slow and only scattered lots changed hands. In the coarse grains pit, trade was meagre and values on the downgrade in sympathy with wheat.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.— Relief from anxiety about Argentina rust damage, together with suggestions that the Argentina wheat supply would be hugely increased, pulled wheat prices down late yesterday. Clearing weather reported in Argentina led to late selling of wheat here, and so too did a forecast that the surplus of new and old wheat in Argentina this season would aggregate 239,000,000 bushels compared with only 100,000,000 bushels last season. Under such circumstances 2,163,000 bushels decrease of the United States' visible supply total was virtually ignored.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled 3-8 to 1 cent a bushel lower than Saturday's finish. Corn closed 3-8 to 3-4 cent advanced, oat 1-8 cent off to 1-8 cent up, and provisions unchanged to 17 cents down.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Oct. 28.— Prices of storage eggs and fresh seconds were advanced 1c to 2c a dozen as forecast on the egg market here yesterday. Prices of fresh eggs in carlots, or less than carlots for extras were 48c to 50c; firsts, 42c to 43c, and seconds 30c a dozen. Receipts were 34 cases. The butter market was steady with Eastern Townships No. 1 creamery butter quoted at 29¾c to 30c a pound for carlots. To retailers, solids were 32c, and prints 3c a pound, with receipts totalling 374 boxes.

Prices were lower on the cheese market today with Quebec cheese quoted at 14c to 14¼c, and Ontario cheese at 14¾c to 15c a pound. Receipts were 1,057 boxes.

The potato market was unchanged.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Oct. 28.—Prices on the local market for graded eggs soared considerably yesterday, and quotations to retailers were up a few cents also. But prices to country shippers were not advanced, though they probably will be higher on Tuesday. Local brokers were asking 50c for extras, 45c for firsts, and 27c for seconds, graded in free cases, which was 5c better on the two higher grades and steady on seconds. The demand for new-laid supplies was good, but local dealers were of the opinion that receipts would not be considerably increased, as production was at a low ebb.

Country shippers were offered the steady quotations of 42c to 43c for extras, 37c to 38c for firsts, and 25c for seconds, ungraded, delivered, cases returned. One retail firm was offering 4c better than these prices for extras, and 7c better for firsts, delivered, cases returned, but there has been no mention of seconds, and the market here has not been strong on this grade.

Butter

Butter prices were about steady, with 31c continuing to be the top price for No. 1, and 30c for No. 2. The general range was 30½c to 31c for No. 1, 29½c to 30c for No. 2. These prices were mostly for Canadian butter, though some New Zealand has moved recently. Buyers continued to be indifferent to offerings of any size yesterday, and the slight buying flurry of the week-end was no more. Once again buyers seemed content to call on their holdings of previous purchases to fill in any needs.

Cream

Cream buyers were still standing by their previous high quotations to the country, and shippers were offered 33c for special, 32c for No. 1, and 29c for No. 2, f.o.b. country points. These prices, with butter bringing what it has lately, have not been good for profits.

Cheese

Cheese was a little easier at 15¾c to 16c, Toronto, for new, large, paraffined, Government graded; twins were quoted at 16c to 16¼c, and triplets 16¼c to 16½c.

FIRST PETERBOROUGH TROOP

On Friday night the regular weekly meeting of the First Peterborough (St. John's) Troop took place with the scoutmaster in charge.

After flag-break the leaders inspected the patrols and patrol corners. In this connection one of the pleasing aspects was the improved appearance of the Buffaloes corner.

The boys were then sent to their corners for an instruction period. Later in the evening the boys were called out for some games. The first game was "hog tying." This aroused a great deal of interest and was won finally by Max Hutchinson of the Bulldogs. The next game was one in which the A.S.M. also took part and in which he might be said to have come out second best.

As announced to the boys last week there was something wrong in the troop room this Friday. This error was discovered by one of the Bulldog Patrol who noticed that the scoutmaster had only one garter tab showing.

At the campfire it was announced that plans were being laid to issue a small troop paper. In this connection a competition has been arranged for the choosing of the most appropriate name for the paper. At this time also the scoutmaster mentioned that the commissioner had requested that the scouts turn out if possible for the Memorial Parade on the Sunday previous to Armistice Day.

The meeting came to a close in the usual way, the lowering of the flag, the National Anthem and scout silence.

Next week there will be a meeting as usual and although next Friday is Hallowe'en the boys are urged to make an effort to be present.

The One Cure

After Bill Jr. came it was harder than ever for big Bill to go away for weeks at a time! There was one thing that helped, though—the telephone. Bill said it always cured his blues, and kept him reconciled more than anything else could have done.

HEAVY PRODUCTIONS

EDMONTON, Alta., Oct. 28.—(By the Canadian Press)—Alberta farmers are expected to produce approximately 24,000,000 pounds of sugar this year, according to figures that have been secured by the provincial new industries committee investigating the possibilities of sugar-beet growing in this province, the Edmonton Journal states. In its work the committee has ascertained that the soil of the Edmonton district lends itself as favorably to this line of agriculture as others in the province where sugar beets are now being grown extensively.

At the present time sugar beet acreage in the Province of Alberta is 14,000 acres, and as a result of recent investigations the northern areas are to be recommended for the industry.

year at $3,800 with an output of 8,000 tons, which averaged at 45c per ton. This, he thought, was fair, but rejected the back taxes for the years 1928-1929. The assessment as it stands for the three years is $81,000. And the fourth point of contention was that business was not being carried on.

Mr. Lynch, for the town, questioned Mr. Kerry, which brought out the facts that financially the two companies were the same but that they were kept as separate companies as far as the bond holders were concerned. As far as the land value of the property was concerned, Mr. Kerry said that it had been written on the books of the company for years at $10,000. He also stated that he was unable to give an guarantee as to whether the Paper Board company would get running again, but that that was what the directors required, but pointed out that if the assessment was sustained as it stood, it would have to go into the hands of the receiver.

The court then went into discussion on the subject, viewing the situation from all angles. It appeared to be a very delicate question, and it was thought advisable to postpone the finding of the court until an adourned meeting, to give the court time to consider. It was therefore moved by Deputy-Reeve Stone, seconded by Councillor MacColl, that the court adourn to Wednesday, November 5.

With regard to the appeal of A. McKeel on behalf of the Misses Wallace for reduced assessment of the Wallace Block by reason of the recent fire, it was agreed, on motion of Councillor MacColl, seconded by Councillor Carr, that the Misses Wallace be rebated $100 on their 1930 taxes as part compensation for damage done to the Wallace Block by fire. This was a reduction of 25 per cent. on the time the stores damaged were unoccupied, owing to that fire damage.

In regard to the appeal of the Campbellford Cloth Company, on motion of Councillor Carr, seconded by Deputy-Reeve Stone, it was moved that the clerk be instructed to write to the Campbellford Cloth Company informing them that under advice of the town solicitor that the Court of Revision had no power to deal with their claim in rebating any of the taxes of the said company.

In the matter of the change of ownership of property in the town, it was moved and seconded by Councillors MacColl and Carr, that the name of S. R. Southworth be deleted and that of P. McMillan be added.

SHOULD PAY ITS OWN BILLS.

The provincial by-election to be held in South Perth tomorrow costs the various municipalities of that riding the sum of $851.11, that being the expenditure involved in preparing the voters' lists for the election.

The people of the three other ridings in which by-elections are to be fought will find themselves called upon to pay similar sums.

And the question naturally arises, why does not the Povincial Govenment, which controls these elections, pay the expense involved instead of passing it on to the municipalities?

In their relations with the various municipal administrations the Queen's Park powers are playing a continuous game of put-and-take, with the municipalities doing all the putting up and the Government all the taking.

There is no reason why the Province should not pay for its own elections; the expense of preparing voters' lists to be used in a provincial campaign cannot logically be called a concern of the municipalities, and no justification exists for saddling the municipal taxpayers with this burden any more than there would be for asking the Ontario Government to pay the costs of municipal elections.

In this and other matters it is high time that the municipalities sought a more reasonable arrangement with the provincial authorities.

THE HALLOWE'EN PARADE.

The Examiner, it should be understood, has not abandoned the annual Hallowe'en parade this year, but in view of the unemployment situation and the need of an unusual amount of relief, has decided to eliminate the more expensive features of the celebration, and therefore there will be no prizes offered and the usual dance will be dropped.

We have for a number of years cheerfully assumed the far-from-light expenditure involved in this community frolic-making as a contribution to community welfare, but in view of present-day conditions, we are sure that the people of Peterborough will endorse the change and approve of the diverting of the money to relief purposes.

Most people, it is felt, did not enter the Hallowe'en parade in the hope of winning a prize, but merely for the fun of the thing, and that being the case, there is no reason why the procession of Hallowe'en masqueraders, who will be escorted through the down-town streets by the band of the Peterborough Rangers on Friday night, should not be as large as ever.

The parade gets under way at the Armouries at 8 o'clock, and in spite of the absence of prizes, The Examiner feels confident that its invitation to participate in the fun-making will be as generally accepted on this occasion as on previous Hallowe'ens.

THE FISHING SEASON.

With the desire of summer hotel proprietors that the fishing season should be longer there will be every sympathy.

The summer resort season is abbreviated enough at the best, and when the open period for fishing was cut short several years ago the curtailment was a heavy blow to those whose capital was invested in the entertainment of tourists.

The whole thing, however, hinges upon what is the best course to follow in regard to the preservation of our fishery resources.

Summer resort proprietors themselves are authority for the statement that the majority of their guests are attracted to the Kawarhas by the prospects of obtaining some good fishing.

That being the case, first consideration must be given to saving our supply of game fish so far as possible in order that the district waters may not be completely fished out.

It would be a short-sighted policy to extend the fishing season if by so doing the depletion of the supply would thereby be materially hastened.

The Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries should know what it is doing; it has investigated the conditions, and it should be in a position to say authentically just when the spawning season for bass is first usually over and just when fishing can be legalized without interference with the spawning operations.

If in view of that knowledge it says that the present open season is all that can be safely authorized that should end the matter, for anything that jeopardizes the present supply of fish would in the long run do infinitely more harm to the summer hotel business than shortening the season has brought about.

MORE RECKLESS SHOOTING.

Within a short time after Judge Huycke's condemnation of a police officer for what he rightly termed the "reckless and unwise" action of shooting a suspect who was attempting to escape, another case of what The Examiner has no hesitation in saying was unjustifiable shooting has been reported, this time from Toronto.

A fifteen-year-old inmate of the Mimico Industrial School, with a companion, escaped from that institution, and, it is said, stole a motor car to facilitate their getaway.

On reaching the city limits the automobile developed engine trouble and a motorcycle constable investigated.

Probably the answers given by the youths were evasive; at all events the suspicions of the officer were aroused and he ordered the boys to proceed to the nearest police station, whereupon the suspects leaped from the car and tried to run away.

When they refused to halt the constable fired several shots in the air, and that failing, shot one of the young fugitives twice in the back, inflicting wounds that may prove fatal.

In other words, this officer, who at that time knew nothing of the boys, of their escape from an institution or of their alleged theft of a car, took the law in his own hands and practically passed a sentence of death upon a fifteen-year-old boy who as far as the representative of the law knew was guilty of nothing except of running away.

Shooting unarmed fugitives savors of American police work, and is a far cry from the British system upon which our law enforcement methods are in most other respects based.

Cases of this kind have been too frequent in recent years, and they demand the attention of the Attorney-General.

There is no justification for shooting down a fifteen-year-old boy as if he were a drug-crazed, armed-to-the-teeth gunman.

WHY NOT PAY UP?

A merchant was sitting in his office the other evening after closing hours, and he had a set of books in front of him. The work set out for the evening was making out bills to be sent to customers. There was a rather formidable pile there on the desk. "I started in with $4 worth of postage stamps and they're all gone now." We never thought to ask who was putting up that $4 for postage stamps, but either the merchant has to pay it and pocket the expense or get it out of his customers.

Then he started to talk about the thing, and he had considerable to say. "Most of that amount represented in that batch of accounts can be collected, but it is slow work, and there is a good deal of money represented there. I have actually paid it out for the goods which these people have taken away from here; I have had to pay the clerks each week and also for the delivering of the goods, and I guess on top of that I have had to borrow money several times until I could get busy and round up some outstanding accounts."

The merchant also said that there was always a shrinkage in outstanding accounts. At times people leave the city without paying their debts. "Unless it is a considerable amount my experience is that collection is hardly worth going after because the costs of keeping after it or engaging some person in another place to do so amount to about as much as some of the accounts are worth."

* * * *

Were there any reasons people gave for not paying their accounts? One admission came from this that was rather interesting as far as merchandising is concerned: "We don't like to press them too hard, for if we do they will stop coming to the store."

That reason seemed rather strange, and inquiries were made from three other sources and they all seemed to admit that there was a degree of truth in the situation. As another man put it: "Competition is very keen for business now, and no person likes to see a customer leave his store. He feels that as long as that customer keeps on coming the chances of collection are better than if the customer stopped and went elsewhere."

Asking for more information about this in another place it was found that non-payment of accounts promptly was a habit with some people. They knew they could take advantage of the merchant if they wanted to get something for which they had to pay cash. The account still owing could wait a little longer.

* * * *

We have had a good many "weeks" of one sort and another dedicated to various things, and it is not beyond the realm of possibility that some person may yet have enough courage to start a "Pay Your Bills Week."

Something like that—perhaps a "Get Out of Debt movement"—might help matters for a good many of these folk who sit behind the desk after hours looking over an accumulation of unpaid accounts. It would also make other people feel better. It would do away with that desire to dodge certain people when going down town; it would eliminate that apologetic conversation which starts with "I should have attended to this before."

How would it be to look over that stack of envelopes which you have on the shelf in the kitchen or stuck on a nail some place else. Figure out how many of those unpaid bills you have, and start cleaning them out, perhaps just one at a time, until you have a clean sheet. You may have to live humbly for a while, but it will be worth the effort, because you will emerge some day faced with the pleasing sensation that you don't owe any bills.

The great big sigh of relief you will heave then will be worth all the effort you have put into the struggle.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

THE SILVER HAWK

By

WILLIAM BYRON MOWERY

When he walked out of the Edmonton station at ten o'clock the next morning Dorn ran into unexpected good luck—an old acquaintance, a bow-legged, chunky, bulldog chap padding up and down the curb yelling "ca-cab!" and trying to attract a fare toward his ramshackle, privately owned bus.

This Jerry Funk was salt of the earth. In his rapscallion days he had drunk beer tremendously and played stud poker atrociously and raised hell in divers minor ways, but since acquiring a wife and baby and bungalow across the river in Strathcona, he had sobered down and cut out the alley-pranks and plied his bus industriously.

"I need a car all day, Jerry," Dorn explained, after he shook hands with the chap. "Buying a lot of things, making fast tracks, catching a train back this evening."

Till midafternoon Jerry rattled him from shop to shop. The tonneau filled with bundles and Dorn's money dwindled down to a thin Canadian nickel. Letting Jerry go home then, with instructions to come to a certain hotel for him at ten-thirty, Dorn 'phoned in the telegram and then sought a big jewellery shop.

The proprietor, summoned by the watch-case clerk, turned Aurore's barrette over and over in his hand.

"Yess, id iss so-so waluable," he said cautiously, "if dot big stone iss a di'munt. I should vant to test id. . . ."

He went back to a rear room. Dorn drummed on the watch-case, impatient, ill at ease. It was twenty minutes before Skull-Cap came out again.

Dorn was surprised when the jeweller counted him out a thousand dollars without haggling or asking references. He pocketed the money, which would be funds for Aurore when she left her wilderness sanctuary, and walked out of the shop.

From a doorway a man in a gray suit, with gray cap pulled low on his forehead, watched him till he was half a block away, then fell in behind and paced him.

After securing B-metre paper and a couple of other minor things which he needed in cartographing, Dorn went to a small, quiet hotel, took a room, bathed and shaved, ate supper, and then waited in his room till time Jerry should come.

A nameless uneasiness had grown upon him. The jeweller's long delay in examining the barrette, his readiness to buy a valuable article without a single reference, aroused Dorn's suspicions the more he though back over the incident.

Aurore was so utterly dependent upon him! He was the only person in the world who knew where she had fled. Without a canoe she was a prisoner on that island; she had practically no camping equipment, and food for only a few days. Wise little bush-loper, she could take care of herself for a time, but she could never foot-slog out of those mountains. She was dependent upon him not only for company and protection, but for the necessities of life and for life itself.

'They were hunting for her," as she had said. Along the Canadian National they had flung out a score of detectives who were hunting grimly, silently. Dorn thought: "Any man I meet might be an enemy. I may not know whether they've struck my trail or not. I may not know if they're closing in or not." He thought of those former times in the lonely mountains when a wolf pack had shadowed him, filtering silently and unseen through dark balsam thickets.

The dust and sweat and garish bustle of the city oppressed Dorn as they never had done before. He felt hot and grimy, and his nerves were on a raw edge. The mountains, cool and clean and sweet, where winds blew free from high snowfields and the bighorn and golden eagle were at home, seemed in a different world altogether. He ached to be back at that wilderness lake, to go swimming in its sparkling waters, to saunter over the springy moss under those great drooping pines and hear Aurore's low golden voice telling him of a bird she had seen or a rare flower she had found, or perhaps telling him of the tragedy she had fled from and explaining away old Bergelot's warning.

He stepped to the window and stood looking out. In a rowan tree rearing up near the balcony a pair of sedate, monogamous robins were roosting beside their new-built nest. Westward over the tops of houses and trees he saw a distant range of hills, so far away that the limber pines crowning them were gossamer, and the faint afterglow of sunset was tangled in them as he had once seen the sun in Aurore McNain's hair.

It was sunset now in the mountains. All the stir and feverish battle for mates had stopped. From pine-tops, the golden-crowned sparrows were calling their flute-like evening song. Trout were noisy in the shallows around the island. Moose and caribou were swimming back to the mainland to browse during the brief northern night. Out of their daytime caves the grizzlies were coming now to eat skunk cabbage and dig for hoary marmots and lumber along the mountain torrents searching for dead fish.

Aurore was probably sitting lonesome on the jutting boulder, watching the valley fill with purple shadows; watching the last touch of sun fade from the high pinnacles and linger a few moments longer among the clouds still higher. She was no intruder upon that solitude, but a part of it all. She belonged. In his stirred imagination Dorn identified her with the elusive mystery of the old mountains, with wild free spirit of them, with the fragrant air and clean sunshine and chaste colours pure of white and blue and evergreen.

Responsibility for her rested heavily upon him. If her enemies should discover his connection with her, they would knock him out of the air with a hostile plane or else get him into their hands. The slightest suspicion would be fatal to her. If they shot him down it would mean her death. If they captured him, he would have to disclose where she was to save her life.

On the sun roof just below Dorn a young, pretty woman in negligee sat talking to a man of middle age; and without meaning to listen to their spitfire argument Dorn gathered that this girl, kept there in the hotel by this man, was neither wife nor daughter, but mistress to him. In the apartment next door a phonograph was playing a suite from the "Samson et Dalila" of Saint Saens. Dorn listened to the bittersweet harmonies of the piece, to the sensual harem music mingling with the religious profundity of Jehovian rites, to the heartless mocking laughter of Dalila breaking into the measured agony of Samson's prayer; and as he listened, thinking of Aurore, that mocking refrain took hold of Dorn and presenly to the music of it he was unconsciously repeating those words, "Can never," which had broken into his friendship with Aurore however much he tried to reason them away, and which were an ugly, jarring note in all his thoughts of her.

A chime in a distant part of the city began sounding. Dorn glanced at his watch. Ten o'clock. Jerry would be coming in a quarter of an hour. Turning from the window, he reached for his hat and coat.

Out of the corner of his eye he saw the door of his room flung suddenly open. A police sergeant, revolver in hand, stepped inside.

Four other officers, one of them jingling handcuffs, filed in behind the patrol leader. Last came a plainclothes man in gray suit, gray cap.

The sergeant, a clean-cut young fellow, glanced sharply at Dorn's powerful physique, at his silent stern face, and stepped between Dorn and the window, his heavy revolver covering his prisoner.

He must have decided he was arresting a gentleman. He must have seen the anguished despair that swept over Dorn like a flood. For he nodded friendly enough and there was respect in his tones.

'Sorry to come busting in, sir. Please don't make any ruckus. I got a squad here and a squad below. We wanted you bad."

GETTING NOWHERE

(By J. H. Burnham)

The press, generally, reports the Imperial Conference as "getting nowhere." This would appear, however, not to be the fact.

Mr. Mackenzie King went to the Canadian people not upon his own policy, but upon the policy decided upon by the Conference of all the parts of the Empire. It included voluntary preferences or an agreement that where possible each part of the Empire should buy from the others. The new empire to be built up by voluntary preferential trade.

Mr. Bennett in a very brilliant campaign said, "No. There'll be no voluntary about it. It will be straight business. A Bargain." To this Britain now replies that she cannot make a "bargain" to that effect without seriously affecting her foreign trade and her own foreign investments but that she will renew her old offer of buying more and more (as she is already doing) within the Empire; but that a hard and fast agreement or "bargain" founded upon a protective tariff raising the price of foodstuffs to industrial Britain, (and that is really all Britain is) would be suicide. It would be burdening themselves heavily, too heavily even for the sake of empire and safety.

The Macdonald government is thus backing the old Balfour-Baldwin-Mackenzie King policy. Bennett demands the pound of flesh and the coming election in Britain will show whether he will get it or not.

The old "colonial" British Empire outgrew itself. Little by little certain "colonies" received the charter of nationhood from the Mother Country. A new Empire has to be formed. Can it be done?

Voice of the People

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner Office on the day before it is desired to have them inserted.

WHAT IS TO BE DONE?

To The Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—Reading in The Examiner issue of October 24 of the outbreak and massacre in China by the "Reds" also of the uprising here at Port Arthur and your little Editorial on the subject which was to the point, I am led to ask "What is to be done when ministers of the Gospel for the sake of popularity help the cause along?"

I was reading an article in the "Star" last week, quite accidentally as we do not subscribe to that paper, the article was by the Rev. Bland and the remarkable headline was, "Was the Mother of Jesus a 'Red'."

I certainly did not like the inference, but I sat down and read the article and also gave it to my husband to read. Well, after saying a few nice things about the Mother of our Lord, he went on to speak of her outburst of song in the "Magnificat" signifying that in it she was exulting in the fact that God had put down the mighty from their seat and had exalted the humble and the meek.

Some folks can make the Scripture confirm anything they want confirmed—but what are the facts? Briefly this: the Magnificat came by inspiration into the heart of Mary and she rejoiced not that God had hurled any Capitalist from his lofty seat, but that the Heavenly Father had respect for the lowly-minded (for only such can receive anything from the Divine) and that the proud and lofty-minded had had to take a back seat or had not received the honor which had come to her.

Rev. Bland also inferred that the Lord Jesus was a "Red" and James the Apostle. All this is very misleading and harmful and calculating to fan into flame the already fanatical evils of wicked men. Force and bloodshed was far from the Lord's mind. He reproved the selfish and the evil-minded when they attacked the true and the good. His own outstanding, unselfish life was a standing witness against all forms of injustice. James the Apostle was also very frank and outspoken, but could they in any sense be associated with the terrible doings of "Reds"?

Let this suffice, but let me add that when the love of self bears rule in a preacher or anyone else, there is no telling to what length they may go to win a name for themselves. "He that is low need fear no fall" so let us keep our sinful, puny selves in the background that men may have a chance to see our Lord.

Thanking you for your anticipated favor.

Yours very truly,
"Water-Lily."

What To-day Means To You

"SCORPIO"

If October 28th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a.m. to noon, from 3:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., and from 10 p.m. to 11 p.m. The danger periods are from 7 a.m. to 8 a.m., and from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m.

Astrological influences on this date are adverse for all transactions requiring legal advice, and are unfavorable for literary projects. False pride may lead to mistakes, and poor judgment may lead to heavy losses. Curious, and, perhaps, romantic experiences after sunset.

Children born on this October 28th will have matter-of-fact natures, and they will expect to be "babied" by the world. They will dream of glory, but will not work for it, although they will not work for it, although they will have no mean ability. They will be fond of the pronoun "I," and will never suffer from an inferiority complex.

You jog through life in a leisurely fashion, and you refuse to be hurried or worried. You are not asleep, however, and you have time to enjoy the sights and experiences which come within your reach. You are a courteous, kind, sympathetic, and happy traveller, and you usually receive what you give. Your "what-does-it-matter" attitude toward life may not spell enterprise, but it does spell a maximum amount of contentment for you. Your personality and with will carry you far enough for your own satisfaction, without the expenditure of much brawn. You are not a beggar, but you have no false pride about accepting help from others when it is offered. You will always listen to advice, if it will save you thought and trouble.

You have an inquisitive nature, although you do not nose into things which are not of general interest. You love to talk for the sake of sociability, and you gather up interesting tid-bits of knowledge wherever you go, and from those with whom you talk. You are clever at games and sports, and you enjoy them immensely. You have a vivid imagination, and are idealistic. You always try to make people and situations live up to what you wish them to be, and you, of course, meet with many disillusionments. You are always trying to fool yourself, and it does not always work, although it makes you happy as long as the pretense lasts. Happiness is shown within the home.

WARSAW

Miss Nellie Forsythe was hostess for the regular meeting of the Presbyterian W.M.S. on Thursday afternoon. Miss Mary Rose read the Glad Tidings selection and Miss Ellen Douglas read the scripture. Mrs. Borland took the study book lesson, "The Unfinished Task." The bale was packed and is being sent to Colborne and thence to the West.

Trevor Watts, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Watts won first prize for plowing in sod on Thursday for youths under eighteen.

Miss Edith Tucker is home from New York.

Ivan Payne is reported progressing favorably following his operation for appendicitis.

FOWL SUPPERS

Voracious appetites, which suggested that their owners had fasted ahead in anticipation of the feast, failed to materially diminish the stock of good fare in which tender young chickens played the major role.

It was the village "Fowl Supper"; an annual church event which has its counterpart at this time of the season in all the rural districts throughout the Dominion, and as a breach was made in the solid line of diners at the long tables, that breach was readily filled by some eager gourmand, anxious to get the full value for the very nominal sum which is charged at such affairs, for one of the best meals in the whole calendar of the annual round of eating.

To the onlooker it reminded one of an old time battle, when the red-coated troops used to muster shoulder to shoulder to withstand the onslaughts of the enemy.

The simile is somewhat weak. But there was a semblance of battle in the fierce onslaught which was made on the table groaning under the weight of the viands. In the manner in which, the spaces recently vacated by diners who had satisfied that inner craving, were continually refilled.

It is a continual source of wonder to the careful observer as to how the valiant band of women workers, always manage to withstand the strain involved in the task of feeding from 500 to 600 people in the course of an evening.

The thought also arises. Do these diners give a little reflection to what such a feast has involved?

Probably it has meant that these workers, in most cases farmers' wives and daughters, have provided the chickens; and all that goes with them; they have supplied the tea and coffee; the luscious pies and the meal and in waiting upon the hungry mob, which has descended into their midst from all over the district.

All this has been willingly given, as the annual effort to swell the church funds; and when finally the tide of the onslaught begins to ebb, they will grab a bite here, a bite there; afterwards paying for their supper as the rest have done. They will then heroically tackle the great pile of dishes, which is the inevitable aftermath of all banquets.

"Fowl Suppers" are an institution peculiar to this continent. They are doubtless a survival of those great co-operative efforts, which lifted little pioneer hamlets to their present places as great towns and cities of a great Dominion.

Possibly the community spirit is nowhere more apparent than in a young country such as this, where community effort has played and is still playing an important part in the building of one of the foremost nations of the world.

FRANCE WATCHES BRAZIL

PARIS, France, Oct. 28.—(A.P.)—The French Government officials today were following events in Brazil with the keenest interest. The question of recognition of the De Facto Government, it was said, would be considered as soon as the Brazilian situation cleared somewhat, as had been the case with other South American countries whose governments recently were changed by revolutions.

NEW YORK LIST AGAIN RECOVERS

NEW YORK, October 28 (C.P.)—Recovery was again the order of the day in to-day's stock market, although trading remained light, and the movement was hesitant and cautious.

The uptrend was momentarily interrupted by selling of Westinghouse Electric and Bethlehem Steel, the latter losing as much as 2 points, but these shares soon rallied. Gains were limited to a point or so in such stocks as U.S. Steel and American Can., but several rails, utilities, and miscellaneous shares, such as American Telephone, American Water Works, Johns Manville, American Power and Light, Missouri, Kansas Texas, Rock Island, Union Pacific, Macy and Loews sold up 2 to more than 3.

Bethlehem was apparently influenced by unofficial Wall Street estimates of third quarter net, which will be reported on Thursday. The oils were sluggish, as the sag in both gasoline and crude oil prices still showed no signs of being checked.

Call money was again offered in the outside market at 1½ per cent., although the official rate held at 2.

Recent strength in the Canadian dollar caused moderate shipments of gold to Montreal.

IMPERIAL OIL COMPANY REDUCES GAS PRICE

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 28 (Special to Examiner).—Yesterday the price of crude oil in mid-continent United States fields broke downward. To-day Imperial Oil, Limited, announces a one cent reduction in the price of gasoline. The price cut becomes effective at the opening of business to-morrow from Prince Edward Island to the British Columbia border. No price change will be made in British Columbia, where a gas price war is being bitterly fought out.

The new price to consumers will be 22 cents a gallon in Toronto, to which must be added the five cent tax.

A large percentage of the crude oil used by Imperial comes from South American fields, where no price reduction has yet been made. However, the company has decided to pass on the reduction at once.

Company officials point out that at the time the 2½ cent import duty on refined gasoline was made effective through Premier Bennett's emergency tariff measure it was felt this import tax would be passed on to consumers. This was not done. Now, within five weeks of the measure prices are decreased.

rison. He was captured and imprisoned. Others arrested included Colonel Caldeira Bastos and Major Augusto Ferreira. As quickly as shots were heard shops shut their doors and iron shutters were run down but after firing ceased the city resumed its normal appearance.

Dr. Osvaldo Aranha, Liberal leader and acting president of the State of Rio Grande do Sul, arrived here by plane from Porto Alegre and immediately began conferences with members of the Military Junta which deposed President Luis and have assumed charge. It was believed that as a consequence of the conferences composition of a provisional government would be announced to-day.

Vargas to Be President

There is general acceptance that Getulio Vargas, President of Rio Grande do Sul, rebel Generalissimo, Liberal Party leader, and defeated Liberal candidate in the recent Presidential elections, will be declared President, both to fill out Dr Washington Luis' unexpired term and to begin the regular new term as of Nov. 15.

It is not believed however, that he will come here from Punta Grossa Parana, until troops which originally fought the revolution's battles have penetrated Sao Paulo and Rio de Janeiro.

UNAUTHORIZED SPECULATION LOST MILLIONS OF DOLLARS

Maple Leaf Milling Company Retiring Board Unanimously Re-elected.

WILL REGAIN POSITION.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 28. (C.P.)—Shareholders of Maple Leaf Milling Company heard explanations yesterday at the annual meeting of the losses of the company through unauthorized speculations and unauthorized advances amounting in all to several millions of dollars. In spite of these severe losses confidence was expressed that the company would by the application of business methods regain its position, and the retiring board was unanimously re-elected.

The James Stewart Co., of Winnipeg, it was revealed in statements by directors, had acted as a wheat-purchasing medium for Maple Leaf. It had bought cavily, and without authority of the directors of Maple Leaf, following a prediction credited to the Canadian wheat pool that the price of wheat would soar to $2 per bushel. This prediction were incurred by the company between October 1929, and March this year. Stewart at this time, owned a controlling interest, through the common stock, in Maple Leaf Milling.

Associated with that of Mr. Stewart was also the name of Maple Leaf's former general manager A. R. Macdonald. Shareholders attending the large meeting at the company's Toronto offices also laid some of the blame on former auditors for having failed to reveal the true condition to directors. New auditors were chosen and directors said that legal advice was now being obtained as to the rights of the company.

It was also indicated that losses had been concealed from directors by the presentation of statements which did not show speculation at regular board meetings until March of this year.

TORONTO NAMED AS SITE FOR ONE PLANT OF NEW OIL REFINERY PROJECT

Sault St. Marie Hinted as Key Location According to Winning Free Press.

HIGHER DUTY ON CRUDE.

Refineries Will Be Constructed in Principal Cities Throughout Dominion Under New Development.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 28.—Development of large oil refineries in Canada to be situated at Toronto, Sault Ste. Marie, Montreal, Winnipeg and possibly Vancouver, with an expenditure of $30,000,000 in the Canadian field is rumored here.

In a front page article, the Winnipeg Free Press gave prominence to the rumor declaring that Sault Ste. Marie, convenient of access to the west and having easy communication with the east, is apparently regarded as a key location. Crude oil would be transported to this point and the refined product shipped both east and west.

The Free Press says: "C. A. Ham, Canadian general manager of the Sinclair company, is expected to visit the Soo shortly and it is anticipated work may commence early in spring."

"The Sinclair organization in recent years has built up an extensive marketing organization in Canada, but is dependent upon imports for its supply which are now subject to the gasoline duty.

"There is the possibility that crude oil being producable from the crude oil fields of Wainwright, Lloydminster along the southern Alberta boundary and with unlimited possibilities in the tar sands of northern Alberta, that an import duty may also be imposed on the crude to hasten development of the Canadian fields."

AIRSHIP INQUIRY OPENS IN LONDON

Sir William Jowitt Points Out That R-101 Was in Form of Experiment.

TO READ SECRET REPORT.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 28 (C.P.)—Sir John Simon, British Liberal statesman ,this forenoon opened a searching Government inquiry into the loss of the dirigible R-101 with nearly 50 lives three weeks ago on a hillside at Beauvais, France.

Sir John, bringing the meeting of the Court to order in the great hall of the Civil Engineers' Institute, said, "I think it will be fitting if we stand for a moment to express our sense of poignancy of the tragedy we have met to investigate and to show our sympathy with all those to whom the dead were honored and dear."

The entire assembly arose for a moment or two in tense silence.

Sir William Jowitt, Attorney General, in making the opening statement of the inquiry, paid tribute to the pioneers of the air who had given their lives in pursuance of airship development. He outlined the manner in which evidence was to be presented before the special court, stressing his conviction that the one essential was that every possible factor which could throw light on the tragic happening would be brought out, not only for inquirers but for the public.

"You must never forget," he said, "that this flight which you are investigating was in every sense of the word an experimental flight. This ship and the R-100 were in the nature of experimental ships."

Sir William said that he proposed to read in court material passages from a secret report on the airship's design which the late Lord Thomson, Minister for Air, who was one of the victims of the disaster to the ship, had prepared to place before the Imperial Conference.

Less Regard for Safety

He added that naturally experimental airships operated by highly-trained crews, must proceed with less regard to safety than ordinary well-developed commercial enterprises.

Turning to the R-101 itself," Sir William said that the dirigible went on four trial flights before starting the ill-fated voyage which cost 48 lives. The trial made after a new bay had been added to the airship was followed shortly by the granting of a certificate of air worthiness This was issued on October 2, two days before the ship left for India on its last voyage.

On a question as to whether "material used in constructing the dirigible had anything to do with the calamity, the Attorney General remarked that a cable controlling an elevator had been found broken in the R-101 wreckage. He added that miscroscopic examination might show whether it had broken before or after the disaster.

Nickel Sells Up Half at $18.40 While Noranda Quarter Higher at $15.75.

GOLD SECTION QUIET.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 28.—(CP)—Stocks moved within an extremely narrow range on the mining market in the forenoon to-day with tend still lacking definite direction. Trading was dull and confined to a few issues.

Nickel sold up a half at $18.40 at noon and Noranda was a quarter higher at $15.75. Representatives of important copper producers are reported to be attending an international conference in New York with a view to stabilization of the industry and some constructive action, possibly involving proration of production, is anticipated.

Gold section was quiet, but firm, Granada, Dome and Hollinger gaining 5 each and McIntyre a quarter to$18. Lake Shore, off 10 from last night, and Vipond, down a point, showed the only easiness in the group. Lindsleys were practically unchanged, Sherritt Gordon alone displaying movement with a gain of 4 to 95.

Nordon firmed slightly and majority of other oil held steady, Mayland suffered under some light selling, dropping 4 to $1.01.

UNDERTONE FIRM IN LEAD ISSUES

Dull Trading and Narrow Price Movements Features on Toronto Exchange.

SMALL GAIN IN C.P.R.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 28.—(CP)—Dull trading narrow price movements with price changes tending to be fractionally higher—such was the nature of the market on Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. There was no buyer interest, no sponsorship of individual issues and consequently the price changes were of little consequence. With the majority of the leaders firm it showed the general undertone to be good.

Nickel, the oils, Ford of Canada, C.P.R., Canadian Dredge, Massey-Harris made small gains. Dominion Stores improved again with a rise of one point, to 16. Brazilian was slightly under last night.

The liquor stocks were more active, in comparison, and prices were inclined to go higher though in any case only fractional advantages showed.

U. S. TARIFF COMMISSION STARTS HEARING APPEALS

WASHINGTON, Oct .28.—(C.P.)—The much-debated flexible provision of the 1930 tariff act came back to the centre of the stage to-day as a new United States tariff commission opened its first public hearing for altered rates under the new provision.

Near-winter weather prevailed outside as the hearing began dealing with the tariff rates on straw hats.

The meeting to-day was the first of 14 hearings to be held by the commission this and next month, on products ranging from pig iron to soup. All but two of the investigations were authorized by Congress.

MUCH COMMENT HEARD ON CURB IN REGARDS TO COPPER SITUATION

Thought Lower Prices Would Bring Output in Line With Consumption.

MANUFACTURERS SILENT.

TORONTO, Oct. 28. (Special to Examiner.)—Possibility of some constructive action with regard to the Copper situation was subject to considerable comment on the street to-day. What form this would take was a matter of question, some contending lower prices alone would serve to drive out more high cost production and bring output in line with consumption, while others were of the opinion organized action by larger producers throughout the world with a view to proration of production as in the case of the oil industry would serve as a corrective measure.

Officials of companies interested are not making any comment. It is reported Canadian representatives of International Nickel are now in New York to attend an international conference of copper producers which has for its object stabilization of the industry. Noranda in spite of the independent position it will hold as soon as the Montreal refinery is ready, is not likely to be left out of the picture. Particulars in light of its affiliations with Nichols Copper, now merged with Phelps-Dodge, one of the "The Big Four" American producers. More cooperation among members of the copper cartel would undoubtedly be productive of beneficial results.

According to Winnipeg advices the death of Harry Payne Whitney, whose interests were responsible for the development of the Flin Flon mine of Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting, will have no effect on the operation and policy of the company regarding its property in Northern Manitoba. It is pointed out by officials that while Mr. Whitney was a large stockholder he was neither a director nor an officer of the company and had not been actively interested in the management. The change in the plans or policies at Flin Flon is contemplated, it is stated.

Directors of Sylvanite gold mines are understood to be meeting to-day and there are indications that something of interest may develop. The company is said to be planning resumption of shaft sinking in the near future and possibly of another mill increase is being talked about in view of reported new ore developments.

Navarre Nines, Limited, incorporated in January, 1929, with head office in Toronto and capital of 3,000,000 $1 par shares has been granted supplementary letters patent changing the name of the company to Patricia Birch Lake Mining Corporation, Limited, and increasing the capital stock to $6,000,000 by the creation of an additional 3,000,000 $1 par shares.

PEACE REIGNS IN PORT ARTHUR

No Communists Show Up As 800 Auxiliary Police Patrol Streets.

COUNCIL MEETING HELD.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Oct. 28 (C.P.)—Quiet ruled in Communist-worried Port Arthur last night as 800 auxiliary policemen patrolled the streets. Armed with pick and hammer handles, the auxiliaries stood by during the meeting of the City Council, at which were read demands of the 825 men described as the Committee of the Unemployed Association. The demands were referred to a special committee of the Council named to select employees for relief undertakings.

Downtown streets were crowded as the auxiliary police, wearing distinguishing white arm bands, paraded in ten groups under section commanders and lieutenants. For about an hour, the auxiliaries stood by until the Council meeting was completed, then marched to the armouries. There they were addressed by Mayor Gibbon, who conveyed to them a resolution of appreciation from the council of the city.

The Mounties will not take up patrol duty unless called on by city police.

The local wheat market was dull and featureless Saturday, with one of the smallest trades in weeks passing. Prices during most of the day were quite firm, climbing to about one cent over the close Saturday but this was mainly due to the light offerings, firmness in Chicago and firmer tone to Liverpool. However, there was no real business behind, and while there was a little export business worked over the week end, the volume was insignificant, probably 250,000 bushels, partly done by the Pool. The market was largely a scalping affair during the first part, but later a little hedging pressure, and early buyers unloaded and with a little short selling, prices broke rather sharply. Liverpool closed strong at 13-8 higher, when due more than that lower. The news from Argentine was sufficient to cause some anxiety as rust was again reported in the Province of Cordoba, this time by Broomhall's Agent while the weather over the country was wet over large area of the country. It is a little early for rust damage in Argentine but it is a situation that will bear close wathcing.

There was only a small demand for cash wheat and a fair amount of 2 Northern came out at card price causing a weaker tendency later. Flour trade is quiet for both domestic and foreign account. The Canadian Visible supply decreased 1,657,000 bushels while the United States Visible decreased 2,163,000 bushels. The market closed weak, practically on the bottom and showing losses of ¾ to 1 cent for the day.

Oats and Rye held fairly steady,but Barley continued extremely weak, the cash month touching 25 cents per bushel and still nobody wants it. There was practically nothing doing in the other grains.

Liverpool Cables due 1 to 1¼ lower based on Winnipeg.

GENERAL FOODS CORPORATION EARNS $2.93 ON COMMON STOCK

Gross Earnings for Nine Months After All Expenses Deducted $15,515,260.

FOUR-COMPANY MERGER

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(Special to The Examiner.)— Net earnings of General Foods Corporation and subsidiary companies for the nine months ended September 30, were $15,515,260, after all charges and expenses including reserve for Federal income taxes. These earnings are equivalent to $2.93 per share on the 5,288,795 shares of no par common stock outstanding as of October 1, 1930.,

For the first nine months of 1929, General Foods Corporation, as then constituted, showed net profits of $14,840,252, equivalent to $2.83 per share on 5,248,624 shares of no par common stock outstanding October 1, 1929.

Four companies were merged with General Foods Corporation during the first nine months of 1929. When earnings of these four companies during 1929, prior to the time of their acquisition by General Foods Corporation are taken into consideration, the Corporation's combined earnings for the first nine months of 1930 totaled $16,058,277. These earnings were equivalent to $3.00 per share on 5,349,634 shares of common stock outstanding as of October 2, 1929. The mergerd companies were: Certo Corporation, Frosted Foods, Inc., North Atlantic Oyster Farms, Inc., and Diamond Crystal Salt Company.

The entire difference between earnings in the first nine months of 1930 and the consolidated profits in the same period of 1929 is more than accounted for in the reduction in non-operating revenues this year, as pointed out by C. M. Chester, Jr., president of General Foods Corporation. Operating profits of the Corporation for the first nine months of 1930 exceeded operating profits for the nine months ended September 30, 1929. Non-operating revenues, derived principally from the call money market and other investments for the first nine months of 1930 were $1,501,014. Non-operating profits in the first nine months of 1930 were $619,203.

Truck Badly Burned On Lakefield Road

While proceeding on the Lakefield Road shortly before 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, a truck owned by J. C. Druce and driven by Leslie Bryan, took fire and was almost totally consumed.

The driver was accompanied by A. S. Druce, brother of the owner and by Druce's son. All escaped injury.

The mishap occurred when a short way past the farm of Bruce Bickell, and a large number of passing motorists congregated to watch the spectacle. Someone in the crowd suggested that the gasoline tank should be pierced to prevent an explosion. A nearby farmer responding to the suggestion, procured his rifle and fired a slug of lead into the tank, giving the gasoline free access to feed the hungry flames.

While the cause of the outbreak is somewhat obscure, it is thought possible that it may have originated from a short circuit in the ignition system.

CANADIAN NATIONAL ELECTRIC RAILWAYS

4½% First Mortgage Debentures, Due 15th July, 1961

INTEREST PAYABLE BY CHEQUE 15th OF JANUARY AND JULY

In 1920 the Canadian National Railway was incorporated by Act of Parliament, ninety separate Companies being brought under Government ownership. The Electric lines were all consolidated and called Canadian National Electric Railways.

This issue was originally placed in London, Eng., in June, 1911, by the British Empire Trust Coy., and is registered both in England and Canada, principal and interest are payable at par of exchange.

It is the intention of the Dominion Government to reduce the capital structure of the C. N. Ry. at the instigation of the President, Sir Henry Thornton, and from reliable sources we are informed that a number of odd issues will be called or replaced with Government Bonds.

The Canadian National Rys., according to a recent appraisal, has a value of $2,168,648,491.

FIVE INTERESTING FACTS

1. THE CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS are owned by the DOMINION OF CANADA.
2. THE CANADIAN NATIONAL ELECTRIC RAILWAY is owned and operated by The Canadian National Railways system for the Dominion Government.
3. The INTEREST upon this issue of Debentures has been paid regularly and promptly when due for about twenty years.
4. The total amount of this issue amounts to less than three million dollars and is secured by a FIRST MORTGAGE on a part of the Canadian National Railway system.
5. THE CANADIAN NATIONAL ELECTRIC RAILWAY 4½% Debentures are callable at $105.00 and Interest on six months' notice any time prior to July 15, 1961.

The Investor purchasing £100 ($486.66) at 68½, pays $333.36 plus accrued interest, and he receives $21.90 per year in interest, which represents over twice Bank interest.

If the Debentures are called at 105 before maturity, the investor receives $511.00 plus accrued interest; this figure is almost double the principal invested.

In view of the fact that these Debentures were sold originally in England (listed on the London Stock Exchange) the Canadian Investment public are not generally aware of their present low price.

BORLAND URGES CO-OPERATION AT MEETING OF PETERBOROUGH PRESBYTERY OF THE Y. P. S.

Over Two Hundred Take Part in Lakefield Church Gathering.

REPORTS READ.

Addresses Heard on Missionary Objectives and Organization of Boys' Work.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 27.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The annual convention of the Young People's Organizations of the Presbytery of Peterborough for the United Church was held in Regent Street United Church on Friday afternoon and evening. About seventy-five were present for the afternoon and about two hundred in the evening.

The vice president, Fred Barnard, of Bailieboro, occupied the chair during the afternoon in the absence of the president, G. Cleveland, Robb, of Peterborough. The worship period was conducted by three young people from the Norwood branch following which the Rev. S. A. Kemp gave a few words of welcome, not as a formality, but sincere in the truest sense of the word. He stressed the value of such gatherings the inspiration and the fellowship which sends those present, back to their branches with renewed zeal. Ivan Drain, of Warsaw convenor of the district, added his welcome.

Homer Borland, gave his report as secretary treasurer in a comprehensive manner. During his term of office the Presbytery had been divided into four districts, each with a convenor, Peterborough west with headquarters at Cavan, Peterborough centre, which included the city and Otonabee Peterborough north with headquarters at Lakefield and Peterborough east, with headquarters at Norwood.

The total receipts for the year were $51.97 and the expenses $39.92, leaving a balance of $12.95.

Urges Co-operation.

He urged greater co-operation, more use of the literature provided and the benefit to be derived by becoming better acquainted. Some branches have not yet caught the vision of greater benefit to be derived from the Presbytery organization and are carrying on alone.

The Rev. W. R. Archer, of Havelock, chairman of the Presbytery spoke briefly congratulating the young people on their past achievements and forecasting further advance. This Presbytery stands well forward in its organized work for girls, boys and young people.

Norman Lemary spoke on the subject of boys' work which has been difficult owing to distances between groups. Being unable to personally visit all he had written. He was present at the interdenominational Boys' Work Conference last week there were eight organized groups in the city represented. Each church should support a group of Tuxis boys and Trail Rangers. It is a challenge to the young people to provide young leaders for these groups.

The Rev. J. V. McNeely, of Keene reported on the missionary objectives of the Presbytery there are twenty-charges which have organized groups of young people. C.G.I.T. or C.S.E.T. and all are doing something for missions some financially and some by education.

The nominating committee was appointed consisting of Rev. E. F. Swain, Rev. Mr. Scott, Messrs. Ivan Drain, Fred Barnard and Edgar Clark.

Spiritual Work.

The Rev. J. O. Totten gave an address on the spiritual objective of the Youth Council of North America. The speaker attended the International Conference of Religions held last June in Toronto, which met at the same time as the Youth Conference of North America. He was not privileged to attend the Youth Conference so cannot tell as much of their program as he would like but they were very much in earnest striving with high ideals to live for worthy ends. They met from all over North America as it was international as well as interdenominational; there were picked leaders and workers who formed the Council which numbered 200. The council met first to prepare the work for the Conference as the Cabinet meets before parliament. There are six commissions appointed each member being on one of these and these were the subjects for discussion and consideration. The problem of a deeper grasp of the personal power of Jesus; finding a solution for rules of conduct; the value of worship and prayer; extension of ideals of Christ to other young people; enlistment of youth in world effort for unity; applying Christian teaching to economic and social problems.

The ideals were highly spiritual and strongly for Christian unity, in this matter Canada has led the way. The youth Council of America discussed the question as being more in accord with Christ's teaching and making for greater co-operation.

The Rev. Forbes Stillman of Norwood said, "Some one asked why we are short of funds when we say that the United Church is giving more than the three churches did prior to Union, but the reason is easily explained. The higher cost of living has made the purchasing power of the dollar less. Living in China has increased in cost owing to increased wages. To use an Irishman one has to give more money to give as much as we did before."

There are tremendous opportunities in Northern Manitoba in The Pas district, in the Peace River, at Ft. Churchill and in Northern Quebec where there is tremendous industrial development and great opportunity for the United Church as there are many Anglo Saxons going in there.

There are 440 theological students enlisted for summer supply work and there was no money to send them. Finally 295 were sent at a cost of $60,000, and it was done as a matter of faith and it has been suggested that an appeal be made to the young people to raise the amount. About thirty cents each extra giving would raise this amount and that can hardly be called a sacrifice. Dr. Cochrane the Home Mission Secretary has made the statement that unless there is a change not a single student will go out next year. This will be hard on the students as well as the people in these isolated districts. Most of the students are from poor homes and working their way through college." As an illustration of how great results can come from small things, Mr. Stillman spoke of the great banks of snow which are formed out of winter flakes.

An open form on missions was conducted by the Rev. J. V. McNeeley, of Keene who spoke of the need of missions in the west where they have a student for five months, but they have no services for the rest of the year; the speaker had spent two years in Saskatchewan and he found a great response in the people both those of British stock and the new Canadians who are making a worthy contribution to Canada and to our Church especially.

Group Conferences.

The convention divided into group conferences for half an hour, Miss Helen Burgess led the Christian Fellowship group, the Rev. J. E. Whitham, the literary and recreation group Mrs. J. V. McNeely the Girls' work the Rev. J. V. McNeely the Missionary group and Norman Lemary the boys' group. Following this session the groups adjourned to the town hall for a period of recreation conducted by Miss Esther Thornton, of Peterborough. The ladies of Regent Street United Church provided a bountiful supper which was enjoyed by more than a hundred young people. Sing song was led by the Regent Street orchestra. Toasts were given by Miss Mary Vance, of George Street, Peterborough C.G.I.T. group and Archie Deyell, of Bailieboro, of the C.S.E.T the young people's societies and responded to by Fred Barnard of Bailieboro.

Evening Service.

The orchestra led the short song service which opened the evening service, Homer Borland being in charge. Mr. Robb, the president was chairman for the evening session.

The young people of Knox Church took the worship period with Miss Elsie Kidd in charge. Miss Kidd spoke of youth as a gift marvelled at throughout the ages with its optimism, it is very sad to see an old young person and very delightful to meet a y oungold person. Wallace Hendren read the scriptural lesson and the Rev. T. M. Wesley led in prayer.

The roll call was as follows: Bethany 8, Havelock, 9, Keene 8, Norwood 21, George Street Peterborough; 17; Mark Street, Peterborough, 23 St. James, Peterborough, 25; St. Andrews C.G.I.T. 8, Warsaw; 14, Bailieboro, 9, Selwyn 4. The attendance banner was won by St. James', Peterborough, and was presented to Lloyd May the president, by the Rev. W. R., Archer, who also conducted the installation of officers which are:

Hon. Pres., Rev. W. R. Archer, Havelock; President, G. Cleveland Robb Peterborough; Vice-President, Edgar E. Clark, Norwood. Secretary-treasurer Homer Borland, Peterborough; Convenors: Religious education, the Rev. E. F. Swain, Fraserville, boy's work, Leo Copp, Peterborough; girl's work, Mrs. J. V. McNeeley, Keene, Christian Fellowship, Miss Helen Burgess, Lakefield; Missions, Rev. J. V. McNeely, Keene; Literary and Recreation, Bert Monk, Bethany, Citizenship, Rev. J. E. Whitham Cavan and Leadership training, Rev. J. O. Totten, Bridgenorth.

During the offertory Leslie Wildman played an organ solo and also accompanied Miss Grace Curry, of Peterborough, who sang, "My Task," very sweetly.

Rev. George A. Little, B.A.

The Rev. J. E. Whitham introduced the Rev. George A. Little, B.A., of Toronto, the speaker of the evening, in a very clever little speech. Mr. Little was born in London, Ontario, a son of the manse, was six years in the west and had the high honor to serve as a chaplain with His Majesty's Forces during the war, was for years in Chalmer's Church Guelph and is now editor of the Sunday School publications of the United Church. The subject for his address was the purpose of our program.

Mr. Little was a forceful speaker who brought a real inspiration for higher service to the young people. He asked, is the church a major or a minor issue in your life. The church means to you what you mean to the church. The Christian's life is summed up in three words, "Get, grow and give. The church gives us a knowledge of the worlds greatest book, and a share in the worlds greatest crusade. The church is the centre of herosim and for the earliest days there have been heroic souls giving themselves to missionary work sacrificing home, health and often life itself.

"We cannot draw young people with snobbery or stand-offishness, but with friendship. Does life hold anything better than a living friendship with Christ, who called His disciples not servants but friends? There is too, the recreation side which is being much more stressed than of old and softball, hockey and basket ball is encouraged by the church which has found that we grow by play and self expression." He urged more public speaking contests, debates, etc. "Grow by taking citizenship seriously as an integral part of the young peopleIs program.

"The young men of to-day will have to fight and the young men of to-day must do all they can to prevent war."

Mr. Robb played a feeling tribute to Mr. Little's splendid address.

Closing Exercises.

The Rev. W. R. Archer, Rev. E. F. Swain and Messrs. Clark and Monk took part in the closing exercises and then all around the church the large company joined hands in an unbroken chain as a symbol of their unity of purpose.

INITIAL MEETING OF JUNIOR W.A.

Mrs. W. H. Jordan and Mrs. W. Hilton in Charge of Millbrook Gathering.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 28—(Examiner Correspondence).—Mrs. W. H. Jordan and Mrs. W. Hilton, joint superintendents of the Junior W.A. of Saint Thomas' Anglican church, were in charge of the initial meeting, after the holiday season, held in the Parish Hall of Thursday afternoon, the opening devotional period being followed by a discussion of business items.

The increase in membership, while most encouraging, meant that a division of the Auxiliary into two groups was advisable, and the Branch now has a junior division with ages running from five to nine; and a senior division, the ages being from nine to fifteen years.

The Hallowe'en party for the seniors will be held on Tuesday, October 28, in the Parish Hall, it was decided, a fine of five cents, in addition to the small admission fee, to be imposed on those who fail to come in costume. Mary Vance, with Mrs. Hilton as her helper, was appointed convenor of the refreshment committee, and Winnie Lord, Gertrude Richards, and Mrs. Jordan will be responsible for providing suitable program.

The fancy dress party for the juniors will be held on Monday, November 3, in the Parish Hall, from four to six o'clock. At each event there will be two prizes offered for the best costumes.

Singing and prayer, with a recreation period, brought the meeting to a close.

"PENMANIZE YOUR UNDERWEAR BUYING!"

Different types of men require different types of Underwear

If you are robust, never catch cold, easily kept warm, you need radically different underwear than if you were easily chilled, had poor circulation and were subject to colds.

Furthermore, occupation is a factor. The man who drives or rides to work in a warm car, works indoors all day and rides home at night, doesn't require the underwear-protection needed by the man whose work is outdoors in all kinds of weather.

Because there is such a difference in men's underwear requirements and because it is important to any man that he wears the correct type and weight, we present the accompanying chart for your guidance.

Your needs are met in one or other of the Penmans lines described. Find your type, then order by the Penmans name and number and you'll enjoy maximum underwear comfort and protection this Winter.

Since 1868 Penmans Underwear has been "the standard of excellence". The name stands for high quality, for fine workmanship, for easy comfort, fit, durability and the utmost value. You can't go wrong in buying Penmans.

For fine quality, sterling worth and long life there is no underwear quite so good as

MEDIUM

Penmans No. 95 is the finest natural Merino underwear made. For fifty years Canada's most popular medium weight. Gives healthful protection in coldest weather, yet is not too heavy for indoor wear. Penmans light weight pure wool underwear is the highest grade made in the world. Ivory in tone. Light, yet very warm and comfortable. Recommended for those who work indoors, yet need sufficient protection to guard them from chills when they are outdoors.

TWICE BENEFITED BY SAME REMEDY

Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cobourg, Ontario—"Years ago when I had a sick father and a nursing baby to care for, I got all run down and I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to get strength to do my work. Another time at Change of Life, I had severe headaches and felt tired all the time. I took seven bottles of the Vegetable Compound and felt like a new woman. I recommend it to any woman who is at the age when she needs building up." —Mrs. T. E. Sleeman, R.R. 4, Cobourg, Ontario.

MRS. LAWLOR SPEAKS LAKEFIELD W.C.T.U.

"Relationship of Alcohol to Good Citizenship" Subject of Address.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 28 (Examiner Correspondence)—Mrs. R. G. Lawlor, of Norwood was the special speaker at a meeting of the W.C.T.U. held in the Sunday School room of Regent Street United Church on Wednesday afternoon, taking as her subject, the relationship of alcohol to good citizenship. "A citizen is one who enjoys the privileges and protection of a government and in return he is expected to obey the laws and regulations. Trouble always ensues when people want to enjoy the protection of the land without obeying its laws. Some of our laws are not necessary for us as individuals but are necessary for a community. Every man, woman and child has a right to develop mentally, physically and morally.

Dr. Fiske a prominent life insurance man found alcohol not conducive to good citizenship. Men are inclined to attempt to drown their desire for better things. The moderate drinker is a greater menace than the drunkard for the latter presents a picture of degradation which no one would want to follow while the former boasts he can take it or leave it alone, is a bad example.

Dr. Weeks, of England a prominent physician has become a teetotalor as the result of his observation of the effects of alcohol as a hindrance to health. What has government control which was introduced as an advanced temperance measure accomplished? There is business depression which, however, does not affect the breweries and distillers which are increasing rapidly and are all active. Ontario has spent more on alcoholic beverages than on bread last year. One hears some people talk against prohibition but it is a success, for respectable people won't try to get liquor in the sly. The old country is staggering under a colossal burden of war debt and the drinking and unemployment are terrible. If the land had listened to Lloyd George who in war time, wanted to buy out the breweries and rid the country of the liquor traffic, conditions would have been better.

Government control is taking a strong stand on this question, the United Church and the Baptist Church and probably the Presbyterian Church will also. Some Anglicans are living up too. There are temperance departments introduced in the Sunday Schools and in the W.M.S. Premier Ferguson has written letters to the teachers and has urged educational campaign for the schools in the teaching of hygiene. Our hope is with the children. It is a great mistake that government control is in politics for drinking now is worse than ever."

Mrs. G. C. Grant, president of the W.C.T.U. told briefly of the work of the local branch in holding examinations in the Sunday Schools which is co-operated but it was hard to get the children to unite.

Mrs. Yale deplored the political side of the question but declared that no party could be called innocent as it was a Liberal government in British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Quebec which introduced government control; a Conservative government in Ontario, New Brunswick and Manitoba. No government is proof against the revenue bait. Mrs. Yale moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Lawlor.

Mrs. Grant spoke of her departure from the village in the near future and urged more leadership there are many loyal followers but the need if for leadership. Mrs. MacMillen sang very sweetly "Was that somebody you?" accompanied by Miss Nelson. Tea was served and a social hour enjoyed.

BETTER POULTRY ON FALL MARKET

Dealers and Packers Working With Gov't to Establish New Grades.

"MILK FED"—"SELECTED."

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 28.—(C.P.)—The people of Canada will eat better poultry this season than ever before. That promise is held out as the result of a nation-wide movement to introduce poultry grading for the present poultry season. Canada's poultry season extends roughly from Oct. 20 to the new year. During that time approximately 15,000,000 chickens and older fowl will be marketed in this country in addition to the turkeys, geese, ducks, etc., the average weight of the chickens will be about four pounds.

The grading movement is sponsored by the egg and marketing service in the Department of Agriculture and the packers and others handling poultry in a big way have agreed to pay according to grade.

The movement will really get under way from Toronto later this week, where livestock and departmental officials will be in conference.

All poultry will be divided into two main grades, "milk fed" and "selected". "Milk fed" does not necessarily mean that the birds get milk to drink. It means that they have been crate fed until their muscles have been softened and the fat takes on a milk-white color. The selected are range fed, with more athletic muscles.

MARMORA

MARMORA, October 26 (Examiner Correspondence)—A very impressive sermon on the miracle of the loaves and fishes as narrated in St. Matthew's Gospel was delivered by the Rev. W. L. Wright, rector of Tweed, at St. Paul's Church on Sunday evening. The preacher in the first part of his discourse enlarged upon the three remaining appeals the miracle would have upon readers. Some would see the historical discrepancies, others its artistic setting and others again its human touch.

In the second part of the sermon the principles of development and economy as illustrated in the story were deal with in a four fold way. It was shown how these principles of development or continuity and economy pertain to nature, God's truths, lives of great people in this world and in the individual life of the true Christian.

And while you are putting on weight with McCoy's you'll also gain in energy and physical attractiveness—eyes will brighten—skin blemishes vanish.

Second and Third Oratorical Contests Held in West's School, Seymour

SEVERAL SPEAKERS

TRENT RIVER, Oct. 28 (Examiner Correspondence).—The second and third series of the oratorical contests were heard Thursday evening at West's School, where Mr. Todd is teacher. Four of the pupils entered the contest, while two of these were from Fleming's School.

Mr. Waters was chairman for the evening, and opened his remarks with a word to the members of the Women's Institute of Seymour West, thanking them for their generous gifts to the school.

The program was as follows:

Chorus by School—"See the leaves fall one by one; recitation by one of the pupils; violin selection — Schumann's "Traumerei," by Mr. Heslin, who responded to an encore; Miss Irene Curle (first number for the oratorical contest), "What a girl can do to help"; "The story of a rubber tire," by Edward Rutherford; community singing, "Old Black Joe"; "What a girl can do to help," by Grace Lewis, from Fleming School; "The story of a rubber tire," by Evelyn Tripp, Fleming School; "How lead pencils are made," by Beatrcie Rutherford; recitation—Helen Oliver; address on "Bananas," by Gerald Nelson; recitation—"The reason why," Mary Rutherford; "The Beaver," by Edmund Brown; "Sugar," by Ella McCulloch; recitation, "September," by Dorothy Curle; pantomime, "An Automobile Trip," by pupils of the school.

Presentation of Fair prize money to the teacher, Mr. Todd, the school having won first prize for best collection of flowers. Mrs. George Nelson, on behalf of the Women's Institute, presented the cheque to Mr. Todd, who in turn made a suitable reply.

Irene Curle Winner.

R. W. Umphrey of Trent Bridge School, gave the decision of the judges in favor of Irene Curle, with Edward Rutherford coming a close second, while all the speakers spoke well. Mr. Umphrey impressed on their memory to remember the three important facts in the contest—manner, delivery and material.

For the pupils from Fleming School Miss Grace Lewis won first honors.

The one act play, "Bugginsville Uplifts Society," was repeated by the same caste as of the previous night. The concluding number was a chorus by members of the play, "The Darling Black Moustache." A small admission fee was charged for adults, from which the result amounted to $13.25. The proceeds from the entertainment held at Conolly's School was $14.25.

The proceeds from these oratorical contests are co-operative, to help expenses regarding the contest.

The contest for Trent River School will be heard November 14.

The winners from each of the four schools in West Seymour will be heard later in November at Campbellford, after which they go to Castleton, where the finals for the county are to be held, whose winner will represent Northumberland at the Provincial competition during the convention of the Ontario Education Association in Toronto next Easter week.

That best two speakers chosen from each township will compete at Castleton. Each township will finance its own contest. The competition is open to all public and separate school children, and it is understood that all the pupils entering will receive some award.

DEER SCARCE IN NORTHERN HAUNTS

Water Famine Expected in North Hastings and Rainfall is Hoped For.

Those who have occasion to be in the woods inform us that partridge are much more noticeable this fall than for some years past. The same observers note that deer appear scarcer in haunts where they were formerly numerous. The activities of the wolf have no doubt a diminishing effect on the deer

With the opening date of the hunting season less than two weeks away nimrods of the chase are congregated at Bancroft exchanging tale, of the happy hunting grounds. In a few days more an influx of sportsmen will be leaving for the wilds with their guns cleaned and oiled in quest of the elusive buck

Unless there is considerable rain before winter sets in, there is likely to be a water famine in the north. Even at this date many are obliged to go some distance for water. Rain is badly needed for the filling of wells, the replenishing of creeks, and the moistening of the soil for plowing. Farmers unite with town people in hoping for a normal rainfall before the settling in of winter.—Bancroft Times.

LAYMEN'S BANQUET IS HUGE SUCCESS

R. F. Downey and Rev. David Wren Are Guest Speakers for Occasion.

BAILIEBORO, Oct. 28 (Examiner Correspondence).—The Rev. David Wren of Trinity United Church and R. F. Downey, President of the Peterborough Laymen's Association, were the guest speakers at a laymen's banquet at Fraserville, on Thursday evening.

The banquet, prepared by the ladies of Fraserville United Church, was held in the L.O.L. Hall, commencing at 7 o'clock, and about fifty men sat down to a sumptuous repast.

Fred Clark of Fraserville presided as chairman, and the Rev. E. F. Swayne conducted the sing-song, with E. Wood at the piano.

Mr. Downey outlined the program followed by the Lay Association and explained how the men of the church could assist in carrying on the Christian work if they would only co-operate with the pastors and ladies.

A duet was rendered by Messrs. Eldridge White and Keith Barnard.

The address of the evening was then given by Rev. David Wren. The speaker outlined the need for money and co-operation to carry on the maintainance and missionary work; of how missionaries were compelled to return to Canada from foreign fields because there was not sufficient funds to keep them on their fields of service.

The address throughout was a most impressive and instructive one, and those present agreed if the men of the church could only hear the situation explained in the manner in which the speaker dealt with it, there would be no trouble in raising sufficient funds to carry on the desired work.

Organize Association

At the close of the program the men discussed the advisability of organizing a laymen's association on the Fraserville circuit. After brief discussions, led by Messrs. William and Edmund Dawson of Benafort, Fred Clark of Fraserville, and W. H. Barnard of Bailieboro, it was decided to organize. The following officers were elected: Honorary President, Rev. E. F. Swayne; President, Fred Clark, Fraserville; Vice-President, Edmund Dawson of Bensfort; Secretary, Fred H. Barnard, Bailieboro; Representatives from the various charges: Stuart Hogg, Fraserville; Norman Earl, Bailieboro, and Frank Buckham, Bensfort.

Mr. Downey explained that the newly organized association would be the second group in this part of Ontario.

Among those present were representatives from Springville, Bethany, Bailieboro, Peterborough and Bensfort.

The local association hope to hold three banquets each year—one at each of the three charges on the Fraserville circuit.

A popular fur in London this season is moleskin dyed black.

CHURCH IS FILLED FOR ANNIVERSARY

Burnbrae Presbyterians Celebrate Their 90th Anniversary.

DR. SEYMOUR PREACHES

BURNBRAE, October 28 (Examiner Correspondence). — With the auditorium of the historic St. Andrew's Church crowded to the doors at both services on Sunday, the ninetieth anniversary of the congregation was celebrated in a most fitting and successful manner. The speaker for the day was Rev. Dr. Seymour of Belleville (St. Andrew's), and formerly a pastor of the largest church in Australia. Dr. Seymour is a native Canadian, but his Scottish ancestry must have left a distinct impression on his speech, which delighted the audience with its Scottish flavor, proving quite in keeping with the idea of the celebration, the forming of the Scottish church at Burnbrae. He has travelled widely, and his experiences have given him a wealth of references with which he illustrates his points.

At the morning service Dr. Seymour took as his text Romans 12, 11: "Not slothful in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord." In opening, he congratulated the congregation on its wonderful history and splendid church and surroundings, but assured his listeners that he did not intend to give any special anniversary eulogy, but only a good, old-fashioned Gospel message. A few of his thoughts are well worth recalling. The Bible is designed to instil moral principles. The Christianity of Paul was something passionate in character, calling for the very best. The church to-day needs to recover something of Paul's passion; there is too much indifference to the wrongs of the day. There is the age-old question, "Am I my brother's keeper?" There is also abroad in the world to-day an attitude of ignorance of the evil of sin. Many do not realize what the effects will be. Then there is the attitude of indignation, and this is the only way in which a Christian church and Christian people should regard sin, with fervent passionate indignation. Those holding this attitude have a great conviction, and back of every worthwhile movement in history has been such a conviction. It was thus with Martin Luther. God wants men who will not compromise with truth, in all his walks of life. The aninversary should be an inspiration to greater service. Men who have given this whole-hearted service are the ones whose work is remembered. In conclusion, Paul's message to the church for years to come, "God wants all."

At the evening hour, Dr. Seymour continued along the same theme, with Christ's challenge to service, taking his text from Colossians 1, 8: "In all things he might have pre-eminence."

Christ was pre-eminent as a teacher and with His coming the mysteries of the ages were unfolded. He taught as one who knew all and not with the hesitancy of one who knows there is much yet to be learned. Christ was pre-eminent as to moral character. Many prominent Bible characters, as Moses and David, were great in many ways, but they had the weaknesses of all other humans as to moral character.

Christ was pre-eminent as a Saviour. Great reformers of the past have aspired to great heights, but the saving grace of Christ inspires and uplifts men. The nations which accept his Gospel are pre-eminent. Some think the church is unnecessary, but the old-time powers fell because they knew not God. Christ should be pre-eminent in the political, social and national life, and all reforms that are started. He should hold first place in the church, but strange to say, He does not always have that place. Only when Christ is pre-eminent in the lives of a community is a church influential and prosperous. Lives may be really beautiful only when Christ is all-powerful in them.

The service of song did much to add to the beauty of the occasion. Three special numbers were rendered at each service. A male quartette, Messrs. G. V. Taylor, Malcolm Hutcheon, George Donald, and George Fry, delighted the audience on each occasion. The choir, under the leadership of Mrs. G. V. Taylor, rendered two anthems, which were much appreciated. The choir was assisted by Messrs. Alexander McDonald and James Dickson and Mrs. C. Milne, of Campbellford, and Mrs. (Dr.) Seymour of Belleville, who also pleased the audience with two lovely solos, both well-known selections, "In the Garden" and "O Love that will not let me go." Miss Helen Oddie, organist of the congregation, deserves praise for the manner in which she handled the musical end of the services. Rev. D. A. McKenzie, minister of St. Andrew's, Burnbrae, was warm in his gratitude to those who had assisted, especially Dr. and Mrs. Seymour, who had turned down engagements in Montreal and Trenton to be present.

A generous thankofferings totalling over $930 was received at the morning worship period. The total receipts for the anniversary will be announced following the fowl supper on Tuesday evening.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Alice Michaelis

(By Aline Michaelis.)

LOOKING AHEAD.

Looking ahead, life is always kind;
Looking ahead, we can hourly find
Much that will bring to us strength and cheer,
Tasks to be done or duties clear.

Looking ahead, we can better plan
Work we would do for our fellowman;
Every vision and aim will glow
Bright with the future's hope-brimmed glow.

Promise will gleam with its rainbow light,
Love will lead to life's lost delight;
Looking ahead, we can still devise
A purpose that wholly satisfies.

Thus as we live our life, looking ahead,
Over the journey a splendor is shed;
Courage and power each day dawn anew,
Looking ahead to the good and the true.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

SITTING IN SCHOOL.

When I think of my early days in school where I had to sit with my arms folded or placed behind my back while the teacher taught the lesson, I often wonder that there were not more rebellious amongst us than there were.

To sit fifteen to twenty minutes in one position may have taught self-control, but was not really good sense, not good health training.

I'm not advocating that children should sit in a slouchy attitude and prop themselves up by their arms, but to make children sit in one position for minutes at a time was not fair to their mental or physical growth.

For, after all, children are like other small animals; they like to move about, to be inquisitive about things, to shout, sing, stretch themselves and so forth. I believe that youngsters between 7 and 10 years of age should be given a chance to move or stretch every 10 minutes. This could be done by having them get up from their seats and walk around the room a couple of times and then back to their seats. This would give a "change of blood" from the brain and permit that moving or stretching of the arms, legs, and body, that every young animal needs.

There may be difficulties about this: the noise might interfere with work in other rooms below or adjoining. In such cases getting the youngster up in the aisle, and giving a few stretching and bending exercises could be done easily and quietly.

This is all the more necessary now as the playgrounds adjoining schools do not give the 100 square feet per pupil that is required. Further at recess and after school the youngsters that really play are the ones who need it least. The children that really need the play sit or stand around and watch the others.

Many teachers organize group games in which "every" youngster takes part because no high degree of skill is necessary. But again this is not general throughout the country.

My thought then is that if the youngster is normal he'll want to move his body, arms and legs every ten minutes, and if he isn't he should be made to do it anyway.

The brain will be clearer, the circulation improved, and more real mental work done in the succeeding ten minutes than if no change of position had been given.

VICE-PRESIDENT OF BELL TELEPHONE

New Business Methods.

In his opening remarks, Mr. Macpherson stressed the important role the telephone was playing in industry. "New methods of handling business have evolved from the invention of the telephone, and its disappearance would compel almost a revolution in the daily routine" he affirmed.

Pointing out the benefits of easy and rapid international communication, he said, "Whatever concern may be caused by present day frictions and explosive possibilities of international contact, the fact is that incidents and conditions which fifty years ago would have resulted inevitable in war are adjusted today because ease of communication and of travel have brought about national acquaintance and the personal intimacies of national leaders."

Mr. Macpherson maintained that even though criticism was levelled at the accomplishments of the League of Nations good could not help but come from even the contacts made by the international leaders as they gathered about the table. "They learn to know and esteem one another" he said, "and, possibly to the surprise of some, learn that civic virtue is not enclosed within any specific geographical boundaries, and that mental and moral progress may occur outside the Western Hemisphere."

Pointing out the importance of international communication, he said, "It is worthy of note that the threat of isolation is one of the most extreme penalties of breach of the Treaty of Versailles and that the last step before actual warfare is the severance of communication. That long established custom is in itself sufficient evidence of the influences towards peace and goodwill of every increasing communication.

Radio a By-product.

"In the increase of that communication the telephone has played a most important part much enlarged by the fact that radio transmission of speech or music is a by-product of telephone invention. The toy or humbug of a little more than fifty years ago, whose range of use was restricted to the immediate neighborhood, can now provide oral communication with almost every part of the civilized world. Inter-communication is now possible between 31,000,000 telephones of 88 percent of the total of the world. Only limitations of cost delay the accomplishment of that objective that anyone anywhere may, within a few minutes, speak to anyone anywhere else in the world."

The important part that Canada had played in the development of the telephone was also strikingly pointed out. Mr. Macpherson referred to an interview he had with Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor of the telephone, in which Mr. Bell had said.

"It is rather a curious thing to me to see the dispute about where the telephone was invented. It was I who invented the telephone and it was invented wherever I happened to be at the time. Of this you may be sure, the telephone was invented in Canada. It was made in the United States. The first transmission of a human voice over a telephone wire, where the speaker and the listener were miles apart, was in Canada. The first transmission by wire in which conversation was carried on reciprocally over the same line was in the United States. It certainly is the case that the telephone was invented in Canada and that the first actual use of telephone lines was in in this country."

Canada Always a Leader.

Further Canada took its place as the leader in telephone communication by the fact that, the first transmission of speech over wires to any distance was between Brantford and Paris on August 10, 1876; the first exchange in the British Empire and the second in the world was established in Hamilton, Ontario, early in 1876.

"In Peterborough was one of the earliest and most vigorous efforts to establish dial telephone service" stated Mr. Macpherson. "It was not then possible to make it a business success. It had not reached then the efficiency which led later to its general adoption, but in the system which had a long workout in Peterborough were many features which have been developed and incorporated in the most advanced type of dial service now adopted. Canada holds an outstanding place in the invention and development of the telephone, as she does in the extension of its use."

The telephone business is an industry of great dimensions. According to statistics of the Federal Government the total payroll of Canadian telephone systems in 1928 amounted to nearly $29 000 000 and there were then about 25,000 employees. Only two of forty manufacturing industries, pulp and paper, and sawmill, had a greater number of employees and only three, these two and railway rolling stock, had greater payrolls.

Mr. Macpherson drew attention to the fact that it is difficult for the subscriber to realize that behind the simple instrument is a world of human effort and research and mass of delicate and intricate machinery.

The speaker pointed out further that the product of the telephone industry could not be measured or weighed easily, but is a service wholly personal in character communications between people. On the average day the Bell Telephone in Ontario and Quebec handles over 5,000,000 local calls. This progress and increased service, he said was the result of concentrated research work. Wires hanging overhead have been greatly reduced and cables buried underground. Now 2,400 paired wires making 1,200 lines, are enclosed in a single cable.

"In the telephone field of this continent this research has developed into what is known as the Bell Laboratories, whose research in problems of sound and electrical communication has produced by-products of an importance only less than that of their original purpose" said the speaker. "These include radio communication, television, improved gramaphone reproduction, sound movies, hearing devices for medical and surgical work, and in communication itself, ship-to-shore, plane-to-ground, trans-Atlantic telephoney, to be by cable as well as radio."

Mr. Macpherson said that the telephone is a monoply, but it has made rapid strides of advancement greater than in most industries, spurred on by competition, by impusion. "I think the fact that a service is all there is to sell has something to do with it," he affirmed.

Giving Philip Cabot's analysis of the evolution of modern business, the speaker said.

"First the aim is bigger than the man, and he feels, it seems to me, as it was outside of him. It is like the theologian's image of God, a power outside you but, curiously, in some way connected with the inside side that it is very difficult to separate them. There are great disputings as to whether the power is inside or outside, but these men have the same feeling about their ideal aims that the priest has about his God—an outside power, something that they worship.

"Second, the ideal swallows the man. He forgets himself. He becomes unselfish, as we call it, but I prefer to call it unconscious. He does not think about himself because he will not be bothered with a thing so trivial.

"Third the most striking symptom is the extraordinary freedom of the man. He has entered into the service of something which has made him free. Some of you remember the words of the prayer book, "whose service is perfect freedom". The true professional man has submitted to domination, or control, which has made him free—a very curious fact."

"In that spirit which more and more inspires business of today lies good service and in that way lies success. I hope that I have made clear what we as practical men engage from day to day in a practical industry feel to be the ideal of our vocation" commented the speaker.

Canada stands second in the world wide development of telephones; the city of Toronto highest of all cities over 500,000 population in the number of residence telephones. In 1911, there were in use something more than 300,000 telephones in Canada. At the end of 1928 that number had grown to over 1,330,000 and the number of telephones per hundred of population from 4.2 to 13.8.

The speaker pointed out that 18,000 people have invested their savings in the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, and 93 percent of these people live in Canada and by that number 62 percent of the total stock is owned. They have put into the company $79,500,000 in cash.

Mr. Macpherson then described the manner in which the Bell Telephone Company was managed, stating that it employs 16,000 persons in Canada. He described the manner in which the employees were brought up to that stage of skill required by the industry. Outlining the company he said, "The only sound policy that will meet these obligations is to continue to furnish the best possible telephone service at the lowest cost consistent with financial safety. This policy is bound to succeed in the long run, and there is no justification for acting otherwise than for the long run."

The guests from the Bell Telephoe Company were:

J. H. Bruce, General Manager West Division; H. H. P. Johnston, District Manager; G. F. Elms, District Plant Sup't.; H. A. Wilson, District Traffic Superintendent; A. W. Entwistle, Division Traffic Supervisor, Central Northern Division (Toronto); F. J. Jewell, Local Manager (Lindsay); R. H. Lundy, Plant Wire Chief; H. Lush, P.B.X. Repair Man; F. Lindsay, Traffic Student; M. E. Smye, Office Manager.

Miss Jean MacGregor, who comes to Toronto from Glasgow, N.S., as the new girls' work secretary for the Presbyterian church.

Halloween refreshments should be pictorial rather than expensive—of course they can be both, for it is possible to have very elaborate and costly concoctions and caterer's dainties, typical of the occasion.

• • • • • • •

But it is also possible to so use ordinary culinary agents that they supply equally typical, amusing and interesting refreshments.

• • • • • • •

Have you ever tried a candlestick salad? Cut a circle around the top of a corn muffin and about one-half inch from the edge. Remove this circle and carefully pull out the inside of the muffin to form a cup of this thickness.

• • • • • • •

Fill with baked bean salad or a waldrof salad mixture. To make the bean salad crush the baked beans and to two cupfuls add one chopped hardboiled egg, 2 teaspoons of minced pimento, 1 tablespoon capers and enough boiled well-seasoned dressing as will be required to make a tasty mixture. Half a cup should be sufficient. Fill the muffins with this mixture.

• • • • • • •

Into the centre of each put a gherkin and tip this imitation candle with a bit of pimento to represent a flame. Cut a narrow strip of green pepper and force each into the muffin thus fashioning a handle, and set the edible candle in its candlestick on a circle of lettuce.

• • • • • • •

If the waldrof salad is used, make the candle of stuffed olives on a toothpick. Force out some of the pimento in the top olive to represent the flame. Put the olive on the toothpick and put the toothpick down into the muffin to hold it up enough to represent a candle.

• • • • • • •

Serve this with salted nuts and ginger ale or hot chocolate.

• • • • • • •

• • • • • • •

Set the hobgoblin on a little mound of whipped cream colored green. Marshmallow whip colored green can be used, if preferred instead of the ice cream, or the whipped cream.

• • • • • • •

To eat with this ice make a chocolate cooky mixture for witchcat cakes, roll and with a cat cooky cutter cut out and make while soft. Form eyes with tiny yellow gumdrops and serve with the ice cream.

• • • • • • •

Or make round chocolate drop cakes. Frost with fudge icing and make eyes, nose and mouth with yellow icing. On each side near the edge of the top put two pointed lines to resemble cat's ears, and three pin lines of white frosting for cat's whiskers and from each end of the line representing the mouth. Use a paint brush to make the delineations.

YOUNG GIRL CANOEIST SHOWS HEROISM IN KEEPING CRAFT UPRIGHT IN TERRIFIC STORM

Accustomed to Paddling in Ocean Waters, 18 Year Old Girl is Caught.

CARRIED FIVE MILES.

Rescued By Three Men in Fishing Trawler After Hard Battle.

(Special to Examiner, Copyright, 1930)

SYDNEY, N.S., Oct 28.—One of the most perilous canoe passages made in recent years has recently been made by a girl. She is Miss Catherine Phalen, of North Sydney, N.S.

Miss Phalen, who is 18 years old, is a skilled paddler and manipulator of the favorite vessel of the Indians. Her chief exercise from early spring until the verge of winter is by wielding the paddle. Not only on inland waters, but around the Atlantic shore. In fact, she does most of her canoeing in the ocean. There is more excitement in the sea paddling according to Catherine.

When Miss Phalen put out in her flimsy craft early in the afternoon for what developed into her most exciting voyage, there was a considerable wind and quite a choppy sea. However, both were just about to the liking of this girl, who had repeatedly paddled her canoe in the face of elements equally and more boisterous. She kept the canoe about 100 yards from shore as she paralleled what is Kelly's Beach.

Suddenly the wind swung around, and grew much stronger. It had been blowing off sea, when the girl started out in her canoe.

With the turning of the wind, the girl's battle with both wind and waves, commenced. With the gale that presented itself coming off the shore, the canoe was driven toward the open sea. Miss Phalen made desperate efforts to prevent this, but all her work was of no avail. She had also to see the canoe did not capsize or fill with water from the waves that were breaking over the frail craft.

When the people on the shore realized the plight of the lone girl paddler, that her canoe was being driven out to theopen Atlantic, by the terrific squall, the story spread quickly, and there were soon more than 1000 watchers on shore.

Although she fully recognized her predicament, Miss Phalen made no outcry. She directed all her energies toward trying to keep the canoe headed into the wind, and out of the tidal current, However, both were utterly impossible, although the girl manifested uncommon courage in continuing the unequal battle.

Somebody ran after Catherine's brother, Owen Phalen, and he ran from his work to the shore. With the impulsiveness of youth, the distraught young man leaped into a nearby rowboat and began to row to the help of his sister. In a few minutes, the boat was almost swamped by an especially forceful wave, and about half filled with water. The boat was sinking, and young Phalen had to row it to shore again, as quickly as the foundering boat could be propelled.

Two men in the crowd on shore decided they would attempt a rescue of the girl, who was now being quite rapidly driven far out of sight of the spectators into the ocean.

At Mouton's wharf, a few hundred yards away, the fishing schooner Unadella, owned by Capt. Phillip Strickland, was berthed, after a trip to the fishing grounds.

The two men seized the vessel, in pirate style, got the auxiliary engine in operation, and sped toward the feminine canoeist, why by that time was out of sight of the people on the shore. On the way to the Unadella, to commandeer that vessel, they were joined by a third man. He accompanied them on the fishing vessel.

In the meanwhile, Miss Phalen continued her uneven fight against the tide, wind and waves. The sight of South Bar, a reef extending far from shore below North Sydney harbor, gave the girl an idea. With the tide at ebb, the bar would give her comparative safety until the incoming tide, and by that time, rescue might come.

Lands in Bar.

By skillful handling of the canoe, Catherine was able to deflect its course enough to make a landing on the bar She was very much fatigued on reaching the bar, and had to rest.

She was resting on the bleak and narrow reed, with the highest of the waves threatening to sweep her into the trough of the sea, when the Unadella, herself having considerable trouble combating the wind and waves, came about 100 yards from the bar.

It was risky to bring the craft that near the bar, because of the strength of the sea, which might force the boat against the bar and wreck it. However, the Unadella was headed against the wind and the motor succeeded in keeping her off the reef, while Catherine was being taken off the bar.

Curry, one of the rescuers, went into a dory after it was launched from the schooner's deck. He started to row briskly toward the bar. Several times the waves submerged the dory, and almost turned the double bowed craft over. One gust of wind blew Curry half way over the side. Had he not obtained a firm grip on the wood, he would surely have been deposited in the water. And, once in the water, it would be hopeless to attempt life saving.

He got the dory to the bar, and took the girl abroad. She was admittedly fatigued, but insisted on bringing her beloved canoe with her. Therefore, with Curry rowing, and the girl clinging with both hands to the birch bark vessel from the other end of the dory, the return passage was made from the bar to the Unadella.

Despite her near-exhaustion, the girl climbed into the fishing schooner with little assistance from those on board. She, also, supervised the dragging of her canoe on the schooner.

The damage to the canoe must have been inflicted some time before South Bar was reached, and how the girl kept the canoe afloat is a mystery to old mariners, as they described the storm as one of the most severe in years, although it lasted only a few hours. The girl was carried more than five miles.

Miss Phalen who is the daughter of T. M. Phalen, inspector of schools, North Sydney, and Mrs. Phalen, was none the worse for her adventure, outside of being very tired and considerably nervous. After a sound sleep, she was ready, the following day, for a resumption of her daily canoeing, but in another canoe. When she arrived at the dock she was the centre of a reception party of about 1,000 persons.

Miss Kathleen Sutton Offered Scholarship

MILLBROOK, Oct. 28. (Examiner Correspondence.)—An article in a recent issue of the "High School News", of Chapleau, Ontario, headed "Congratulations", contains news of an honor obtained by Miss Kathleen Sutton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Moses Sutton, Millbrook, which will be read with interest by her many friends not only locally, but also in Peterborough and other points. It reads:

"The pupils of the High School were pleased to hear that Miss Kathleen Sutton, our French teacher, was recently offered a scholarship by the Bourse d'Etudes of Quebec, as the award included a year of study in Paris. We feel complimented in having one of our teachers so honored. However, Miss Sutton has decided to remain loyal to her duties in Chapleau, and surrendered this promising opportunity for study and travel. We congratulate her on the distinction she has won, and are grateful for her decision to remain with her work here."

Prior to completing her final term at the University of Toronto last year, Miss Sutton studied for a year in Paris, France, and this fact undoubtedly influenced her decision not to accept the scholarship she has recently won through gaining highest standing after writing on the examination in French sponsored by the Provincial Board of Education of Quebec. Miss Sutton, and the fellow-student who accompanied her, were the first to take advantage of the arrangement by which a full term's study abroad could be undertaken, since the scheme was inaugurated by the University.

The City of Peterborough is to be favored this week with a visit of the new Moderator of the United Church in the person of the Very Reverend Edmund H. Oliver, M.A., Ph.D. Dr. Oliver was the unanimous choice of the General Council of the United Church at the recent sessions held in St. Andrew's Church, London.

He comes to his high position with all the credentials necessary for his work. He comes from the West, where he has been the principal of St. Andrew's College, Saskatoon. He was born at Eberts, Kent County, Ontario, in 1882. He studied in Chatham Collegiate, completing his preparatory training at 16 years of age, and entering Toronto University, where he graduated in 1902 as McCaul Gold Medallist in Classics. Entering Columbia University, he worked his way by doing odd jobs and finally securing his Ph.D. degree.

He returned to Toronto take charge of the History Department for McMaster University, where he remained for four years. While there he completed his Theological Course at Knox College. He has since taken post graduate courses of study at Chicago and Germany. In 1909 he went to the West to take a position on the staff of the University of Saskatchewan. In 1912, when a Theological College was established in connection with the University, Dr. Oliver was chosen as its first principal, which position he has held ever since.

Served Overseas.

When the war broke out, Dr. Oliver was confronted with another challenge and task. He first served overseas as chaplain and later as head of the "University behind the lines," established for Canadian soldiers on leave. During his absence at the front, the new building for St. Andrew's College was built for which institution Dr. Oliver has continued to work, making his inflence greatly felt, not only throughout Saskatchewan but the whole Dominion.

Dr. Oliver has served on several Government commissions, and has done a great deal of writing, mostly on historical subjects. "Gear" Elford Out Of Football For Rest Of Season

SQUAD COACHES ORDER GRIDMEN BACK INTO HEAVY TRAINING IN PREPARATION FOR THE WEEK-END

Queen's Meet Difficult Assignment in Facing Western University.

WHEELER-ARGO BATTLE.

Hamilton Tigers to be Without Services of "Gear" Elford For Rest of Season.

TORONTO, Ont., October 28 (C. P.). — While yesterday was "Blue Monday" for Eastern Canadian major league football squads, especially those that lost Saturday's engagements, coaches ordered most of the players to report for heavy training to-day in preparation for next week's schedule, which again brings together teams capable of providing brilliant and exciting matches.

In the Intercollegiate Football Union, University of Toronto appear to have found a soft spot in the schedule, as they meet McGill University at Montreal. Their arch-rivals, however, Queen's University, have a far more difficult assignment, entertaining University of Western Ontario, a squad believed capable of trimming anything in the Union.

Varsity, of course, will rely on Jack Sinclair to bring them victory again through the medium of splendid punting. He scored all the local pigskin chasers' 11 points when they defeated the Montreal team here at the opening game.

The strong line of the London Mustangs will be drilled as never before by Coach Joe Breen, for nothing would suit the Forest City University better than a clean-cut victory over Queen's, who appeared fortunate to beat Western in the opening game at London.

Montreal A.A.A. and Toronto Argonauts clash here in the feature Big Four attraction. The Winged Wheelers are at present tied in the point column with Hamilton Tigers, and believe they can keep pace with the Tigers by trouncing the oarsmen. The Dominion champions should have a good workout when they play the Senators at Ottawa, having already beaten them by a cricket score.

Argonauts start training in earnest this afternoon for the tilt with Montreal. The team and coach are confident of downing the team that held Tigers to a tie score on Saturday. The Scullers have beaten the Wheelers one this season and the drama surrounding Saturday's game will be somewhat similar to a memorable game last year. On that occasion the dashing Montreal squad were still basking in the calcium glare after inflicting a startling defeat on Hamilton. They came to Toronto expecting to win and clinch the Big Four championship with another triumph over the Bengals. But their plans were knocked awry when Argos beat them decisively by staging a thrilling last quarter rally.

The Tigers have lost "Gear" Elford, hard-hitting middle wing, for the balance of the season. He was operated upon for a knee injury and came through the operation in fine style. He will not likely play again this year.

Fans in Quandary.

Hamilton fans are in somewhat of a quandary these days deciding which team to support for the balance of the season. Ambitious City folk of course feel confident Tigers will win the Big Four and most of them think the Tiger Cubs will win the Ontario Rugby Football Union championship. So what team will they support is the big question of the day, because if this happens Tigertown will have an all-Hamilton play-off and what will they do about uniforms?

Six evenly matched teams meet in the O.R.F.U. Saturday with a possibility of the leadership of both groups being deadlocked. The Cubs, leaders of the western section, entertain Windsor, a team that appeared will be hard to beat from now on. Sarnia Imperials and Kitchener, tied for second place, clash at Sarnia, and victory for either will put them on even terms with Hamilton, if the Cubs lose.

In the eastern group 'Balmy Beach,' local favorites for the O. R. F. U. crown, meet Varsity "orphans."

NEW CURLING RINK NEARS COMPLETION

New Buildings to be Centre of No Small Importance to Community.

FENELON FALLS, Oct. 27.—Fenelon Falls' new curling rink is nearing completion. It is entirely sheeted with galvanized iron and similar in appearance to the larger building, the new O.H.A. Arena beside which it stands.

If the new Town Hall is erected on the corner of this same block, known as the market square, it will certainly be a centre of no small importance in the community.

When the Woman's Institute gets behind any undertaking, success is assured, and in this particular instance, this enterprising organization is allied with the Masonic Brethren, whose lodge rooms it is expected will be in the second story of the new building being planned. Definite details have not come to light as yet, but those in charge are active in various ways to increase the building fund.

TOM GOVAN WINS COUNTY RACE

Time Honored Race Was Held at 'The Grove' School Yesterday.

SETS NEW RECORD.

LAKEFIELD, October 28 (Examiner Correspondent).—The time-honored race, the Cowley Handicap, was yesterday run off at Grove Boys' School and was won by Tom Govan of Toronto, who captured both the time prize and the medal awarded to the boy who finishes first.

Mr. Govan, who completed the difficult cross-country course in 12 minutes 35 seconds, set up a new record. He was the last racer to leave the starting line and the first to finish. Almost the whole school participated in the race, which has been one of the big annual events at the school for almost a quarter of a century.

It was instituted by G. B. Hilliard, and is run each year on October 26th or thereabouts, that being the date of Mr. Hilliard's birthday.

A large crowd of friends of the school was on hand to witness the race, which affords quite an exciting spectacle.

The small boys started out first, to be followed by their seniors in handicap sequence. The course took the racers from the main gates of the school across country to the back road to Warsaw, where they emerged by Bailey's House, then down the Cowley road and back to the big tree between the Grove School and the cottage.

The timekeeper was Kenneth Mackenzie, while the judges were G. J. Wood and T. W. Marling, both teachers at the school.

Father and Son Play On Same Gridiron Team

ADAMS, Mass., October 28. — The unusual spectacle of a father and son playing side by side on the same football team is seen when the Pawnees, local amateurs, take the field. The father is Eli Caron, Sr., who plays right end, while the son is Eli, Jr., who plays right tackle. The senior Caron is making a come-back after ten years' absence from active football. He is 41 and the son is 18.

Instant Visiting

Two friends were taking an evening walk down-town. Suddenly one of them stopped and exclaimed, "I'm going home!" "To-night?" asked the other. "Why, it's a long trip!" "Not by telephone. Look at that sign—'Visit Home To-night—by Long Distance!' Well, I'm going to—right now, old man!"

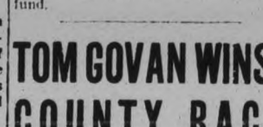
Return Of Belanger To Fistic Circles Is Halted With a Jolt By Marty Gold

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 28.—"Frenchy" Belanger, Canadian flyweight champion, had his triumphant march along the comeback trail halted with a jolt last night as he ran into a fistic hurricane loosed by Marty Gold, veteran Philadelphian.

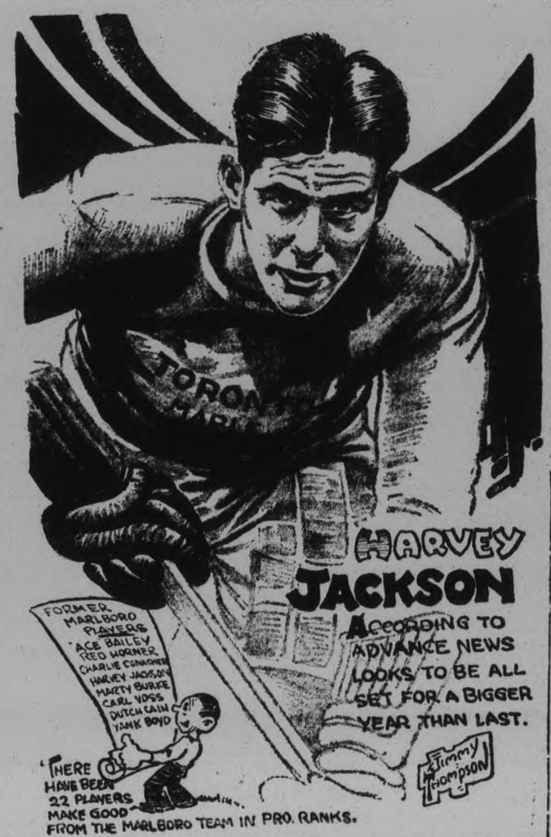
Frenchy gave the best display he has shown in recent bouts, but it was not good enough by far. The shifty Gold beat him to the punch and staggered the Canadian champion several times with a beautifully timed one-two smack to the jaw.

In the semi-final bout of six rounds, Ossie Bodkin, Toronto featherweight, was awarded a peculiar decision over Joe Meyers, hard hitting Rochester boxer. Prolonged booing by the 3,000 fans followed announcement of the decision.

Two knockouts featured the card. Tony Canzano, Toronto former Canadian amateur lightweight champion, kayoing Sidney Sherry, Lockport N.Y., in the second round, and Tommy Bland, Toronto lightweight, knocking out Steve Canzoneri, Buffalo, in the fourth round.



HARVEY JACKSON



When Harvey Jackson made the jump into Pro. ranks a year ago, he was one of the youngest players to have ever made the grade. King Clancy and Hec Kilrea were the only other players to have ever left the amateur ranks before the age of 18. Harvey was a product of one of the best known amateur organizations, the Marlboros of Toronto. This junior O.H.A. club has turned out more professional stars than any other club in the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. There are 22 players now in the big leagues that are graduates from its ranks. In the National League there are "Ace" Bailey, Joe Primeau, Red Horner, Charlie Conacher and Harvey Jackson, who are all with the Leafs and Marty Burke, who is with the Canadians.

The officers of this organization should be congratulated for the excellent material that this club has turned out. This is just another example that shows how essential the amateur organizations are to the professional clubs. This is the reason that Canada will always lead the games of drives and checks because nowhere in the world is there greater amateur organization.

SOFTBALL BATTLES CLOSELY CONTESTED

Lakefield Defeats Cement Works 15-8 While Sugar Bowl Defaults to Selwyn.

(Examiner Correspondence)

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 28. — A large crowd gathered in the rink on Friday night in spite of a great many counter attractions, for the second fixture in the softball league. A real feature was the starting of the games promptly on time.

The first game had exceptional local interest as the players were local men and when Lakefield met the Cement a real game was played.

Owing to a banquet in Peterborough the Sugar Bowl team, champions of the City League, defaulted their game with Selwyn, so an All-Star team was picked to play an exhibition game with Selwyn. It was featured by the pitching of Richmond and the fielding of Keith Wannamaker, two recruits to the softball league.

The line-up for the first game was as follows:

Lakefield—E. Northey, p; R. Payne, c; H. Stabler, 1b; H. Hamblin, 2b; J. Gibson, 3b; J. Langley, ss; L. Lawless, rf; F. Payne, lf; N. W. Kyle, cf.

Cement—Elliott, p; Mott, c; E. Wannamaker, 1b; W. Wingett, 2b; J. Sabatino, 3b; C. Payne, ss; L. Sabatino, rf; E. Merin, lf; K. Junkin, cf.

Umpires—R. C. Chittick and W. Elliott.

Score—Lakefield 15; Cement 8.

In the second game the following was the line-up:

All Stars—Richmond, p; R. Payne, c; Wannamaker, 1b; E. Northey, 2b; Charlton, 3b; J. Langley, ss; McManus, rf; F. Payne, lf; W. Wingett, cf.

Selwyn—C. Fitzgerald, p; G. Nicholls, c; E. Graham, 1b; W. Shearer, 2b; Wilson, 3b; H. Oliver, ss; C. McElmoyl, rf; W. Elliott, lf; R. Elliott, cf.

The umpires were L. Sabatino and George Wannamaker. The score was 15-11 in favor of the All Stars.

On Tuesday night the Sugar Bowl and Lakefield play at 7:30 and Harrison's and the Canada Cement at 9 o'clock.

CHICAGO SHAMROCKS SIGN RALPH TAYLOR

Defense Player Buys Release From New York Ranger Club.

CHICAGO, October 28. — Ralph Taylor, it was stated here last night, has purchased his release from the New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, and has signed with the Shamrocks, Chicago's American League representative.

Thomas J. Shaughnessy, president of the Shamrocks, said he did not know how much Taylor paid for his release, but said he believed it was more than the National League waiver price of $5,000.

Shaughnessy declared the deal was important, not only to his club, but to the American League, which, it is alleged, has been called an outlaw group by President Frank Calder of the National League.

"The fact that Taylor bought his release to play with us shows that the American League has no intention of tampering with National League player contracts," Shaughnessy said last night.

Taylor was a member of the Chicago Cardinals four years ago, but went to the Black Hawks when the former organization disbanded. He was sold to the New York club last winter.

STIRLING SQUAD WILL BE STRONG

Red and Whites Will Have Smart Team in Trent Valley League.

SOME CLASSY PLAYERS

STIRLING, Oct. 28.—No doubt the announcement that Stirling will be represented in the Trent Valley Hockey League this coming season will be received with three cheers by the hockey fans of this district. Two weeks ago, when the editorial was published in the News-Argus relating to the anything but promising prospects for a team, little did the writer realize that sufficient material was available for a first class sextette of puck chasers. Much comment was made in the papers throughout Central and Eastern Ontario regarding Stirling's "bad" condition in regard to a "good" hockey team. However, there was one person who has ever Stirling's hockey interests at heart, who became quite busy in his quiet manner, and unearthed material that will enable Stirling to be represented by the usual strong team this year. All that is desired is the full support of the fans. The person referred to is none other than W. J. Whitty or "Bill", as he is popularly known, one of the district's greatest sports and the manager of the Red and Whites. "Bill" has been the backbone of the Stirling hockey team for a number of years and has given his time and money freely towards boosting the King of Winter Sports, and has not received one cent for his services as manager or in any other capacity while with the Red and Whites. If this is not an example of true sportsmanship then the world is rectangular, or anything but round. At a meeting of local hockey enthusiasts, it was left entirely in Manager Whitty's hands to secure a team and all that was asked in return was the "faithful support of the fans."

Mr. Whitty assures the fans of the district that as fast a team as wore the Stirling uniform last year will be fighting for the trophy this year.

London To Dispose Of Gordon Brydson

LONDON, Ont., October 28. — Gordon Brydson, right wing player of the London professional hockey team, is a holdout, and will be sold or traded immediately, according to an announcement made by Manager Roy Brothers. Brydson, who was purchased last year from the Toronto Maple Leafs, has refused to come to terms, and the "deal-a-day" manager has decided that Brydson will play his hockey elsewhere this coming season. "If a player does not want to play hockey here, I do not want him under any consideration," said the London leader. It is reported that Brydson may be sold or traded to Pittsburg or Syracuse, who are in search of players.

Officers Elected Lawn Bowling Club

At a recent meeting of the directors-elect of Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club, Limited, the following officers were elected for the coming year:

President—J. D. Fitzpatrick.
Vice-President—Mark Bredin.
Treasurer—J. T. Braund.
Secretary—E. R. Disney.

In making Mr. Fitzpatrick president of the club, the directors feel that they have chosen a man liked and respected by every member and a man that has done a great amount of hard work during the past year.

In a short address thanking the directors for the honor and confidence they had placed in him, Mr. Fitzpatrick paid tribute to the work performed by the former president, Mark Bredin, and asked that the members of the club extend to him the same support they had generously given their retiring president.

In making Mr. Bredin vice-president, the directors had in mind retaining in such emergencies as Mr. Fitzpatrick's absence, the services of a man who has been the head of the board for two years and is thoroughly familiar with all that has been going on during that time. While he has surrendered the responsibility of leadership, the chairmanship of the House committee has already fallen on his shoulders.

As treasurer it might well be said that Mr. Braund, more than any other individual, has brought the club along to the point where the end of the job can be seen, while in Mr. Disney's re-appointment as secretary, he received congratulations of his fellow members for the capable manner in which he has always discharged his duties in the past.

That's what big sister said to her boy friend as she pulled little brother out from under the sofa. But wait till big sister and the boy friend are man and wife, with a home of their own to run. Then how much more she'll realize the truth of her observation!

For then the age old problems will come pressing hard. So much in the pocketbook. So much on the shopping list. Will it fit? Then's when the little things make the big difference. The little savings—the small economies—the slightly better values of which a good housekeeper takes advantage.

Then's when big sister will read the advertisements as she never read them before. Comparing values; learning reliable brands; watching the bargain and reduction announcements. . . . BRUEN RESIGNS GARDEN SEAT

Former Head of Madison Square Show House to Manage Race Track in Florida.

MANY RUMORS IN AIR.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Oct. 28. (CP)—Covetous eyes all along cauliflower row are yearning to-day at the manager's post in Madison Square garden, the driver's seat of boxing that Tex Richard vacated in death and Frank January Buren relinquished of his own accord to return to the management of the Hialeah race track in Miami, Fla.

Bruen resigned yesterday after serving as manager and vice-president of the Garden since June, 1929. William F. Carey, head of boxing's wealthiest corporation, announced Bruen's retirement with reluctance and declared that only the pressing duties of Richard's successor in Florida prompted the change.

All along the boxing marts, however, rumors of changes about to take place in the Garden have been travelling the rounds for some time. Reports that Col. John C. Hammond, and Carey Himself, were about to resign, have been denied officially. At the same time it seemed that a mild tempest was brewing among the famous fight millionaires" the late Richard interested in the financing of his sports palace over the fact that profits were decreasing, boxing attractions at the Garden deteriorating, and big outdoor fights, now showed discouraging losses.

SAME FOUR TEAMS IN O.H.A. BIG FOUR

Marlboros, T.C.C., Parkdale and Varsity to Compete as in Other Years.

TORONTO, Oct. 28.—The Big Four Junior O.H.A. group will have the same teams this year as last—Varsity, Marlboros, Parkdale Canoe Club and Toronto Canoe Club. There have been rumors that the group would be enlarged, but the executive has no intention of taking in any other teams.

All four teams will enter the annual S.P.A. series, which it is expected will get under way the latter part of November.

Europe Will Defend Rights Of Animals

International Movement Started in Paris for Animal Protection in General.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—(By the Canadian Press)—An International Committee for the Protection of Animals has been formed here on the initiative of M. Louis Lespine, legal adviser to the Society for the Protection of Animals. The committee takes the stand that animals should not be legally regarded as inanimate objects, protected only by sentiment on the part of their owners, but as living creatures having legally defined rights on the same basis ax man himself.

Every month the decrees, verdicts and other matters bearing on the rights of animals are to be published. Among recent rulings are the following: In Belgium, it is forbidden to blind song birds, and rabbit hutches must be sufficiently high for the rabbit to stand on its hind feet. In Spain, the land of bull fights, punishment may be meted out to those who incite animals to fight, who throw stones at dogs and cats and who tie objects to them for amusement, who pluck live poultry. The Republic of Lebanon prohibits the utilization of female animals for strenuous labor while feeding their young.

PONY GOLF COURSES NOW NECESSARY PART OF HUNT

Mayor of Dover, N. H., Carries Own Portable Course Into Woods.

WILL "SHOOT" GOLF

(Special to The Examiner—Copyright, 1930)

By A. MALCOLM McGOWAN

SAINT JOHN, N.B., October 28—Where next will miniature golf find its way?

The tabloid pastime has now gone "portable." All very well to transport a neat set to country home or outing place. One can delight in the sport at the beach too. But you can't beat the latest wrinkle of Hon. T. J. Chesley, Mayor of Dover, New Hampshire.

Dover's leading citizen takes along his miniature equipment right into the woods when he goes hunting; in search of big game at that.

His Worship, now on annual excursion for moose and deer in the wilds of New Brunswick, this fall brought along four comrades from Haverhill, Mass. Nor do they propose to spend full time on trail of big game. Every member of the party is a "minnies" bug and cannot be without the sport.

So Mayor Chesley totes along a classy set, declaring he'll locate real tough natural hazards with ease. When weary of the hunt and miniature golf the gang will fall back on "good ol' hawss-shoe pitchin'" for diversion.

They're now nearing the close of a fortnight's sojourn and hope to return with a "full bag," some record pee-wee cards and memories of a holiday well spent.

Their abode has been the hunting lodge at Seven Mile Lake not one hundred miles distant from this city, but decidedly virgin hunting area. This happens to be the Mayor's twentieth annual big game visitation in as many years.

King Clancy Reports To Leaf Training Camp

PARRY SOUND, Oct. 28.—Frank Clancy reported to Coach Art Duncan of the Maple Leafs yesterday and his arrival completed the squad upon which the Toronto Maple Leafs will depend in the approaching campaign for the National League championship and the Stanley Cup. The Ottawa star is in excellent condition as he has been working out with the Senators and he has an advantage on most of the players in the Leafs' training camp as he has been on skates this season. With only two days more before they strike camp the players, with the exception of Andy Blair, are in the best of condition and are anxious to get back to Toronto and start practice on the ice in the Arena Gardens. Both Coach Duncan and Physical Instructor Joe Coyne are highly pleased with the way the players have rounded into shape and the daily drills are easing off somewhat.

Seventeen Black Hawks Leave For Training Camp

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—(CP)—Seventeen members of the Chicago Black Hawks, National Hockey League entry, left yesterday for London, Ont., where they will take up training quarters and work out in the Western Ontario city's arena.

Five members of the squad, Johnny Gottsleig, Earl Miller, Duke Dutkowski, Art Somers and Alec Wood, the latter a new goalie who hails from Regina, will go directly to London from their Canadian home.

The Hawks will engage in a series of pre-season exhibition games, meeting International League teams at London, Syracuse, N.Y., and Cleveland, before returning to Chicago to open the season with the New York Rangers on November 16.

Stribling-Christner To Meet In Boston

NEW YORK, N.Y., Oct. 28 (C.P.)—"Young" Stribling, Georgia's candidate for the muddled heavyweight boxing title, headlines the United States boxing programme this week, meeting K. O. Christner, of Akron, Ohio in a ten-round setto at Boston.

Christner is not expected to offer Stribling much of an argument but the fight is expected to draw a few more dollars than it would in Newark, where it was originally scheduled for Thursday of last week. Christner suddenly developed a knee injury on the day of the fight and it was postponed only to be re-scheduled for the Boston Arena.

GRIMM OF CUBS SLATED FOR REDS

Bottomley and Haines May Become Members of Chicago Club.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—If Rogers Hornsby is so set on getting Jim Bottomley of the St. Louis Cardinals to play first base for his re-organized Cubs next Spring, there shouldn't be any great difficulty in coming to some agreement with Sam Breadon, Branch Rickey and Gabby Street, the Card trading board.

If Hornsby wants to give up Guy Bush and Sheriff Blake to land the disappointing Bottomley and the aging Jess Haines, just because they always played good ball for him when he was the Cardinal boss in 1926, there are plenty of keen baseball men who believe he should be taken up.

That trade, reported ready in the despatches from the West, seems to be one on which St. Louis couldn't miss. They are going to supplant Bottomley with "Rip" Collins, the up and coming first baseman and extra-base hitter, anyway, so Breadon and Co. would simply be trading Haines for two pitchers, either one capable of winning as many games as the veteran Jess each year, and possibly more.

The reason Hornsby is especially anxious to get Bottomly is because he came to the parting of the way with Charlie Grimm, the Cub first baseman for the last six years, when Joe McCarthy was deposed.

It is said that Grimm, who was captain under McCarthy, was outspoken in his criticsm of the action of the Chicago owners, and especially in the action which landed Hornsby the job of manager.

In other words, the ex-captain and the new manager will never be accused of playing any role as Damon and Pythias, or even Castor and Polux, the great twin brethren who fought so well for Rome.

Kitchener Protests Windsor's Victory

KITCHENER, October 28. — Dr. H. Ferguson, president of the Kitchener-Waterloo Panther Rugby Club, announced yesterday that a protest has been lodged with the secretary of the O.R.F.U. on Windsor's 10 to 7 victory over the Panthers on Saturday. The protest is based on a misrepresentation of the rules by Referee Craig, who, following the game, admitted his mistake to Kitchener-Waterloo officials, Twin City officials allege. In the second period, Roehrig recovered a fumbled Windsor ball and raced 55 yards for a touchdown. Craig called the play back, claiming interference on the part of the Windsor team.

DARTMOUTH AT YALE THIS WEEK'S FEATURE TILT ON U.S. GRIDIRONS

Penn-Kansas Intersectional Affair Also Slated as Big Eastern Game.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Compared with those tremendous Saturdays of October 18 and 25, when scores of top-notch games were played this week's football schedule seems downright meagre.

This because many of the leading elevens are taking "breathers" against smaller and weaker outfits in preparation for the mad gallop down the home stretch in late November.

In point of popular interest, the Yale-Dartmouth game in the bowl next Saturday takes rank as the country's outstanding contest. Dartmouth, undefeated and fresh from a victory over Harvard, will be seeking proof that it is the East's No. 1 eleven and a worthy successor to great Hanover elevens of the past. Yale, fortified by the knowledge that Dartmouth has never scored a win in the bowl, will endeavor to wipe out the memory of the Georgia defeat and Army tie.

The second best eastern game is the Penn-Kansas intersectional affair, at Philadelphia. This game, however, had some of its flavor removed by the charges of professionalism directed against Kansas by other Big Six conference members.

Other Games Just Ordinary.

The remainder of the eastern card is little better than ordinary. Cornell plays Columbia, Fordham engages West Virginia, Army takes on North Dakota, and Brown plays Syracuse.

The south is the one section of the country where Saturday will see several issues settled, for Alabama and Kentucky both undefeated to date, clash at Lexington and Georgia and Florida, tangle at Athens, Alabama and Georgia, the former boasting a victory over Vanderbilt, conqueror of Minnesota, the latter winner over Yale, are the outstanding rivals for the southern conference crown, and Saturday's game will determine whether or not they maintain that position.

Other southern games are Georgia v. North Carolina; Louisiana v. Arkansas; Oglethorpe v. Furman, and Tennessee v. Clemson.

In the middle west, Notre Dame, for one week at least, finds itself out of the spotlight. Rockne's boys will take a rest by playing Indiana. The Hoosiers ought to be easy for Notre Dame, judging by their 0-27 defeat at the hands of Southern Methodist last Saturday.

The mid-west topliners are Minnesota v. Northwestern; Illinois v. Purdue; Princeton v. Chicago, and Wisconsin v. Ohio State.

Washington State meets Oregon State in the nearest approach to a big game in the far west.

California entertains Montana and Southern California meets Little Denver in other far-west games.

GOLF NOTES.

By Ralph H. Reville.
(Special to Examiner, Copyright, 1930.)

TORONTO, Oct. 25.—Up to-date in Canada nearly two hundred "Hole-in-Ones" have been recorded. The most remarkable story of such performances comes from the St. Margaret Country Club at St. Margaret, Que. A very popular week-end course with Montrealers, some forty miles from the Commercial Capital. Last week, playing over these pretty links in a foursome, H. E. Walker, K.C., of Montreal, drove from the eighth tee and proceeded, with his partners, to the well-bunkered green 161 yards from the tee. Mr. Walker found that his ball had located the cup. Needless to say, his joy knew no bounds. It was his first oner. In waving the good news to some friends playing behind him, his action was taken as a signal to drive by W. E. D. Baldwin, who promptly sent his ball spinning towards the green. Imagine Mr. Walker's surprise when Mr. Baldwin's shot followed the course of his own, rolling into the hole. Two drives, two holes in one. Boy, page Golfinia the Goddess of Golf! This performance is a record one for Canada. It is on record in England however, that on three occasions a hole has been divided by a player and his opponent in one which is even a more remarkeable feat, than that recorded the other day at St. Margarets.

Played Superior Golf.

Fuller details in reference to the great final between Charles Whitcombe and Henry Cotton for the $1000 Tournament show that Whitcombe to win the event played superlatively. Young Cotton negotiated the first nine holes in 37 only to find himself 4 down. Whitcombe was out in 33. He continued to play the same sparkling brand of golf throughout the match and it was by fighting like a tiger that Cotton was eventually defeated by only 4 and 3. Whitcombe was four under fours for the 32 holes played and that is golf worthy of Bobbie Jones at his very best.

Oxhey where the championship was held and where Ted Ray is the professional is a paradise for the long players and it was generally thought that Abe Mitchell therefore would have a good chance to win the event. For the first time in his career Mitchell was outdriven by more than one cometitor including Whitcombe who beat him in the semi-finals 3 and 2. The Steel Shafted driver is given credit for this. In the Old Country Steel-Shafted clubs are now almost universal and it ooks as though hickory in a year or so will be as dead as the old gut a ball. It is only last year that the Royal and Ancient raised the ban on Steel Shafts. The past few months the change from hickory to steel has been nothing short of revolutionary both in England and Scotland.

New $50,000 Grain House.

A. W. Cutten, the multi-millionaire grain operator of Chicago, formerly a resident of Guelph, Ontario, has just given instructions to build a $50,000 club house in connection with the 18-hole golf course which he has donated to the city of his birth, adjoining the Ontario Agricultural College. The building will be modelled after the design of the famous Knollwood Club at Lake Forest, Ill., and the contract calls for its completion by May 1st, when the course will also be opened for play. "Chick" Evans who is a personal friend of Mr. Cutten's laid out the course, which will be one of the finest in Ontario. No money has been spared in its construction. The Chicago financier is a very keen golfer and is determined to give the residents of his native city a layout which will attract players from all parts of the Country. It is understood that the playing charges will be merely nominal alike for residents of Guelph and visitors. The Royal City is certainly fortunate in having a benefactor of the calibre of Mr. Cutten.

Miss Enid Wilson, of Notts, won the English Women's Championship at Aldebrugh defeating Mrs. R. O. Porter, of Wentworth, by the overwhelming margin of 12 and 11. This is Miss Wilson's second victory in this championship in three years. The margin equals Miss Joyce Wethered's record of nine years ago, when, at the age of 20, She defeated Mrs. Mudford at St. Anne's. Miss Wilson is also 20. She has not yet won the British Championship, but there is no doubt that, next to Miss Wethered, she is the best woman golfer in Great Britain.

Miss Glenna Collett, the golfing Queen of America had little difficulty in winning at Los Angeles the U. S. Women's Championship defeating in the 36-hole final Miss Virginia Van Wie of Chicago 6 and 5. Miss Collett who is in her 28th year has had a glittering career on the links. This is the fifth time she has won the U. S. Women's Championship. Twice has she annexed the Canadian Ladies' Open and once the French Championship. Her only non-successes have been in Great Britain. Three times has she competed in the Ladies' Championship there, but the best she has done was to reach the final this year when she was defeated by young Diana Fishwick. In America, however, she is unquestionably in a class by herself. In Women's golf she is generally placed second only to the great Joyce Wethered of England who no less an authority than Bobbie Jones, states is the world's greatest shot-maker, either man or woman.

CAMPBELLFORD ROTARY GUEST IS H. B. COWAN

Editor of Farm and Dairy Gives Interesting Talk on Co-operative Marketing.

AGRICULTURE STRESSED

Cobourg Will Visit Campbellford Nov. 14 for Inter-City Meet.

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 28.— The weekly luncheon of the Campbellford Rotary Club held on Monday in the St. Lawrence Hotel, was featured by an address by H. B. Cowan, editor of the Farm and Dairy, Peterborough. President H. N. Carr occupied the chair.

Mr. Cowan delivered a very instructive talk on the theme of co-operative marketing as it applied to the agricultural industry. Interested as he is in that sphere of activity, he said it was interesting to trace the modern trend of business both in the city and country. During the past few years every branch of business had changed, he said and continued by pointing out how, in the city of Peterborough the individual stores had been absorbed by the large financial concerns. Large concerns were now controlling the majority of the business in the cities and to a great extent the business of the small towns.

"What has this to do with agriculture?" the speaker asked, and went on to say that business problems are vastly different today that they were years ago. This reaching out by the large financial organizations for the control of business, had reacted to the farmer with the result that such organizations as the Wheat Pool were now to be found. The farmer was thinking along the line of co-operative marketing.

The Wheat Pool

Speaking of the Wheat Pool, Mr. Cowan said that it had done wonderful work for the farmer despite its recent difficulties and deplored the fact that the press in some cases had cast doubts upon it. He said it was a movement that had first started among the fruit growers in California, when that body had been forced to band together for protective selling, and when the same selling conditions had arisen in the west the movement had taken hold with the result that the Wheat Pool came into being.

The one weak spot in the pool the speaker thought was the fact that membership was not compulsory. This fact lead to those who were non-members taking advantage of the situation that had been created by pool members. The speaker went on to give instances of this by quoting the situation that had arisen in the Fraser Valley by the co-operative selling of milk. The only example of perfect co-operative selling in the speaker's opinion was to be seen in the lower mainland of British Columbia, where the milk producers had petitioned the government and obtained a compulsory membership for the association and where the advantages were spread evenly over the whole of the country.

This idea was also taking hold in the west Mr. Cowan declared, stateing that a petition was at present before the legislature of Saskatchewan, urging compulsory membership of the wheat pool.

"It is a significant fact that the success of agriculture was basic to the nation" the speaker said, and continued to outline the co-operative selling of butter and the question of the foreign market and the tariff, and to give some idea of the reaction of the modern trend of business as regard to advertising.

In conclusion the speaker emphasized the fact that modern business called for increased efficiency and stated that we should ask ourselves, "Are we on the job, are we as efficient as we should be?" for this was an age when the challenge of opportunity was before us.

President Carr thanked the speaker for his interesting address, regretting the fact that more of the producers were not present to listen to Mr. Cowan.

In reply to a letter received from the Cobourg Rotary Club it was agreed to hold an inter-city meeting on the evening of November 14th, when Cobourg Club would be guests of the Campbellford Club and would put on the program. This meeting would take the place of the regular luncheon.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE JOLLY BEAR.

"My goodness! What in the world have you there?" cried Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy as she saw Uncle Wiggily and Baby Bunty hopping toward the hollow stump bungalow, carrying something between them. "Are any of the children hurt?" asked the muskrat lady housekeeper.

"No, Honey," said Mr. Longears with a smile.

"Oh, do you think you should call me honey?" asked Nurse Jane with a quick look around.

"I didn't call you honey!" spoke Uncle Wiggily with a laugh. "You asked me if we were bringing home one of the children who got hurt and I said No. Honey. I mean Baby Bunty and I are bringing home some honey."

"Oh, that's different," laughed Nurse Jane. "Where did you get it?"

Then Uncle Wiggily told how he and Baby Bunty had found a honey tree in

"So I knew you must have honey."

the woods—a hollow tree where the wild bees had stored honey they made from the flowers. But the tree was too high for Uncle Wiggily to climb.

"So I said wait a while and we waited," explained Bunty. 'And a cross bear came along and climbed up and got a lot of honey and the bees stung him and he dropped some honey and the bees said we might have it, and here it is."

"How wonderful!" squeaked the muskrat lady. 'Now we shall have honey all winter to spread on pancakes. I'll take care of it."

'Oh, Honey! Honey!" cried all the other little rabbit children as Nurse Jane took the sweet stuff into the Bungalow. 'May we have some honey?"

'Give them all a little," said Uncle Wiggily.

So each bunny boy and girl had some carrot breat spread with the sweet bee honey. Uncle Wiggily had made a basket of bark to carry the lump of flower juice home from the bee tree in the woods.

'Put the rest of the honey away carefully, Nurse Jane," said Uncle Wiggily when the little rabbits had all they wanted. 'We may have a long, cold winter."

That evening, when Uncle Wiggily was sitting in his bungalow, telling the bunny boys and girls a bedtime story before they went to sleep, all of a sudden there was a knock at the door.

'Who's there?" said Mr. Longears.

'A bear!" came the growling answer.

'Oh! Oh! Oh!" cried Baby Bunty. Jingle, Jangle and all the others. 'Oh!"

'Don't be afraid," the voice said. 'I am a jolly bear. I just came to see if you would give me a little of your honey. I'm a jolly bear!"

'How can I tell that you are the jolly bear and not the cross bear?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "I can't see you through the door."

'Oh, I'm jolly all right," was the answer. 'You can tell as soon as you hear me sing. Listen!" Then the bear at the door sang a song about two lollypops who lost their handle sticks on which they used to hop about and do some funny tricks. The lollypops, without their sticks, were just some gobs of sweet. But you don't need to worry, for they're quite as good to eat.

'Oh, now I know you are a jolly bear," said Uncle Wiggily when the song was finished. 'Come in and have some honey. But how did you know I had any?"

"I followed the ants," said the jolly bear, shuffling into the bungalow, chuckling Baby Buuty under the chin and sitting down in a chair while Nurse Jane brought him some honey.

'What ants?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

'Why," explained the jolly bear, laughing 'when you and Baby Bunty got some honey at the big tree, and carried it home through the woods in a bark basket, some of the sweet stuff dribbled out on the ground. The little ant bugs in the woods came out of their nests to eat the honey. I saw a long procession of ants all the way from the woods here to your bungalow. Uncle Wiggily, so I knew you must have honey."

'That was very clever of you," spoke the rabbit. 'I'm glad you stopped in. Have some more honey."

And while the jolly bear was eating it, all of a sudden there was another knock on the door.

'Who is there?" asked Uncle Wiggily. 'Another jolly bear who wants some of your honey," was the growling answer. And Baby Bunty whispered:

'Oh, I don't believe he's a jolly bear at all! I believe it's the cross bear the bees stung. Ask him to sing a jolly song, Unkie Wig."

"If you are a jolly bear sing us a jolly rabbit song before I let you in!" called the rabbit through the door. And though the bear outside tried he couldn't for the life of him sing a jolly song, for he was cross.

So he didn't get in and he had no honey and the jolly bear chased him away. And then all the little bunny children went to bed and had funny dreams about lollypops without any sticks.

Optimist: "I believe that for every single thing you give away, two comes back to you."

Pessimist: "My experience exactly. I gave my daughter away in August and she and her husband came back in February."

Mr. Will Shannon of Toronto was a visitor in town on Monday and was the guest of Mrs. C. H. Davidson at the Rotary luncheon.

Mr. Bert Baines of Preston was a recent visitor at the home of Chief and Mrs. C. G. Bromley.

Many of the Campbellford people attended the anniversary services of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Burnbrae, on Sunday.

The Messrs. Lawrence Charlton and A. E. Webster, both of Lakefield, were guests of Chief G. C. and Mrs. Bromley on Sunday.

Poor Jim!

"TIRED out every night—half asleep all day—never has pep enough left to enjoy himself—he's sure skidding!"

No need for it, Jim. Can wake up with a grin and wallop the old job over the fence. Can put yourself across both in work and play—can be a success—can be happy and well—and so easy!

Go get yourself a bottle of crystal-clear Nujol, Jim, and clean those poisons out of your body regularly as clockwork. We all have 'em—they are the little devils that keep us in the dumps—clean 'em out, Jim, normally, naturally, easily—and then watch yourself go!

If you're Jim, get your Nujol this very day. Any drug store—only in trademarked sealed package. Ask for it by name. Never mind whether you believe it or not. Try it. Many a man or woman has started Nujol with a doubt, and kept it up with a grin!

FINAL RALLIES

spoke at Preston in support of Mr. Donald. He replied to criticisms levelled at Premier G. H. Ferguson by the Opposition speakers during the campaign.

"Mr. Sinclair is of the opinion that Mr. Ferguson should not have left the affairs of Ontario for a short time and attended the Imperial Conference in England" Mr. Henry proceeded. "The Premier has seen fit to leave the work in the hands of his lieutenants who have served under him for seven years and understand his policies."

The speaker said Ontario was not losing anything by having Mr. Ferguson at the conference. On the other hand his trip serves to impress the latent powers of Ontario for investment purposes, particularly "in our mineral resources," he said.

"Mr. Sinclair fears," he continued, "there will be politics mixed in with the distribution of the unemployment funds. Let me point out when we enter such a serious affair as this, it is not a matter of how a man or a municipality votes, but how great the need of that man or municipality is. Politics do not begin to enter the question."

Finlayson and Dunlop Busy

Hon. William Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests, and Hon. E. A. Dunlop, Provincial Treasurer, addressed meetings in several towns of the Nipissing constituency yesterday and last night.

In this riding C. R. Harrison, Conservative, is also engaged in a straight party fight with the Liberal candidate, J. H. Marceau. The latter will conduct a rally at Mattawa to-night.

The campaign has already practically concluded in the fourth riding, that of Lanark South. Three candidates are aspiring to the seat there, two of them being Independents. Edward Stedman is the official Conservative nominee while Captain W. G. Ferguson is running as an Independent Conservative. Richard Running is the third in the field.

BRITAIN'S RULER HAS HIGH HOPES FOR HIS EMPIRE

Wishes Success to Indian Parley in Speech From Throne.

UNEMPLOYMENT A WORRY.

Proposes Inquiry By Commission Into Insurance For Workless.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 28 (C.P.). — The following is the text of the Speech from the Throne delivered today by the King at the opening of Parliament:

"My Lords and Members of the House of Commons,—It has given me much pleasure to receive my Ministers from the Dominions and representatives of India who are attending the Imperial Conference. I watch with deep interest the progress of their labors, the satisfactory result of which I shall confidently await.

"I hope soon to welcome representatives of the princes and delegates who are about to join with members of all parties in both Houses of Parliament to consider the future constitutional position of India.

Success To Indian Parley.

"My intention is to inaugurate this conference and I earnestly trust that in conclusion of its proceedings may be found agreed and wise solutions of those important questions upon which it will be called to deliberate.

"My relations with the foreign powers continue to be friendly.

"I was very glad to entrust my son, the Duke of Gloucester, with the duty of representing me at the coronation of the Emperor of Ethiopia.

"My Government took an active part in proceedings of the Assembly of the League of Nations in September last. General agreement was reached upon the treaty of financial assistance to states which may be victims of aggression which recently was signed at Geneva. Application of this treaty is conditional upon the coming into force of a general disarmament convention which I trust will shortly be concluded.

"I follow with grave concern and sympathy continuance of heavy unemployment among so many of my people. Economic depression unfortunately continues to dominate the markets of the world and the accompanying restriction of international trade is felt with particular severity in those industries which are especially dependant on export.

Continue to Boost Trade

"My Government will persist in its efforts to develop and extend home, imperial and foreign trade and to help in measures which will lead to greater efficiency in industry.

"Proposals will be laid before you for promotion of increased settlement and employment on the land, and of large scale farming operations, and for acquisition and improvement of agricultural land, land in need of reconditioning, and for organisation of producers for marketing purposes.

"I propose immediately to set up a commission to inquire into the entire question of unemployment insurance and in particular to allegations of abuse of its provisions. The commission will be asked to present interim reports on the most pressing questions and, if required, legislation based upon them will be introduced. In the meantime a measure to make a further financial provision for an unemployment fund will be laid before you.

"My ministers propose to introduce legislation to secure for the community its share in the site value of land.

Raise School Age

"Measures will be submitted to you for raising of the age of compulsory school attendance, for amending the laws relating to trade disputes and Trade Unions and for setting up of a consumer council.

"A measureof electoral reform will be submitted to you.

"Bills will also be laid before you to enable ratification of the Washington Hours Convention and of the International Convention for safety of life at sea, and for establishment of a new statutory authority to deal with passenger traffic in London.

"I pray that under the blessing of God to outcome of your deliberations may advance the happiness and well being of my people."

WILLIAM GOUGH PLEADS GUILTY IN LONDON COURT

Theft of $155,110 is Admitted By Prisoner When He Appears.

SENTENCED SATURDAY.

Started on His Career of Theft With Taking of $50 in 1911.

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 28 (C.P.). — William Gough, forty-year-old accountant, pleaded guilty in city police court to-day to the theft of $155,110 cash from the People's Loan and Savings Corporation. He admitted taking money during a period of 19 years, although he has been in the employ of the company for 20 years. He will be sentenced in city court on Saturday morning.

Two charges were read to the prisoner this morning; one involved the theft of $1,348 cash between Oct. 1 and Oct. 10, this year, while the second charge dated back to January 1, 1911, and covered the sum of $153,765.

Expensive Automobile.

With the former employee awaiting sentence in the jail cell, proceedings have been launched by the directors of the People's Loan Company to recover all available assets, including the expensive automobile owned by Gough. Any other money obtainable is also being sought by the company from Gough's residence.

Of the total of $136,110, the sum of $13,470 was taken by the prisoner this year, according to information received to-day.

Commencing work with the People's Loan and Savings Corporation as a ledgerkeeper when he was but 20 years of age, Gough worked himself up to the position of accountant and was considered one of the most trusted men in the service.

On the back of a calendar which was found in his desk after his arrest, auditors discovered a set of figures which totalled $153,765. The workings of these figures formed the basis of a most intricate book-keeping method which was used by Gough during the period of the defalcations. After company auditors had concluded their check-up on the books of the company, their figures tallied to a cent to the figure that had been kept by Gough on the back of the calendar. The additional $1,345 was discovered during the past month's activities.

Started 19 Years Ago

He is said to have started on his career with the theft of $50 cash 19 years ago, and since then the figure has steadily mounted.

Appearing in Court to-day Gough retained an immaculate appearance and asked his counsel to secure a speedy sentence.

As Gough pleaded guilty to the two charges, Crown Prosecutor Albert M. Judd informed the Court that contrary to many rumors that have been circulated the People's Loan and Savings Corporation is in good condition and able to meet all payments.

CO-OPERATION IS KEY TO SUCCESS

Canada Should Play Vital Part in League's Move to Relieve Depression.

REMEDY UP TO ALL.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 28. (CP)—Only by international co-operation, consultation and action can the world go forward amidst the present world-wide depression, Horace B. Butler, C.B., Deputy Director of the International Labor Office at Geneva, declared in addressing an Ottawa Service Club yesterday. Characterizing the League of Nations as, at least, the beginning of a fact and not merely an ideal, Mr. Butler declared every country must do its bit in supporting the League.

"Canada has become a great industrial nation, ranking fifth in this respect in the League's official list" Mr. Butler observed. "You have great interests and trade overseas, and thus Canada, in common with all the other nations, is vitally interested in the League's work for the promotion of peace and economic prosperity throughout the world."

Conditions Worst Since 1919

The general economic condition to-day is worse than at any time since 1919, the speaker continued. In Europe alone there were six million men out of work; in the United States the official estimate was four and one-half million unemployed or partially so. "Prices continually falling, production falling and unemployment rising, that constitutes a very grave economic situation which is beginning to create serious political troubles as well. People who are starving won't remain quiet and their distress is bound to find expression in some political form or other. It is beyond the wit of any one man or any one country to remedy the situation."

Mr. Butler credited the economic machinery of the League with having been largely responsible for the general return of the gold standard and of assisting many of the central European nations to get back on their economic legs. As for the League's labor branch, he said, it has been successful in establishing a higher labor code with better standards of living in Europe, at least, than existed before the war. In all, twenty-seven labor conventions had been passed and there have been 402 ratifications of these on the part of different nations of the world.

Capital Distribution Wrong

"Experts are becoming convinced that the distribution of capital and consequently purchasing power, is wrong" Mr. Butler affirmed. "Likewise it is felt that the distribution of gold among the nations is wrong. These are very difficult problems indeed, and they must be tackled internationally if there is to be any hope at all of success. No longer can any one nation stand victorious and prosperous in the midst of civilization ruined in other countries. The League must be supported, there must be international co-operation, consultation and action."

THE RETURN OF TARZAN No. 38 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The cunning eyes of the madman now fell upon the high priestess with a new and sudden lust. Claw-like hands extended, he crept towards her. Tarzan strained at the bonds that held his arms pinioned behind him. The brute leaped past Tarzan to clutch his victim as the ape-man gave one superhuman wrench at the thongs that held him.

The effort sent him rolling from the altar to the stone floor. As he sprang to his feet the thongs dropped from his freed arms. At the same time he realized that La, the priestess, and the madman had vanished. A muffled scream came from a subterranean chamber. Without a thought for his own safety, Tarzan bounded lithely down the age-old steps.

There before him was the mad brute, his gorilla-like fingers clutching frantically at the struggling girl's throat. He loosed his grasp as he saw Tarzan close upon him and turned with a maniacal cry to face his antagonist. The priestess fell from his grasp. With foam-flecked lips and bared fangs he leaped into battle.

The primitive priestess watched with fear-fascinated eyes the two men fighting in that low-ceilinged vault beneath the sacrificial chamber. The sun-worshipped battled with the ten-fold power of a maniac. His cries of animal rage filled the room. At last La saw her rescuer grasp the throat of his antagonist and force his head far back. He threw the still thing from him.

IN MEMORIAM.

DALY.—In loving memory of Mrs. James Daly, who departed this life Oct. 28, 1929.

One Year Ago.

One year ago this month of rosary
An Angel came to call our Mother home
And guide her soul to that eternity
Where dwells the God of love on heaven's throne.

One year ago the sun of morning bright
With golden glow shone 'round you, Mother dear,
But loving hearts were sad e'er came the night
For you had gone and left us sorrowed here.

One year ago to-day your lips we pressed
And knelt beside your silent form in prayer,
The cold still hands we crossed upon your breast
Above that kindly heart now stilled for e'er.

One year ago to-day in realms above,
Amid the Saints in heavenland on high,
Your soul was crowned through Christ's redeeming love
With life eternal that shall never die.

One year ago. Fast flow the sands of time.
Some day again our Mother dear we'll see,
And in the garden of God's love divine,
Walk hand in hand for all eternity.

Farewell 'till then, oh dearest Mother mine,
And when on earth each task of life is o'er,
Our souls made pure shall journey home to thine
To share your joys with God for evermore.

—Ever remembered by her son, Joseph E. Daly.

WEDDING BELLS

GILLOTT—IRWIN.

The marriage of Mrs. Izeenia I. Irwin of Melrose Street, Rochester, N.Y., and William J. E. Gillott of Millbrook, Ont., Canada, took place on Tuesday evening, September 30, at 7.30 o'clock at the home of the bride. Rev. Paul R. Stratton, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, performed the ceremony.

The bride wore brown chiffon velvet and carried Johanna Hill roses. Mrs. Sarah Flam was matron of honor and wore black satin and carried a bouquet of Fall flowers. The bridesmaids were Miss Margaret Irwin and Miss Rosina Terrace. They wore Alice blue and carried pink roses. Frank Whiting and Robert Brown were best men. I. Glaser and O. Mitchell acted as ushers.

After the ceremony, a wedding dinner was served to the bridal party at the Rochester Hotel.

Following an extended Western trip, Mr. and Mrs. Gillott will live at Millbrook, Ont., Canada.

CALLAGHAN—STEWART.

VANCOUVER, October 28. — A quiet ceremony was performed at St. Giles' United Church, Vancouver, on Tuesday, October 16, when Gertrude Elliott, second daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. A. E. Stewart, was united in marriage to Mr. John Gordon Callaghan, elder son of the late Mr. James Callaghan and Mrs. Olive Callaghan of that city.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Charles Kelton, was attired in a midnight blue lace gown and imported felt hat in tones to match. She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and lily of the valley.

She had as her attendant her sister, Miss Alma Stewart, who wore a jade green gown, and hat of black and silver. Her bouquet was of pink snapdragon and fern.

Little Miss Joan Armstrong acted as flower girl, and was attired in a princess gown of delicate pink panne velvet. She carried a basket of snapdragon, carnations, and fern.

Fred Marchese supported the groom.

During the signing of the register, Bennie Crann rendered a vocal solo, "All Joy Be Thine."

Mr. and Mrs. Callaghan left immediately after the ceremony on a motor trip to the south, and on their return will reside in Vancouver.

IN POLICE COURT

While not claiming to be an automobile mechanic, Ambrose Lee can make fast changes on a car when he puts his mind to it. Lee proved that last night when he stole the wheel, tire and tube off Russel Wattman's gas chariot.

He admitted it all to Magistrate Langley this morning when he appeared on a charge of theft. Wattmann parked his car about 10 o'clock on Water Street, near the Auburn. When he saw it again a half-hour later one wheel was missing. Someone observed the theft and tipped off the police. This morning at 8 o'clock Lee was arrested as he was engaged in placing the stolen wheels on his own car.

He was remanded for sentence until Friday to allow police time to learn if he had anything to do with a series of other thefts in the city of a similar nature.

"He belongs to that brotherhood of political flies," Chief Newhall said of Arthur Coleman, 56, who pleaded guilty to begging. "He has had a good meal and a sleep and should now be able to do some fast hiking out of the city."

Coleman was allowed to go but was warned by the Chief that "he must sharpen his corns out of Peterborough."

MEMORIAM

LEBAR—In loving memory of Cecil Lebar who passed away Oct. 28th, 1921.

Just nine years ago to-day, dear Cecil,
We last saw your loving face.
In this world there is no other
That can ever fill your place.
What happy hours we once enjoyed
How sweet their memory still;
But death has left a vacant place
This world can never fill.
God saw the road was getting rough,
The hills were hard to climb;
So He closed your weary eyelids
And whispered "Peace be thine."

MODERATOR DEDICATES ENTRANCE INTO FIRST UNITED CHURCH, LINDSAY

Right Rev. E. H. Oliver, D.D., Conducted Most Impressive Ceremony.

CONGREGATIONS LARGE.

LINDSAY, Oct. 28.—First United Church was favored Sunday with a visit from Right Rev. E. H. Oliver, D.D., Principal of St. Andrew's College, Saskatoon, Sask., and Moderator of the United Church in Canada. It was the occasion of the second series of special church services in connection with the re-opening of the above church, following the recently completed erection of a beautiful new memorial entrance, the entire renovation of the large edifice and the addition of Sunday School accommodation.

It was the occasion also for the dedication of the new Memorial entrance, an impressive ceremony which was conducted by Dr. Oliver. It was also the occasion of a visit to the church of Rev. Dr. W. L. Armstrong, minister of Trinity United Church, Toronto, who delivered the special message in the evening. Under the direction of C. J. W. Taylor, Organist and Choir Director, the musical contribution to the services of the day included three anthems, a male quartet and two baritone solos by R. S. Umphrey of Toronto, for some time soloist in Cooke's Presbyterian Church. Rev. T. E. Holling, D.D., Minister of the congregation, conducted both services. Decorations for the day were in keeping with the dignity and beauty of the stately edifice.

Large congregations assembled at both services and it must be gratifying to the officials of the church to learn that the financial response to the appeal sent out during the week was quite generous. Members and adherents of the church seemingly have caught the vision of the officials and the spirit of generosity in thankfulness and praise has been much in evidence.

FIRE RANGERS RECALLED.

The fire rangers who have been stationed at Apsley have been withdrawn with the exception of one who will remain there during the winter.

IN MEMORIAM.

GILBERT.—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Florence Gilbert, who died on October 28, 1928.

Surrounded by friends, we are lonely;
Amidst pleasures, we feel blue,
A smile on our faces and a heartache.
Friends may think we have forgotten you,
When at times they see us smile,
But they little know the sorrow
Which that smile hides all the while —Inserted by her loving Husband and Family.

Well Known Toronto Broker Suicides

FRIEND ON VISIT DISCOVERS BODY ON SEAT OF CAR

Associates of W. L. Caldow of Easson and Caldow Unable to Explain Action.

USED SHOTGUN

Was Former St. John, N.B., Resident, Prominent in Banking Circles and Welfare Work.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 29—Shot through the face the body of W. L. Caldow, member of the local stock brokerage firm of Easson and Caldow, was found early today in the garage at his home. A gun was found at his side.

No Reason Given

Friends of the broker could give no reason why Mr. Caldow should end his life. He spent the evening at home. Mrs. Caldow returned from the Old Country on Sunday last.

The stockbroker's body was found in the rear seat of his motor car. The side of his head had been shattered by the discharge from a shot gun which was propped up against the front seat of the car.

Detective Sergeant Dawn investigated and after the body had been removed to the morgue it was released by Chief Coroner M. M. Crawford.

J. M. Easson when notified of the tragedy declared: "There's no earthly reason why he should have done a thing like that, Mr. Caldow was a temperate man, of regular habits and apparent peace of mind."

Ian MacLaren, a friend, stated that Caldow spent last night at home. "I went to pay a visit and Mrs. Caldow told me he had gone out to the garage. When I got there he had been dead for some time. I called the police. Mrs. Caldow told me he had seemed well all evening, but had become upset shortly before he went out."

Former St. John Resident.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Oct. 29 (C.P.).—W. L. Caldow was formerly a resident of this city, and took an active interest in local welfare work as well as being prominent in Saint John

TORIES' DEMAND NOT AUTHORIZED

Statement of Request to Baldwin Branded as Incorrect By Col. Gretton.

POWER DENIES SIGNATURE.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 29 (By Thos. T. Champion, C. P. Staff Correspondent).—There was a fresh act in the swiftly moving drama within the Conservative Party to-day. Col. J. Gretton, M.P., declared the statement issued last night over the signatures of 44 Conservative Members of Parliament, demanding the resignation of Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin as Conservative Leader, was "unauthorized and incorrect."

Col. Gretton presided over last night's meeting of the dissatisfied Conservatives, and his signature led all the rest on the statement. He declined, however, to discuss to-day in what point the statement was lacking in authority or correctness.

Sir John Power, one of those whose names appears on the list, declared to-day he did not attend the meeting and was not invited, and was ignorant any such letter existed. Other Commoners whose signatures appeared, declined to discuss the matter, though some admitted attending and signing a document.

Soviet Salmon Sales Hurt B.C. Canneries

VANCOUVER, B.C., Oct. 29 (C.P.)—Reported action of the Soviet Government in placing 1,000,000 cases of Russian salmon on the British market at prices below those for which the British Columbia canner can pack his product is giving concern to British Columbia cannery men.

Packers of British Columbia, who export 80 per cent. of their production, have always depended on the British market to absorb a great portion of this exportable surplus, but under present circumstances the possibilities are doubtful.

The greater portion of this year's 2,000,000 cases British Columbia salmon pack is still lying in warehouses, with exports to the Old Country practically negligible.

Sub-committees Busy Battling With Quota System Schemes.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 29. (By George Hambleton, C. P. Staff Correspondent)—Premier R. B. Bennett of Canada will reserve any statement he has to make on the British Government's proposals for developing Empire Trade, until after such plans have been made public. So far only conjecture can be made of the details of the supplementary schemes which the British Government laid before the Empire delegates to the Imperial Conference, following Premier Bennett's offer of Empire tariff preferences.

Privately Informed

The Dominion delegations have been privately informed of the Labor Government's intentions. But except for Premier MacDonald's declaration in the House of Commons yesterday that the British Government was unable to impose any duty on foreign wheat entering Britain, in order to benefit the Dominion wheat producers, there has been no public announcement from the Government itself. It is thought unlikely therefore, that Premier Bennett will make any pronouncement of high policy before the next plenary session of the Imperial Conference.

The Canadian Prime Minister continues in good health after his recent indisposition.

The Imperial Conference sub-committees were busy on both the constitutional and economic aspects of their labors to-day completing the drafting of reports for submission to the whole conference. So intent was the constitutional committee on the business before it that the members sat through for luncheon. The delegates found their only relief from political status in sandwiches.

Other sub-committees worked on the application of the quota scheme to British purchases of canned fruit, fish and dairly products. All reports are only in draft form, susceptible of later modification, it is emphasized. No definite decisions have yet been reached even by the committees.

SERIOUS CONSEQUENCES LOOMING UNLESS SITUATION IN PALESTINE CLEARED UP SAYS LLOYD GEORGE

Liberal Leader Calls on Commons For Debate of Govt's Attitude.

MUCH TO SETTLE

Great Departure in Policy is View of Many Outstanding Men.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 29 (C.P.). — Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, Liberal leader, to-day called upon the House of Commons for debate of the Government's attitude on Palestine.

Lloyd George, who was Prime Minister when the Balfour declaration was made, speaking during the debate on the reply to the Speech from the Throne, said there was "a good deal which should be cleared up" about Great Britain's recent statement of policy on the mandate.

Jews' Attitude Differs.

The Premier had said there was no departure in policy, the Welshman asserted, adding, "Well, if there is no departure in policy it is very remarkable that all of the Jews in the world have taken a different view."

Premier MacDonald yesterday was asked if the statement represented a changed policy on the part of Great Britain and he had stated emphatically that it did not, but that contradictory elements in previous declarations had made the statement necessary to clarify policy.

Lloyd George continued that those who are responsible for "one of the most remarkable movements of modern times for the colonization of parts of Polestine—Stanley Baldwin, Austen Chamberlain, Leopold Amery and a man like General Smuts, completely removed from all party controversies, all had taken the view that there had been a very serious departure in policy," and that he (Lloyd George) thought it might have very serious consequences unless the whole situation should be cleared up satisfactorily."

LONDON, England, October 29 (By George Hambleton, C.P. Staff Correspondent). — Hon. H. H. Stevens, Canadian Minister of Trade and Commerce in London for the Imperial Conference, has received information that several British industrial firms are considering the establishment of branch factories in Canada. One textile concern is reported to have decided on a site in the Quebec area.

Krupps, famous German steel firm, is also said to be sending a representative to Canada to survey the ground with a view to possible establishment of a Canadian plant.

TRAFFIC OFFICER HAS CLOSE CALL

Patrolling Highways is Most Difficult Task This Time of Year.

WARNING DRIVER.

Patrolling highways to catch speeders and reckless drivers is no cinch. Ask Provincial Traffic Patrol Officer Ted Hornick, who keeps a watchful eye on the highway from Port Hope to Peterborough and thence to Toronto. Besides bucking through all degrees of weather and facing wind, sleet and snow, there is always the danger of a spill.

Officer Hornick's heart missed several beats only yesterday afternoon. He had stopped a truck to issue a warning, and was pulled up on the highway talking with the driver. Suddenly there was a swish and he turned to see a large sedan bearing down on him. The sedan's driver had applied his brakes, but on the slippery pavement the big vehicle began to spin around crazily. It was out of control.

The officer leaped for the ditch. A moment later the sedan whizzed over the spot where he had been standing, missing the truck by inches.

GETS YEAR FOR ASSAULTING OFFICER

BRAMPTON, Ont., Oct. 29. (CP)—Thomas Haywood, Toronto, was found guilty on the reduced charge of assaulting a police officer in the execution of his duty in Police Court here and was given one year suspended sentence.

Judge B. F. Justin, who heard the case, criticized the actions of Traffic Officer Bond and declared that if Bond was before him on a charge of assault, and not Haywood, he would have to find him guilty.

Hallowe'en Parade

The Examiner has received many reports regarding the manner of dealing with this year's Hallowe'en frolic, and they all agree that the change in plans for this year is the proper thing to do. The parade will start from the Murray street entrance of the Armouries at 8 o'clock, headed by the Peterborough Rangers' Band, and it is hoped there will be a large turn-out of masqueraders.

As suggested by Alderman Fred Tuggey, there will be a box in front of The Examiner Office, and the office will be open to receive donations in clothing, cash, milk or bread tickets or orders on stores for groceries and meats; the receipts from which will be distributed wisely with the assistance of regular organizations for this purpose. In addition to previous donations to the fund, The Examiner has received $16 by the members of its mechanical staff and Reid's Coal and Wood Office, has promised two loads of wood.

Dominion and King To Name Governor

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 25 (C.P.)—The Daily Herald to-day said that one of the most important results of the Imperial Conference would be elimination of interference of the home Government in election of Governors-General for the Dominions. The paper said that a method of procedure had been worked out in committee and that in the future each Governor-General would be appointed by the King solely in consultation with and on the advice of the Dominion concerned.

RUSE ADMITS WORKING WITH TORONTO FIRM

Put Through Orders Without Stock Being Actually Bought or Sold.

EVIDENCE IN COURT.

Queen City Brokers Arraigned on Charges of Conspiracy to Defraud.

TORONTO, Ont., October 29 (C. P.). — Admission by J. C. Ruse, former stockbroker, that he had put through buying and selling orders in stock for D. S. Paterson & Co., another brokerage firm without any stock being actually bought or sold on any exchange, featured the trial of D. S. Paterson, Austin Campbell, and Edgar McLean in the Assizes today on charges of conspiracy to defraud the public and conspiracy to affect the market price of stocks. Ruse reappeared this morning after being warned by Mr. Justice Jeffrey yesterday not to communicate with either Crown or defence counsel.

W. N. Tilley, K.C., special Crown Attorney, opened the case by demanding from Ruse what right he had to charge a commission for buying and selling stocks when none were bought or sold, Ruse declared that a service had been rendered, balances in stocks and transactions made, and the books kept in shape, and for this he got one-fifth.

When Mr. Tilley asked what was the meaning of transactions made when stocks were not bought or sold, he expressed the opinion that Ruse was working in a "clique" with Paterson & Company.

DAMAGE COSTS UP TO STUDENTS

Kingston Council Committee Makes Decision Following Rumpus.

PROSECUTION LOOMS.

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 29 (C.P.)—That Fire Chief James Armstrong lay before the City Solicitor all the facts in the case with a view to prosecuting the guilty parties who made an assault on the firemen in the discharge of their duty and that the chairman ascertain the damage to the property of the Fire Department and also to the clothing of the firemen and notify the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University that the Society will be called upon to pay the damage, was the decision of the Fire and Light Committee of the City Council to-day.

The decision of the committee followed reports submitted by Chief Armstrong of the clash of the local fire-fighters with Queen's students when they endeavored on Friday night to extinguish a huge bonfire the students had started on Queen's lower campus.

Licensing Is Urged For Tourist Camps

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 29 (C.P.) — Licensing of all tourist camps and tourist stops under a nominal fee as a means of improving general health and sanitary conditions at these places, is being urged upon the Ontario Government, it has become known. It is likely legislation providing for the licensing will be brought down at the next session of the Legislature.

"I do not know anything about this suggested legislation," said C. C. Hale, Director of Publicity for the Ontario Government, "but I do know, from personal observations during the last few weeks, that conditions obtaining in some camps and roadside refreshment stops are disgraceful. Something has to be done about it."

VOTING IS LIGHT AT BY-ELECTION IN FOUR RIDINGS

Little Interest Roused Laid to Lack of Outstanding Issues.

CANDIDATES WORKED HARD.

Ontario Gov't Ministers All Taken Active Part in Campaign.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 29.—Indications point to light voting in the four constituencies where by-elections are beng held to-day to fill the vacancies created in the Legislature by deaths and resignations.

Little general interest has been aroused in the brief campaign owing to lack of outstanding issues, political observers claim. However, the candidates themselves have been staged. A three-cornered duel has been fought in Lanark South.

The Perth South seat was made vacant by the death of David Bonis C. E. Richardson, is the Conservative nominee, opposing George S. Keith, Liberal-Progressive standard-bearer.

Two Independents Running.

Like the Perth seat that of Lanark South was also made vacant through the death of the former member, Dr. J. A. Anderson; two independents, Captain W. G. Ferguson, Independent Conservative, and Richard Running, have been campaigning in opposition to the official Conservative candidate, Edward Stedman.

Nipissing, where the rival candidates are J. H. Marceau, Liberal, and C. R. Harrison, Conservative, was vacated by Harry Morel, who unsuccessfully ran in the riding during the Dominion election of July 28 last. Waterloo South was also vacated by the former Provincial member, Karl K. Homuth, who opposed Hon. W. D. Euler, former Minister of National Revenue, in the Federal election. N. O. Hipel, Liberal, and M. M. Donald are the rival candidates in this riding.

Ministers Had Active Part

Ontario Government Ministers have been particularly active in the Western Ontario constituencies. Hon. W. G. Martin, Minister of Public Welfare, and Hon. Dr. J. M. Robb, Minister of Health, have just concluded a lengthy speaking tour of the various centres in the two ridings. Hon. William Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests; Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Highways and Acting Premier; Attorney-General W. H. Price, and Hon. E. A. Dunlop, Provincial Treasurer, have all taken an active part in the campaign. Most of them confined their activities to Perth South and Waterloo South, but Mr. Finlayson and Mr. Dunlop also visited Lanark South and Nipissing.

The Ontario Liberal Leader, W. E. N. Sinclair, K.C., and M. F. Hepburn, Liberal M.P. for Elgin West, have spoken several times on behalf of the Liberal candidates in the Western Ontario ridings.

HALIBURTON DEER GROWING SCARCE

Wolves So Bold Children Frightened to Attend Northern Schools.

HUNTS BEING STAGED.

LINDSAY, Oct. 29 (Examiner Correspondence).—Scarcity of deer in the Haliburton hunting preserves owing to the onslaught of wolves was forecasted by a resident of the north country to-day. He reported that wolf packs have been so bold that they have penetrated the settlements in search of food. Many deer have been destroyed, the bones of the dead animals bearing mute testimony to the havoc done by the wolves.

The northerner declared that the wolves were so plentiful in the vicinity of Sawyer's Lake that the children were afraid to attend school. A wolf hunt was staged by the settlers a few days ago when a number of the animals bit the dust. At Maple Lake the howls of the pack are heard every night. One farmer residing in that section a few nights ago killed a large wolf which invaded his farm yard.

ECKENER WILL NOT TESTIFY.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Oct. 29.—(A.P.)— Dr. Hugo Eckener Master o the Graf Zeppelin, to-day denied that he had been invited by the British Government to testify in its inquiry into the R-101 catastrophe. He added that he had no intention of going to England for the inquiry, since he was not an eye-witness to the disaster.

Two Stock Brokers Acknowledge Guilt Of Gaming in Stocks

Within One Hour After Isaac W. Solloway and Harvey Mills Had Pleaded Guilty to 'Gaming in Stocks' Their Fines, Totalling $250, 000 Were Paid.

NO PRISON SENTENCE WAS IMPOSED BY COURT ON ACCOUNT OF TWO PREVIOUS INDICTMENTS

In Calgary on June 3 Solloway Was Fined $225,000 and One Month in Jail and Mills $25, 000 and Like Jail Term—Attorney General Appeals Sentences.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 29.—(CP)—Within an hour after they had pleaded guilty to a charge of "gaming in stocks" Isaac W. C. Solloway and Harvey Mills, partners in the defunct brokerage concern bearing the same name, paid fines totalling $250,000 imposed by Mr. Justice Jeffrey in the criminal assizes today.

Originally indicted in the Ontario court on three counts in connection with stock market operations—conspiracy to defraud the public, conspiracy to affect the market price of stocks and gaming in stocks—the brokers, with the consent of W. N. Tilley K. C., special Crown Prosecutor, pleaded guilty to the third charge, referred to in stock market parlance as "bucketing" and His Lordship immediately imposed sentence. Solloway the senior partner, was ordered to pay $200,000 and mills $50,000.

Appealing Calgary Sentence

Mr. Justice Jeffrey stated that in view of pending action in the Alberta courts on counts one and two in the indictment he would not impose a prison sentence. On June 3 at Calgary, Solloway was fined $225,000 and sentenced to four months in jail by Mr. Justice Ives while his partner was fined $25,000 and sentenced to one month in jail. These sentences were appealed by the Attorney-General of Alberta on the ground that they were inadequate and the brokers remanded on bail pending the outcome of the decision of a higher court.

Sentence was passed by Mr. Justice Jeffrey this morning before a crowded courtroom. Solloway and Mills stood erect as his lordship delivered his decision.

With the arrest of Isaac W. C. Solloway and Harvey M. Mills, chief executives of Solloway-Mills and Company, Limited, one of Canada's largest stock brokerage houses, on charges of fraud and conspiracy laid by the Attorney-General of Alberta early last January, began a series of prosecutions of stock brokers throughout Canada, the initial steps of a wholesale investigation into methods of trading.

Convicted in Calgary

Solloway and Mills were convicted in Calgary last summer on charges concerned with the operations of their firm in Alberta between May 1 and Dec. 31, 1929. Solloway was sentenced to four months' imprisonment and fined $225,000, and Mills was sentenced to one month's imprisonment and fined $225,000. The sentences were appealed by Hon. J. F.

GOV'T OF CANADA BACKS UP LEAGUE PERLEY ASSURES

Complimentary Luncheon Tendered Deputy Director, International Labor Office.

SLAVERY QUESTION UP.

Mr. Butler Claims 8 European Countries Have Unemployment Insurance Schemes.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 29 (C.P.)—Assurance that the Dominion Government stands behind the League of Nations and all that it implies has been given by Sir George Perley, acting Premier of Canada during the absence in London of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett.

Speaking at a complimentary luncheon tendered H. S. Butler, Deputy Director of the International Labor Office at Geneva, by the Central Executive of the League of Nations Society in Canada, Sir George declared Canada is behind the League in every possible way. "While I am only holding down a temporary job in the Government at present," he went on, "I think I am safe in saying this Government, as did the last one, believes in the League, believes in Canada making her contribution to the League, and believes in the League continuing its good work."

World Labor Conditions.

Mr. Butler later was guest at a reception held by the Ottawa branch of the League Society. In a comprehensive address he discussed world labor conditions.

Eight countries of Europe had schmees of unemployment insurance covering 43 million workers, he pointed out. The scheme embraced by Germany covered all workers, including those in agriculture.

Touching on the question of the campaign against forced labor and slavery, particularly in Africa, Mr. Butler gave credit to Great Britain for showing the way. "The colonial structures by South Africa have been so built up by forced labor that instant abolition is hardly possible," he said, "but Britain has taken the lead and thus forced labor has been abolished from every British possession."

RED PROPAGANDA DRAWS PROTESTS

British Gov't Claims Moscow Not Observing Its Pledge.

ENDANGERS RELATIONS.

The British Government has made representations to Soviet Russia that the Moscow Government has not been observing its pledge against propaganda exchanged between the two countries on the resumption of relations.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson divulged in the House of Commons to-day that this representation had been made as a result of inquiry into propaganda carried on by the Third Internationale in Great Britain and other parts of the Empire.

"I asked the Ambassador to impress seriously on his Government that continuation of this propaganda would be calculated to endanger relations between the two countries. "The Ambassador," continued Mr. Henderson, "said that the Soviet Government would continue to observe the pledge but could not control the activities of the Third Internationale."

BOYS SENTENCED FOR BURGLARIES

Two Toronto Youths Get 18 Months in Reformatory at Lindsay Court.

ROBBED STORES

LINDSAY, Oct. 29 (Examiner Correspondence).—Two Toronto boys, William Cameron and Ted Hill, received sentences of one year determinate and six months indeterminate in Ontario Reformatory at a session of court yesterday, presided over by Judge Ruddy of Whitby. The accused entered several stores in Bobcaygeon recently. Sentence was reserved in a similar charge preferred against John Hill, also of Toronto.

Will Sell No Liquor To Men Out Of Work

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 29.—(C.P.)—Instructions have been issued to managers of stores throughout the Province to refrain from selling beer, wines or spirits to persons out of employment and to those whom the managers have reason to believe are spending money on liquor that is needed to provide for their families, Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, has announced.

Sir Henry, who has just returned from a vacation in Great Britain and Europe, said there were indications the coming winter would be a trying season for some people, and he did not wish men to spend money on liquor that would be needed to carry them and their families through the winter season.

44 Tory Members Ask Baldwin to Resign

REQUEST COMES AS BIG SURPRISE TO NEW SESSION

Rebels Claims Change in Leadership Essential to National Interest.

ACTION UNPRECEDENTED.

Party Leader Invites Critics to Speak at Meeting Called Thursday.

LONDON, England, October 29 (C.P.). — Demands by Conservative members of Parliament for the resignation of Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, the r leader, provided last night one of the major political sensations of the year.

Forty-four Conservatives presented a petition to the chief whip of the Conservative Party submitting that a change in leadership was "essential to the national interest."

Another meeting of the rebels is expected to be held to-day with a view to giving other members of the party an opportunity of joining the movement against the former Premier.

Outstanding Names Missing

Though the outstanding names in the party were missing from the petition, the signatures of several well-known members were attached, including those of Sir John Gretton, Sir Basil Peto, Sir Martin Conway Sir Van Sittart Bawater, Viscount Lymington, F. A. MacQuisten and E. Marjoribanks.

The Conservatives have been divided by disagreement over the tariff question some sections of the party advocating thorough-going Imperial preference and preferential food taxes.

Mr. Baldwin has invited those opposing his leadership to speak at a party conference on Thursday.

The rejection of a party leader by so large a proportion of his followers at the very opening of a new parlimentary session is believed to be unprecedented in British political history.

Result Guesswork

What will happen now appears to be conjectural. Mr. Baldwin who became Prime Minister in 1923 and again in 1924, has been under steady fire for weeks from the influential Daily Express and Daily Mail, controlled by Lord Beaverbrook and Lord Rothermere, respectively.

Though it had been known that the question of the party leadership would come to a head sooner or later, the manifesto was a staggering surprise to both experts and the man in the street.

More than 50 Bombay cotton mills are planning a gigantic merger to secure a loan of $36,000,000.

Bennett Keeps Mum Upon Gov't Attitude

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 29 (C.P.). — Right Hon. R. B. Bennett, Canadian Prime Minister, declined to comment to-day on Prime Minister MacDonald's announcement in the House of Commons that the Labor Government cannot impose food taxes in order to accord preference to Dominion products.

In Canadian circles, however, there is a tendency not to regard the declaration as closing the door on discussions, having as their goal the improving of Empire trade.

The attitude of the MacDonald Government regarding food taxes had long been known, and the Dominion statesmen are now hoping that study of other means for develpoment of mutual trade may yield concrete results.

SHAW, EINSTEIN MEET AT DINNER

German Scientist Referred to as "Great Among Great Men" By Playwright.

ADDRESSES BROADCAST.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 29. (CP)—Two of the most famous men in the world, George Bernard Shaw and Professor Albert Einstein, spoke and exchanged compliments last night at a dinner in honor of the German scientist.

The soft Irish brogue of Mr. Shaw and the sharp staccato German of Professor Einstein were broadcast here and across the Atlantic.

In proposing the health of Professor Einstein, Mr. Shaw was in his lightest vein.

"Here in London we are still a great centre. I don't suppose we shall be a great centre long. All that will be transferred presently to the United States, but for the moment I am speaking in a capital where the reception of great men is a very common event."

Mr. Shaw proposed a toast to the scientist as "the greatest of our contemporaries" placing him among "the men who are great among great ben". Such, he said, were Aristole, Copernicus, Galileo and Newton.

Professor Einstein addressed the guests at the banquet, organized by the joint British committee for the promotion of the physical and economic welfare of Eastern Jewry, and urged international Jewry to remain true to its traditions.

He said he came from virtual retirement at the urgent pleadings of the voice of his people. He believed that serving the aims of humanity should always remain highest in the scale of Jewish ideals.

MOTHER SHOOTS BABY

BELLEVILLE, Ont.—Kathleen Cassido, aged two, was accidentally shot and killed by her mother yesterday. Mrs. Paul Cassido, the mother, was removing a loaded rifle from the kitchen to another room when it was accidentally discharged. The bullet penetrated the baby's head. An inquest will not be held.

DOURO IS GIVEN INCREASED GRANT FOR HIGHWAYS

Improvements Are to be Made on Douro Township Road to Lakefield.

'FLAT ROAD' IN SYSTEM.

Recent Concessions to Townships by Department Most Advantageous.

Two recent concessions to Peterborough townships by the Department of Highways are regarded as distinct advantages by the Reeves who received them.

The assumption of the "flat road" from the Locks Bridge to Bensford Bridge as a county is highly satisfactory to Reeve Fred McIntyre and the members of Otonabee Township. Originally designated as a county road it was later turned back to the township when the County Council reached the conclusion that its original plans were too ambitious. The Province will now pay half the cost of this road, which is an integral part of communication through Otonabee and South Monaghan linking with the Provincial Highway. The Department has intimated on several occasions a desire to improve roads that are parallel to Provincial Highways, and this road from the Locks to Bensfort was one that was specially mentioned.

Reeve Leahy of Douro also received a favorable response to his request for an increase in the grant for the township roads. This applies particularly to the road from Peterborough to Lakefield on the east side of the river. The scenic beauty of this route has always been recognized, but the road itself has of late years been more or less neglected and certainly has not been inviting to motorists. Instead of the customary grant of forty per cent of the cost of maintenance of the township roads, it is understood that Douro will now get a "fifty-fifty" grant. The proposed improvement of the river road by the township will be welcome news to all those who use it, and it will certainly have a stronger appeal for tourists and for all the summer traffic that prefers the east road to Lakefield.

Tories Favor Tariff Lord Salisbury Says

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 29 (C.P.) — The Conservative Party is prepared to establish a general tariff, if returned to power, and to give the Dominions preferential rates based upon this tariff, the Marquis of Salisbury, Conservative Leader in the House of Lords, told the Upper Chamber.

But the first question to which the people should devote their attention, declared Lord Salisbury, was how far this tariff should go. While he supported the preferenec offer of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, the Canadian Prime Minister, he felt Mr. Bennett must be aware that Britons would only accept his policy if they felt the bargain between Britain and the Dominions was to be a fair one.

FARMERS SEEK $1,15 FOR WHEAT

Ryckman Hears Request — Points Out Difficulties in Path.

BE TEMPORARY AID.

CALGARY, October 29 (C.P.). — Federal Government guarantee of a minimum price for wheat of $1.15 per bushel basis No. 1 Northern, Fort William, as a temporary measure to aid the agriculturists of Western Canada, was urged when a delegation under the leadership of H. E. C. M. Scholefield, vice-president of the United Farmers of Alberta, waited upon Hon. Edmond B. Ryckman, Minister of National Revenue.

Under the proposal, grades under No. 1 Northern would be guaranteed at spreads to be determined, and the minimum would be increased or decreased in relation to the cost of products.

Mr. Ryckman pointed out the difficulty in assuring the delegation that action of this kind could be taken, and that a definite price could be met.

POISON IN BREAD KILLS 2 FRIENDS ON MANITOULIN

Bachelor Visiting Sick Pal Bakes With Fatal Results.

DIE EATING MEAL.

Gruesome Discovery Made By Neighbors Suspicious of Quietness.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. 29 (C.P.)—Neighbors who had become suspicious about the ominous stillness which hung over the dwelling of James C. Crawford, a veteran bachelor of Robinson Township, forced their way into his home yesterday to discover the aged man lying dead on the floor, and a few feet away the body of his friend of many years, John McGibbon. The two men, examination revealed, had been the victims of arsenic poisoning. It was established they had died about three or four days ago.

The authorities have learned that Crawford became ill last Thursday and asked a neighbor to send for McGibbon, who came down from Fernlee to stay with him. The two men were last seen that night.

Death Comes Quickly

When neighbors entered the house to make their gruesome discovery, they discovered evidence that both men had apparently been stricken quickly as on the table were remains of an unfinished meal.

Investigators found part of a loaf of bread and nearby a container with a doughy mixture. They also discovered a tin marked "Baking powder" containing, it is believed, a quantity of arsenic. The poison had apparently been mistaken for baking powder and used in making the bread.

HEPBURN SCORES FINANCIAL POLICY

Claims Liquor Control Board Officers Paid Too Much Money.

FORESEES BOLSHEVISM.

KITCHENER, Ont., October 29 (C. P.). — The financial policies of the Ontario Government were criticized last night by M. F. Hepburn, M.P. for Elgin West. He was addressing a rally at New Hamburg, held in the interests of Norman O. Hipel Liberal candidate for the Provincial riding of Waterloo South.

"In Sir Henry Drayton and his two assistant commissioners Premier Ferguson had three belted knights eating out of a select grough to the tune of $40,000 each year, when the jobs on the Ontario Liquor Control Board could be filled by one able business executive for $6,000 a year," said Mr. Hepburn.

"I am going to tell Sir Henry one thing," the speaker proceeded, "and that is that if this Province is going to keep on engaging these belted knights, Bolshevism is going to result, and we will all be blown up one of these days."

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a 16 oz. bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make 16 ounces. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the germ-laden phlegm. Second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in the obstinate bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

CAVAN–SOUTH MONAGHAN MATCH IS FINE EXHIBITION OF PLOWING

All of the Eight Classes Are Well Filled, Plowing Most Uniform.

QUINN WINS WITH TRACTOR.

John Medd of Port Perry Adds Another Victory to Season's String.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 29.—Automobiles strung along the sixth concession of Cavan for about half a mile Tuesday afternoon presented a file of evidence that plowing is something more than humdrum toil, and also that the Cavan and South Monaghan Plowmen's Association match is a strong attraction for the countryside at a time of the year when many a farmer has his own fields to prepare for next year's planting.

The neighbouring townships put on a show that was almost as large in the number of entries and also in the attendance, as the Peterborough county match in Douro last week. About thirty plows worked away all day on the farms of Archie Johnston and Edward Larmer. Four of the competing plows were drawn by tractors. All of the eight classes were well filled, and the plowing was so uniformly good that the judge, A. T. Paterson of Agincourt, remarked to The Examiner that the Cavan and South Monaghan Association has every reason to be gratified by yesterday's results.

Monday night's rain dampened the dark clay loam to a smooth texture making it almost ideal for the match. The weather was agreeable, and every feature of the day helped to promote the general success of the competition. One of the most satisfactory features was the compara-

An Ontario physician says: "I enjoyed Quaker natural Bran very much, and I am recommending it to my patients."

NATURE'S own remedies are the most efficacious. Particularly if you suffer from headaches, nervousness, bad breath, languor, or other ailments that come from constipation.

Instead of using harsh, habit-forming drugs, Nature says add to the daily diet a pure grain roughage like Quaker natural Bran. Health authorities agree it is a permanent corrective. And Quaker natural Bran is appetizing and good to eat, sprinkled over other cereals, baked in muffins, plain or with raisins, or served in other ways suggested in the package.

But be sure to get Quaker natural Bran. Made of soft Ontario winter wheat, it does not irritate. No other is so effective, no other so good. It is uncooked and sterilized —physicians recommend it as the best laxative cereal.

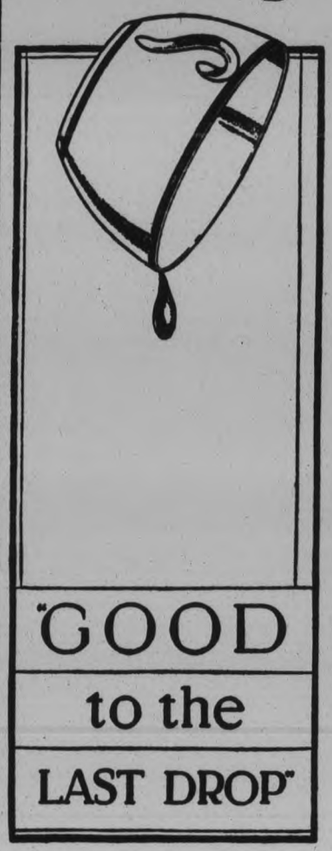
Hospitality's Symbol in the Sunny South



You, too, can serve this delicious blend — Dixie's favourite Coffee

NOWHERE did Southern hospitality reach a higher peak than at the Old Maxwell House in Nashville, Tennessee. Wherever Southern food was discussed, the Maxwell House was praised—and its coffee.

A Southern gentleman had dreamed a dream of better coffee flavour. He was an expert in coffee. He tested and re-tested many coffees until he found at last what seemed to him the ultimate in flavour—a delicate, delicious blend.

The fame of it spread abroad

Visitors who sipped it in Nashville sought it for their own tables at home. Today Maxwell House Coffee is a universal favourite.

Maxwell House Coffee comes to Canadian homes vacuum-packed. This ensures the same freshness when you open it as if you had just ground it yourself. Your grocer has Maxwell House in the blue tins.

In 1 lb. and ½ lb. tins.

ALWAYS F-R-E-S-H

When you open a Maxwell House vacuum-sealed tin the coffee is exactly as it was when it left the grinder. None of its aroma has escaped because the vacuum sealing makes the tin air-tight so that no chemical action can take place to change the flavour. Fresher than coffee packed any other way and even one day old. And the tight lid keeps it better after you open it.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

I know some children who have that despicable habit of telling untruths—perhaps you know some too—and it is an exceedingly bad habit.

• • • • • • •

Children who get this habit early in life and who are not corrected, will often come to a bad end. So parents must watch their children and correct the habit before it is too late.

• • • • • • •

When a child is telling an untruth and the mother or father knows it to be the case, it is for them find out why it was told before administering punishment.

• • • • • • •

Perhaps the child has no intention of deceiving, although what she said may have been far from true. It is when a child deliberately tells a falsehood with the purpose of deception that it become a reprehensible fault.

• • • • • • •

There are many different kinds of falsehoods and parents must be able to distinguish between these.

• • • • • • •

There are innumerable shades of the truth. There is the lie of imagination; the lie of ignorance, the lie of fear, and the deceitful lie. All these are significant with children.

• • • • • • •

But, of course, it is the last one that is the worst and the most hateful of all. Even adults have this habit and of course, it gets one nowhere.

• • • • • • •

Few people like conversing with others when they know those people are not telling the truth. There isn't much use in conversing with people when you know for a fact that what they are saying is not true.

• • • • • • •

Very often children are blessed with vivid imaginations and they, very often, live two lives—the actual and the fanciful. It requires careful thought for him to distinguish between them.

• • • • • • •

For example, little folks frequently have imaginary friends as playmates. This is especially true of the only child who longs for a brother or sister to play with him and not having one, has no choice but to supply himself with a phantom playmate.

• • • • • • •

Parents who scold their children for having such a friend, make a grave mistake. As the son or daughter grows, this imaginary playmate gradually ceases to exist.

• • • • • • •

An imagination is a real asset in later years and should not be stifled in children. The mother of such a child has to appreciate her child's mind or she will punish unreasonably.

• • • • • • •

With small children the lie of ignorance is usual. When the child begins to talk and is asked what it saw when it returns from a ride, it will say such things as moo-cows, perhaps, although it did not see them in reality.

• • • • • • •

The fear makes little children tell falsehoods. Sometimes parents are unduly severe with them and they bring about a reaction in them.

• • • • • • •

It is the unjust reprimand that results in untruths. When a child is justly treated and yet deliberately chooses to lie, some method of making him change his ways is imperative.

• • • • • • •

By all means, try to blot out that habit when the child is young, because it will cause much sorrow later on.

POWER AGREEMENT REACHED IN NORTH

Dispute Over Power Sites on Montreal River Are at Last Settled.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Oct. 29 (C.P.).—Completion of an agreement between the Ontario Government, the Algoma Central Railway and the Algoma District Power Company, in regard to the long dispute over the power sites on the Montreal River, ninety-two miles north of Sault Ste. Marie, is announced by the Sault Ste. Marie Star.

Under this agreement the Algoma District Power Company is given the right under lease to develop the upper and lower falls of the Montreal River subject to Government control. The local company agrees to turn over to the Government all its legal rights on the Montreal River as well as its rights on the Missisaugi River. The Government has the power to make any regulations it sees fit, has complete control of all construction plans and rates for power and light and can compel the delivery of power to anyone applying for it. It is announced actual work on the new Montreal River development will be commenced as soon as the engineering staff now at work completes the plans.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 29. (CP)—There is no surplus honey in Ontario it has been learned contrary to information given out Monday that there was a surplus of 1,000,000 pounds in the hands of producers.

The company paid seven cents a pound for the product and will use it in the manufacture of wine to be sold throughout Canada.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D

LEAVING YOURSELF OPEN TO PNEUMONIA.

One of the discouraging things about many apparently slight ailments is the way in which they undermine the patient's strength so that a serious condition—pneumonia—often follows, and the patient often has a hard battle for his life.

This is very frequently the case following an attack of influenza, or where a patient is "run down" from some long standing infection such as accompanies bad teeth, bad tonsils, or infected sinuses.

You can readily understand that if you have any of these conditions that your resisting force, your fighting force, is in a continuous battle and must gradually become weakened.

You often see this where the individual has some infected teeth. He says he doesn't feel too badly, hasn't any pains, and so doesn't feel like parting with his own teeth and getting in artificial ones.

Perhaps a year or two later he begins to have some twinges or pains in the knee, elbow, ankle, hip, or other joint, and then after consultation with his doctor, including the showing of his X-ray films, he has the infected teeth removed. The pains gradually disappear within one to six months time, and that is all he thinks about it. But what about that year, or two years, from the time he learned of his infected teeth and the appearance of the pains in the joints?

During all this time his resistance forces were continuously engaged in a battle with the organisms of the bad teeth, and apparently kept ahead of them until the pains appeared. The appearance of the pains meant that the organisms from the bad teeth had gained the upper hand.

What is my point?

That during those two years had he been attacked by pneumonia he would have had just that much less resisting power with which to fight it.

If pneumonia attacks you, following some acute ailment such as influenza or some intestinal condition, there is nothing with which you can reproach ourself. If, however, you have some condition such as bad teeth, tonsils, sinuses, and do nothing about it should you be attacked by pneumonia, you may have ample cause for regret.

You often hear the remark, "He went into the hospital with this, or that, ailment, but it has developed into pneumonia."

What really happens is that the patient is so run down that he is "wide open" for an attack of pneumonia.

DIPLOMATIC POST LEFT TO BENNETT

COUNTRY GOOD CUSTOMER

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 29 (C.P.)—While the general question of an extension of the Canadian diplomatic service has not been discussed, it is considered probable that China will be one of the first countries considered if Canada determines to appoint ministers to other foreign countries. The question of an exchange of ministers between China and Canada was discussed informally by Dr. C. C. Wu, Chinese Minister to Washington, and Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, about a year ago when Mr. King was Prime Minister of Canada. This informal discussion did not, however, lead to any more definite negotiations.

The present Government has not yet committed itself on the question of extending the Canadian diplomatic service. No doubt the general question will receive the attention of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister, when he returns from England. In addition to occupying the position of Prime Minister, Mr. Bennett is Secretary of State for external affairs, and the diplomatic corps comes under his direct supervision. At present Canada has a Minister in Japan.

China is one of Canada's good customers. Last year the Dominion sold China commodities to the value of sixteen million dollars. During the same period imports from China amounted to approximately three millions. Consequently, from the point of view of trade alone it is important to foster good relationships between countries. It is not anticipated that there will be any declaration of policy in the matter at least until after the return to Ottawa of the Canadian delegation to the Imperial Conference.

Manufacturers' Association Head Urges Every Canadian To Do His Share.

OUTLINES BUSINESS TRENDS

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 29.—(CP)—"Tariff protection in Canada is on trial for the next few months. We can justify it by low prices and high quality of agricultural and manufactured goods and its success or failure will be judged only from the view point of the country as a whole", said Elmer Davies, President of the Canadian Manufacturer's Association, in an address at the annual banquet of the Association of Canadian Advertisers last night. Mr. Davies outlined the various trends in the closely allied fields of manufacturing, agriculture and advertising and insisted upon the value and necessity of co-operation between these various branches of activity and between the constituent parts of Canada.

Sketches Old Method

After sketching the old methods of advertising and the spectacular rise of its technique and practice, evident in last few years, Mr. Davies went on to show the advantages to both producer and consumer. It meant, he said, increased production of higher quality goods at lower prices, and increased consumption of finer produce by a greater number of people.

He deprecated the viewpoint that saw only financial or personal success as the goal of these endeavors, quoting Sir Esme Howard, the British statesman who pictures Canada as one of the coming great financial and industrial powers of the world". The speaker regretted the emphasis placed on recent difficulties and failings of last few months.

One of the most practical forms of co-operation, he said, was the recently inaugurated "Buy Canada made goods" campaign. This campaign, however, could only urge a principle and it remained with the advertising fraternity, he thought, to point out to Canadian people what were Canadian goods and where were the Canadian distributors.

The salient fact, in his opinion, was that Canada had a vast store of latent possibilities, that Canada was going forward and that it remained with every individul to do his share.

Prof. Morrow Speaks

Preceding Mr. Davis, Prof. E. H. Morrow, Director of Merchandising Research for Maclean Publishing Company, traced the most recent changes in commercial methods and fortcast its probable evolution. The rise of the chain store and the return to the old conception of the commodity store, which is now called the department store, he regarded as significant results of concentration of power. While the fundamental problem remained the same—that of raising the standard of living through the perfection of service and manufacturing—the method was now commonly supposed to lie in the universalization of production and distribution.

A change was reflected in various acts outstanding of which are the regular study by prosperous merchants of trade journals, the increased craving for commercial education, the rising power and efficiency of smaller retailers, and the national control organization and practice, of advertising.

Recognition of the usefulness of research in commercial matters was another factor of development which was not yet sufficiently realized, he thought. Firms now investing in research were bound to be leaders in their particular fields five years hence.

2 WAYS at once!

Being an external treatment, Vicks is especially appreciated by mothers because it avoids the constant "dosing" which so often disturbs children's delicate digestions.

More and more mothers every year turn to the double action of Vicks VapoRub in checking colds, coughs, sore throat and spasmodic croup.

Rubbed on throat and chest at bedtime, Vicks acts through the skin like a plaster. At the same time, its medicated vapors, released by the heat of the body, are inhaled direct to the air-passages.

This double action of Vicks breaks up congestion and eases breathing, thus preventing the night coughs which so often rob both mother and child of restful sleep.

THAT SHOOTING CASE.

Hon. Richard Meredith, who recently resigned from the position of Chief Justice of the Ontario Supreme Court, is emphatic in his opinions as to the use of firearms by police officers.

"Constables, of all sorts and kinds, without character, some of them, who ought not to be trusted with dangerous weapons, are allowed to carry them and to shoot without the shadow of a right," declared Mr. Justice Meredith in an interview.

His condemnation of reckless shooting by officers followed the latest example of misuse of firearms reported from Toronto, a case that has caused a chorus of censure in the newspapers of the Province.

Fortunately the authorities have acted properly and promptly, and the constable who figured in the episode has been arrested and charged with wounding.

The case is now subjudice and therefore further editorial comment until the matter has been disposed of would not be justified.

It is enough to say that public opinion will support the action of the crown in laying a charge.

It is the belief of The Examiner that in every case of this kind the constable who did the shooting should be called upon to explain his actions in a properly constituted court.

LINDSAY'S ULTIMATUM.

Lindsay's ultimatum to the unemployed of that town that they need not expect to be given jobs under the relief scheme so long as they drive motor cars merely translates into action an opinion that is held by many people.

When unemployment relief is being sought there is something incongruous in the spectacle of the applicant travelling round in an automobile.

Under normal conditions no one would seek to deprive his fellow-citizens of the pleasure they may obtain from motoring, but certainly when it is necessary to open up public works to provide jobs for people who have no other opportunity to earn money there is no justification for those who need help adding to their own difficulties by having to meet the expense of maintaining and operating an automobile.

A special session of Parliament was called for the express purpose of furnishing work for breadwinners who by reason of economic conditions have been unable to supply their families with the necessaries of life.

The relief measures that were undertaken and are being put into force never contemplated the use of this special fund to provide gasoline for men who persist in keeping their cars at the expense of the food and clothing that should be given their families.

NOW THE BEES CAN GET BUSY.

The announcement made by the Attorney-General that the Liquor Control Act is to be amended to permit of the use of honey in place of sugar in the manufacture of native wine means a great deal to the honey-producers of the Province.

It is estimated that the change to be authorized will result in the sale of perhaps a million and one-half pounds of honey each year, taking care of the surplus for which the producers at present have no outlet.

The matter has been under consideration for some time, and it has been found, after investigating thoroughly, that the substitution of honey for sugar results in the production of better wine.

The chief obstacle to its use has been the difference in the price of the two commodities, the extra cost when honey is used being 18c per gallon.

This has been overcome by an agreement by which the manufaoturers will absorb one-half this additional expense, while the Liquor Control Board will take care of the remaining half.

If the new process means a more palatable and more healthful wine, as is claimed, and provides a market for the output of honey above the amount used in other ways by the people of Ontario, the proposed amendment to the Liquor Control Act will appeal to the public as a decidedly good stroke of business.

RUTHLESS DEPORTATIONS.

Something more definite in the way of an official explanation of the deportations that by reason of their apparently harsh and callous nature have aroused general sympathy and indignation would seem to be in order.

If the circumstances under which several women residents of Canada for many years have been deported are as stated, the officials responsible deserve condemnation.

While it is quite true that people who were epileptic before entering Canada have no legal right to be in this country and are liable to deportation, especially when they become public charges, there is no justification for proceedings such as it is charged have been in evidence in several cases recently.

The position of the Ontario Government in regard to such people is that the federal immigration authorities erred in admitting them into Canada, and the Ontario administration should not be called upon to meet the expense of their maintenance in institutions.

That may be quite true, but surely the remedy for the situation should not be the hasty tearing away of the unfortunate persons from their families and dumping them penniless into the British Isles where there may be no one to take care of them.

If the federal authorities were wrong in admitting people into Canada who should have been turned away, let the Federal Government assume the cost of their maintenance here, which would be a more humane and more natural course than the deportation measures now being put into force in what seems to be a most ruthless manner.

CANADIAN CARS IN CYPRUS.

Cyprus is ancient, an island colonized by the Phoenicians and later controlled in turn by the Greeks, the Assyrians, Persians, Egyptians, Romans and Byzantines, yet its inhabitants to-day ride in motor cars almost exclusively produced in Canada, a country of which nothing was known in the Mediterranean world for centuries after ancient Cyprus had yielded its stores of copper and suffered the loss of its forests for smelting purposes.

This is one interesting fact connected with the trade of Cyprus related in an article contributed to the Commercial Intelligence Journal by A. B. Muddiman, the trade commissioner stationed in Milan, Canada, it appears, sells other things to Cyprus besides motor vehicles, but the latter constitute the great bulk of imports from this Dominion. Of a total Canadian export to the island in 1929 valued at £56,197, motor cars accounted for £45,463 and tires and tubes for motor cars and motorcycles for another £6,499, leaving about £4,000 to be taken up with machinery and a few other commodities.

Canada, on the other hand, last year bought goods from Cyprus to the value of only £822, and these goods were composed exclusively of embroidery and needlework, the output of the peasant women of the island.

Cyprus is one of the British territories in the Mediterranean area with which it is hoped to expand Canadian trade as the result of the establishment of a more direct and subsidized steamship service from Canadian ports. Certainly it should be possible for a larger amount of Canadian flour to be sold there. The great bulk of the island's flour requirements are now imported from Australia with Canada standing at the foot of the list below France, Italy and the United States. If the Canadian manufacturers of motor cars have found it possible to capture the greater part of the market in Cyprus for their products, which must now possess a right-hand drive, in competition with the motor manufacturers of countries which lie much nearer it ought to be possible for the exporters of other Canadian products to report similar progress.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

WINDSOR'S REPLY.

While we appreciate the sincerity of Mr. Justice Raney's remarks and sympathize thoroughly with his desire for the complete suppression of lawless elements in this and every other community, we fear that outsiders may secure an erroneous impression of Windsor and its environs after reading the accounts of His Lordship's address to the Grand Jury, appearing in newspapers published in other cities.

In a Toronto paper yesterday, for instance, appeared a double-column headline reading:

"Crime Bred in Windsor
By Gambling and Liquor,
Raney Tells Grand Jury

"Border City Likened to Tia Juana as Notorious Racing and Gaming Centre, With Consequent Influx of Lawless Characters."

* * * *

The average reader, not residing in the Border Cities and perhaps not searching the full text of Justice Raney's remarks, might easily spring to the conclusion that conditions along the Border were just about as bad as they could be. This, of course, is not the fact. Border conditions have been bad, we are quite prepared to admit, but they are at least reasonably good at present. Some years ago, in the days of the old Ontario Temperance Act and when Mr. Justice Raney was Attorney-General in the Drury administration, the situation in this area was anything but satisfactory. Roadhouses flourished like the proverbial green bay tree and the existing condition was a scandal. Mr. Raney, as the officer entrusted with the administration of law and order in the Province, undoubtedly gave his best attention to the cleaning up of this situation, but it was a problem not easy of solution, as Mr. Raney found and as his successors, Mr. Nickle and Colonel Price, also discovered. In this community the illicit booze sellers and the professional gamblers got practically out of hand. An unfortunate official attitude, locally, contributed to this situation and made the task of changing it a more difficult one for the provincial authorities. Public opinon, however, gradually arose and demands for a "clean up" were voiced. The Star, at that time, undertook to expose the existing condition of affairs and did so in what we believe was a thorough and convincing manner. The provincial authorities took prompt action, and it was not long before much good had been accomplished. Ever since that time, Attorney-General Price has kept a vigilant eye on the Border, and his local representatives, in the persons of Crown Attorney Allan and the provincial police, have been most zealous in their efforts. The result to-day is that we have a community probably as law-abiding as any in Canada. It is not perfect, of course—we know of no perfect communities—but it is a great change from the condition of a few years ago.

* * * *

Everyone will appreciate the fact that the policing of a district such as this, extending for miles along an international waterfront, is not an easy task. We are only a few hundred yards away from the fourth city of America, a city in which crime is rampant, in which robbery and murder on a wholesale scale go on continuously. It is an easy matter for gamblers and thugs from across the line to come to this side. Many of them have come over from time to time. In cases where they have been detected, however, the law has made short work of them by administering sentences that left the criminals and their friends spellbound and determined to give Windsor a wide berth in the future. In our satisfaction over the way in which lawlessness has been put down, though, it would be a great mistake to overlook the need of constant caution. Our authorities cannot afford to rest on their laurels.

Even now the thugs are pounding on our gates, seeking, in some underground way, to open up their establishments here. The gambling and racketeering gentry, however, must not be given one iota of encouragement. We do not want them here and they will do well to keep this fact in mind. Eternal vigilance by officers of the law—federal, provincial and municipal—is the thing that will keep this community reasonably clean and reasonably safe for its citizens.

Windsor citizens generally are giving the lawbreakers short shift. There are a few who are in favor of letting down the bars "just a little," as they put it, for the selling of booze and for the entry of Detroit's strong-arm gamblers, but, happily, the number who take this dangerous view is too small to be effective. Citizens who have the interests of the community at heart are vigorously opposed to a return of the bad conditions of a few years ago. Their motto, with respect to the racketeers is, "They shall not pass-"—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

And now it would seem even the bees in Ontario are going to get into the liquor business.

Newspapers of the Province are a unit in declaring that police officers are only justified in shooting in self-defence.

Two Toronto men have been arrested for stealing soap and towels. Evidently the pair were out to make a clean-up

CHAPTER XII

VALIANT WINGS

Arrested! Those white-caps crowding into the door, that lanky sergeant, revolver in hand, were a thunderyelp out of a clear sky to Dorn. In the despair that swept over him his thoughts were wholly of Aurore. "Now I've bungled it. Now I've given them a chance at her. They've got me and I'm her sole dependence. I'll have to give her up or she'll starve, she'll die, alone in those ranges."

They did not need to tell him how his arrest had come about: in a flash he saw how. Aurore's enemies, knowing she was penniless, had reckoned upon her trying to sell her only valuable possession. Even here in Edmonton, hundreds of miles from Titan Pass, the jewellery stores had been warned to look out for the costly barrette. Under pretence of testing the stone the proprietor had 'phoned detective headquarters, and an operative had shadowed him to the hotel.

But after a moment Dorn braced himself against the shock. In the same cold, stern way in which he would have met any disaster, he stood tall and unstaggered under the chandelier now, facing his enemies, fighting down the desperation of a man trapped and cornered. And as he struggled up from despair, he swore doggedly: 'I'm going to break out of this. I don't dare let them drag me to jail. They haven't any idea who I am. If I can get away, Aurore'll be still safe." But to break free, confronted by five guns, six men. . . .

Stalling for time, for a few precious seconds to think, he spoke to the young sergeant.

"Before you take me in would you mind telling me what I'm being arrested for? It's a fellow's right, isn't it?"

'Yes, 'tis," the sergeant agreed, not unfriendly. 'But I don't know what for. All I know, orders was passed down for me to bring two squads and back up this man here." He jerked a thumb at the plain-clothes individual.

Across the table Dorn sized up the detective. Here then was the person he had to deal with. A man of some importance he seemed; possibly head of the private detective corps flung out in hunt of Aurore. He was thirty-odd, tall and lean, cadaverous of face, with eyes as cold as window-glass. A perfected sleuthing machine, a prototype of his calling—there was nothing warm-blooded or human about him.

Dorn was reasoning swiftly: "So you didn't tell the police your business with me! You drew them into this arrest because you had to make dead sure of getting me. Your party didn't enlist the Mounted or the Provincial in this hunt. You want to keep the affair quiet if you possibly can. That's what Aurore hinted at in her telegram, too."

The sergeant stepped up and ran his fingers over Dorn in search of weapon, and feeling some metal object on Dorn's breast, he drew back the jacket till he disclosed a military decoration—a pair of silver wings with bar 'Regiments E tranger" and pendant 'Pour la Valeur." He stared at it a moment, then looked up at Dorn with something of respect and awe in his glance.

A constable jungled handcuffs. Dorn spoke past the sergeant to the detective: 'I want to speak a minute with you. Suppose we talk this affair over. In private. You needn't be scared. You're gripping an automatic in your coat pocket, I notice." He saw the glint of wary suspicion in the man's eyes; and with a plan of escape rapidly crystallizing, he added: 'My Christian friend, if you won't talk I'll send for a lawyer at the jail and I'll talk to him, and to-morrow morning the papers will run the whole story. How would you like that?"

His shot struck. The detective blinked his eyes slowly like a turtle. 'We'll hold you incommun——" he started to say.

"You will like hell!" In a swift diplomatic appeal Dorn spun on the sergeant. 'How about it, partner—do I have the right to a lawyer and habeas corpus?"

"We don't railroad anybody. After the examinations over, you've got the right." To the detective: 'And 'less you slap some definite charge onto him, we can't hold him. Better make up your mind. Want to talk to him or not?"

The detective drew a black automatic, slipped the trigger safety and stepped over to the window to block that faint possibility of escape.

'If you're sure you frisked him clean for a gat, step outside a minute," he directed, in the polygolt of the crooks he associated with.

The sergeant nodded to his men and led them out into the corridor. With five of his enemies disposed of at one neat scoop, Dorn breathed easier. He had only to handle this Soft-Shoe.

He drew a couple of steps closer to the detective, as though to parley. He counted on the man ordering him to keep his distance. His manoeuvre worked. Soft-Shoe ordered him, "Get back," and emphsaized it with a nervous flip of his automatic.

'All right," Dorn agreed scornfully, purposively backing up against the door, 'if you're all that scared. Now let's get down to business. What do you want with me?"

'Nothing with you personal. We want to know where she faded to. I can make it worth while for you to come across."

There was no use pretending he knew nothing about Aurore. That would be clinging to a defence already demolished.

He surprised the detective by demanding abruptly, 'How much?"

The electric light switch was pressing against his backbone and he could feel the door bolt against his shoulder blade, and he exulted that in a few minutes he would smash his way out of this trap.

Soft-Shoe evidently admired him for being sensible, that is, for having a price; and he became a little more communicative.

'I can's say definite how much. But I can get in touch with the party that can. Offhand—if you take us where she's at and we get her and you promise to keep your mouth shut about her—I'd say twenty thousand."

For a second Dorn's thoughts went leaping away from his plan to escape. 'Lord, twenty thousand dollars! Just for information. And detec tives sowed from Hazeton to Edmonton money, power, a relentless hunt—that's what Aurore said!"

"Do you know her?" he asked, rising slightly on his toes to hook his belt over the electric light switch. And when the detective nodded, Dorn haggled cold-bloodedly.

"Then you know twenty thousand isn't much of a price for a girl like her?"

"Mabbe so," Soft-Shoe agreed, "but it's twenty thousand or nothing. That much jack 'ud keep a fellow the rest of his life. You don't look like a man who'd lose his head over any floosey, and her—you know you got about as much chance as a snowball in hell of ever having her. That's out, bo!"

Dorn stiffened suddenly, forgetting the light switch, the door bolt. Those words 'That's out" were blunt statement of a blunt fact. Old Bergelot's warning rose up again, alive again. Both men, one his friend, the other his deadly enemy, knew Aurore's story. One had said: 'You have begun the Great Flight . . . and I must turn you back." The other just now had likened his chances of having Aurore to a snowball in hell.

Outside on the street the squeal of familiar brakes recalled Dorn. Jerry had come, Jerry would run into the police. . .

'You mebbe could get habeas corpus and go back to her," Soft-Shoe went on, while Dorn estimated distances and gathered himself for explosive physical action. 'But how long 'ud that nice little party last? 'Less you're a damn fool you know already that this Dominion wouldn't be big enough to hold you. Better pull out of this trouble while the pulling's good. Suppose you don't: we'll find you; there'll be a fight; you ought to see you're heading for that. What chance have you got in a fight with us? If you try to be contrary. I'll give you a week to live. What'll it be now—you want that jack, or want to be bumped off because you went nuts over a floosey. . . ."

Dorn came down on his heels. At the same instant that the room was plunged into blackness his hand shot up and sped the door bolt against the policemen He ducked under the spurt of flame from the automatic, lunged across the room, and swung at the dim figure beside the window. Something like an iron maul caught the operative flush on the jaw. The automatic spun against the wall. Soft-Shoe heard the tintinnabulation of bells, his knees forgot their duty, his limp body wobbled, uncertain which way to fall, till Dorn's left fist lifted him clear off his feet and stretched him flat on the rug.

Dorn vaulted through the window to the sun roof below. He poised a moment on the balustrade, then leaped for the top of the rowan tree.

One hundred and thirty miles west of Edmonton, in the south inlet of Lake Lobstick, Kansas Eby sat in the cockpit of an anchored D-H biplane, waiting.

For the twentieth time he pulled out of his pocket a crumpled yellow telegram and re-read it

"Edward Eby Cartographer,
RCAF Camp,
Eagle Nest.

Bring that DH crate over to Lob Stick South Inlet. Open her up.—J D."

Kansas knew the wire was from Dorn. It had been filed in Edmonton at eleven o'clock last night. Noon now of the next day and Dorn not yet come, though his message had been urgent. By train or automobile either one he should have showed up hours ago.

In growing keen anxiety, Kansas tried to reason out what he ought to do. "Dorn's in trouble. He would never have called for help unless he needed it bad. He expected to meet me here, but something happened to him after he sent that wire. And here I sit like a bump on a chunk, when maybe I ought to fly on in and look him up and give him a hand."

He would have left hours ago had he not been afraid Dorn might come and find no one at the place of tryst. But the chances of Dorn coming had dwindled almost to nothing, and the belief had laid hold of Kansas that his partner was not coming, was in trouble, needed help.

ROUGH STONES ON ROADS

To the Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—Having noticed a few evenings ago a notice to the public from the Humane Society about keeping stock protected from the cold and frost at nights although rather unusual coming so early in the season. Now while this may be timely advice I was wondering if their authority was so far reaching, extending out to the farming community if they might not extend this authority further in the matter of looking after the condition of our country roads that are almost covered with stones and coarse gravel that a horse is compelled to travel over. We wonder if this matter is considered before a driver is summoned for driving a lame horse over those stones?

Why does this Society be so zealous over the protection of a lame homeless cat that is said to have nine lives, while a horse with only one must travel for miles on a bed of stones? Why strain at a gnat and swallow a camel. Of course, it is generally considered the trouble lies in the matter of too coarse stones and gravel being used, which is run through the pea sieve so to speak, better results are obtained when a finer grade is applied.

A farmer driving into town to market declared a few years ago before the days of old king speed it was a pleasure to drive to town at the rate of 10 or 12 miles an hour but now he would not attempt to make a record coming on the Lakefield road and expect to arrive with any wheels on his vehicle and it is doubtful if he would fare any better on the Keene or Norwood roads.

It is not a legal excuse to say few horses travel those roads anyhow and if one appears at all it is safe to assume that it may be a gypsy, a drover or a rural route mail driver or perhaps some far out and distant relation of Isaac and Jacob gathering up rags and bones.

But are those remaining few to have no consideration or must the horse pass out entirely and leave the traffic to the motor car only?

Now in conclusion there is much talk about our country roads and as Uncle Mark said about the weather nobody is doing anything. But when we come to think it over isn't it much easier and convenient for people to complain than to do anything, like the fellow we once heard about who didn't like the idea of digging out the country roads thinking it more convenient to complain to the Postmaster about not getting his mail delivered promptly.

From A One Horse Driver.

What To-day Means To You

"SCORPIO"

If October 29th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:30 a.m. to 8:45 a.m., from 2 p.m. and from 11 p.m. to midnight. The danger periods are from noon to 1:30 p.m. and from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Physical dangers are pictured on this date through mechanical means, such as motors, factory machinery or elevators. Health may fall below normal. Business and finances will stand still. Romantic adventures in your favor.

Children born on this October 29th will be imperious, dominative, forceful and quarrelsome. They will be inclined to "know it all," and much of their conceit will have to be taken out of them by the world. They will have alert minds, and will not be afraid of work. They will seek a public life.

Pessimism and worry debar you from much happiness and lessen your chances for success in life. Your mind magnifies all your clouds and minimizes all your sunbeams; ignores many of your blessings, but counts all your curses. You mope and brood over imaginary ills and evils. You wear yourself weary in self-contemplation, self-pity and self-distrust. You need to fight against moral defeatism. You need to exert your will, and to substitute resolution for irresolution, decision for indecision, action for inaction, purpose for vacillation and high spirits for low spirits.

You are somewhat of a dreamer, and you live on ideals and possibilities rather than the actualities of life. You seldom set the ball rolling by your own efforts. You are quick tempered and alive to slights and anything which affects your sensibilities. You often get "underneath the skin" of others through your caustic and sarcastic remarks. You love to probe the weak points of others, although it would be better to rub them with diplomatic salve.

You are not brilliantly intellectual, but you have enough ability, and clever enough hands to excel in some industry. If you be content to fit into your proper place in life, you will be happier and far more successful, than in trying to do something for which you are not fitted. True happiness is not born of circumstance—it is a state of being found in the Kingdom of Spirit that is within us.

CAVAN-SOUTH MONAGHAN MATCH

tively large number of young men who took part. A year ago they were conspicuously few, and their absence might have created the impression that the youth of Cavan and South Monaghan were neglecting this basic craft of agriculture. Yesterday, however, they were prominent both in numbers and in the quality of their work, and the interest they manifested was in itself ample recompense to the directors for their efforts.

Two members of the Provincial Plowmen's Association were present, L. H. Winslow, who is a director of the Cavan-South Monaghan Association, and A. E. Wilson of Hope township. They both stated that the match was the best that has been held by the Association for some years, and the quality of the plowing proved that the men of today, and especially the young men, are thorough and efficient farmers.

The Judge's Awards.

Class 1, in sod, open to all single plows—1, David Sharpe, Ida; 2, Harvey Manley, Otonabee.

Class 2, in stubble, for novices—1, Mansell Finnie, Ida; 2, Frank Ballantyne, Ida; 3, V. R. Hunter, Cavan.

Class 3, in stubble for boys 18 years and under—1, Douglas Ferguson, Stouffville; 2, Mervyn Smith, Cavan township; 3, Stanley Sharpe, Ida.

Class 4, jointers in sod, open to all "medium and wide" single plows—1, John Medd, Port Perry; 2, Thos. McCamus, Ida; 3, T. Chambers, Bethany.

Class 5, jointer plows in sod, open to single plows, narrow to medium—1, Clare Winslow, Ida; 2, Elmer Windrim, Ida; 3, Robt. Ballantyne.

Class 6, in sod, for boys 21 and under—1, W. Ferguson, Stouffville; 2, Harold Collins, Otonabee; 3, Harry McCamus, Ida.

Class 7, two-furrow plows—1, Leonard McNeil, Fraserville; 2, E. L. Metherel, Oakwood; 3, W. I. Larmer.

Best plowing team—1, R. J. McKnight; 2, Tom McCamus.

Oldest plowman—Robt Ballantyne.

Some of the Winners.

John Medd of Port Perry added another victory to his season's string by winning first prize in the class for "medium to wide" jointed plows. He was also first at Peterborough, and he won five first prizes at Bobcaygeon recently, including the Massey-Harris trophy for the best plowed land at that match.

Howard Quinn also repeated his fine work of last week in the tractor class, and another splendid specimen of plowing was shown by David Sharpe of Cavan township who was first for single plows in sod. This was the same class he won at Peterborough, a proof of his consistent performance. Harold Collins and Garnet Burns of Otonabee, who were both among the prize winners at Peterborough, were in the limelight again yesterday. The Ferguson brothers from Stouffville attracted the attention of the gallery because of the reputation that had preceded them, and both young men won first prizes in their respective classes. Wilfrid Ferguson has had provincial match experience.

The officers and directors of the Cavan-South Monaghan Association are as follows:

President—H. A. Fallis.
1st Vice-Pres.—B. Sharpe.
2nd Vice-Pres.—J. L. McCamus.
Secretary-treasurer—V. R. Hunter.
Directors—A. J. Henderson, George Berry, J. L. McCamus, W. R. N. Sharpe, A. J. Fallis, Geo. A. Fair, John Greer, A. B. Kennedy, G. Armstrong, R. O. Larmer, L. M. Fallis, I. W. Larmer, Robt. McCamus, L. W. Smith, R. J. McKnight, H. Tate, D. Rutherford, J. A. Vance, Stewart McGill, R. Bonner, V. R. Hunter, W. T. Donaldson, L. C. McNeill, Wm. Belch, H. Snider, L. H. Winslow.

OUTSIDER WINS FAMOUS BRITISH RACING CLASSIC

"The Pen" Takes Cambridgeshire Stakes From Racedale By a Head.

ODDS 50 TO 1.

Recorder, Public's Choice, Finishes Second—31 Started.

NEWMARKET, England, October 29 (C.P. Cable). — Mrs. Martin Hartigan's colt The Pen won the famous Cambridgeshire Stakes today, starting at odds of 50 to one. Two of the public's choices captured second and third positions, Racedale at 100 to 9 and The Recorder at 7 to 2. The Pen won by a head, while Racedale was half a length in front of The Recorder at the finish.

The result was a matter for congratulation for Mrs. Hartigan and her husband, who trained The Pen, and proved a windfall for the bookmakers. They not only won handsomely on the race, but when The Pen won many popular "doubles" with the Cesarewitch were shattered.

Only one "double" bet was successful, so far as is known, this netting two London men $33,000 between them in return for $2.50.

Cost Only $1,505

The Pen, a colt by Cygnus out of Kilbrona, cost his owner only $1,505. He ran almost in the middle of the field of 31 starters until the bushes were reached, where Anthurium and The Recorder were up in front. The Pen, ridden smartly by Jockey Clifford Richards, overtook the leaders while Racedale surged into second place. The Pen was good enough to keep his head in front at the wire but Racedale finished with a strong challenge. Slipper, French contender was a close fourth, with Finsovinlo fifth, Noble Star sixth, and Cat o'Nine Tails, second favorite at eight to one, seventh. Gaylord was last.

The Pen, carrying an impost of 100 pounds, covered the mile and an eighth in 1.50 4-5.

LIST CHANGES REMAIN SMALL

Drop in Leaders Indicates Cessation of Advance Rather Than Reversal of Movement.

FRONTENAC UP TWO.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 29. (CP)—The general market on Toronto Stock Exchange failed to make further progress during this morning's trading, but the list nevertheless had a firm outward appearance. Fluctuations were so narrow in most cases as to be almost negligible and if most of the leaders were slightly below their previous close this indicated a cessation of the advance rather than a reversal of the movement.

The feature from standpoint of price movement was McColl-Frontenac which jumped between two and three points. The street heard a deal was in progress between McColl and Cities Service, but officials of the latter concern denied all knowledge.

Noranda lost a point of the gain made yesterday, Nickel eased to 18, Brazilian was selling under 27 and in the oil group, B.A. Oil, Imperial and International Petroleum were fractionally lower. Dominion Stores lost a small amount at midday and Steel of Canada, Canadian Dredge, Service Stations were under their previous close. Bell Telephone recovered part of the loss encountered late yesterday and Ford of Canada, Massey-Harris continued upward.

SCRAP RESULTS IN TWO ARRESTS

Special Police Patrol Sent to Gatineau After Anti-Foreign Demonstration.

SEVERAL HURT.

HULL, Que., Oct. 29. (CP) (Special police patrol was sent to the small nearby settlement of Gatineau when officials of the International Paper Company plant there reported disturbances growing out of anti-foreign demonstrations by a group of mill workers. One naturalized Canadian was assaulted and as a result Emile Marengers and Aldenis Grondin were arrested on charges of assault and uttering threats.

On several occasions during the past month, a group of the workers have held meetings to voice protest against the employment of new Canadians. NEW YORK RE-ACTS FOLLOWING DECLINES OF EARLY SESSION

Further Slump in Steel Mill Production Weighs Heavily Upon To-day's Trading.

CAR LOADINGS LIGHTER.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Oct. 29.—(C.P.)—A further slump in steel mill production and in the movement of freight weighed heavily upon the stock market for a time to-day, but it began to bear its burdens more easily by early afternoon.

Score of prominent shares dropped 2 to 9 points during the morning, but the selling was in such small volume that shorts grew cautious and began to cover, including recoveries of a point or more from the lowest. Trading was sluggish.

Eastman Kodak dropped 9 points, then rallied 4. U. S. Steel sold sold off 3 5-8, and rebounded more than a point. Allied Chemical lost 5, and recovered moderately. Among lightly traded issues, Radio preferred 'B' dropped 6 points to a new low under 50, and Missouri Kansas Texas preferred dropped 8 to a new minimum. Colorado Fuel declined 4 points, reflecting the dividend reduction. Active shares losing 2 to 3 included American Telephone, Atchison, Westinghouse Electric, North American, Bethlehem, United Aircraft and American Radiator.

Freight car loadings for the week ended Oct. 18 showed a drop of 23,789 cars from the previous week, a decline larger than normal for that period. The total was about 20 per cent under both 1929 and 1928, and the lowest since 1919. The weekly Petroleum statistics showed moderate gains in crude production and gasoline stocks, despite the widespread price reductions.

Alberta In Advance With Town Planning

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 28.—(By the Canadian Press)—Under the heading "Alberta Town Planning" The Winnipeg Evening Tribune editorially refers to the fact that Alberta was the first provinee in the Dominion to create a department of town planning, called the Town and Rural Planning Advisory Board, and says the annual report "is an interesting document, both for what it promises and what it presents in the way of actual achievement." The Tribune says:

"Urban planning is a prominent part of the activities carried on, and the report lists 14 Alberta cities and towns which now have town-planning commissions. These and other centres are given every assistance from the director. Plans have been made and valuable advice given on various phases of urban development.

"The efforts of the advisory board reach out into all phases of planning and beautifying in the province. One useful piece of legislation which has resulted from the establishment of the board is a set of regulations aimed at maintaining the scenic advantages of Alberta highways. An interesting section of the report deals with 'farm planning.' On invitation, the Alberta town-planning department inspects farm-steads, advises on their treatment, and even makes plans. A service has also been inaugurated to give information on tree planting on farmsteads.

"It will thus be seen that in a very real way townplanning practice and town-planning principles are penetrating into all corners of Alberta. The province is setting a splendid example which other provinces might follow to advantage."

LONDON, Ont., October 29 (C.P.).—An insecticide so strong that it is alleged to have eaten the finish off $1,500 worth of hardware in a London store is the basis of a County Court action, begun before Judge Joseph Wearing this morning. The hardware merchant, A. E. Robinson, is suing E. W. Curtwright of Toronto for the alleged damage to his stock, claiming that he had hired the Toronto specialist through his landlord to exterminate vermin in his store at 701 Hamilton Road.

After hearing the plaintiff's case, Judge Wearing ordered an adjournment so that Mr. Curtwright could secure services of counsel. The case will probably be resumed later in the week.

Attractive Display In Hunt Accessories

With the opening of the hunt season, fast approaching in this section of the Dominion, Peterboro' Hardware Company's attractive show window, is once again tantalizing the big army of local huntsmen, who are impatient for the chase.

Making an attractive background for the numerous sporting accessories which this store has in stock, the window is artistically dressed to represent a scene in the backwoods.

A deer, one of those shy creatures of the woods, is standing in an attitude of alertness and suspicion, in surroundings which are realistically natural. The floor of the spacious window is carpeted with leaves in all the glory of their autumn tints, while all the necessities and accessories pertaining to hunting are grouped neatly in the foreground.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND BRIEFS

A SPECIAL SERVICE TO THE EXAMINER

The United States boasts of 24 companies each of which has assets in excess of one billion dollars. Nine of the twenty four are financial institutions. Assets of the twenty four aggregate $41,000,000,000, which is estimated to be about 12 per cent of the entire wealth of the United States. Comparisons often are insidious but it is interesting to note that in Canada there are three companies with assets above one billion dollars, two of three railways and the third a banking institution. Canadian National Railways is easily the largest corporation in the Dominion with assets of $2,333,878,919.

C.P.R. is second with assets of $1,339,387,261. Royal Bank is the third member of the group, assets totalling $1,001,442,741. Assets of the three amount to $4,674,708,921. Figures are taken from the balance sheets for the railways as of December 31, 1929, and for the Royal Bank from the balance sheet as of November 30, 1929.

A few weeks back announcement was made that Carling Breweries would enter the merger with others to form the Brewing Corporation of Canada and that an offer to the minority shareholders of the Former company would be made shortly. This offer is made to-day and takes the form of an exchange of one preferred share and five common shares of Brewing Corporation for ten shares of Carling. In many respects the exchange will be advantageous to Carling stockholders.

Dividends on Carling shares were discounted in January, 1929, and stockholders have been without remuneration on their investment since. Under the proposal the shareholders making the exchange will receive dividends at the annual rate of $2.50 on the share of preferred and will continue to have an equity in future earnings, not only of their own company, but the others as well, through the five shares of Brewing Corporation common. Their interest will be in a number of companies spread throughout Ontario and extending to Western Canada and while in return for ten shares of Carling they will only receive one preferred and five common shares of Brewing Corporation there is the advantage in that one share is preferred as to assets and dividends and may be converted into two shares of common at the option of the holder.

Maple Leaf Milling

Following the meeting of the Maple Leaf Milling an interesting question has arisen as to where the actual control of the company is now held. At one time during the meeting it was stated the former president owned Maple Leaf Milling through ownership of more than 51 per cent of the common stock and later it was said that when the losses were known, officials took what security there was, mostly shares of the Maple Leaf Company itself. If this security represents the controlling interest of James T. Stewart, then control of the company rests in the treasury to be exercised by the present board. Therefore there has been a change in control and the board of directors elected will not be hampered in their efforts to rebuild. Shareholders attending the annual meeting of Maple Leaf Milling Company were greatly impressed by the frankness of the board of directors and before the proceedings closed, there was a distinct change in the temperature. Several stockholders went there with the intended purpose of finding out who was to blame for the huge losses incurred in the sixteen months period and there was not a single question asked, but what it was not answered fully. Officials were on their feet for well over an hour under a barrage of question of all sorts and the result was a better understanding of the difficulties and an expression of confidence that the company would pull itself out by starting all over again under the reorganization and new management. The re-election of all retiring directors with the addition of J. C. Gage was a tribute to those who have had the affairs of the company in hand in recent months and there was not a dissenting voice to the election of the board, many of whom travelled miles to be on hand for the most momentous meeting in the history of this company. Vice president Symington explained the securities held against the unauthorized advances were mostly those of the Maple Leaf Milling Company itself and improvement in the company's affairs would be doubled as shareholders not only had the equity represented by their own shares, but that represented by the shares held in the treasury.

After an interruption of nearly a month, gold movements to Canada from New York have been resumed. Monday the dollar was quoted at a premium of five thirty seconds, which makes shipments profitable and last night $4,000,000 was despatched to Montreal.

The first shipment was made on July 22 and since the time the total inflow of yellow metal has amounted to $26,500,000. The Canadian Exchange, which was at a discount of more than one per cent. the first of the year, made a steady recovery until May, but the slump in that month was more than made up in June when the Canadian dollar went to a premium for the first time in 1930. The exchange reached its maximum in July and since then has remained constantly above par. Seasonal trade influences and the heavy financing across the line both for government and private account are responsible for this latest rise of the dollar above the gold point.

Seagram Earnings.

Earnings of Distillers Corporation Seagram Limited, in the fiscal year ended July 31, 1930, were above those of the preceding year and the financial statement to be presented at the annual general meeting of stockholders in Montreal to-morrow will show earnings approximating $2.05 per share contrasted with $1.52 in the 1928-1929 year. It is understood that earnings for the period were in the neighborhood of $3,400,000 against $2,300,000 in the preceding period, an increase of around $1,000,000. The progress made towards higher prices on the Toronto Stock Exchange this week found the average at the close last night up to a level comparable with that of two weeks ago but still considerably below that of the first of the month. The index is some five points above the low for the year made last week. This morning prices were easier in some sections, especially along about mid-day, but the market on the whole was firm. The turnover was slow and what selling did seep in the market was absorbed. Some of this selling is coming from interests who make commitments when prices were at or near the lows and are now taking profits since there is no immediate prospect of a further rise.

Over the week-end Canadian Corporations will pay dividends to their stockholders aggregating over $5,000,000, which should result in increased demand for investment securities. The month of November is one of the lightest of the calendar year for such distributions and on this occasion will prove no exception. The list comprises the regulars with a few missing, owing to the fact some companies found it necessary to omit and defer payments. Most such omissions took place earlier in 1930, however, and there are no additions at present. A year ago bonus payments were liberal in the final months of that year but the only extra distribution to be paid at this time is a bonus of $1 a share, as well as the regular quarterly dividend of $3 by the Imperial Bank of Canada.

As the date draws near for the publication of the earning statement of International Nickel, covering the third quarter and first nine months of 1930, the street is busy guessing as to what the profit per share will be. The consensus of opinion appears to be that profit will be about 15 cents a share for the third quarter compared with 20 cents, and 30 cents in the second and first quarters, respectively. On this basis, Nickel will have earned in the nine months approximately 65 cents a share of 10 cents short of the dividend requirement for the period of 75 cents. In the first nine months of 1929 earnings amounted to $1.11 and for the full year $1.47 a share.

TWO STOCK BROKERS ACKNOWLEDGE GUILT

Lymburn, Attorney-General of Alberta, who claims they are entirely inadequate for the offense. The men are granted bail pending the appeal.

Shortly after the arrests in Calgary, Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General of Ontario, issued warrants for the arrest of 15 persons in Toronto, 13 members of stock brokerage firms being charged with conspiracy to defraud and two employees being held as material witnesses. Solloway and Mills were included among the warrants issued in Toronto, the other warrants concerning the members of the firms of D. S. Paterson and Company, Stobie-Forlong and Company, Homer L. Gibson and Company and Arthur E. Moysey and Company.

Col. Price stated the charges against the firms involved would bring under the spotlight of official investigation transactions involving millions of dollars, a great proportion of which represented the investments of large and small traders in mining issues listed on the Toronto Stock and Mining Exchange.

The Charge Read

The count on which Solloway and Mills pleaded guilty reads that "They did in the years 1928, 1929 and 1930, with intent to make gain or profit by the rise or fall in price of stocks of incorporated companies, make or sign or authorize to be made or sign contracts or agreements, oral or written, purporting to be for the sale or purchase of such shares of stock in respect of which no delivery of the shares of such stock, sold or purchased was made or received and without the bona-fide intention to make or receive such delivery contrary to Section 231 of the Criminal Code."

The Chamber of Commerce stands for the principles of county-wide co-operation, and would wipe out sectionalism through which we can accomplish nothing.

SCHOOL BOARD TO HIRE NURSE

Campbellford Board of Education Comes to Agreement at Regular Meeting Monday.

TRAIN SERVICE TO REMAIN.

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 29. — The monthly meeting of the Campbellford Board of Education was held on Monday evening in the High School, those present being: Dr. H. O. Richardson, charman; Dr. O. C. Watson, Rev. N. Clark Wallace, C. M. Benor, G. O'Sullivan and J. A. Loucks.

Dr. Watson, charman of the committee appointed to look into the matter of train service, reported for that body. He stated that the train authorities had been approached in reference to the changing of the schedule, but this they were unable to do until next year.

Dr. Richardson also reported to the meeting on the matter of a school nurse. He stated that a member of the profession had been approached and that the young lady in question had agreed to inspect the children of the school for $5.00 a day. She estimated that it would take from seven to eight days to complete the work. This did not include the separate school this year.

On motion of Mr. Loucks, seconded by the Rev. Clark Wallace it was agreed to engage a nurse to examine the pupils of the school and that the matter be left to the committee to arrange. This was for one examination only.

It was also decided on motion to charge the sum of one dollar to any party renting the hall at the High school who also wanted the use of the electric stove.

Robert Bateson, on behalf of Seymour Oratorical Society, addressed the board asking that they grant the use of the High School Auditorium for the stageing of the Seymour Township oratorical contest on November 27th. On motion of Dr. Watson seconded by the Rev. Clark Wallace it was decided to let the society have the use of the hall free of charge.

After the passing of accounts, on motion the board adjourned.

"No institution", said Dr. Oliver, "is doing more to hold this country in love, understanding and unity then the United Church. Canada without the United Church would at this moment, be spiritually impoverished."

LEGION MAY FORM BRANCH IN ALNWICK

Baltimore Veterans Are Incorporated Into Cobourg Brasch of Legion.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 29. (Special to The Examiner)—An important outcome of a meeting held here by the Cobourg Branch of the Canadian Legion was the decision to incorporate the Baltimore veterans in the Cobourg Legion Branch, and to give every assistance to the formation in Alnwick Township of a new branch with the centre probably at Roseneath.

It was further decided to hold a Poppy Day ball at the Cobourg Armories on Friday evening, November 7, the proceeds of which will go to the Poppy Day Fund. The ball will mark the beginning of the winter's social events in Cobourg.

Refreshments were served, and the meeting, which began with its ritual one minute of silence, closed with the national anthem.

WORK STARTED ON HAVELOCK DRAINS

Construction Will Relieve Unemployment Situation in the Village.

HAVELOCK, Oct. 29.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Work has been started on the drains of the village as a means of solving the unemployment situation, which had become most acute. Two gangs of men under the supervision of Mr. Joseph Parcells and Mr. Will Seabrooke are employed. One gang is working north from Mr. Archie McColl's residence on Concession street and the other gang is working on King street. About thirty-five men are working in these two gangs. Work on the cement walks, a repair job, will also be started on Mathison St. east of the park, and in front of Mr. J. Armstrong's residence. New steps have been built leading into the town hall. This is some thing was badly needed, as the old ones were in a very unsafe condition. The lattice fence erected through the good office of the Women's Institute has been painted, and is a wonderful improvement.

It is understood that bulbs will be planted on the lot adjoining the town hall in the very near future. Altogether the village is taking on a much brighter, better kept look, under all these improvements.

HALLOWE'EN PROGRAM.

Members of Havelock Efficiency League Spend Delightful Evening.

HAVELOCK, Oct. 29 (Examiner Correspondence).—The regular meeting of Havelock Efficiency League was held in the school room on Monday evening, Oct. 27, with a good attendance and a splendid Hallowe'en program was given.

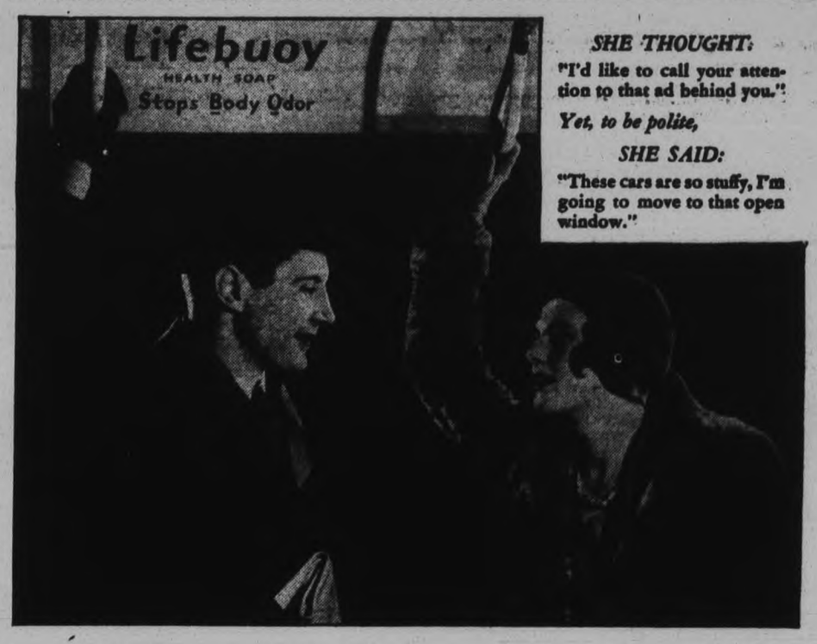
Hymns "When He Cometh," "Yes, Jesus Loves Me," and "Jesus Calls Us O'er the Tumult" were sung by all present.

Miss Roberts, the president, led the devotional exercise. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. After the business in hand, chiefly making arrangements about the hot dinner to be served on Monday evening next, it was decided not to hold a meeting next week.

Miss Una Archer took the chair and presided for the program, which was greatly enjoyed, as follows:

Reading, "Hallowe'en," Miss Alma Hagerman. Pianoforte Solo, "When It's Springtime in the Rockies," Miss Redden. Recitation, "The Goblins Will Get You if You Don't Watch Out," Mrs. (Rev.) Archer. Quartet, "Keep Singing," Messrs. H. Campney, Everett Chiles, Misses Helen Fennell, Una Archer.

A pleasing feature of the evening was the large number of members who were dressed in masquerade costume, goblins, spooks, etc. The meeting closed with the Mispah blessing.



SHE THOUGHT:
"I'd like to call your attention to that ad behind you."

Yet, to be polite,

SHE SAID:
"These cars are so stuffy, I'm going to move to that open window."

Girls politely snubbed him
... until he discovered why .. "B.O." (Body Odor)

HE COULDN'T understand it. All day long the incident bothered him. What had he done? Why had she left him so abruptly on the trolley that morning? Why did girls always seem to avoid him?

Suddenly an idea flashed into his mind. "B.O."—body odor. Could he be guilty? Impossible—yet suppose he was ... That very day he switched to Lifebuoy. Now he's a favorite with everybody—invited everywhere. "B.O." no longer robs him of popularity.

• • •

It is hard to realize that we may be guilty of "B.O." But just stop and think. We all perspire. Even on coldest days our pores give off a quart of odor-causing waste. True, we don't notice it. Our sense of smell quickly becomes deadened to an ever-present odor. But it's only too apparent to others.

Why, then, risk offending when it's so easy to be safe? Just wash and bathe with Lifebuoy. Its creamy, refreshing, antiseptic lather penetrates pores so deeply, purifies so thoroughly that "B.O." completely vanishes. And how good you feel after a Lifebuoy bath—how gloriously fresh and clean!

Keeps complexions radiant

Lifebuoy is a marvelous complexion soap. Watch dull skins freshen—poor complexions glow with radiant health. Its pleasant extra-clean scent, that vanishes as you rinse, tells you Lifebuoy purifies. Get some today.

LODGE ORGANIZED AT MOUNT PLEASANT

International Order of Good Templars Resuscitates Lodge No. 157.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Oct. 29—The International Order of Good Templars, through the Grand Lodge of Canada, formally resuscitated the dormant Mount Pleasant Lodge No. 157 on Saturday.

Bro. J. R. Clark, Grand Chief Templar of Toronto officiated, assisted by the Grand Counsellor, Grand Chaplin, Grand Secretary, Grand Superintendent of Juvenile Work and the Grand Superintendent of educational work.

About twenty-five other members from Toronto Lodges were also present at this impressive ceremony, when six former Good Templars were re-admitted and eight new candidates initiated into the Order.

The Charter was restored to the Lodge which is, by virtue of its origin, the oldest Lodge in the Good Templar World. The Grand Lodge of Canada is the oldest Grand Lodge in the World.

The Mount Pleasant Lodge was originally instituted in 1857 and has kept busy up until two years ago when it ceased working. However, it still retained representation in its Grand Lodge.

Bro. F. H. Gardiner, Sr., of Omemee was elected as Lodge Deputy

An open meeting followed and visitors enjoyed the games and amusements until a late hour when the Toronto party returned homeward happy in the knowledge that they had established again their outpost in the village of Mount Pleasant.

Lakefield Breaks Even With Trinity

The Trinity College School football team broke even with the Lakefield Preparatory School in a double-header Monday afternoon. The Brent House team from Trinity was defeated by Lakefield Seniors 12 to 9. Maill, on the half-line for the winners, was the outstanding player on the field, kicking seven of his team's points. For Trinity, Burgess, Macray, Wright and Disner were the most effective. In the second game, T.C.F. Littleside defeated Lakefield, 120-pound team, decisively by 21 to 3.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, October 29. — Receipts at the Union Stock Yards yesterday were 965 cattle, 268 calves, 584 hogs, 1,266 sheep and lambs.

There were 2,800 cattle left from Monday added to the fresh receipts at the offering at the yard yesterday morning. Opening trade was slow with bids lower on weighty steers and common killers. A few good butcher steers sold steady at 7 to 7½ cents a pound, and the plain to good cows from 3¼ to 5 cents a pound. Canners and cutters were fairly plentiful with selling unchanged at 1½ to 2 cents a pound. Store cattle trade was fairly active, with prices steady at 5 to 6 cents a pound for bulk, and up to 6¼ cents a punod for good choice beef.

Milker and springer trade was slow, with $100 each taking the best with plain and medium cows not wanted. Calves opened at 12 to 12½ cents a pound for choice veal downward to 7 cents a pound for the plain. Common grassers were selling at 3½ to 4 cents a pound. Some of the best lambs sold early at 8½ cents a pound. The bids on the bulk of the offering were easier at 8¼ cents a pound for good ewes and wethers and 6¼ cents a pound for cows. The market is likely to settle at that level. Sheep are steady at 4 to 4½ cents a pound as are good butcher ewes, with a few of the best selling at 5 cents a pound. The hog market is unsettled, packers bidding 10¼ to 10½ cents for bacon f.o.b., and 11¼ to 11½ cents a pound w.o.c. The run was light and salesmen were asking a slight advance.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, October 29. — An erratic trading session on the wheat market here closed out with a final five-minute rally, which brought values forward, to finish 1⅝c to 1¾c a bushel above Monday's quotes.

Strength at Liverpool brought about an early advance, but this was not long sustained and before midday there was a recession, but "shorts" came to the fore, and, with offerings light, soon had prices climbing. The top prices of the day were recorded in the last five minutes.

Export sales by direct exporters and others were estimated at upward of 750,000 bushels, and buying against this was said to be the best support the market got until the "short" covering developed.

Trade in cash wheat and coarse grains was light and without special feature.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Oct. 29.—There was no change on the egg market here yesterday. Less than carlot prices for fresh extras were 48c to 50c; fresh firsts, 42c to 43c, and fresh seconds, 30c a dozen. Receipts were 1,820 cases, but it was stated that the majority of the arrivals were American eggs going through Montreal for export.

The butter market was steady with Eastern Townships No. 1, pasteurized creamery quoted at 29¾ to 30c a pound in carlots.

To retailers, solids were 32c and prints 33c a pound. Receipts were 104 boxes.

Ontario cheese lost ¼ and Quebec cheese was unchanged. Ontario cheese was quoted at 14½c to 14¾c a pound and Quebec cheese at 14c to 14¼c. Receipts totalled 3,565 boxes.

The potato market was unchanged.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Oct. 29.—Though large wholesalers did not quote higher prices yesterday to the country shipper for eggs, some of the other dealers stated that they were offering 46c to 47c for extras, 40c for firsts, 26c for seconds, and 29c to 30c for pullet extras, ungraded, delivered, cases returned. This was an increase of 4c per dozen on the former price for extras, and 2c to 3c better on firsts. Seconds were up 1c also, which was probably due to the fact that local brokers found themselves able to get a cent better for their supplies of this grade.

Good Demand

There was a very good demand for fresh eggs, but receipts have dropped to low levels, and most wholesalers were working on storage supplies for retail requirements, at 38c for extras, and 36c for firsts, candled, out of storage. The trade in storage eggs, among jobbers, also showed a stronger trend at prices about 36c for extras and 34c for firsts, and should gradually amount to large business, as receipts of fresh supplies dwindle.

Butter.

There was only a moderate trade on the butter market, and buyers were in the same mood that they have maintained for some time, which meant spasmodic purchases. Prices were steady at 30½c to 31c for No. 1, and 29½c to 30c for No. 2.

More New Zealand

A report from an authoritative source stated that 6,800 boxes of butter were due to arrive in Vancouver the middle of November from New Zealand. It was also stated that butter would arrive from New Zealand during the next few months at Halifax, irrespective of the new duty, and the reason that it was going to Vancouver at present was due to the stronger markets there than at Halifax. Of course, the present shipment, mentioned above, is very small, but it gives some inkling as to the ultimate effect of the new tariff on a country that has year-around pasturage.

Cheese

The cheese market slipped back ¼c to 15½c to 15¾c for new, large, Government graded, paraffined, 15¾c to 16c for twins, and 16c to 16¼c for triplets. A few weeks ago the market was soaring, and this was attributed to heavy exports at the season, but it is now pointed out that cheese factories were making the last of their grass product at that time, and dealers were anxious to get it, and now the few factories that are open are making "fodder" cheese, which is not in demand.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29. — Scoring a brisk rally in the late dealings, prices for wheat and corn yesterday finished at a substantial net advance. Assertions of rust damage to the Argentine wheat crop had considerable market influence, and so likewise did enlargment of wheat export business from North America. There was also a renewal of talk that the Wickersham Committee, which meets on Nov. 5, would recommend legalizing 4.40 per cent. beer.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm at virtually the day's top level, 1¼c to 1½c a bushel higher than Monday. Corn closed ⅝c to 1½c up; oats unchanged to ¼c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 25c.

The champion questioner in the House of Commons over a twelve-month period was Harry Day, who put 847 questions to ministers of state, but trailing him by only three questions was Sir Kingsley Wood.

YOUTH FACING SERIOUS CHARGE

Held Responsible For Death of Leamington Woman in Highway Accident.

CHANGED CAR LICENSE.

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 28. (CP)—Arnold Upcott 19, of Leamington was taken into custody to-day, at his home in connection with the accident which caused the death of Mrs. Mary Hannah Awrey of Leamington. The woman was struck by an automobile on Sunday night and died on Monday morning. The driver of the car is said to have looked at the victim, said 'It's too bad' and then to have driven away. Provincial police assisted in locating the auto which it is alleged was concerned in the accident.

While the number of the car was taken at the scene of the accident it was found that these did not correspond in make of car, with the one concerned. It was found that markers had been taken off a car on a used car lot in East Windsor and put on a car of another make. This car was located and is reported to be owned by Burton Upcott, father of the boy now in custody. He is to face a charge, police say, of using license plates on an auto other than the one for which they were issued.

Young Upcott appeared before S. T. Anderson, J.P., at Leamington today on a charge of criminal negligence. The crown has asked for a reward until after the inquest, which is to be held in Leamington on November 11.

Funeral services for the late Mrs. Awrey are being held in Leamington to-day and interment is to be made to-morrow in Hamilton.

TEMPERANCE TALK HEARD IN WARSAW

Mrs. William Forsythe Speaker in Presbyterian Sunday School.

WARSAW, Oct. 29.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Mrs. William Forsythe made a most earnest appeal for temperance or better appeal for absolute doing away with liquor as a beverage in an address in the Presbyterian Sunday school on Sunday. "What are church members doing that there is such an enormous amount of liquor being used, and the money spent worse than wasted? No language could be too strong to denounce the evil. Liberty is the keynote of those who advocate its use, but it is liberty from a wrong angle. Freedom is not good unless wisely used. The basis of all laws is that no man shall have the right to do anything to injure another. Liquor injures.

Why is the use of liquor tabooed in many fraternal societies?

Young men and young women do not know of conditions as they were a generation ago. Drink is no joke, nor is the drunkard to be laughed at. The selling of liquor is now in the hands of the government. It is up to Christian people to rise against the sale of intoxicating beverages. One hospital doctor said seven out of every ten of his patients owed their ill health to liquor. It is not just temperance but absolute teetotalism that is needed."

Mrs. Forsythe urged a monthly lesson on the subject. She spoke of the amount needed to relieve unemployment, and said that that amount was wasted on liquor.

The Rev. J. W. Wilkinson also spoke at the evening service of the liquor question.

Dr. Munro was the temperance speaker at Bethel Sunday school on Sunday morning and at the Presbyterian Sunday school at Norwood in the afternoon. James Greystock conducted the Presbyterian S.S. in the village during his absene.

Edgar Clark of Norwood was the speaker in the Ward United Sunday school in the morning and at Cotesloe S.S. in the afternoon. James Hawthorne spoke in the Westwood United Church S.S. in the afternoon and Mrs. James Greystock in the Presbyterian S.S.

Prizes Presented at Bowlers' Annual Banquet

Much Work Ahead of Club

John D. Fitzpatrick, Newly-elected President, Speaks Well for Future Welfare.

MANY ADDRESSES.

Presentation and Address Read to Reg. Fox Who is Leaving the City.

The annual banquet of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club, Limited, held in the Paragon Tea Rooms last evening, constituting the first affair of its kind under the club's new regime, augurs well for the future welfare of this ancient sport in Peterborough.

With the club's new plant — the finest of its kind in the Province—there seems to have reawakened a new spirit of optimism and sportsmanship, which was fully exemplified among the large number of bowlers who gathered around the banquet board, under the chairmanship of their worthy president, John D. Fitzpatrick.

Following the chairman's opening remarks, in which he made a comparison between the old club house at Aylmer and Brock streets, and the new and palatial premises on McDonnel street. He made a point of tendering his thanks to all who had assisted in bringing their vision to material realisation. Mentioning a number of names constituting most of the men who are serving on the present directorate, Mr. Fitzpatrick said, "Personally I shall never forget what they attempted to do, and what they succeeded in doing."

Welcome Changes

He reviewed the events of the last season's bowling activity, drawing a vivid oral picture of how the beautiful club house and grounds, had replaced what was but a short time ago, a neglected vacant lot.

He forecast a big year's work ahead of all members, and urged them to give a solid chain of support to their club, in order to make it even better yet.

The well conceived program was rounded out by the display of some real talent among the club members, who provided music, singing, comic monologues, and speeches, while the gathering as a whole, heartily accepted the invitations to join in and sing popular choruses.

A Loss to the Club

Among the chief items on a somewhat long program, was the presentation of prizes to the outstanding bowlers of the past season, and the presentation to Reg. Fox of a token of esteem from his fellow members, on the occasion of his impending departure from this city, to take up business in Toronto.

The presentation took the form of a handsome wristlet watch, and was made by E. R. Disney, secretary and Harold Freeman.

Appreciative reference was made to Mr. Fox's untiring efforts on behalf of the club, during his ten years' term in this city, and regret was expressed at the loss which his departure will mean. Mr. Fox served on the House Committee, along with the two clubmen who made the presentation. He was also very active in the stock selling campaign conducted last winter, and had the onerous task of making up the rink schedule at the opening of the 1930 season.

An Old Sportsman

Another pleasing incident in connection with the presentation of prizes, was a short speech by G. H. Giroux a member of Walter Oke's rink, runners up in the rink competition.

Mr. Giroux in a few words fully demonstrated his true sporting spirit, which has caused him to take an active part in bowling since the year 1891. He was the first man to organise the game in this city, he declared, and has bowled for a period of twenty-two years and curled with Peterborough Curling Rink, of which he is a past-president for thirty-eight years.

In claiming the distinction of being the oldest man in this city, who has continuously been engaged in sport since 1881, Mr. Giroux said, "My advice is to work hard if you intend to have a club. You have undertaken an obligation which is going to tax all your energy, but I have no doubt that you will reach your objective."

To the younger members he urged them to play games that they may never grow old in appearance. He is still in the game, he stated, not for the prizes he can win, but just for the sheer love of sport.

New Bowlers Take Prizes

A striking feature in evidence, was that many of the prize winners are newcomers to the club, or at least men of short experience as compared with some of their competitors.

Don Hill, whose rink took fourth prize, experienced his first year as skip in the past season, while a winner in the doubles J. A. Grant receives extra credit owing to the fact that this is his first season in the game.

The Prize List

The prize winners were as follows:

Rinks:

1st Prize—Geo. Coleman, skip; N. H. Fletcher, Dr. C. H. Fulford, James Metherel.

2nd Prize—Walter J. Oke, skip; Geo. H. Giroux, Ernest Smith, Jack Sullivan.

3rd Prize—E. J. Cullen, skip; V. J. Tully, Dr. H. J. Long, Frank Beddle.

4th Prize—Don Hill, skip; Alex Anderson, Dave Smith, Wm. McCracken.

Doubles:

1st Prize—Mark Bredin and J. A. Grant.

2nd Prize—Wilford Wood and H. Benneworth.

Singles:

Prize winners—Reg. Fox and Nelson Routley.

Referring in highest terms to the service of the past-president, Mark Bredin, the chairman called upon him for a speech.

Mr. Bredin said he appreciated the efforts of the bowlers in bringing along new members this year, and drew attention to two rules of the Dominion Lawn Bowling Association, which have been disregarded in the past.

The rule regarding the placing of mats, he said, requires that the mat be not less than 3 feet and not over 6 feet from the ditch. Another rule requires that the bowler must have one foot on the mat while delivering the bowls. He asked for the co-operation of all players, in enforcing these rules next season.

Financing Campaign

George Gimblett, senior, chairman of the Finance Committee announced a campaign in which a drive is to be made in an effort to clear up outstanding debts against the club, and to secure new stock subscriptions. He made an appeal for fifteen volunteers to help him in his work, and requested that they hand their names in in the course of the next day or so.

The campaign will follow closely a plan formulated by Reg. Fox, and will go a long way to assist the club in commencing next season's activities under the most favourable conditions.

Entertainers

Among the strong array of talent which contributed largely to the success of the evening was Charles Coleman, who sang an exceedingly amusing number, the inimitable and ever popular Bob Hendry; John Wade, complete with "topper" and monocle, who gave a good interpretation of Ella Shield's old favourite "Burlington Bertie"; and Martin Chenhall, A.R.C.O., and his sextette, J. Anderson, Horace Hope, John Wade, George Coleman, Jr., George East and W. A. Fletcher, also Charles Seymour's snappy orchestra, consisting of the following instrumentalists: Mr. Seymour, A. E. McKeown, Reg. Dyer, Cliff Russaw, Cecil Gallagher and Harry Northrop.

The City Bowling League will start the season on Thursday next, with eight teams, but the league executive would welcome two more entries to make a ten team loop. Any interested person should get in touch with Walter Firth or Bert Duffus.

High Single Record

Harry Northrop clipped off a high single record in the C.G.E. League for this season while bowling with the Cost No. 2 team in Group 3 of the Shop League. The score was 313. Gudmunson dethroned MacDonald in the C.G.E. Engineers' League by scoring 293, thirteen pins more than his opponent, to take the high single to date.

K. OF C. ALLEYS

Vince O'Connell went on a heavy hitting spree in the Friday Night League at the K. of C. Alley last week, to chalk up a single of 377, which is a record in league bowling for this season. His three game total was 780. Incidentally O'Connell's team collected 8 points at the expense of Stante's crew, who bowled nicely. L. Melrose was topnotcher for the losers, chalking up the following totals: 233, 247, 219=699. Guerin for the winners, collected 329 single.

Ranger Takes Single

Ward's team took Meagher's quintet into camp to win a 6—2 victory, the honors for high single going to Harry Ranger on the winning team with a score of 318, while F. Meagher toppled 608 pins in three games for the losers for a high triple score.

This week the Friday Night League at the K. of C. Alleys will operate on Thursday night, due to the fact that Hallowe'en falls on Friday.

PLANS COMPLETED AT LAKE PLACID

Intensive Preparations Are Planned For Olympic Winter Games of 1932.

TORONTO, October 29. — Preparations for the III. Olympic Winter Games to be held at Lake Placid, New York, in February, 1932, have been practically completed more than a year in advance of the event, according to an announcement just issued by the III. Olympic Winter Games Committee.

The international contests, which will draw sportsmen from all over the world, will cover four major fields, skiing, skating, hockey, and bobsledding, and two "demonstrations" as permitted under Olympic rules. The first of these two "demonstrations" will be dogsled racing, a spirited sport indigenous to the North American Continent. The second will be probably curling, or possibly one-man bobsled racing.
